If President Roosevelt will not seek a third term, and will not be drafted, then his mantle should fall upon Speaker Bankhead of Alabama, who has been associated with him in all New Deal activities and by his successful, safe and brilliant leadership as Speaker of Congress, has demonstrated to the nation that he possesses superior qualities of statesmanship.

Aside from Mr. Roosevelt, I do not believe we can find a man better equipped in every way for the Presidency than is Speaker Bankhead. In the event President Roosevelt's support should be thrown to him, and there is much reason why it should be, he will have a real chance of being President of the United States, even though he is from the South.

After Roosevelt And Bankhead, What?
After Roosevelt and Bankhead, I have no second choice in view at this time. It seems to me that Mr. Cordell Hull is a safe and sane man. I would like to choose a man of that type. I will be very much inclined, however, to follow the leadership of Speaker Bankhead, our Senior Senator, John Bankhead, and our Junior Senator, Lister Hill. I think we would be safe in following their leadership. They represent the of the South be increased so that will have greater voice in National Conventions of the Party than we have. Alabama, whose electoral votes are always cast for the President, nominee of the Democratic Party, should not be limited to twenty delegates, when Northern and Eastern States, whose electoral votes are cast for the Republican nominee, have many instances, more than three times that number.

Political Philosophy
I have indicated, as briefly as I can, something of my political philosophy. This philosophy has been reflected in my legislative career as State Senator from the Fifteenth Senatorial District and in two terms in the House of Representatives of Alabama, and does stand alone in my statement here.

Respectfully submitted,
L. H. ELLIS

Br'er Tarrypin's Doctrine

Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of The Progressive Farmer, thinks the decline cotton exports is due not to acreage control but to the isolationist policy nations since the World War. Says: "I think the big trouble lies in 'isolationist' spirit that has come America and other nations and that accompanying necessity for each nation to spend more and more for arm navies, and airplanes to preserve isolation . . . in an effort of not to live to itself and adapt the dog of Br'er Tarrypin, 'I don't want nobody an' I don't want nobody to wid me.' Forgetting that other nations cannot buy from us unless we buy from them, America built its own tariff too high in 1930 (Hooverites) . . . ever since then nations have been frenzied of effort to live to themselves. Germany, Italy, Japan have fast cotton substitutes.

"Because nations could virtually sell their products for Brazilian cotton, our high tariffs kept them from getting U. S. cotton in this way. Brazil cotton growing has been tremendously stimulated. Just last week I saw Southern who has been four or five years in the Brazilian cotton. 'With no fertilizer expense, no weevils to fight, little cultivation, and all labor costs low, Brazil greatly increase production in the few years,' he declared."

Mrs. C. E. Stapp Writes To Voters Of County

I take this means of bringing again before the voters of Chilton County Mr. C. E. Stapp's candidacy for Judge of Probate of Chilton County subject to the Democratic Primary to be held May 7.

He is a native Alabamian, 42 years old, and was born and reared on a farm in Pickens County. He attended and completed grammar school and high school in Pickens County and later attended college at Auburn, where he worked his way through.

Leaving College to volunteer for service in the World War, he re-entered Auburn at the close of the war and graduated from this State Institution in 1919. In 1920 he and I married and both of us have enjoyed serving the people of Chilton County and Alabama.

Since graduating from Auburn, he has spent the greater part of his time serving in the capacity as County Agricultural Agent. For a while he served as manager for one of the largest cotton warehouses and compresses in the State. Farmers and Cotton Merchants of Chilton and 15 central Alabama counties were his customers.

In these capacities, he has had the advantage and opportunity to study the conditions and needs of farmers and business in general.

If he is elected, I know he will use his past experiences, the successes, errors and failures of his predecessors in doing everything in his power to give to Chilton County his best.

CCC OPEN HOUSE TERMED GREAT SUCCESS BY CAMP

Open house for visitors at Camp SCS-7 was a great success Sunday, April 7th. The early morning rain and continual cloudy skies failed to prevent some 200 visitors from coming to the Camp.

Men were stationed at various points to conduct parties over the camp. Many comments were made and all of them were favorable to the camp and its personnel.

Among those coming out to help celebrate the natal day of the CCC were the Honorable C. Fenn Jones, Mayor of Clanton; Mrs. Tom Littlejohn, Mr. J. B. Hicks, Dr. H. M. Nix, Miss Nolen Meroney and many others too numerous to mention.

It is a pleasure to have visitors at the camp and on the work projects at any time. It is an added pleasure when they have the elements to honor the organization itself. The Staff and members of Camp SCS-7 appreciate the interest shown by those who came and saw and went away pleased.

Standard For The Home

Mrs. W. J. Billingsley gave the devotional, reading verses from the third chapter of Genesis and 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians. Those taking part on the program were: Mrs. Morris Keen, Mrs. E. B. Simpson, Mrs. W. C. Golden, Mrs. Willie Bean, Mrs. J. P. Hayes.

For the closing Sara Nell Sessions, Rita Thomas, Kathleen Armstrong and Joan Atkinson gave what was considered to be the most outstanding feature of the House Party held at Judson College recently.

My Trip To Moundville

By Gwendolyn Atkinson, Sixth Grade, Clanton Grammar School.

When my teacher, Mrs. C. D. Thomas, suggested a trip to Moundville for the Sixth Grade children, I just couldn't wait for the time to come. At last Saturday morning we left at 8:30 by bus. There were 53 on the bus, but we were happy.

We arrived at Moundville about 12:00 o'clock, and had lunch there. Then our trip through the Museum. It was a sight, seeing all the skeletons and mounds, just as they were put there, and many other Indian relics, and we were fortunate to have Dr. Snow of Birmingham to tell us about these bones and other things. There were many large mounds and we went on top of the highest one. I just can't tell about all the interesting things we saw.

We left there and came back through Tuscaloosa where we went through the large Museum there, and also drove by Bryce Hospital and Veterans Hospital. We arrived home at 7:00 o'clock, tired but happy. We went 217 miles, but we will never forget this interesting and educational trip. We were so glad to have some of the mothers to go with us. Besides Mrs. Thomas were Mrs. J. B. Atkinson, Mrs. T. M. Dennis and Mrs. H. G. Popwell.

Banish Trade Barriers Says Partlow

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Artificial trade barriers in the form of discriminatory freight rates and state taxes are an obstacle to the full development of Alabama industry and farming, W. D. (Billy) Partlow, Jr., candidate for Congress from the Sixth Congressional District, asserted today.

Coming out strongly for passage of an act which would make illegal such unjust and unfair freight rates, Partlow predicted equalization of freight rates would necessarily result in increased sales of southern products and accompanying benefits to southern labor.

"One of the cardinal points in the battle of the people of the South against poverty," Partlow said, "is to insure the free and unhampered movement of trade among the several states."

"Artificial trade barriers in the nature of state taxes on the products of another state are but smaller examples of the disadvantages of the protective tariff."

"One of the greatest handicaps of the South today is the maintenance of the unfair freight rate structure set up for the benefit of northern and eastern manufacturers. I favor the passage of legislation making such unjust and unfair freight rates illegal."

"The equalization of freight rates will necessarily result in increased sales of southern products and the accompanying benefits to southern labor."

"CYCLONE SALLY" WILL BE AT VERBENA HIGH MAY 3

On May 3 the Senior Class of Verbena School will present an uproarious three-act comedy entitled "Cyclone Sally." This is a comedy you "must not" miss, so watch this paper for further announcements.

CELEBRATES FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

MRS. W. C. ROBINSON

An institution that is a distinct asset to Clanton—the Modern Beauty Shop—is this week celebrating their fifth anniversary. Mrs. W. C. Robinson, the proprietor, who without experience put up a shop five years ago, attributes the success and phenomenal growth of the business to the fact that she has at all times operated a clean place, given prompt service, kept in use the latest improved machinery, methods, cosmetics, etc.

At various times since the business began, it has become necessary for expansion, remodeling, improving the place with air conditioning equipment, etc.

Mrs. Robinson has always kept such improvements up to date and had them done at times when first demanded by necessity and her customers.

Mrs. Robinson now owns and operates a shop at Prattville about as large as the Clanton place, and a smaller one at Jemison.

The Modern Beauty Shop is to be complimented for its almost magic growth and fine manner in which it handles its trade through the right personnel and advanced methods.

McAdoo Says British Should Give Us Indies

Washington—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of Treasury, said that he has advocated acquisition of the British West Indies and Bermuda for 2 years and that he "can see no good reason why the British government should not be willing to transfer these possessions to us in part payment of their war debts."

In a letter to the "Make Europe Pay War Debts Committee," McAdoo, who is head of the American President Lines in San Francisco, said the advent of the airplane "makes it even more important that the islands adjacent to our shores shall be wholly under American sovereignty."

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE" AT THOMAS JR. SATURDAY

"Always In Trouble," a three-act play, will be given by the Junior II class on next Saturday night, April 20, commencing at 8:00 o'clock. Admission will be ten and twenty cents. Refreshments will be served and everybody is invited to come. Benefit of the evening will be for the purchase of new clothing exercises of this school. The play will be held on Wednesday night, April 18, at 8:00 o'clock. Rev. Oscar A. Davis, pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church, will be the speaker. Certificates will be awarded to the winners. Three and six grades. Patrons and friends are cordially invited.

MT. CARMEL

The W.M.S. met Thursday afternoon, April 11 at the church. Thirteen were present at this meeting. The main object was to dispose of the quilt the ladies made several weeks ago. Mrs. James Mims of this community won the quilt. The lucky number was 32. The quilt brought $10.00 and the ladies thank each one who helped make this amount possible.

We still have a debt of about $25 on the new addition to our Church and we hope to hear this in the near future. The ladies will quilt a "Friendship" quilt on Friday of this week at the home of Mrs. Eugene Cackler, which will be given to Brother Nick and wife. All you sisters bring your needle and thread, and a dish for lunch and come over and help.

Sunday School attendance is still far below the average, mostly on account of illness. But won't all of you who can come back and invite someone to come with us. Help us carry on the Master's work in a great way.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Mims visited Mrs. Margaret Oden of Isabella spent Sunday night and Sunday with Miss Mary Oden the past week end.

S. S. Sewell and wife and little granddaughter, Joyce Marie visited C. C. Mims at Bessemer last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Odie Sewell visited Sunday were Mr. Andrew Johnson, Mrs. Griffin and children of Clanton, Mrs. Kitchen and children of Bessemer.

Next Saturday night and Sunday are preaching dates here so we invite who will to come.

Here Alabama deaths among white people between 35 and 54 years of age were attributed in 1938 to cancer than to any other single cause.

IN MEMORY OF HERBERT

On April 6 the death angel came and bore away the loving spirit of Herbert Dewey Traywick, age 31. He was taken sick shortly after his return from Montgomery after undergoing a head operation. His unexpected death was believed to be caused from eating some fish which set up ptomaine poison. All was done that could be done but all in vain but we know our loss was heaven's gain.

We can't understand why God picked him out from all the rest unless he loved him best. He was always willing and ready to do his part toward those in need, and those suffering, he would always do everything that could be done and then worry because he couldn't do more.

By his kind words and noble deeds he had won for himself many friends, admirers. We loved him, oh, yes, we loved him but God loved him more and called him home to be with Him on that bright and shining shore. We, too, are like Herbert. We know not the time nor the place when we, too, will be called to meet God face to face.

He leaves to mourn his going a wife and small son, Dewey; 4 brothers, Luther Traywick, Clanton Route 3; Leonard Traywick, Clanton Route 3; Houston Traywick, Maplesville Route 2; Aaron Traywick, Clanton Route 4; 6 sisters, Mrs. Maggie Bice, Clanton Route 3; Jewel Wright, Mrs. Odie Owens, Clanton Route 3; Mrs. Roberta Culp, Clanton Route 3; Mrs. Myrtle Brown, Cullman; Miss Marzell Traywick, Clanton Route 3, and a host of friends and relatives.—Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Traywick.

"GIVE ME CREDIT" AT BILLINGSLEY HIGH ON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Senior Class of Billingsley High School will present the three-act comedy "Give Me Credit," at the high school auditorium Saturday night, April 20, at seven-thirty o'clock. Admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

The play concerns a rich young man, Spencer Atwell, played by Junior Mims, who pretends to be an artist in order to stay in Chicago and have a good time. An amusing scene results when Mrs. Atwell (Clarice Beadlescomb) and Kay Lindsay (Mary Esther Foshee), Spencer's heart interest at the moment, visit his studio and want to see him paint. The play finally works out to the satisfaction of all, resulting in Spencer's finding a new love.

The cast of characters is composed of members of the class, who will combine their efforts to furnish those who attend an evening of real entertainment.

Thorsby Section

MRS. WEBB PARRISH, Correspondent

The Ladies Guild will meet with Mrs. A. N. Laurell Thursday, April 25, with everybody invited.

Congregational Church News
Let us all remember the Union Prayer meeting to be held at the Baptist Church this Wednesday evening at 7:30. We are told that there are approximately 500 members of our two local churches who live in or near Thorsby. There ought to be at least 100 of these interested in the Hour of Prayer. Paul exhorts the Christians NOT to neglect the assembling of themselves together for prayer and fellowship and spiritual nurture.

Services for Sunday, April 21: Sunday School at 9:45. Morning worship and sermon at 11:00. Sermon theme, "Jesus' Last Appearance To His Disciples," with emphasis upon His last words to them and to us.

Thorsby Institute News

Sunday night the Girls' Quartette of Thorsby Institute sang at the Thorsby Baptist Church of which Rev. M. I. McLeod is pastor.

Tuesday afternoon this same quartet sang at the home of Mrs. C. E. Stapp of Clanton where the Music Club met. Miss Una Mae Spears gave a reading.

The Senior Class of Thorsby Institute made its annual trip to Tuskegee Institute on last Friday, April 12. Members of the class gave reports at chapel on Tuesday morning telling of the most interesting things they saw.

During the summer months, Mr. T. E. Campbell will be in charge of the Thorsby Institute office—the time being 8-12 from Monday to Friday as in the past. Mrs. Ruth Suttle, commercial teacher and office secretary, has asked to be released from her work June 3. The Trustees would have liked to re-elect her for the summer and the coming year because of her excellent work and unselfish interest in the welfare of the school.

In her place Miss T. Helen Smith has been elected to teach, beginning next September. Miss Smith has had several years of successful teaching of all commercial subjects, including book-keeping, typewriting, stenography, accounting, etc. Miss Smith holds a life certificate in Maine to teach commercial subjects in high schools. She is studying this year at Boston University, while doing private teaching of shorthand and typewriting.

Miss Alice Burr, teacher of music at Thorsby Institute, has finished work with the Glee Club for this year. The following have been chosen for the chorus which will meet for the rest of the year in the place of the Glee Club, to do special work for commencement: Ruby Raybon, Annette Merchant, Marjorie Bentley, of Thorsby; Hazel Pate, Katherine Pratt, Frances Wood, Mable Wood of Clanton; Jeanette Plant of Decatur and Ruth Duke of Randolph.

The second term of the second semester ends Friday of this week.

In Appreciation

We wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to those friends who so kindly remembered our family with gifts after the burning of our home. We thank everyone very much.—Frances and Mable Wood, Thorsby Institute.

NEW SALEM SINGING SOCIETY

The New Salem Singing Society wishes to announce that on account of the all day singing at Macedonia there will not be singing at our church this Sunday. But please be with us next third Sunday.—Doc Harris.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY OF MRS. M. T. SMITH

The death angel visited the home of Mr. M. T. Smith March 18 and took away his dear loving wife. For some reason we don't know, God in His great power saw fit to call her away from this unfriendly world. She was 72 years of age and loved by everyone who knew her. We truly loved her but God loved her best. She bore her sufferings with patience and said she was willing to die for she was ready to go. We had to spend Easter without her but she spent it in heaven. Weep not, loved ones. Let's leave to meet her some sweet day.—A Granddaughter, Myrtle Littleton.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. J.W. FOSHEE

God in His never-failing wisdom called her to his heavenly home on April 4, at 9:00 o'clock. She had been sick several months, bearing her affliction with patience.

We know your hearts are broken with a void that will take long years to heal. That vacant place and empty chair can never be filled. Though your cries were loud and heart-breaking, they could never compare with the singing and rejoicing of the angels as your dear mother entered into one of their number. Heaven must be a thousand-fold sweeter to you since you have such a bright jewel there.

Mrs. J. W. (Sarah Argie Jones) Foshee was born June 28, 1858. She was married to Joe Foshee Oct. 15th, 1885. She is survived by eight children—Mrs. Della Thomas, Leeds, Ala.; Mrs. Zora Belle Walker, Birmingham; Mrs. Junie Simkins, New Orleans; Harvey, Sie, Dewey and Luther of Clanton; Wornie of Birmingham; seventeen grandchildren, five brothers, besides a host of relatives and friends to miss her.

She was laid to rest Friday at Clanton conducting the funeral services. J. M. Martin & Sons were in charge of burial.

We loved her, yes, we loved her, But angels loved her more;
And they have sweetly called her To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were opened,
And a gentle voice said "Come",
And with farewells unspoken,
Her steps entered home.
Her steps are silent,
Her lips are stilled,
Our hearts are aching,
A place is vacant that can't be filled.
Long are the nights, sad are the days;
God has taken your dear mother;
We will submit to His ways.—By Mrs. John Smith.

IN MEMORY

Mother, as we loved you, so we miss you,
In our thought you are ever near,
Loved, remembered, longed for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.
In your memory is this tribute
To a home in God's own heaven
Where we pray to meet some day.
There we sorrowed one age today
Still bears the scar of grief.
The voice we loved is stilled;
A place made vacant in our hearts
Can never more be filled.—Sons and daughters, written by June.

Mapleville Lumber Co. Sues For $2,999.99

The Mapleville Lumber Company filed suit in Circuit Court in Montgomery Friday against the Southeastern Lumber Associates, a group of six mutual insurance companies. The plaintiff is seeking to collect $2,999.99 for the loss of insured lumber during a fire at its mill last November.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Orchard Management

For the orchardist who expects to place fruit on the market to compete with that from modernly kept orchards, there is but one answer to the question of how thoroughly the orchard should be sprayed, and that is to practice as near perfect orchard sanitation as possible. There is no doubt that diseases and insects will make their appearance in the orchard as the common ones are universally scattered over the State of Alabama and unless those making their appearance in the orchard are promptly eradicated by proper and timely spraying they will soon multiply and become a serious problem. To attempt successful orchard management with the attitude that sprays will be applied as soon as pests show up in serious quantities, is a very unsound policy. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and a program which calls for a sufficient number of sprays to keep the orchard as near completely free of disease as possible is the safest in the long run.

All of our common fruits are attacked by enough insects and diseases to render them almost worthless unless these pests are protected against. San Jose Scale, Curculio which cause worms in the fruit and brown rot and scab which destroy the fruit. All these are controlled by sprays. Bacteriosis calls for timely spray along with scale. For apples and pears the scale must be controlled and the leaves and fruit protected in spring and summer from scab, bitter rot, blotch, black rot, and from such insect pests as codling moth, aphids and possibly leaf eating insects. Timely sprays do the work on these. Grapes respond to sprays from black rot, anthracnose and other diseases and insects. Strawberries should be sprayed or dusted for leaf spot.

Keeping the orchard free of these troubles is of equal importance if not more important than fertilizing, cultivation and pruning of the trees. A good spray outfit should be figured as an absolute necessity when the orchard is set and should be provided as soon as the trees are well established.

A serious mistake is to try to get by with smaller spray outfit than needed. Then spraying the orchard becomes unnecessarily difficult. Keep the orchard clean from the day it is set and it will never be necessary to fight back at outbreaks of orchard pests.

April 27 has been designated as "potato day" celebrating the first train load shipment of Alabama potatoes to the east. A celebration is to be held at Foley.

Bob Goode Leaves Race To Rushton

MARION RUSHTON

Although his name is already on the tickets Bob Goode has withdrawn from the race and asks his friends to vote for his long time friend and schoolmate, Marion Rushton, for National Democratic Committeeman.

Goode's statement of withdrawal follows: "Before beginning an active campaign, I have talked over the issues with my old schoolmate, Marion Rushton, and find that there are no real differences between us. Each of us has other duties of some importance to perform, and it is needless to begin this campaign."

"Mr. Rushton already holds the honor of national Democratic committeeman from Alabama, and is admirably fitted for the service to the party which that honor entails. I am, therefore, withdrawing from the contest. It is prohibitive to me to have my name removed from the ballots, but I respectfully ask my supporters to vote for my friend, Marion Rushton."

The national committeeman issued the following statement: "I have been advised that Mr. Goode has withdrawn as a candidate for national Democratic committeeman, which leaves me unopposed."

"I am glad that there are no real issues between us and I welcome the opportunity to represent a united Alabama democracy."

"I wish now to reiterate the things which I have written and said in my campaign, and to pledge my efforts during the coming four years to their accomplishment."

"To my many friends, both old and new, I give my thanks for the able and effective support which they have given my candidacy. There are many broad and far-reaching problems which face and are of common interest to all Alabama Democrats, regardless of personal political affiliations. To these problems I shall continue to devote myself as the national representative of every Alabamian who believes in the principles of democracy."

Dairy Cows Paying This Alabama Farmer

Dairy cows are being used by Mr. and Mrs. Grady Coleman, Pickens County, Alabama, in increasing their farm income. Their small dairy herd is handled so that from five to eight cows freshen each year. After failing to get a milk route established they worked out arrangements with local merchants to buy their butter. Last year they sold an average of 10 pounds of butter each week—a total of $114.40 worth during the year—and fed the buttermilk to hogs and chickens. In addition they sold $20 worth of milk cows and yearlings.

"We have a fine pasture and raise all our feed, such as hay and cottonseed meal," says Mrs. Coleman, who does the churning, molding and wrapping of the butter.

Chickens And Cows

Paying Two Sisters

Misses Ellie and Annie Bullock, Chambers County, sold $378.20 worth of butter and $64.05 worth of milk at a profit of $320.96 above the $121.59 feed cost for five cows.

From a flock of about 50 hens they received $148.84 for eggs and $60.55 for chickens. Deducting $136.82 for feed and $10.56 for baby chicks they received a profit of $98.01 on poultry.

The Misses Bullock say: "Clear profit on poultry and dairy products was $418.97 compared with $161.79 received for 1,760 pounds of lint cotton."

The Misses Bullock received in addition $80.37 for miscellaneous farm products sold such as hams, sausage, and other pork products.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, will deliver the commencement address at Auburn on May 27 to more than 500 graduates.

April 26 will be "beef cattle day" at the Black Belt experiment station, Marion Junction. Beef cattle producers from all sections of the State will attend.

Riding Boot Designed For Practical Reasons

In the days when the West was being won, boots were developed as a handy item for a man who spent a lot of time in the saddle. The two-inch heel was designed to prevent the foot from slipping through the stirrup. If your foot slipped through the stirrup you could be sure of a nasty fracture. The sharp toe was calculated to fit the foot neatly into the stirrup.

The six or seven-inch height of the uppers developed in much the same practical manner. They protected the rider's ankle from chafing by the saddle girth, kept the ankles warm in chilly weather and also saved wear and tear on trousers.

The same practicality applied to the fancy stitching on the uppers. These elaborate designs were to prevent the soft uppers from collapsing around the wearer's instep. A pre-stiffened leather upper, it was discovered, was not comfortable enough. The high heel throws the weight of the body forward on the ball of the foot; the proper place of the foot is in the heel. Most people are inclined to stand or walk on their heels.

The heavy-heel shoe stance throws the body out of line and if you stand around that way long enough you end up with a pain in your legs or in your back.

The pointed toe does not, as you might think, cramp your foot because your toes don't extend all the way. They stop about two inches short of the tip and have just as much room as they would have in regulation army bogans.

Canada's Forest Lands Yield Valuable Timber

Canada's forests occupy about 783,000,000 acres, or more than half the total area of the dominion, says the department of mines and resources, Ottawa. More than 60 per cent of the forest area—492,000,000 acres—is capable of producing timber of commercial value. The remainder of the forests, situated on sub-alpine, sub-Arctic and other less favorable sites, are of value for their influence on climatic conditions, the control of stream flow and water supplies, the protection of wildlife and as sources of wood supplies for the local population. Of the productive forest it is estimated that 230,000,000 acres at present carry timber of merchantable size and on 262,000,000 acres there is young growth of various ages to meet future demands.

The total amount of timber of merchantable size in Canada's forests is estimated at 273,656 million cubic feet, of which 170,144 million cubic feet is considered "accessible" by means of the present transportation facilities. This accessible, merchantable timber includes 245,000 million feet board measure of wood suitable for the manufacture of sawn lumber and 1,107 million cords which may be utilized as pulpwood, fuelwood and mining timber. The softwoods, which are in greatest demand for construction and for the manufacture of pulp and paper, comprise about 80 per cent of the total stand and about the same proportion of the annual cut.

Doughboys Retain Olive

Doughboys will continue to march in olive drab. The blue uniforms some of them have been wearing on trial could be seen too easily by an enemy.

Secretary of War Woodring has announced that while retaining the olive drab color the army will adopt the design of the tested uniforms to provide greater comfort for the men. Long trousers will replace breeches, and shoulders of shirts and coats will be cut to fit more loosely.

Woodring said that tests by troops at five scattered posts showed the olive drab shade was better adapted to camouflage than the slate blue "for all-weather, all-year-round wear, and for all types of terrain."

There is no doubt, however, of the "superiority of the slate blue uniform's design" he said.

Speaks Without Larynx
E. M. Otis of Willoughby, Ohio, has started his thirty-first year as superintendent of the Willoughby schools.

Unusual in itself is his lengthy service, but Otis has overcome a physical handicap that threatened the end of his teaching career. Last year Otis had his larynx removed. The operation deprived him of use of his vocal chords and made breathing possible only through a small hole in his throat.

Undiscouraged, Otis learned to talk through a small accomplishment in medical circles. He talks now by drawing air into his body and expelling it through his throat by use of his diaphragm—at the same time forming the words with his lips and teeth.

Three-Year Recess

Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, rector of Holy Trinity Church of Philadelphia, has suggested a three-year moratorium on sermons that figure may be exaggerated, "he said, 'but in my opinion there is far too much preaching. It is bad for you. Anybody at least 25 years old should be able to find the way to God by himself.'" According to Dr. Salmon, the plethora of sermons threatens to make congregations "spiritually blasé."

Truck Drivers Have Own Safety Code

Detroit—"When common courtesy becomes a conscious practice of every motorist on the highways, traffic accidents will decrease." This is the considered opinion of a top-flight American driver, whose records on the Speedway and the highway are known throughout the automotive world. Harry Hartz, formerly national champion race driver and now a test driver for Chevrolet Motor Division's commercial car department, has had an unusually wide range of experience behind the wheel.

Recently, Hartz established a new world record for sustained and certified automotive operation, driving a 1934-ton Chevrolet truck more than 101,000 miles to set the new national record, under sanction of the American Automobile Association, impartial judge of auto testing activities, was completed without so much as denting a fender.

Hartz, a familiar figure at the Indianapolis Speedway, earned his right to membership in the truck-driving fraternity by establishing unusual performance records with the Chevrolet test truck. Official AAA figures on the run tell a story of economy, dependability, power and long life bearing out the slogan of the Chevrolet truck department. An average of 15.1 miles per gallon of fuel was maintained throughout the 101,000 miles, at an average operating speed of 33.07 miles per hour.

Ten miles per gallon average (6.9) based on the 4.99-lb. fixed "payload" the unit carried throughout the run. Miles per quart of oil consumed totaled 1,072. The truck test run was the third Safe Driving Road Test conducted by Chevrolet.

In view of Hartz' perfect record during the more than 101,000 miles he drove the test unit, his views on safe driving may be taken as authoritative. Stressing the need for courtesy on the road, he explained the signal system by which truckmen endeavor to aid one another and also to advise passenger car drivers of their intentions.

"The average truck driver," he said, "appreciates the interchange of information from our fellow drivers, and tries in every way possible to advise them of conditions they are about to meet."

"He makes every effort to inform the passenger car driver of his plans. For example, in the daytime, he warns an oncoming driver of danger ahead—the way of a crack-up, a narrow bridge, a restricted speed zone—by signaling with the hand, in a 'wave-down' motion, which indicates that the oncoming driver should reduce speed and be on the alert for unusual conditions."

"However, since most of his driving is done at night, signals are usually made by manipulation of lights. Flashing the lights rapidly is the night-time 'wave-down'."

"When a motorist approaching from the rear wishes to pass a truck, he should signal by means of his lights of his horn and then wait until the driver has blinked his trailer lights in the 'clear' signal. The truckman will then indicate by his spotlight when the passenger car has cleared his unit and may safely cut back into the right-hand lane. Many drivers customarily honk time or two as they pass, to thank the truckman—a friendly, courteous act that is appreciated."

"When two trucks approach a dangerous area from opposite directions at night—say a one-lane bridge—the driver who is nearer the bridge will indicate that he is coming through by swinging his spotlight in an arc across the road, and pulling out toward the center. The other driver then pulls over, stops and dims for the unit coming ahead."

"Blinking of the trailer lights is also a stopping signal," Hartz said, "and motorists often confuse it with the passing signal. Other truckers can usually tell the driver's intentions, but motorists rarely pay enough attention to do so. Likewise, blinking can indicate turn, if the trailer carries no turn indicators. Here again, the motorist must study the circumstances and decide whether the trucker is trying to convey."

"There are two things in particular which the passenger car motorist should do to aid the truckman, and at the same time make for greater highway safety," Hartz asserted. "These are: more consideration in dimming, and paying greater heed to the flares and signals which truckers set out when their units are stopped along the roadside. When a truck stalls on a hill, or has met with an accident and is stopped, the flares and signals are set for some good reason, and the motorist who thoughtlessly comes on through without dimming shipping speed endangers not only himself but others as well."

"More than 90 per cent of the driving done by the transport drivers of the country is night operation," he said. Since records show that traffic increases after sunset, his plea for greater care after dark is particularly timely."

"Employ the same care and consideration that you would if you were walking down a crowded street," Hartz urged. "And highway accidents will decrease immediately."

Baseball Meeting Will Be Held

Will Decide Whether Or Not Clanton Will Have Team

Baseball season is at hand, and if Clanton is to have a baseball team this year, now is the time for those interested to show their willingness to help by attending a Baseball meeting to be held in front of the Courthouse Tuesday night, April 23. This meeting was announced by "Gaby" Tiffin this week.

Those interested in baseball and wish to see a team this season for Clanton, are urged to come out and enter into the discussion of this matter. It is apparent that a team cannot be organized unless those interested join in helping get it started.

Clanton has put several good teams on the diamond during the past few years, and it is the hope of many that this year will also find a well-organized Clanton Baseball team in the field.

Remember the date—Tuesday night, April 23, at about 7:30.

Mr. Richards sums it up in this manner: "Of the millions of inventions that have been developed in the last fifty years, eighteen are responsible for about one-quarter of the present jobs in the United States. In most instances these inventions have contributed materially to a fuller, happier life. The most important include radio, typewriter, gasoline, tires, automobile, mechanical refrigeration, electrical apparatus, business machines such as the cash register and adding machines, cottonseed oil, coke and meal."

Interest Growing In Woodmen's Convention

From the publicity chairman of this coming event, we give you the following:

Much interest is being shown by all Woodmen contacted during the past week about the convention which is to be held by Camp 322, Clanton, at the regular meeting place on next Monday night, April 22.

Everybody seems to be in exceptionally good spirits over the prospects of another good, general get-together, with cold bottled drinks to be served to all attending Woodmen and some nice young, fresh meat to be broken in gently, as we are expecting three new candidates to be taken in at this time with some able-bodied speakers handling the elocution (not electrocution), and much fun will be enjoyed.

Our degree team leader who has been under the weather for some time is now back on his feet and will be on hand for re-organizing the degree team. This will be an excellent opportunity for the younger Woodmen to get started in degree work, as there is not a prettier sight to be seen than a peppy degree team in nice uniform going through their rituals, and we are hoping at this meeting to obtain several applications for this work from those most fitted for it.

Inventions Mean Jobs, Instructor Explains

In the first thirty years of this century when machines and factories grew like mushrooms, the number of jobs kept ahead of by W. N. Richards, head of the School of Inventions and their management, International Correspondence Schools.

Mr. Richards cites the fact that in thirty years the population of the United States increased from 76 million to 123 million, to a growth of sixty-two per cent. In this same period, the number of gainfully employed workers increased from 29 million to 48 million, or an increase in employment of sixty-six per cent. The jobs, he said, increased faster than the population, and to the inventor and technological advancement as a whole goes credit for the rapid increase.

Mr. Richards has said that agriculture probably has been affected by inventions and science more than any other labor-saving device. These inventions, the faculty member explained, have increased the productivity of man's work by an astounding degree, but what has become of the displaced workers?

Mr. Richards answers the question this way. As fewer men were required on the farm, workers began to be absorbed in the industrial life of the urban centers. He points out that technological progress on the farm brought tractors and combines, but the factories in the cities gave employment to the men who poured the steel and ran the looms in making the tractor parts.

MOTORISTS PAY $15,000,000,000 TO GET AMERICA OUT MUD

Motorists in the United States since 1913 have paid more than $15,000,000,000 in gasoline and other automotive taxes, reports the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee. That sum is about equal to the value of the present gold reserve of the entire world at the old price of $20.67 an ounce. It is also two and one-half times the total current value of the 30,000,000 motor vehicles operating on the nation's highways.

"These billions of dollars have made America rich in roads, providing this nation with the finest system of highways the world has ever known," says the Committee. "These billions of dollars have pulled America out of the mud and materially have aided in lifting standards of living far above those of the horse and buggy era. There are more than 385,000 miles of surfaced roads in our state highway systems, and many additional miles of excellent roads in the secondary and county systems. Great improvements have been made in local roads through grading, draining and oiling.

"Gasoline taxes paid to the states have exceeded $8,000,000,000. Federal gasoline taxes paid to date by the motorists aggregate about one and one-quarter billion dollars. Since 1913 the motorists have paid the states $5,800,000,000 in registration and other fees. Federal taxes on lubricating oil, new motor vehicles, and accessories have taken another three-quarters of a billion dollars from the motorists."

Importance Of Regular Attendance Stressed By Education Department

During the month of March there were 1,339 white and 415 negro children who were absent from one to 20 days giving work as an excuse. During the month of January there were 619 white and 747 negro children who gave work as the reason for their being out of school. Last October when there was work to be done on the farm 1320 white and 295 negro children were absent giving work as the reason.

A great many of these children who stop in January and February and March to start working are bright students, children who should be given a chance to stay in school enough to make their grade. It would indicate that in many cases the parents have not given the matter careful thought; that they have not tried to work out some plan that will enable their children to take advantage of the chance of an education, that their children are missing something which he may never be able to make up.

An effort is being made to get a complete registration of all children who will enter the Clanton Grammar School this fall. The children are invited to visit the school on April 16 and are asked to go to Dr. Sturkie's office for a physical examination. All children are being asked to bring with them their birth certificates, if they do not have a certificate, blanks will be furnished in Dr. Sturkie's office to make application for a certificate.

Pasture improvement work was started by 6,614 Alabama farmers on 107,299 acres last year.

Alabama's 4-H leadership training school will be held in Auburn, July 8-13.

Lorenzo Grubbs received $729 for his Grand Champion calf at the Montgomery Calf Show and Sale. It weighed 900 pounds and was sold at 81 cents per pound. About 450 Alabama calves were exhibited at the Montgomery, Dothan and Columbus shows and sales.

Thorsby Jr. HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

On next Wednesday night, April 24, the Thorsby Jr. High School will close the 1939-1940 term. The Jr. Three Class will present a clever little comedy play entitled "Raspberry Red." This play embraces a skillfully arranged plot, designed to grip the interest of the most exacting audience. Immediately following the play, the Sixth Grade Class will present their graduation exercises under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Wright. This program is composed of the following:

1. Salutation. 2. Class Poem. 3. History. 4. Class Song. 5. Class Prophecy. 6. Class Valedictory Address. 7. Presentation of promotion certificates.

All friends and patrons of the Thorsby School are cordially requested to attend these closing exercises. There will be absolutely no charges.

During the day, from 9:30 A.M. until 2:30 P.M. a Field Day exercise will be given. The Elementary grades will be charged during the morning session, while the afternoon activities will be taken over by the Jr. High grades. The day's program will engage such activities as the Maypole Dance; the Grand March; Tug-O-War; Spirited Relays; Varied Contests; exciting games. A baseball game between the Jr. High team and some opponent yet to be named, will be played to round out the day-time activities.

At noon, dinner will be served on the campus. All parents are urged to bring their picnic baskets laden with good foods, and we'll have a regular picnic style spread right here close home with our own youngsters, and the good fellowship and friendly association this day will add greatly to our growing school spirit.

The County Jr. High School Basketball Tournament, held at our school recently, was declared a huge success. Mt. Pleasant lived up to pre-tourney predictions by walking off with first honors. Collins Chapel grabbed off second place by eliminating two tough opponents in Concord and Baker. Baker drove through to third place. Individual awards to outstanding players of the tourney were as follows:

Sportsmanship: Melton of Baker.
Most Sensational Shots: Turner of Vermont; Foshee of Thomas, Jr.
Most points per game: Daniel of Mt. Pleasant.

Manager and coach of fourth place team: Prof. Daniel of Enterprise. First team: All Tournament: Forward, Chambers, Mt. Pleasant; forward, Smith, Collins Chapel; Center, Ray, Enterprise.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County. In the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama.

In the Matter of the Application of Dettie Beckett to Have Homestead, Exemptions, and Personal Property Exemptions Set Aside to Her:

To Dettie Beckett, Lomax, Jefferson County, Alabama; Bob Beckett, Detroit Michigan; Carrie Benson, Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama; Clara Davis, Clear Water, Fla.; Mary Petty, Gadsden, Etowah County, Alabama; Amos Beckett Jr., Elmore, Elmore County, Alabama.

Take notice and you are hereby notified that on the 2nd day of April, 1940, Dettie Beckett filed an application in the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama, seeking to have set aside to her certain exemptions, and also the homestead, being described as follows:

The South-east Fourth of the North-east Fourth of Section 21, and the South-west Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22, all in Township 22, Range 14, and containing 80 acres more or less, mineral rights reserved.

Also two acres, more or less, described as follows, to-wit: Beginning 130 yards west of the South-east corner of the North-west Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22 Township 22, Range 14, and run thence north 46 yards to the Jemison-Clanton public road, as the same is today located on said forty; thence west parallel with said road to the South-west corner of the North-east Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22, Township 22, Range 14, thence east 210 yards to the point of beginning. Said land being and lying in the North-west Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22, Township 22, Range 14, Chilton County, Alabama.

You are further notified that on the 8th day of April, 1940, the report of the commissioner's setting aside personal property exemptions and also appraising the homestead was filed in this Court, and that the 14th day of May, 1940, has been set as the day for the hearing of said report and any objections or exceptions that might be filed thereto, at which time you may appear and contest said report, if you deem proper.

Dated, this 9th day of April, 1940.

Our school lunch room, since its inception, continues to grow in popularity. Mrs. Price and Miss Prim have rendered a most efficient service in serving from 65 to 120 healthy, hungry youngsters their hot noon-day meal. Plans are being drafted to plant a school garden this spring and summer to grow a variety of vegetables to be canned for the lunch room for next session of school. Thanks to Mr. John Childress, one of our public spirited trustees and patrons, who voluntarily offered free one acre of his limited farm for the project. The P.-T.A. is taking active steps to get this unit in operation. The Works Progress Administration defrays the labor expense of producing and canning the food.

Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Taylor, Mr. Weldon, Miss Jones and Mr. Johnson are expecting to attend the summer session at various colleges this summer.

It is with sincere regret we announce the going of the Rollins family, who are contemplating on moving to Panama City, Fla. Their attractive little daughter, Louise, is remaining over long enough to complete her Junior One work. To this charming and school-minded family goes our heartiest best wishes.

After commanding a nice lead for almost five innings, our boys Jr. High Baseball team's defense cracked up and allowed their opponent, the Collins Chapel team, to break through and win a seven-inning affair last Friday afternoon by the count of 12-6. In spite of the chilly blast whipping across the playing field, both teams played a nice brand of ball, except that unlucky sixth inning when the Collins Chapel boys rocked our team to sleep with an eight-run rally.

The Junior One Science Class made a field trip last Thursday in studying the varied trees and shrubs growing wild in this locality. They learned to identify 17 different kinds of trees and five different kinds of shrubs. This class now has a nice display of labeled trees, shrubs, and rocks. Our unit of different classification of soil will be completed this week.

The Junior Two Alabama History Class has just completed a unit of our State. It involves a comprehensive research on our State's varied historical interests. Agriculture, manufacturing, natural resources, wild life, education, (early and modern) and numerous other activities relative to the story of our good State.

A strong possibility exists that a new classroom will be added to the main building this summer. Due to a large enrollment in the elementary grades a new room is greatly needed. Our genial and mild-mannered superintendent Prof. Maddox, assures us that if humanly possible, the County Board will make this addition along with several needed repairs.

The Junior High School boys have apparently gained a new conception of our natural environments. Each boy has pledged to lay aside his slingshot or rifle and instead of leaving a trail of dead song and insectivorous birds this summer, they are building bird houses and encouraging our feathered friends to make this locality their happy home.

We can't help but note with great interest the broad smile worn by the N.Y.A. boys and girls at the end of each month, when they receive their nice checks for several dollars for their work and varied activities connected with the maintenance of the building and campus. Once again, friends, don't forget our Field Day next Wednesday and the closing exercises that night.

PLANING MARRIAGE IN JUNE?

Some June bridal couple from Alabama, possibly from Clanton, is going to get one week's free July honeymoon in Daytona Beach, Fla.

The Chamber of Commerce in the Florida resort city will award the expense-paid honeymoon to the couple that most closely represents the typical 1940 Alabama bride and groom.

Only entry requirement is that a single photograph of the nuptials be sent the Daytona Beach civic organization before June 30.

A committee of five Summer visitors to Daytona Beach, who live outside Alabama, will be appointed to select the lucky pair.

Every recreation and fun facility of the Florida resort city will be placed at the disposal of the couple during the "honeymoon week" which begins July 14.

Photographs submitted will be used for no purpose other than judging, except when special permission is obtained from the subjects.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our kind friends and neighbors who have been so good to us since the fire which destroyed our household goods. There are just not enough words to express our sincere gratitude. All have been so wonderfully good to us and we do appreciate your gifts and many thoughtful acts of kindness. May the Lord bless every one of you.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Wallace Wood and family.

Hildreth Pushing His Campaign

Tuscaloosa, Ala., April 13.—Senator Emmett Hildreth, candidate for Congress, Sixth District, concluded a week of extra-ordinary activity with a speech at the Laffey School tonight. He reiterated his challenge to his opponents to meet him in debate on the vital issues in the Congressional race, stating that such debates would be of great benefit to the people in determining for whom they should vote. He called attention to the fact that no response had been received to his challenge and asked whether his opponents were unwilling or incapable of debating the issues before the people.

Speaking in a stirring, aggressive manner, he outlined his platform, pledging his support to the National Farm Program with liberal parity payments and a broad Soil Conservation Program. He advocated fair and equal Freight Rates for the South; the extension of crop insurance provisions to the southern cotton farmers; liberal treatment of the veterans and their dependents; continuation and extension of Reciprocal Trade Agreements for the disposition of surplus commodities; liberal Federal Aid for the maintenance and construction of highways, roads and bridges; Federal Aid for schools, but strictly under State control and regulation; and discussed in detail the other planks in his platform. He called attention to the aggressive service and leadership which he has given to his district during his three terms in the State Senate, and told how he sponsored and secured last year when the schools were about to close, the passage of legislation giving nearly one million dollars to the schools of Alabama, thus keeping the schools open for the boys and girls of Alabama and paying the salaries of the teachers and bus drivers.

Senator Hildreth is conducting a remarkable campaign, setting the pace in the Congressional race, and has scored impressive gains throughout the district, particularly in Tuscaloosa County. He carries loud speakers on his car and often makes as many as five or six speeches a day. He is carrying his message to the people in this manner and is receiving a fine response everywhere throughout the district.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A surprise birthday dinner was given to Mr. E. L. Manning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Cagle to celebrate his 88th birthday.

Those present were: Mr and Mrs. L. P. Cagle, Mr. Horace Cagle, Mrs. Martha E. Gray and son of Verbena Route 1, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Pierce and family, Mrs. J. W. Harvey of Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Nelson of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kicker of Mt. Creek, Mr. B. L. Manning of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Zell Manning, Mr. Thomas Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Riggs and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Manning, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Sumner and son of Sylacauga, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnson and little daughter, Miss Ethel Dean all of Montgomery.

Guests of the family for the day were: Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Broadhead, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Broadhead all of Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Meroney, Miss Bronnie Crain Moore of Verbena, Mr. B. F. Higgins of Clanton.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread in the yard and pictures were made. Everyone seemed to enjoy the dinner.

Guests for the afternoon were: Mrs. B. F. Thomas and son of Clanton Route 3, Mr. Glencie Chadler of Mississippi, Mrs. Davis of Verbena Route 1.

HILTON GETS $2,285,103.00 FROM NEW DEAL

BENEFITS COVER PERIOD FROM 1933 THROUGH 1939; INCLUDES
LOANS AND EXPENDITURES

Birmingham, Ala., April 24—Chilton County received $2,285,103 in Federal benefits through loans and expenditures from 1933 through the fiscal year 1939, George L. Davis, State Director of the Office of Government Reports, announced today.

This amount $669,325 represents repayable. Expenditures, largely for payments, grants-in-aid and other repayable disbursements for the operation of human and natural resources, totaled $1,615,778.

In addition, the Federal Government insured loans of private capital in amount of $45,623 through the Federal Housing Administration, while the Federal Debt Adjustment Division of the Federal Security Administration has insured benefits to Chilton farmers in amount of $9,188. Listed also were project allotments of the Public Administration, totaling $44,200.

Various Federal programs are being largely in cooperation with local authorities, Mr. Davis said. Aside from numerous public improvements and wealth created in the form of public buildings, all-weather highways, streets, sewers, works systems and rural electric lines have found their greatest good serving human life, and in progress throughout the State.

Initial recipients of Federal aid in the county were farmers, who have owners' the jobs and as provided for in programs of the Federal Government, Agriculture, the PWA, HOLC, Social Security and other agencies. These benefits, however, were strong currents in the channel of trade and industry in the county.

Attending the convention as representative of the Chilton Club were Miss Ruth Sessions, immediate past president, and Mrs. Mammie C. Smith, also a past president of the Club. These two ladies reported on their return to Clanton, a splendid convention, interesting sessions were held and a tour of the city was most interesting. Noted speakers addressed the group during the two-day gathering.

Pilot Membership Meaning Given
What does it mean to be a Pilot? As citizens, it means that we have a part in the civic betterment of the city in which we live, and that we have a voice in the various problems that come up from time to time in the civic and social life of the city.

As business women, it means recreation and a pleasant break in the ceaseless routine of office work. It means contact and association with the outstanding women of the city, and enables us to meet and know representative business women of other cities and other states.

It means inspiration from the best speakers, musicians and writers of the day.

It means that we have been lifted out of the rut into which all business women are apt to fall, and that our usefulness has increased.

It means a true spirit of cooperation, one of the most important factors in a successful life. It means that we are better citizens.

And when the Great Score of Pilot comes to write against our names, He writes not that we won or lost, but how we played the game.

Most Unfortunate, Yet Most Unusual, Was This Accident

Clanton has no doubt seen some freakish and unusual accidents in the past, but we ask you if anything quite like this has ever happened around here before?

Birds—dozens of 'em, hundreds of 'em, chimney sweeps or swifts, as you prefer—almost completely ruined the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jones of Clanton early Monday evening.

Circling for a place to gather for the night, the birds spied the chimney of the Jones home. This chimney opens into four rooms and was not plugged. Sweeping down into the chimney the birds finding no obstruction, came through into the house. With them came the accumulated soot, ashes and dirt of years.

Within five minutes the entire house was covered with anywhere from an inch to more of soot. Mr. and Mrs. Jones managed to clear the birds from the rooms but by that time almost the entire house was covered with the soot.

Bedding, clothing—in fact, the entire furnishing of the house was severely damaged by this winged fury. The amount of damage done as yet is unestimated.

There are large flocks of these birds around Clanton and a word to the wise is sufficient, or something like that. Profit by the disaster which struck the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and screen your chimney.

Baseball Players, Fans Meet And Elect Officers

Clanton baseball fans and players met at the Chilton County Court House Tuesday night at 7:30 and named new officers for the 1940 season.

G. C. Powell was re-elected President and Mr. Grover Harris, secretary-treasurer. J. L. Hollis was elected vice-president and Cecil B. Ramsey, business manager.

Election of field, or team manager, was put off until next Monday night where there will be another meeting at the Court House at 7:30. All fans and players are urged to be present at this meeting.

Mrs. Clark Headley Wins Beauty Contest

Mrs. Clark Headley was winner last Tuesday night in a Beauty Contest sponsored by the Clanton Volunteer Fire Department. Twenty-five contestants competed for the coveted first place.

A beautiful gold loving cup was presented to Mrs. Headley by Eugene Gore, member of the Fire Department. Coronation was performed by Master Norville Simpson.

Mrs. Headley represented Bill's Barbecue of this City. Other contestants were sponsored by Clanton merchants also.

Local Pilots Attend Alabama Convention

The 1940 convention of Alabama Pilots was held last Saturday and Sunday in Anniston, the sessions being held at the Alabama Hotel in that city.

Attending the convention as representative of the Clanton Club were Miss Ruth Sessions, immediate past president, and Mrs. Mammie C. Smith, also a past president of the Club. These two ladies reported on their return to Clanton, a splendid convention, interesting sessions were held and a tour of the city was most interesting. As far as Chilton Democrats are concerned, the only second primary race to be decided on May 4th will be the four-candidate race for Representative in the 7th Congress from the Sixth District, including Chilton. Four men are seeking this post, now held by Pete Jarman, who is seeking re-election. An active campaign is being waged by these four aspirants to the office, who are above, left to right: Pete Jarman, of Livingston; D. D. (Billy) Parlow of Tuscaloosa; below, Emmett Hildreth, Eutaw, and Thomas H. Maxwell of Tuscaloosa Rt. 1. Mr. Maxwell was a candidate in the last election, being defeated by Jarman.

Colored Singers At Baptist Church

The famed chorus of the Chilton County Training School of which E. D. Sledge is principal, will render a musical program of sacred music at the Clanton Baptist Church next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It was announced by Pastor Oscar A. Davis.

The public is cordially invited to hear these singers.

Mrs. J. Mell Martin is in Montgomery visiting her brother, T. E. Wilbanks.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN WILL GET UNDERWAY HERE NEXT WEEK

"Clean-Up Week" Will Be Sponsored In Cooperation With National "Better Homes Week" Which Will Bring County-Wide Home Demonstration Club Women To Clanton For Rally May 3rd

All Citizens Of County Are Urged To Cooperate

A County-wide "Clean-Up Week" campaign, sponsored by the Clanton Kiwanis Club and County Health Department, will get underway next Sunday, April 28 and continue through May 4, with the citizenship of the entire county being urged to join in making the City, towns and homes more attractive to the eye and bring about more healthful surroundings in general.

This Clean-Up Campaign is being sponsored in cooperation with National "Better Homes Week" during which all Home Demonstration Clubs of the Nation will place special emphasis on home improvement. In Chilton County the Demonstration Clubs are planning to observe this week in a broad manner, cooperating with the Kiwanis Club to bring about a more general program of home beautification and Clean-Up Campaign. Miss Mattie Jo Barber, Home Demonstration Agent, has announced that speakers from the Extension Service, Auburn, would be here on Friday to address a meeting of Home Demonstration Club women. Special exhibits and a program has been planned for this day, Miss Barber announced.

Officials of the local Health Department are very enthusiastic concerning the campaign and urge the people of Clanton and of the County at large to lend their cooperation. Regarding the drive, Dr. Sturkie, County Health Officer, declared: "This is a very timely step, this idea of a clean-up week, as it fits very appropriately into the rat eradication campaign which has been underway in Clanton for the last two months. The removal of piles of tin cans, garbage heaps, etc., which furnish ideal harborage for rats is an important asset to other rat eradication measures such as trapping and poisoning. I would suggest that every household see that his premises are cleared of unsightly rubbish; if a metal garbage can with a sound lid has not been placed in the rear of the home it should be done now. Cow owners should see that the manure in the barn and lot is collected and removed several times weekly. Where frequent removal of manure is not possible, a bin with a lid to prevent access of flies should be provided. The proper disposal of cow and horse manure is the most valuable of all measures of controlling fly breeding. The removal of tin cans and other artificial containers in which rain water may collect will aid in the prevention of pest mosquito breeding; this, however, is not to be thought of as malaria control as the malaria mosquito, the apophies, does not breed in tin cans, rain barrels, etc., but in ponds, lakes, etc."

It was pointed out by the Health Officer that the clean-up activities should not end with the closing of the campaign. While some of the phases of a clean-up campaign are not directly related to improvement of the public health, there are many other benefits, both economic and social, which are sufficient in themselves to justify the campaign, the Health Officer said.

Merchants are asked to cooperate by offering special bargains on clean-up equipment, such as rakes, hoes, garbage cans, paints, and many other items that will be used in the campaign.

"Gone With The Wind" To Show Here Soon

Charles Wade, manager of the local Wadesonian Theatres, announced this week that he has scheduled the famous film, "Gone With The Wind" to show at the New Wadesonian Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, May 12, 13, and 14.

Mr. Wade stated that there will be a matinee each afternoon of the three days. All seats will be reserved and it is the desire of Mr. Wade that those planning to see the picture be on time for the showing they plan to attend, and in their seats when the showing begins. There will be two showings each day at 1:30 and 7:30 P.M.

COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION SAT. AND SUN.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED TO GATHER AT COURTHOUSE FOR ANNUAL EVENT

The annual Spring session of the Chilton County Singing Convention will be held at the Courthouse in Clanton next Saturday night and Sunday, April 27-28, announces Prof. O. L. Devaughn, Chairman, who states that everything is in readiness for the event and indication are that it will be one of the most successful singings ever held.

Singers from several adjoining counties have been extended an invitation, as well as some of the leading composers and directors of the South. Several quartets are expected.

Come and bring all your new books, those in charge of arrangements, stated, as all kinds will be used.

The Saturday night session will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock and continue for at least two hours. Singing will begin Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and continue until about 4:00 in the afternoon.

In connection with the Judgeship race are two places in the Court of County Commissioners to be filled. These places are for District Four, which includes Clanton, and District Three, in the eastern section of the County. Present Commissioner of the Fourth District is J. Monroe Parrish, who, in his bid for the nomination for a second term, is being opposed by Norman L. (Buck) Roberts of Clanton.

The race for Commissioner of the Third District finds incumbent R. L. Ousley without opposition. Mr. Ousley is completing his first term as Commissioner of this District, and has made a record of outstanding service to his District and the County.

Across the hall from the Probate office we find J. C. Partillo, Circuit Clerk, who has no opposition from the Democratic side, and who is also completing his first term. Mr. Partillo comes from Verbena, and has ably served in this capacity.

The office of County Treasurer, now held by J. E. Easterling, is not being sought by other Democrats. Mr. Easterling has ably filled this office for the past term and is now unopposed for the nomination.

Two places on the County Board of Education are being sought by J. P. (Pope) Payne, incumbent, and B. F. Bookholdt. Mr. Payne, a resident of Maplesville, has no opposition in his race for nomination. Mr. Bookholdt hails from the Enterprise community, and seeks the Democratic nomination for the place now being held by C. J. Wilkins.

In the Circuit Judge race Robert T. Milner, Wetumpka attorney, is opposing incumbent Arthur Glover for Judge of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit. Judge Glover is also from Wetumpka. Both are able men and well qualified for the bench.

Following the May 7th primary, the Democratic party of Chilton County will present a solid front, and will offer to the voters of Chilton County a ticket composed of some of the County's most able men, most of whom have enviable records of service at the post they now hold.

COOKING DEMONSTRATION AT BIG FOUR HARDWARE MAY 7

THE PEOPLE SAY

Lomax, Ala., April 22, 1940

Dear Editor:

Will you give me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to our economic and monetary system of our nation.

We know it takes a proper circulation of our blood through our body to keep it alive and healthy, and the same thing is true in regard to our economic and monetary system. Money is the life of trade, and must circulate through the channels of trade in a sufficient volume to give every man a job, and every family plenty of this world's goods to make us a prosperous nation. The reason why we have so many millions of people without jobs, and so many people bound down in poverty is, because our monetary circulation is too weak. God has blessed our nation with plenty for all, but man has created a system that has put the wealth of our nation in the hands of those who did not produce it, and taken it from the hands that did produce it. Let the people demand an economic, and monetary system that will drive poverty from our nation by retiring our old people on a good pension, and let the young people take their places. The young people, and machinery do the work, and the old people circulate the money. Faulty statesmanship is responsible for the poverty of our country. There should be no poverty because there is abundance for all. Let the voters of our country wake up to the fact that we must demand of our law makers a system that will give prosperity instead of poverty, and when a politician tells us that it can't be done, that's the one to cast your vote against. Mr. farmer, and laborer, the burden is on you and all good people of our nation. When the masses of our nation wake up to the fact that there should be no poverty in this God-blessed nation, and stop bartering their birthright to the politicians for a trifle and cast their votes for the candidates who favor a change in our economic, and monetary system, and have pledged to work for a new order of things that will soon drive poverty from our land, and let prosperity take its place.

In conclusion, I want to say that I challenge anyone to show that the above proposed system won't work. Respectfully—A. A. Jackson.

VOTE FOR

Emmett Hildreth FOR CONGRESSMAN

SIXTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT OF ALABAMA

Smash Coercion and Petty Politics When You Go To The Polls On May 7

Vote For Emmett Hildreth, The Ablest and Most Capable Man in The Race for Congress

LET'S FACE THE FACTS

Emmett Hildreth has demonstrated time and again his capacity for public service. He has an outstanding record in legislative and public affairs. He has courageously, fearlessly, and untiringly fought our battles again and again. He does not play petty or personal politics. He has no job, or inducement, or largess at state or federal expense to offer any one for votes. He stands on his record. When you vote for Hildreth, you are voting for the man. He can and will give our district the aggressive, capable leadership and service to which our district is justly entitled.

Let's forget petty politics, small personal ties, pull and favors. Let's take our position fearlessly and courageously in support of what we know to be for the best interest of our district, and vote for Emmett Hildreth for Congress.

These are serious trying days. The people are uneasy and uncertain about the future.

We need, as never before, a level-headed, sound, well-trained, experienced man to represent our District in Congress. We must have a man of proven experience and ability who can and will fight intelligently, courageously, and fearlessly for our people, rendering to all of the people of the district at all times the service and leadership to which they are rightfully entitled.

Emmett Hildreth is a courageous, intelligent leader with a proven record in public and legislative affairs. He is an energetic, aggressive worker and knows how to get results for the people. He has made a success of his personal affairs.

We are all familiar with the successful battle that Senator Hildreth made last year in securing the passage through the legislature of a bill giving nearly one million dollars to the boys and girls of Alabama to keep the school doors open, and pay the salaries of the teachers and bus drivers.

This is no time for an unseasoned or untrained congressman. Too long already we have waited for service and leadership. Our people are in dire need. Our district must have aggressive, intelligent leadership in Congress without further delay.

Emmett Hildreth is generally recognized throughout the district as being the ablest and most capable man in the race.

You are on safe and sure ground when you vote for Emmett Hildreth for Congress.

Your vote for and support of Emmett Hildreth for Congress will be gratefully appreciated.

CHALLENGE TO DEBATE

Again Senator Hildreth is consistently challenging Mr. Jarman and Mr. Partlow to debate the issues—again he receives no answer, just silence. Again we ask, how can a man effectively represent you in the Halls of Congress if he feels unwilling or incapable of meeting a primary opponent in a debate of the issues before the people?

Your Next Congressman

Oyez all Citizens of Chilton County and of the 6th Congressional District. Send the tidings to all the voters that I am the only Two-War Veteran Farmer Candidate for Congress advocating a pension of $40 per month to citizens 65 years and over and veterans, and am a true and tried friend of those who can no longer earn. Both Democrats and Republicans and the aged of all races will be benefitted by the pension.

The opposition objects to the color of my hair. But, ladies and gentlemen, what makes the opposition object is not the color of my hair but it is the gray matter under my hair that makes it sore.

Sincerely,

THOMAS H. MAXWELL

"Beef Cattle Day" At At Marion Junction

April 26th will be "Beef Cattle Day" at the Black Belt Experiment Station, Marion Junction. Those farmers in this county who are raising beef cattle or who are interested in raising cattle should make an effort to attend the meeting to be held at the station on that day.

The program will be under the direction of Mr. K. G. Baker, Superintendent of the Black Belt station and will include the most recent developments in the production of beef cattle. Feeding and management will be discussed.

The expansion of livestock production as a part of Alabama farming has been due in a large part to the work of Mr. Baker at the Black Belt station. Through his work and that of others the farm income from the sale of livestock has increased considerably over the past few years.

ANNUAL 4-H CLUB RALLY WAS AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

The climax of the 4-H Club work in Chilton County for this year was reached Saturday, April 20, when 525 4-H Club members attended the annual 4-H Club rally which was held in Clanton. The rally program was as follows:

"America The Beautiful," led by Naomi Culp

Devotional Bible reading, Lord's Prayer, by Lorene Riggins.

"The More We Get Together," led by Bobby Rutherford of Union Grove Club

Pledge, led by Glenn Latham.

Introduction of visitors, local leaders, and club officers from every club.

Introduction of Clubs.

Special music by the Thomas Jr. Club.

Club Work," led by Pauline Henley and Leatha Wilson.

Yell, "Is Everybody Happy" Parade.

Miss Pauline Ousley, outstanding 4-H Club member and president of the Maplesville Girls 4-H Club, presided over this meeting.

Twenty-five parents and local leaders attended the rally. 4-H Club work in Chilton County is directed by Miss Mattie Jo Barber, Home Demonstration Agent and C. L. Breedlove, Assistant County Agent.

Hundreds of Alabama farmers are making plans to save several hundred thousand pounds of lespedeza seed this spring to cut down the cost of starting pasture and sowing land for soil building purposes.

BEAUTIFYING THE HOME

With just a little money and planning the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Galloway has been "made over." A little paint added a great deal, but when Mrs. Galloway landscaped the home grounds with the aid of her home demonstration agent, she obtained results which you see above.

The Galloways are taking part in a three-year home improvement plan conducted by the Alabama Extension Service and the before (top) and after pictures show what this family has already accomplished.

Four Chilton 4-H Club Members Will Attend Leadership School

Four 4-H Club members, two girls and two boys, from Chilton County will attend Alabama's leadership training school which will be held at Auburn, July 8-13, according to C. L. Breedlove, Assistant County Agent.

Only three 4-H Club members attended the leadership training school last year. These members were Pauline Ousley, Plantersville Route 2; Lomer Williams, Maplesville Route 2 and Alton Lawrence, Billingsley Route 1. There was a total attendance of approximately 350 4-H Club members.

The 4-H members who are selected to attend the leadership school each year are outstanding members and have done good work in their respective clubs. The leadership training school is designed to give a week's training in leadership to such deserving club members from every county in the state. Regular sessions of discussion and instruction are given in addition to supervised recreation.

The Chilton County boys and girls who are to attend the leadership school have not yet been selected.

Hot Lunch Vegetables Classed Non-Depleting

Acreage donated by farmers for the production of vegetables to be used in providing pupils in rural schools with hot lunches will be non-depleting under the 1940 AAA program.

"The AAA has decided," says A. W. Jones, administrative officer, "that the acreage devoted to vegetables which are not to be sold but which are to be used for the preparation of lunches for local schools is classified as home gardens, and the before (top) and after pictures show what this family has already accomplished.

The acreage to be used for the production of vegetables for use in school lunches must be designated in advance of the production of the vegetables, and the designation approved by the county committee, although it is unnecessary for the county committee to approve the designation before the vegetables are planted.

Pulpwood May Be Menace Or Asset

"Pulpwood can be made from very small trees, but recent studies made by the Forest Service indicates that unless pulpwood cutting is done with an eye to the future yield rather than trying to get the most profit now, the pulpwood industry may easily become more of a menace to the South than an asset."

Farmers in Chilton County who are selling pulpwood from their woodland may well heed this warning of a recent publication of the United States Department of Agriculture entitled "Pulpwood—Menace or Asset."

The publication continued, "The United States Forest Service men 500 sample plots in the pine pulpwood forests of Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama and Florida.

"As shown by analysis of the data gathered in those sample plots of pine pulpwood the bulk of southern pulpwood cuttings—made in well-stocked but immature stands—have been much too heavy to get the biggest yield in the long run.

"Diameter growth of individual trees after cutting has been good. But because of the few trees left, volume growth per acre has been very low. Because of this no further cutting will be possible on many of the cut-over areas for many, many years.

"Largely owing to uncontrolled fires and lack of enough seed—and in some plots because of too heavy grazing—most of the areas examined by the Forest Service were not adequately reproducing. The foresters found that from 50 to 75 per cent of the areas examined had burned over at least once and many have burned over several times.

Cutting of thrifty, small trees for pulp wood is undesirable and uneconomical, believes Rufus H. Page, forester of the Alabama Extension Service.

"The Yanks Are Not Coming"

Thousands of American students in colleges representing all groups sponsored by the "Youth Committee Against War" have adopted as a slogan: "The Yanks Are Not Coming." The cry should be taken up by every peace-loving American and shouted from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Better Count The Cost

England and France are said to have placed orders for a billion dollars worth of airplanes with U. S. manufacturers. Yet we do not think the whole pile of gold is worth the life of just one fine young Alabamian who is likely to be dragged into the maelstrom through such trading.

Mrs. Roosevelt says we can keep peace by solving problems. Confucius never said anything wiser.

Our trader Hull is going to be worth a thousand "Trader Horns" when the war hellions of Europe call off the dogs.

The world puzzle just now is: Will the big guns or the big liars win the war.

The War Comes Closer

Always the war comes closer. Just recently two huge barges, laden with 2,500 bales of cotton moved up the Tennessee River from Paducah to Chattanooga. More than half of the cotton will be processed at Chattanooga into gun-cotton for the French government. The cotton seed which an humble and peace-loving Alabama negro today drops into the furrow may soon blow from his shoulders the head of a French boy. The fragile plant which some Alabama child, working barefooted in the fields, saves from the hoe next month may soon tear open the body of a fine German husband, himself with wife and children, who has committed no greater offense than to follow those who led him.

But what to do about it? We don't know. Like Scarlett, we'd rather think about it tomorrow.—Tuscaloosa News.

SEND BILLY PARTLOW TO CONGRESS

He will give the Sixth District courageous, aggressive representation by a man identified with the common lot and in sympathy with the average man. As your Congressman he will advocate:

FOR THE FARMERS

The continuation of reciprocal trade agreements and subsidy payments to achieve 100 per cent parity between industry and agriculture; low-cost, long-term financing of farm property; the soil conservation program, crop insurance; rural electrification; and the continuation of our present federal farm program.

FOR THE LABORERS

The preservation of the gains that labor has made under the recent federal legislative program and the continued application of the fundamental principles on which that program is based; fair treatment of labor, including the principles of collective bargaining and the payment of reasonable wages for a reasonable period of work.

FOR THE VETERANS

Continued fair treatment at the hands of the country with adequate protection for the welfare of veterans, their widows and orphans.

FOR SCHOOLS

Federal Aid to schools without federal supervision or control of the funds allotted

FOR THE NATION

Peace at all times, friendly commerce with foreign nations and the maintenance of adequate defensive armament; equalization of freight rates, maintenance of a sound currency and secure public credit and a reduction in the expense of government.

Firmly believing that such representation in Congress will help the Sixth District to secure the benefits of a period of progress unsurpassed in all its history, we urge you to

Send Billy Partlow to Congress on May 7th

Mr. and Mrs. Maddox Hold Open House For Teachers

On two successive Sunday afternoons Superintendent and Mrs. H. R. Maddox have held open house for teachers of the county.

On April 14 about seventy-five guests called. Misses Laverna Jones and Alice Burr of Thorby Institute served at the coffee and tea table, which was centered by lovely snapdragons. Miss Helen Merchant assisted with the service. During the afternoon Miss Burr delighted the group with piano selection and Miss Jones with readings.

On April 21 Mrs. Marion Smith and Miss Elsie Schurter served and were assisted by Misses Helen Merchant and Myrtle Ruth Weems. Seventy guests called between the hours of three and five. The living and dining rooms were made attractive by spring flowers.

The Maddox house in Thorby has been renovated considerably since they purchased it from Rev. and Mrs. Butler. Its dignity and charm is accentuated by its new coat of white paint and attractive surroundings.

Such social gathering make possible a finer fellowship of those who work together for the well being of the children of Chilton County.

Circle Four Holds Regular Meeting

Circle Number Four held its meeting on April 22. I. Mullins Monday afternoon, April 22. There were seventeen members and two visitors present. We were especially glad to have Mrs. Harris as a new member.

Mrs. Willie Bean, chairman, had charge of the meeting. Devotional was given by Mrs. Julius Smith and taken from Matthew 7-15-21 and Psalms 104-110.

Miss Lois Rockett sang a solo accompanied by Mrs. Earle Ellis.

We are sorry to know that two of our members could not be with us due to illness. Mrs. L. A. Calloway is in the hospital in North Carolina and Mrs. Peterson Hicks is in Selma Hospital.

We regret also that Mrs. Alva Mathan will be moving to California soon. The meeting adjourned with mizpah.

Circle Five Met Monday

Thirteen members of Circle Number Five met in the home of J. Watts Moore Monday afternoon Mrs. G. C. Burgess announced the devotional. Business matters were attended to in the usual manner.

The Circle was honored with one new member, Mrs. Alton Bolen. The meeting was dismissed with prayer.

Circle Two Met

Circle Number Two of the Baptist W.M.S. met with Mrs. Reddie Taylor Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. In the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Upchurch, Mrs. Oscar Davis presided and the devotional gave a report of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the W.M.S. recently held at Selma, which was enjoyed by all present. Seven members were present.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. W. W. Wingard. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Earl Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mullins have returned from a trip to Panama City.

Mrs. Tom McKee and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Cox spent last week in Mobile. The Wednesday afternoon Bridge Club met at the home of Mrs. Benson last week.

Mr. E. C. Robinson and two sons of Murphy, N. C., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Crit Jones at Leona.

Mr. Leroy Martin and Mr. Latham this spent Tuesday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince and Wilbur and Mrs. Irene Rasberry motored to Montgomery on Tuesday.

Miss Mary Duncan of Selma was the guest of Mrs. and Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Kirby.

Friends of Mrs. L. A. Calloway will be glad to know she is doing fine at an operation. Mrs. Calloway is in the Duke University Hospital in Durham, N. C.

Mrs. Loren Smith, Mrs. Benson Sims, Mrs. Joe Higgins, Mrs. Dornar Pittman and Mrs. Charlie Cargile spent last week in Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mullins and Mrs. M. Murphy spent Monday in Birmingham. Mrs. Murphy has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Mullins, for the last week.

Circle Six Met

Circle Six met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Jones Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. Horsley White gave the devotional. Business was disposed of and a social hour enjoyed by twelve members.

Circle Three Met

Circle Number Three of the Baptist W.M.S. met with Mrs. P. T. Hinkle Monday afternoon at 3:30, at her country home, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, which was conducted the devotional on Soul Training, taking her scripture from Psalm 12th chapter and third verse (in). "Christ is our example. He Commanded us." Go ye into all the world and teach, etc. The prayer was a recitation of ourselves to the Master Jesus. It was very inspirational. We were glad to have Mrs. Hayes

The Thorsby Lions Club will sponsor a new industry in Thorsby, which affords an opportunity to market the cream produced on so many farms in the community. The new cream station will open on Saturday this week, April 27, and is to be located in the rear of Miskelley's Store. A representative of the Foremost Dairies will be in charge on Saturday, April 27, and cash will be paid for all cream brought in on this day. All cream will be tested and weighed. Anyone interested in selling cream is advised to come in on the opening day and bring all the cream you have on hand. County agents and Home Demonstration agents recommend the sale of cream as a means of added income, and it is the hope of the Lions Club that in sponsoring this cream station an added market is available to people in Thorsby and community. This is one of the first steps in the program of civic betterment by the local Lions.

The Christian Life Conference for Young People will be held in Thorsby this week end, April 26-28. The conference fee is fifty cents or the equivalent in produce. Cost of separate meals: 25c for banquet, 12 1/2c each for picnic and breakfast. An interesting and helpful program has been planned around the theme, "Useful Youth." Everyone is invited to attend the meetings.

The Truth Seekers Sunday School Class of the Congregational Church will present the play, "The Road To The City" at the Thorsby Institute auditorium on Friday night, May 3. Everyone is urged to attend as it will be an evening full of entertainment for all.

The Thorsby Boy Scouts held their annual supper in the Fellowship Room of the Congregational Church on Friday night, April 19. Decorations were in red and white and the place cards were in the figure of a Boy Scout.

Pharaz Rayson, Scoutmaster, presided. He called on the committeemen to make speeches and also on Rev. J. B. Gonzales and Miss Helen Jenkins. Various badges and pins were awarded.

BIRTHDAY SUPPER

A birthday supper honoring Mrs. Mandy Foshee was given by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. Knight. It was a bountiful supper and enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Foshee is seventy-four years of age and is one of Chilton County's finest citizens, well known by many. She is the widow of Rev. A. C. Foshee.

Those present were Mr. Sam Foshee and family, J. B. Deason and family, Elbert, Foshee, her grandson, and Julius Ward.

We hope Mrs. Foshee will enjoy many more birthdays and that all will see many birthdays and enjoy the many blessings that God has blessed us with, hoping that we will meet again—Written by a friend, J. B. Deason.

Beer Committee Hits Violators

Montgomery, Ala., April 24.—Seven retail beer dealers who failed to cooperate in the "clean up or close up" campaign of the ABC Board and the brewing industry today had their licenses revoked or indefinitely suspended.

Chairman E. Roy Albright of the ABC Board announced the following action of the Board:

1 Revocations—Two-Way Service Station, Opp, Alabama and Willowdawn, McCalla, Alabama.

Indefinite suspensions—Three Notch Tavern, Andalusia; Young's Place, Opp; The Log Cabin, Uriah; Fairview Inn, Phenix City; and Hinson Service Station, Red Level.

Action against the Two-Way Service Station and the Three Notch Tavern was taken on recommendation of David E. Dunn, State Director of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee, while the other cases were initiated by the ABC Board's field agents.

"These are the first cases in which drastic action has been necessary in some months," Director Dunn said, "for there has been a marked improvement in the conduct of all retail establishments."

"The great majority of retail beer dealers see eye to eye with our Committee that the only way for the industry to endure and prosper is to sell beer in clean and inviting places that are operated in an orderly manner."

A long-time goal of the Alabama Extension Service is to get all farmers to produce an ample supply of home-grown planting seed.

MAPLESVILLE

Sunday night, April 21st, Rev. Charlie Haggard showed his screen pictures at the Maplesville Baptist Church and all present, a large audience, thoroughly enjoyed his pictures.

Rev. Haggard has an up-to-date projector and his pictures are all on the life of Christ from famous paintings.

He will be glad to carry his pictures to any church which might desire him to show the pictures. He will charge no admission fee, but will take a free will offering.

o-o-o-o-o

If people were as reluctant to quit their jobs as "Old Man Winter" is, there would be more working people than there are.

Last Saturday night and Sunday were preaching dates here. No many were present Saturday night but a goodly number were out Sunday.

Several from here went to the singing at Macedonia Sunday, and others would have gone if they could.

Mrs. Mary Davenport and little grandson, Don, are spending this week in Birmingham.

Miss Willodean Ratliff, of Sardis was the week end guest of Miss Gladys Oden.

Mrs. H. R. Oden and daughter, Annie Joyce, spent last Saturday with Mrs. Thomas Lenoir.

Mr. G. C. Williams of Tuskegee is at home for a few days.

There are several new cases of mumps in this community.

Little Miss Lavern Johnson of Clanton spent the past week end with her sister, Mrs. Odie Sewell.

Mr. and Mrs. Relius Jones of Ensley visited relatives here Sunday afternoon.

There will be no preaching here on Saturday night before the first Sunday in May. Services will be on Sunday at eleven o'clock and Sunday night at 7:30.

We are glad indeed to have our B. Y. P. U. director back after several weeks of illness and we invite all who will to come and take a part in our B. Y. P. U.

Senator Lister Hill's Address To P.-T.A.

Alabama can enjoy that abundant life to which the character and genius of her people and her great natural resources entitle her only when her children are properly and adequately educated. I have long advocated Federal aid for education and I am gratified that during the past seven years the Federal Government under the present Democratic National Administration in Washington and the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt, has entered the field of Federal aid for education on a scale never attempted by any preceding National Administration, and has given Alabama some $25,000,000 for education. Among other things, this money has gone for the construction of many new school buildings and for the improvement and enlargement of many old school buildings. For two years the Federal Government enabled our schools to remain open by providing the money necessary to pay salaries of our teachers. Thousands of Alabama youths have been educated through the National Youth Administration and in many ways the Federal Government, under our present National Democratic Administration, has aided the cause of education in Alabama. It is necessary that Federal aid for education be made a permanent responsibility of the Federal Government. Washington advocated this in the beginning; Jefferson advocated it; Adams advocated it as did also Madison. Monroe and many of the other founding fathers of our Government because of the tremendous disparity in the man-made wealth of the different States, only through Federal aid can there be an equalization of educational opportunities throughout the country and can such States as Alabama give to their children the same educational opportunities as those provided in the wealthier States.

I do not fear the Armies of Europe, but I am concerned about the army of the millions of the unemployed of this country. A study of unemployment shows that the overwhelming majority of the unemployed millions have had no education at all or a very meager and miserable education. Lacking the necessary education, the unemployed are lost and grope blindly and hopelessly in our modern highly technical machine civilization. The two paramount most challenging problems before America today are, first, to keep out of war and to keep at peace with every other nation, and second, to so divine and secure the educational and economic life of the nation that our people will continue to cherish those institutions which have been the proud possessions of our democracy.

If we are to win Federal aid, it is absolutely essential that Alabama do all within her power for her schools. Real friends of education in Alabama will and must continue their efforts for adequate finance and parity. One of the strongest and most potent arguments against Federal aid today is that some States are not doing all that they can do or should do in the matter of education; and that if Federal aid is provided, some States will fail to meet their responsibilities, and leave the burden of education in large measure to the Federal Government. We must resist all indifference to our educational needs in Alabama and see to it that we meet our responsibilities at home.

Federal aid can and will come only from a National Administration that recognizes and meets the continuous responsibility of Government for human welfare. We can expect no Federal aid for education from any National Administration which is indifferent or which would return to the old order of things with its economic and social injustices and its little concern for the worth and the dignity of the individual citizen. Federal aid will come only from an Administration that advances the cause of human welfare, human rights and human progress along the whole front.

STRAWBERRIES ARE RIPE

Last Thursday morning, April 18, Leonard J. Easterling of Beat 16 paid the News office a visit and brought a nice cup of strawberries. One of the first cup of Chilton County strawberries we'd seen this season, and did they look good? We're telling you they did.

People as well as animals must be well fed if they are to do their best and give their best. Reports indicate that Alabama farmers are more determined to grow their own food and feed crops.

Two Weeks Of Europe's History

By Irvin M. Lande

Events that will go down into the pages of the history books of tomorrow have happened quickly and furiously in Europe within the last two weeks. In Britain, Winston Churchill replaced Neville Chamberlain as the head of the British war agency while in France, Paul Reynaud replaced Premier Daladier. These two moves were to speed up the war, to get it over with. Immediately after Churchill came to the head of the British War Department, British ships began sowing mines around the coast of Norway. Immediately Hitler ordered his troops to Norway to "protect the Norwegians." This was on April 8. The British and French got their desire for a speeded up war.

The Germans gained much in foodstuffs by taking over Denmark. This is the principal reason why he took the small nation, commentators point out. But why Hitler took over Norway, or is trying to take over that country, is still a mystery. At present, he has neither enough troops in Norway to hold that country against a strong British offensive nor does he have the navy to land more troops with.

The war broke out in full fury because of the Nazi dictator's move. British fleet, air craft, and land forces went into action. Britain claims that no German ship transports will be able to carry men across to Norway. The British began to act on the coast of Norway, too. Realizing a need for a base to land troops, the British attacked Narvik. The first attempt was unsuccessful, but the second resulted in the Allies sinking seven supply ships, one destroyer, and burning three other destroyers. Latest reports have it that the Allies have landed fifty thousand men in Norway to stop the German advance. Now it appears that the war in that section of the world will settle down to a desperate fight, each side moving carefully and very slowly.

But no matter how slowly things happen from now on, they will be of utmost importance to Americans. One of the Danish colonies, Greenland, is in the Western Hemisphere. By taking over Denmark, Hitler legally takes over her colonies. But President Roosevelt has made it clear that if Herr Hitler wishes Greenland, he will also face the United States as well as the Allies, as the Monroe Doctrine definitely states. But perhaps even more important than Greenland to American neutrality, are the Dutch East Indies. Japan states that if Hitler decides to invade Holland, then they will proceed to take over the islands so near the Philippines. Secretary of State Cordell Hull told Japan in plain words that any such act would call for action on the part of the United States. So every day, the events are rapidly becoming more important, and are fixing themselves onto the future of the United States as well as Europe. The best thing any and every American can do is to keep well informed.

Every day, in Italy, the press is increasing its hate toward the Allies, and on Hitler's birthday last week, took advantage to praise the Nazi in their

PLEASANT GROVE METHODIST CHURCH

There will be a Mothers Day program at Pleasant Grove Methodist Church, seven and one-half miles southwest of Clanton on the Billingsley road, on the first Sunday in May, which is May 5.

Due to the annual Mothers Day program at Walnut Creek on Mothers Day which is the second Sunday in May, we are having our program the first Sunday. Everybody has an invitation to come and attend. We are going to have a good Mothers Day program in the morning and singing in the afternoon. All singers are invited to come and we will announce the program in next week's papers.

Remember the date, May 5, and place Pleasant Grove Church Route 6 Come and bring a well-filled basket and your new song books and let's spend the day together in honor of our mothers.

work. Rumania, however, has withstood Nazi pressure, and shows a definite trend toward the Allies. The sides are lining up, and the game has begun in earnest.

Whether Hitler's invasion of the North has been his greatest triumph or his greatest mistake today we do not know, but we do know that the war has really "got going."

To The Voters Of Chilton County,

Dear Friends:

Being one of the oldest members of the Tuscaloosa Bar and having resided in this county all my life, I want to write you in behalf of one of our younger members of the Bar and also a member of one of our most outstanding families.

Of course, you know Billy Partlow is a candidate for Congress, and it's true that he is a young man; however, there are few of his age or even older that can in any way compare with him from the standpoint of accomplishments and ability.

He has for more than nine years practiced at our local Bar, and I might say he has gained the admiration and respect of all as a lawyer and as a man. His character, ability, and demeanor are without question. He is married and the father of two children. In addition to his business and professional work, he is one of our outstanding leaders in civic affairs. When we want something put over in Tuscaloosa, we can call on Billy Partlow, and as our Congressman we can expect him to represent us in Washington with every degree of dignity and bring to this District recognition that will make us all proud. He is a live wire, wide awake, and determined to make good.

Thanking you for any consideration you may give him and with warmest regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

FLEETWOOD RICE.

P.S.—Tuscaloosa County will give Billy Partlow at least 70 per cent of the total 9000 votes which will probably be cast. Many of us expect him to get as much as 85 per cent.—F.R.

700,000th Chevrolet

Detroit—Chevrolet's domestic production passed the 700,000 mark, it was announced here by M. E. Coyle, General Manager of Chevrolet Motor Division.

On March 21st, Chevrolet announced the completion of 600,000 units, and the latest hundred thousand of the 1940 model have been built in a period of less than one month.

"Production is merely keeping pace with sales," Mr. Coyle stated. "March domestic deliveries were 106,091 units, which parallels closely our production for the same period of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks since the announcement on October 14, 1939, have exceeded those of any corresponding period in the history of Chevrolet."

Girls Are Advised To Build-Up For Relief

Lack of knowledge causes many a weak, undernourished girl a lot of suffering!

Many others, however, know how the headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by the proper use of CARDUI.

Some take it a few days before and during "the time," to help ease periodic distress. But CARDUI's principal use is to help increase appetite; stimulate the flow of gastric juice; to aid digestion, assist in building up physical resistance and thus help reduce periodic distress. Women have used CARDUI for over 50 years.

NOTICE
State of Alabama, Chilton County.
In the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama.
In the Matter of the Application of Dettie Beckett to Have Homestead Exemptions and Personal Property Exemptions Set Aside to Her:
To Dettie Beckett, Lomax, Alabama; Fred Beckett, Dolomite, Jefferson County, Alabama; Bob Beckett, Detroit, Michigan; Carrie Benson, Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama; Clara Davis, Clear Water, Fla.; Mary Petty, Gadsden, Etowah County, Alabama; Amos Beckett Pensacola, Florida; Marion Beckett, Jr., Elmore, Elmore County, Alabama.

Take notice and you are hereby notified that on the 2nd day of April, 1940, Dettie Beckett filed an application in the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama, seeking to have set aside to her certain exemptions, and also the homestead, being described as follows:

The South-east Fourth of the North-east Fourth of Section 21, and the South-west Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22, all in Township 22, Range 14, and containing 80 acres more or less, mineral rights reserved.

Also two acres, more or less, described as follows, to-wit: Beginning 130 yards west of the South-east corner of the North-west Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22 Township 22, Range 14, and run thence north 46 yards to the Junction-Clanton public road, as the same is today located on said forty; thence west parallel with said road to the South-west corner of the North-west Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22, Township 22, Range 14, thence east 210 yards to the point of beginning. Said land being and lying in the North-west Fourth of the North-west Fourth of Section 22, Township 22, Range 14, Chilton County, Alabama.

You are further notified that on the 8th day of April, 1940, the report of the commissioner's setting aside personal property exemptions and also appraising the homestead was filed in this Court, and that the 14th day of May, 1940, has been set as the day for the hearing of said report and any objections or exceptions that might be filed thereto, at which time you may appear and contest said report, if you deem proper.

Dated, this the 9th day of April, 1940.
J. LEE SMITH,
Judge of Probate.

ATTENTION BAPTIST OF CHILTON AND UNITY ASSOCIATIONS
The vacation Bible School Conference for both Associations will be held at Clanton First Baptist Church Saturday, April 27, beginning at 1:00 o'clock. A large representation is expected from each church in these associations. Rev. Emmett Williams pastor of the Berney Points Baptist Church, Birmingham, will be here with several speakers and conference leaders who are specialists in this field.

Most of you come to Clanton anyway on Saturday. Of course you will make your plans to come to the church for this meeting. Don't forget!

"The Least Violated Law Is the One Best Understood"

BEFORE 1940 comes to a close, those nine words will ring in the ears of every one of Alabama's 1,691 retail beer dealers who form the contact between the state's $6,000,000 beer industry and you, the public.

"I firmly believe," said Director Dunn, "that the least violated law is the one best understood and I want to have a man to man talk with every retailer personally and explain the rules and regulations of the ABC Board and the laws of public decency laid down by the brewing industry."

"For I know that when the retail beer dealer knows and understands the laws he will obey them."

Retailer meetings have been held at Mobile, Eufaula, Sheffield and Birmingham, and others will be held soon elsewhere.

The retailers at these meetings gave a rising vote of appreciation to Director Dunn, and pledged themselves to conduct law-abiding, clean and inviting places, and meet their public responsibility.

NELSON FULLER CANDIDATE FOR DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

NELSON FULLER

Mr. Nelson O. Fuller, of Centerville, young Lawyer and Secretary of the State Democratic Executive Committee, is a candidate for Delegate to the Democratic National Convention, to be held in Chicago, Ill., on July 15, 1940.

Mr. Fuller states that it is his desire to assist in the nomination of a progressive Democrat as President, who believes in the preservation of the principles and ideals of Democracy, and who will advocate the progressive things which will benefit Alabama and the South as a whole. He further states that, as Speaker Bankhead is a progressive, energetic and able native Alabamian with the interest of his state and nation at heart, it is his belief that the entire Alabama delegation to the National Democratic Convention should endorse Mr. Bankhead as President and actively urge his nomination. Mr. Fuller also advocates the restoration of the two-thirds rule as he feels that this is necessary in order for the South to have a proper voice in the Democratic National Convention.

Mr. Fuller is solicitor for Bibb County, as well as a trustee of Alabama College at Montevallo. His father, the late Jerome Fuller, was long a power in Alabama politics, having served as a delegate-at-large to the Chicago Convention in 1932, which nominated Roosevelt. He also managed several important state-wide campaigns and was a leading member of the State Democratic Executive Committee for years. Upon his death, Nelson Fuller was chosen as his successor on this committee, being re-elected two years ago on an anti-hadpicking ticket.

Bacon And Eggs
At Fort McClellan

Fort McClellan, Alabama, April 20.—The Fort McClellan Camp Commander estimates that during the 30 day training period between June 12 and July 11 this Summer the 780 C. M. T. C. enrollees to be trained here will require a ton and a half of bacon and 2,000 dozen eggs. This typical American breakfast will be washed down with 46,400 cups of coffee, in which will be stirred 4 tons of sugar.

Other items on the menus of a total of 70,200 meals include 14,625 pounds of prime beef, 2,924 pounds of butter, nine tons of flour and, as seasoning, 731 pounds of salt and 58 pounds of pepper.

The Camp Commander revealed that 114 counties are already represented out of a total of 143 in the Fort McClellan Area, and expressed the expectation that applications from those unrepresented counties would be received before the lists are closed.

NORTH ALABAMA'S CANDIDATE FOR NATL. COMMITTEEWOMAN

RUBY PRICE ROBINSON

Mrs. Robinson was born in Opelika Lee County, Alabama. Her father, the Rev. W. F. Price, Baptist minister, now resides in Selma, Alabama. She lived for several years prior to her marriage at Decatur, Morgan County, Alabama. For the past twenty-five years she has made her home in Anniston, during which time she married Mr. Hilary Robinson, prominent merchant, who has spent his entire life here. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson have three daughters.

In 1932 Mrs. Robinson began publishing the Anniston Times, which she operated until a few months ago. She was appointed U. S. Commissioner at Anniston in 1937 by the late Federal Judge David J. Davis of the Northern District, which position she still retains. For many years she had been actively identified with the interests of the Democratic Party in Alabama.

Mrs. Robinson is a very charming and intelligent woman who will reflect dignity and credit on the entire state if she is named to this important post of honor in our Party. As the Democratic National Committeewoman is from South Alabama, it is imperative that Mrs. Robinson be elected to the office of Committeewoman if North Alabama is to be represented.

An Invitation To Visit Warm Springs

An invitation was extended today to citizens of Clanton and Chilton County to make plans for a week-end trip to the famous west Georgia town of Warm Springs with its noted scenic attractions and 100-year-old public swimming pool which reopens April 27 for 1940 bathing season.

This invitation was extended local persons by the Warm Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce. Assistance to all Warm Springs visitors is the main duty of the organization.

While America was still a wilderness Warm Springs, Georgia, was a vacation resort. Records indicate that centuries ago Indian tribes came to the mysteriously warm mountain springs to bathe. Later white men came to enjoy the waters and then about two decades ago a one Franklin D. Roosevelt, suffering from the after-effects of infantile paralysis, journeyed to the springs and thence its rapid development.

Besides the pools, one for patients and one for the general public, numerous tourist attractions are offered in and about Warm Springs. The "Little White House," home of President Roosevelt when he is in Georgia, is the center of other points of interest.

PARTLOW SPOKE TO LARGE CROWD IN TUSCALOOSA SAT.

W. D. (Billy) Partlow, candidate for Congress from the Sixth District, addressed a crowd estimated at 1500, in the Tuscaloosa Court House last Saturday.

CONGRESS RECOGNIZES
JARMAN'S LEADERSHIP AND WIDE INFLUENCE!

Jarman Summoned To Capital For Battle
Over Crop Insurance

Alabamian's Winning Way
Expected To Be Of Great Help In Pushing Bill

BY RUSSELL KENT
Manager, The Birmingham News-Age-Herald Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON—Anticipating opposition to the bill to extend the crop insurance act to include cotton, Democratic leaders of the House this week telegraphed Representative Pete Jarman, urging him to return to Washington in advance of floor consideration of this measure.

The Sixth District member had told the leaders when he went home three weeks ago to campaign for renomination that he should return at any time he might be needed. Congressman Jarman came to Washington immediately upon receipt of the messages, which were sent him by Majority Floor Leader Rayburn and Democratic Whip Boland.

Reaching Washington Thursday, Congressman Jarman found he had been summoned not for his vote on the measure, as he could have arranged for a pair with an opponent of the crop insurance bill, but because the House leaders felt his well-known persuasive qualities, which have been effective on previous occasions, would be valuable in smoothing away opposition to the measure in advance of the actual debate and voting.

In his service in the House, Representative Jarman has made many friends and he has gained a reputation as possessing wide influence among his fellows. In his first term as a member, he was elected chairman of the memorials committee, an unusual honor for a new representative, and at the outset of the present Congress he was elevated to the more important place of chairman of the committee on printing, and also was given an assignment to membership on the foreign affairs committee in order to help channel the administration's neutrality bill.

Congressman Jarman also had expected that, following the cotton insurance bill, the House would vote on "parity" for farmers, containing amendment to Agriculture.

Tuberculosis Association Announces Contest Winners

Judging of essays submitted by senior high school students in the County on the subject of tuberculosis has been completed and winners of ten cash prizes totalling twenty-seven dollars have been selected according to Dr. D. Sturkie, President of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

Students of four of the County's high schools participated. Winner of first prize was Jack Tucker of Isabella, Isabella student, Betty Lee of Isabella, Isabella student, and Betty Lee of Isabella, Isabella student, who each received the second place prize of five dollars.

Winners of the six other cash prizes among white students include Lucille Job of Jemison, Willodean Jones, Emma Conway, Isabella, Isabella student, Johnson, Isabella, Eason Maddox, Isabella, Alvin Damsby of Verbena, Isabella. Other students receiving honorable mention were Frances Scott of Verbena, James Patton, Jemison, Charles Edwards of Isabella, Carolyn Deramus, Isabella, Earl Clemmer, Isabella, Ozem, Isabella, Isabella, Mildred Conner of Isabella, Horace Bean, Jemison, Doris Job, Jemison and Leslie Glass, Jemison.

The school making the best showing was Isabella with four prizes won. There were so many excellent papers submitted it was very difficult to select the winners," declared Dr. Sturkie. "There was hardly a paper which did not bring out a majority of points regarding the disease." Winners of prizes among colored pupils were Earlene Sistrunk who was awarded the five-dollar first place prize and Nell Roller the second place one of five dollars.

A complete copy of the paper submitted by Jack Tucker winning the ten dollar prize will appear in this paper in early date.

PILOTS ERECT NEW SIGN

Pilots to Clanton and passing tour will in the future know that Clanton is a Pilot Club, for this civic organization of Clanton businessmen purchased and erected attractive sign on the north and south entrance to the City on the highway. A sign has been placed on the Maplesville way on the outskirts of the City. The sign is in the form of a pilot wheel, which is the Club's emblem. This group of ladies is to be installed on installing these signs, it will tend to impress visitors to the City.

Baseball Or Softball?

In the past several days the advocates of baseball have been talking in terms of whether or not Clanton baseball players can get together to organize a team for the season. The question is whether or not the several seasons of placing a strong team on the diamond, but another game to baseball, but not quite baseball as projected itself upon the horizon.

Baseball fans in Clanton have been talking to the game which is more popular on the same side, and has come into popularity within the last few seasons. And then, there are those persons who never seemed interested in baseball who are displaying an aggressive interest in soft ball. Without a doubt both of the game could be organized and it would be a simpler matter while all efforts and organize a soft ball league or a baseball team.

During the initiative last week was the Clanton Kiwanis Club, which voted to organize a soft ball team. The Kiwanis believe and have believed for some time, that Clanton is alarmingly deficient in recreational diversions, and in decision to form a soft ball team, they were motivated by a desire to promote active participation in a wholesome pastime. Whether or not these plans will turn out to be soft ball or not remains to be seen.

Reports coming from Lay Dam seem to indicate that this community, which in the past turned out some real baseball teams, is inclined to make the hardball for the soft ball team at least. There are reports that the local CCC Camp is organizing a team, and the Lions Club talked about such for some time.

ALABAMA'S NEW LIBRARY TO BE DEDICATED MAY 7-8

The above picture gives a partial view of the beautiful new Amelia Gayle Gorgas library which will be dedicated at the University of Alabama on May 7-8. President Richard C. HOMEcoming AT STANTON BAPTIST CHURCH MAY 12TH

On Sunday, May 12, will be held the annual Homecoming at Stanton Baptist Church it was announced recently. Everybody has an invitation to come and bring well filled baskets. A good program has been arranged.

Summer Garden For Grammar School

The Clanton Grammar School P.T. A. is sponsoring a summer garden for the school, and is asking for the donation of fruit jars in which to can the vegetables. Anyone having jars (preferably half-gallon) or any that will seal tight, which they would like to contribute, are asked to send them to the Grammar School or call 83-W.

Foodstuffs cannot be used in the lunch room for underprivileged children next school year. Postmaster R. W. Lowe generously donated an acre of land for the project, as well as prepared the land for planting.

High Court Reverses Clack Case

News was received in Clanton Tuesday that the case of State vs. Bill Clack, charged with the killing of Carl Gore was reversed and Clack will have a new trial before a Clanton County Jury by a decision of the Court of Appeals of Alabama on account of the erroneous rulings of the trial Court upon the trial of the case in the Circuit Court here at Clanton.

NOTICE TO BEAN, TOMATO GROWERS

A meeting of the bean and tomato growers of the County who are anticipating shipping these two crops through the Clanton Berry Growers Association, will be held next Saturday, May 4, at 3:00 o'clock, in the packing building of the Association. The purpose of this meeting will be to ascertain whether or not more hampers, etc., will be needed and how many so that they may be ordered in the near future—R. M. Roper, president.

CLANTON'S EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE

Into its third week has gone the Evangelistic Crusade being conducted jointly by the Clanton First Baptist and Methodist Churches. The sermon subjects both morning and evening each Sunday are the same in both churches, and good attendance is being noted.

"Christ Is Able—Christ Is Available" is the theme of this crusade, and the benefits derived from such a campaign to the people of a community are great. The values derived from a richer spiritual life are unsurpassed by material values. It is by joining in this crusade that we may come to know such values, for truly the Church is the guiding force of any community, and the primary purpose of this crusade is to increase church attendance.

Clanton Will Have Daylight Saving Says The Mayor

Although when the poll was taken, Clanton went on record against daylight saving time, but Mayor C. Penn Jones stated Tuesday that inasmuch as Governor Dixon has proclaimed the new time will exist, it is his opinion that Clanton should fall in line to prevent confusion.

Daylight saving time goes into effect at 2:00 A.M. next Sunday, and will last until the same time on September 1st.

Dr. A. Hamilton Reid Will Preach At Baptist

A card received by the News from Rev. Oscar A. Davis, pastor Clanton Baptist Church, stated that he and Mrs. Davis enjoyed a nice trip to Meridian, Miss., where they are in a revival, and stated that Dr. A. Hamilton Reid, vice-president of Howard College, Birmingham, would fill the pulpit of the local Baptist Church next Sunday.

Dr. Reid is an able speaker and the public is invited to hear him both Sunday morning at 11:00, and evening at 7:30.

RELIGIOUS SERVICE AT CITY HALL AUDITORIUM MAY 12TH

There will be a religious service at the Clanton City Hall auditorium Saturday afternoon, May 11, at 3:00 o'clock, it has been announced.

Rev. W. B. Hill of Stanton, assisted by Rev. J. L. Davis, will be in charge. Singers from the Stanton Wesleyan Methodist Church will be there and everybody is cordially invited to attend.

C.C.H.S. Sr. Three Class To Present Play

The Senior Three Class will present their class play, "Beyond Reason" Friday night, May 10, at the City Hall auditorium.

Over 30 Seniors are working hard every afternoon and night to give you a top-notch performance of this play. They selected "Beyond Reason" from a group of royalty and non-royalty plays. Because the public wants and deserves the best, they are gladly paying $10 for the right to produce it. Broadway liked "Beyond Reason"; Clanton County will like it, too. It is "Beyond Reason" to predict that you will ever see a better mystery play, so opines these seniors. See it now.

The curtain will rise promptly at 8:00 o'clock. The admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

The class is well pleased with the work of the cast and committee members, as follows: Elizabeth Newell, Mary Frances Atkinson, Marie Crowson Jones, Elizabeth Culp, Annie Laurie Bryson, Lennell Eubanks, Mary Holley, Neil Mahan, Helen Mahan, Pearl Moore, Janie Martin, Eugenia Newton, Doris Newell, Elizabeth Armstrong, Willodean Smith, Annie Cordelia Smith, Doris Williams, Carl Cooper, James Daniel, L. DAWN PATROL WILL VISIT CLANTON ON MAY 12TH

An invitation to visit Clanton, extended by the Clanton Kiwanis Club to the Birmingham Dawn Patrol, has been accepted, and this group of Birmingham flyers, headed by Earl Newman, will fly to Clanton just after dawn on Sunday, May 12, where they will be met at Gragg Field by members of the Club. Coffee and sandwiches will be served to the visiting flyers and Club members.

The Dawn Patrol has visited Clanton before but have never been accorded the reception in store for them on their coming visit. Dr. V. J. Gragg, Clanton's pioneer aviator, will lead the local delegation to meet and entertain the flyers. Other flyers of Clanton who have taken an active part in furthering aviation in this section, including Leo Thompson and Charles Wade, will be among those to greet the visitors.

MRS. BROOKS SPIGENER

Mrs. Brooks Spigener, age 67, passed away Wednesday at 9:00 P.M. after an illness of several months duration. She was the widow of W. D. Spigener who died several years ago.

Funeral services were held from the residence at 3 P.M. Thursday, conducted by the Rev. J. L. Daniel, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Clanton. Interment was in the Clanton cemetery by Spigener Funeral Home in charge.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. W. L. Farrior of Clanton; two brothers, Frank W. Thomas of Gadsden and Curry D. Thomas of Clanton; 2 sisters, Mrs. R. E. Goodgame of South Pittsburgh, Tenn., Mrs. Bess Thomas of Clanton; 1 grandson, Billie Farrior of Clanton.

Lucien D. Gardner Appointed

Lucien D. Gardner, associate justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, was appointed Monday to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Chief Justice John C. Anderson. Governor Dixon announced that he would appoint the successful candidate in the associate justice race between Davis S. Stakely and J. Ed Livington, to fill Justice Gardner's place.

12 CHILTON STUDENTS INVITED TO ATTEND JUNE CONFERENCE

Prof. Patterson Hicks of the Chilton County High School and Prof. J. A. Peterson of the Jemison High School have each recommended six students to receive invitations to attend the Student Career Conference to be held at Alabama College, Montevallo, on June 26, 27, 28 and 29.

Clanton students recommended were Elizabeth Newell, Clanton; Elizabeth Culp, Route 6, Clanton; Ruby Foshee, Route 6, Clanton; Margaret Lowery, Route 1, Clanton; Eugenia Newton, Mitchell Dam, Verbena; and Bonnie Guy, Route 2, Clanton.

Jemison students recommended are: Mildred Kelley, Opal Pruitt, Frances Coward, Audelle McCarty and Doris Jean Smith of Jemison; Grace Martin, Clanton, Route 4.

The purpose of the Student Career Conference is to bring together in a group high school graduates and students of high standing who are interested in discussing the occupational outlook for young women in Alabama.

Elementary Teachers To Visit Schools Of Parker District

The visit to schools of Parker District, Greenville, South Carolina, is the fourth trip of this type made by elementary teachers of Chilton County. In 1937 and 1938 groups visited T.V.A. Schools at Sheffield. Last year, the Peabody Demonstration School of Nashville and other places of interest around Nashville and Knoxville were visited. This year plans have been made to visit the Parker District, the T.V.A. Schools and Peabody Demonstration School.

Teachers who are visiting the Parker District are: Mrs. C. D. Thomas, Miss Mary Bratton and Miss Dorothy Manning of Clanton School, Miss Loretta Lecroy of Maplesville, Mrs. Thelma Lecroy of Collins Chapel and Miss Elsie Schurter, Supervisor of Chilton County Elementary Schools.

Another group of teachers will visit the T.V.A. Schools on May 9.

Report Made On Chilton School Survey

At a special meeting of the Chilton County Board of Education on April 25, 1940, Dr. A. R. Meadows, Supervisor of Research and Surveys, and Mr. B. E. Ledbetter, Surveys and Schoolhouse Planning, of the State Department of Education, submitted a "Report of the Survey of Chilton County Schools." Other members of the survey staff are: R. L. Johns, M. H. Killingsworth and J. S. Lambert of the State Department of Education; J. A. Lindsay of the University of Alabama; M. L. Orr and I. T. Sanders of Alabama College.

The field work of the survey was done during October of 1939. The written report just completed is a comprehensive study of such phases of the county's school system as Child Accounting, Teaching Staff, Pupil Transportation, Present School Buildings, Proposed School Centers, and Financing the Program.

Ten years ago Chilton County was the fifth county to receive a comprehensive educational survey in the state. The present study, made at the request of the County Superintendent and Board of Education, is the sixtieth study.

Know Where You Live?

Do you know what street or avenue you live on—if you are a resident of Clanton?

We have observed on several occasions that when the subject of Clanton's streets came up, Clantonians were not well posted on the location of certain avenues and streets. For instance, if a stranger comes into town and wants to know to what street so-and-so lives, the person he asks is stumped, and wiggles out of the situation by directing the inquirer by the turn-left-go-two-blocks method.

Now that Clanton is reaching that size when the correct streets and avenues should be used, it would not be a bad idea for the City of Clanton to erect street markers over the city. At present Main Street on which the courthouse is located is about the only thoroughfare that the residents of Clanton are wholly familiar with in terms of names.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS VISIT WAYNE BODY WORKS

The early part of this week Dr. W. L. Parrish, Mr. T. L. Lecky, Prof. J. T. Seary, accompanied by Dr. Parrish's son, Frank, visited the Wayne Body Works in Richmond, Ind., in the interest of securing information relative to purchasing new school bus bodies for the County Educational Department. They were scheduled to arrive back in Clanton Wednesday of this week.

Rev. John Bean will preach at Friendship Church Sunday, May 5th. All members and visitors are urgently requested to be present. Rev. Bean will preach both morning and evening.

90-FT. TOWER FOR GRAGG FIELD

A representative of the Civil Aeronautics Authority of Washington visited Clanton several days ago, and before leaving stated that Clanton's Gragg Field would have a 90-ft. beacon tower, whereas other fields to be lighted in the state would have only 50 and 75-ft. towers.

The Government is spending several thousand dollars on the local project, by erecting the tower and border lights. Several acres of timber surrounding the field will be cut down to facilitate safe landings. Actual work on the project is scheduled to begin soon.

THURSDAY

The Destiny Of Our Democracy

By IRVIN M. LANDE

Hitler took over the City of Oslo, Norway, which has a population of over 200,000, with a small army of some 1500. This feat amazed military experts throughout the world. They were even more amazed when they learned that the Nazi took possession without the slightest resistance being offered by the Norwegian defenders. They proceeded to investigate how could such a feat take place. They found out that the entire population of the City of Oslo had been seized with fear and were indifferent to their own government. They welcomed the Nazi totalitarian regime with joy and even had a brass band to await the invaders.

Now this is hard for us to imagine in America. We can hardly think of America as being a similar victim. But immediately after the military experts released their findings, J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Martin Dies of the Un-American Activities Committee, reported that the United States is being used as a same such victim. Representative Dies made the remark that any such democracy could be used as Norway to be undermined "especially when its citizens are insensible to the dangers of foreign agents."

That American citizens are growing indifferent to their democracy has been a well-known fact in the last several elections, many millions of previous voters have resigned to use their heritage. But besides the many who have refused to vote, many millions more have even resorted to selling their vote.

Someone has said of Great Britain and repeated of the United States, that these two great democracies are not democracies. He said that in a true democracy, the majority of citizens take advantage of their right to vote. But he said that here the people are not interested in voting, they are merely interested in what results they get.

Now certainly if these facts are the truth, then we are easy prey for European dictatorships. If they are true, then we are going to give up over one hundred and fifty years of progress in the path of a people's government. Those men who do think that we are ready to relinquish our free government will get their answer before the year is out. This is the year when we shall elect a new president. If America is to stay a democracy, this year will be one of her most crucial tests.

Perhaps now we come to the individual American's position. Where does he have a part in this crisis? Where is his influence in keeping this country free? The answer lies in his vote. America can best show her colors of true democracy by electing to office this year those men obtainable. And electing those men is the job and destiny of the individual American.

It goes without saying that today the majority of American citizens are aware of the dangers which lurk in every move they take. Europe's troubles have not let us forget our position. But however things do turn out, and we can only hope for the best, it will be intensely interesting to watch the returns of the elections this year.

MAXWELL for Congress

THOMAS H. MAXWELL

The Political Committee of the Tuscaloosa Central Labor Union reported of me:

"Mr. Maxwell is a candidate who is well known to all of us for his humane interest in the progress of workers in industry and on the farm. He is a member of the Farm Bureau Federation and the Veterans organizations. Mr. Maxwell fully indorses our entire legislative program as evidenced by his communication of March 14, 1940."

Thus farmers and city workers can join with labor to elect MAXWELL to Congress.

I am a candidate to represent the Sixth Alabama District in the Seventy-Seventh United States Congress. I call upon all farmers to be campaigners to elect me, the only seasoned, tried and true Two-War Veteran Farmer. Get all other country and town citizens to vote with us and give Tom Maxwell an overwhelming vote of 21,800 in the primary May 7, 1940, by counties as below:

Chilton — 3900 Greene — 1000 Perry — 1800 Sumter — 1600
Bibb — 2500 Hale — 2007 Shelby — 3000 Tuscaloosa 7500

MAXWELL CONTRACTS FOR:

For all citizens and veterans $40 a month age pension; 40 cents per pound parity for cotton and insurance on the controlled crop; collective bargaining for the farmer and industrial labor; a 100-bed hospital for any town giving a site; continuing of federal aid to roads, school houses and WPA until such support is no longer needed. Our goal for prosperity sake "is a job for every able-bodied person in America." Cessation of freight and tariff discriminations against the South.

Six hour day for industry.

I have re-registered personally for war, but shall never urge our nation to expose our boys to foreign wars. I favor adequate national defense.

I thank the ladies and gentlemen of the farms and of the towns for their magnificent support in winning a victory for pensions of $40 per month to all aged over 65 and veterans. My perseverance has its reward in victory. The ballot is absolutely secret.

Congressman Jarman Spoke At Tuscaloosa Last Saturday

In a resounding speech Saturday at Tuscaloosa, Congressman J. E. Jarman reviewed his work during his three-year tenure in Washington and how his accomplishments had been of benefit to the people of the Sixth District.

Before a jammed Courtroom and several hundred listeners outside the County Court House who heard his words via loud speaker, the Congressman stressed the importance of his committee work, saying that in the next Congress he would be chairman of the Joint House-Senate Committee on Printing, which controls all government printing, the largest business of its kind in the world.

In such cases, it will be the second time in 150 years, the entire history of Congress that a House member will have served as Chairman of this Committee. The largest crowd to hear a congressional candidate in Tuscaloosa applauded vigorously, interrupting frequently to cheer a strong point. Mr. Jarman told of the bills he had introduced, mentioned the speeches he had made on the floor of the House and outlined how he helped steer the administration's Neutrality Bill through the House, acting as a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee. He said he considered the present Neutrality Bill a strong factor in keeping this country at peace and said he would continue to work to prevent this country from entering any conflict, at the same time supporting measures for adequate national defense.

He did not mention his opponents directly, but remarked: "The platforms of one of my opponents contains eleven points. Seven of these I have voted for and worked for since I have been in Congress. One I pledged my support to two years ago in a public speech (Federal aid for education without Federal supervision.) Then he is against war, Communism, waste and extravagance. 'Who isn't against these things in our America?' he asked."

Mr. Jarman showed how he worked for and voted for reciprocal trade agreements, designed to help dispose of unneeded agricultural surpluses, thereby benefitting farmers. He spoke of how he voted for the original bill providing for parity payments to farmers.

Mentioning his interest in veteran's affairs, how he worked for veteran's legislation with special emphasis on hospitals while a member of the Veteran's Legislation Committee during his first term, the Congressman also told of his sympathy for the social security laws and the "humanitarian" program of the administration.

In concluding, Mr. Jarman said since there were no issues at stake, voters could decide solely on the experience, capabilities and demonstrated capacity for service of the various candidates.

"If you approve of my work and my record and wish to preserve the valuable seniority for your District; if you desire to keep the Chairmanships the Sixth District has earned; if you wish continued membership on the Foreign Affairs Committee which is now the most important committee in the House; if you approve of my diligent representation of the whole people of the District, then express yourself by your active influence and vote thereby contributing to the landslide which seems to be in progress."

Mr. Jarman expressed regret that he had been denied the pleasure of seeing many people but said the performance of his duties in their behalf had caused this. In fact it will probably be necessary for him to be in Washington as you read this to vote and work for agricultural legislation.

Our Last Trip

On Saturday, April 13, 1940, my class left Clanton headed for Moundville, which is about eighty-five miles from Clanton. We were packed in that school bus like sardines in a box, and every time we stopped for rest and got back into the bus there seemed to be more and more of us.

Our first stop was made at Centerville, county seat of Bibb County. From there we took an unpaved highway and drove almost to Tuscaloosa, where we turned into State Highway 15. After driving out about seventeen miles on this nicely paved road, we suddenly found ourselves in the little town of Moundville in Hale County.

Here we stopped and got drinks to enjoy with our lunches, which we planned to eat out at the park. Some of our group ate on the steps at the entrance to the museum while others ate on a good-sized mound just behind the museum.

When we had finished our lunch we lined up, paid ten cents each, and entered the museum. At the desk just inside the door we were given cards to fill out. This is their system of keeping a record of visitors to Mound State Monument. Inside the museum we saw glass-topped tables and glass wall cases with so many interesting relics of the earliest Americans that I'm afraid I can't describe them. We were fortunate indeed, to be visiting when Dr. Snow of Birmingham could talk to us about the burials in North and South pits. We were invited to ask questions concerning things of interest to us. I found my notebook heavy with information jotted down. Before leaving the site we climbed mound B, which is eight and a half feet high.

On the road once more, we headed for Tuscaloosa. We drove out through the University grounds and stopped to visit the museum there. Later we visited the Children's Home where children of our state are carried. At school age, they are mentally undeveloped. We also drove out to the Vann's Hospital. We passed through a semer on our way home, but no more was made there.

We arrived home about seven o'clock, tired but gay. This was the last of the year for Mrs. Thomas' grade, but we sincerely believe it has been the best.—Betty Joyce Smith

C. E. Stapp Writes To Voters; Expresses Belief That He Is Well Qualified To Serve The People Of Chilton County As Their Probate Judge

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

I desire to serve you as Judge of Probate. I am not asking for the office because of the honor, though it is an honor to be Judge of Probate of Chilton County, but I am asking for the office because hundreds of my friends and I feel that with my knowledge of the people and conditions in the County, my training, experiences and observations, I will be able to render good service to all sections of the County.

I was born and reared on a good farm where I did everything from dig ditches to haul logs. I attended a one-teacher school while doing the work of the first nine school grades. For two years I attended the County High School where I made a good record. For four years I attended our Agricultural and Mechanical College at Auburn, where I again, made a good record and graduated with honors. I worked my way through the last year of high school and the last three years of college and am proud of it.

My work at Auburn was interrupted in 1918 by the World War. Early in 1918 I volunteered for service in the army and was sent to Officers Training Camp where I received my commission that summer. After being commissioned as an officer in the U. S. Army, I was sent to the University of Texas at Austin as an instructor of college students who were preparing to answer the call to arms. When I was discharged from the army, the boys of my company presented to me a beautiful gold fountain pen and pencil set with my name engraved thereon. I am proud of that pencil and pen set because it was given as an expression of appreciation of my work with the boys.

After being discharged from the army in December of 1918, I returned to Auburn and finished my course in agriculture.

After graduating from Auburn I was in charge of operations of one of the largest farms in the state for one year. I then started working for the state and Federal Governments as County Agent. I served Alabama as County Agent for sixteen years, and I am proud of my record as County Agent. When I resigned as County Agent I was one of the highest rated Agents in the 67 counties of the State.

COHEN E. STAPP

ties of the State I do not say that boastfully, but I am proud that thousands of farmers, bankers, merchants, county officials and officials at Auburn and in Washington say, "Stapp, you did a good job as County Agent."

After leaving the Alabama Extension Service, I entered the private business of a corporation capitalized at one hundred fifty thousand dollars. While with that company, because of my connections in Washington and my contacts with farmers, bankers and merchants in Central and West Alabama, I was able to get a volume of business that enabled me to pay the stockholders the biggest dividends in the history of the sixty-year-old corporation. When I submitted my resignation from that corporation to enter business for myself, the president and directors wrote me a splendid letter, expressing their regrets of my resignation and their appreciation of my services with the company.

As a token of their appreciation, they gave me a bonus of sixteen hundred dollars. I am proud of that record.

Mrs. Stapp and I moved our citizenship to Chilton County in 1927 because, as I have said on many occasions, we feel more at home here than anywhere else. We have voted here all the time and have answered every call to serve schools, churches and community meetings as speakers and otherwise.

At the request of thousands of my friends who feel that I, if elected Judge of Probate, will be able to get the various groups of the County working together on a progressive program with as little friction as possible, I am asking you for your vote and influence on May 7. My friends, who are listing and reporting from the sixteen beats of the County, think I will receive a nice majority of votes in every beat.

If you feel that my knowledge of the people of the County, my contacts over the State and in Washington, D. C., my training and experiences, and my ability to work with people quietly and peacefully would enable me to make you a better Judge of Probate than would either of the other candidates, I will

Chilton Voters Hear Billy Partlow Saturday

In a ringing call to action before a cheering throng of friends and supporters, W. D. (Billy) Partlow, Jr., prominent attorney of Tuscaloosa, and candidate for Congress from the Sixth District, Saturday carried his campaign into Chilton County with a scathing denunciation of inaction and lack of initiative on the part of the incumbent, Pete B. Jarman.

Partlow spoke to the overflow crowd in the courtroom of the Chilton County courthouse.

Thunderous applause rose from the audience as Partlow frankly discussed the principles underlying his platform and lay bare the record of Mr. Jarman.

Pointing out Jarman's failure to record his vote for the parity payments to farmers in the amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill of 1939, and Jarman's failure to take any action toward securing federal aid for education, Partlow was wildly cheered as he pledged alert, aggressive representation to the people of the Sixth District.

Partlow praised the human welfare program of the Democratic Party of today and urged the necessity of carrying it through to a complete conclusion. "We must go through with the great program of the Democratic Party—a program based on common decency and fair treatment to all," Partlow continued, "a program opposed to the maintenance of government for the privileged few and dedicated to the establishment of equal economic opportunity for all the people." Partlow discussed at length his platform, calling for legislation to benefit the farmer, the laborer, the aged, the veteran, federal aid for education, elimination of discriminatory freight rates, continuation of useful federal emergency relief work and other progressive planks.

Speaking sincerely and frankly, Partlow demonstrated characteristics of initiative and originality. Obviously, the needs of the Sixth District are uppermost in the Tuscaloosa man's mind as he pledged representation to all the people of the Sixth District.

Mr. Partlow plans to speak in Bibb, Shelby, Perry, Sumter and Tuscaloosa Counties this week.—(Pd. pol. adv. by Billy Partlow, Tuscaloosa, Ala.)

(W. D. (BILLY) PARTLOW)

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

As the campaign for Congress nears its climax, we, the Chilton County friends of Billy Partlow, urge you to support the candidacy of this man who has received such tremendous and enthusiastic support throughout the District.

Billy Partlow has unequivocally stated his political concepts and has published a progressive platform embodying truly democratic principles. His campaign has been waged on a high plane with no personalities or mud-slinging. His liberal political philosophy, his demonstrated ability and his clean, courageous fight for the nomination merit the support of every qualified voter in the Sixth District.

We firmly believe that today when the problems of the South are receiving the attention of our national government the Sixth District's greatest need is able, alert, aggressive representation in the Congress.

Knowing that the election of Billy Partlow will assure us of such representation, we urge you to

HUGH WHITE
For President
ALABAMA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

On April 2, 1940, Mr. Donald Comer wrote me as follows:

"Some years ago, with others of your friends, I asked Governor Graves to appoint you as Chairman of the Alabama Public Service Commission, and I have been glad to continue my support since then and am voting for you in the May primary."

"In this coming primary, I would like to say that I am not voting against anyone; I am just continuing my support for my long-time friend, Hugh White."

Yours very truly,
(Signed) DONALD COMER.

Alabama's government needs trained men who know their jobs. A good record is better than campaign promises.

That fool Hitler seems to be so stubborn that he just will not fight the war the way his enemies want him to.

It sometimes seems like there is more deception in the world than ever before. Or, maybe people didn't know about it.

The Christian forces of America were duped into participating in Europe's World War. We do not believe they will be so gullible again.

"The British are coming" are words which once made many peoples quake. But now, in the language of Sambo, "The British seem to be gwine."

Few people there are who have any use for a hater—the fellow who is always trying to get even with somebody.

Every gun, every airplane, every tank, every kind of explosive, every other killing device Uncle Sam sends to the warring people of Europe and Asia is used for taking life and destroying property. Knowing that to be true, how can we still claim to be a Christian nation?

Do Not Lie

It is amazing the number of gains that have been shown in many kinds of business only to find it said that the country is still in the grasp of a great depression. We may not have gotten over the top yet but when gains such as this are made in the business of Frank Gannett while he is off trying to defeat the man who has made them possible, it is a good time to start asking questions of the men who would wish to tell us that times are getting worse." —Alabama Journal.

And They Called It Candy

I dropped into a store and asked for a box of candy, and this is what I got, according to the label, "ingredients," on the package: "Chocolate, sugars, nuts, fruits, corn syrup, molasses, honey, concentrated milk and cream, dried egg whites, corn-starch hardened vegetable oil, gelatin, gum arabic, citric acid, natural and artificial flavors, U.S. certified food colors." And all I wanted was a box of "candy."

No Editorial Needed

"The Alabama Journal recently printed in its editorial columns two straight news dispatches without comment, since together they said more than additional words could have said," says the Anniston Star. "In one Frank Gannett, a Republican candidate for President, was quoted at Los Angeles that 'the New Deal has been a complete failure. President Roosevelt has had more than twenty billion dollars to spend. He has failed to get out of the depression or to bring substantial recovery.' The other dispatch came from Rochester, N.Y., to show that the Gannett Company, Inc., reported to stockholders a consolidated net profit of $1,302,320 for 1939, which was a gain of $136,904 over the preceding year."

"Night In Europe"

H. G. Wells has made the prophecy that "mankind, which began in a cave behind a windbreak, will end in the disease-soaked ruins of a slum." Commenting on the present night in Europe, Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, in his review of 1939 declares the conflict cannot "be long continued without the sacrifice of cultural values on so vast a scale that the chance of an enlightened and gracious life, not alone for this generation in Europe, but for the children and grandchildren of this generation, will be irretrievably lost." Events of recent weeks seem to support all the prophets of doom.—Anniston Times.

To Pray For World Peace

The General Conference of the Methodist Church has called upon 7,856,000 members of the United States to do without Sunday dinner on June 2nd and pray for "speedy termination of the war."

We heartily indorse this urge, and suggest that in the meantime 7,856,000 Methodists and all other Christian church members send a telegram or letter to their congressmen and senators to stop the shipment of death-dealing war devices to the people in other nations who are making the war.

God cannot be expected to answer prayer unless we who do the praying undertake to do something ourselves to bring to pass the thing prayed for. We cannot serve God and Mammon.

High Court To Decide On Religious Healing Expense For Veteran

The Alabama Supreme Court, it was indicated Saturday, will be called upon to decide whether a payment for religious healing is a legitimate expense under a guardianship set up for a Birmingham World War veteran who has been judged incompetent.

Probate Judge Eugene H. Hawkins Saturday allowed an expensive item of $100 to cover "readings" for the veteran. It was indicated by R. J. McClure, guardian ad litem for the veteran, and the U. S. Veterans Administration, which has intervened, that an appeal will be taken.

Objections to the 100 payment were filed by McClure on the contention that "an incompetent's estate cannot be charged for prayer or similar religious service."

The veteran has an income of $132 a month, most of which is awarded by the veteran's administration, according to Judge Hawkins.

The incompetent's guardian, his mother, contends that the $100 expenditure is necessary for "his health and well being."

The treatment, according to her application for the allowance, "is exclusively confined to prayer and does not consist of any form of diagnosing or applying of any medical treatment whatsoever. It is exclusively a practice of religion and not medicine and is essentially a religious belief and a religious service or ceremony. Prayer is offered at the requests of persons desiring it."

In this case, it is said the prayer is being offered at the request of the veteran, "sometimes in his presence and sometimes upon telephone request in his absence." — Birmingham News-Age-Herald

Former Governor For Third Term

"I believe the fate of mankind in America and in the world depends more on keeping Roosevelt in the White House than any one thing else. You ought to tell the world that organized labor demands that President Roosevelt keep on keeping on. This is no time to turn the reins over to an untried man."

Thus spoke Former Governor Bibb Graves in a speech to the State Federation of Labor in annual convention at Gadsden last week. The former Governor, who is expected to run for Governor in 1942, further warned against the nationalistic madness sweeping the world and urged unity of all forces in America to combat this threat.

Newsmen and visitors to the convention report that Colonel Graves received the most enthusiastic and demonstrative reception accorded any public speaker in Alabama in recent months.

The A. F. of L. went on record as favoring Sen. John H. Bankhead, Sen. Lister Hill, Rep. Henry B. Steagall and A. A. Carmichael for delegates at large to the National Democratic Convention.

Acting on the suggestion of the former governor the convention passed a rousing resolution endorsing Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term.

So, there is no question about how Organized Labor in Alabama feels about a third term.

Says C. M. Stanley in his "Under The Capitol Dome" column in Alabama Journal:

Some of the political aspirants who attended the annual convention of the Alabama Federation of Labor at Gadsden to mingle with the delegates have returned with striking stories of the reception which Col. Bibb Graves received as the convention's chief speaker.

When the former governor was escorted into the hall by several patrolmen he was given a rising ovation by between 300 and 400 delegates. When he rose to speak there was another standing demonstration. When he made a red-hot new deal speech demanding that President Roosevelt be kept in the White House for another term the cheers broke out no less than ten times in the course of forty-five minutes.

When he stopped speaking the convention virtually broke up its session because of the rush to shake hands and congratulate him. Old observers said it was one of the most remarkable personal demonstrations they had ever seen in Alabama.

The colonel announced no political plans of his own but talked new deal and unjust freight rates.

It is said the new chairs for the Justices of the Supreme Court are to cost $47.50 each. That is hardly "equal and exact justice" for we fellows who have to sit on a dollar cane-bottom.

That lady down the street we board with, has 14 hens . . . and a rooster . . . and during the month of March gathered in 242 eggs. Wonder if Glenn Stanley can swallow that?—Alexander City Outlook.

What did the rooster have to do with it? Roosters don't lay eggs.

THE PRIMARY NEXT TUESDAY

Those persons in Chilton County who are qualified by law to cast their ballots this year, will, along with other counties of our state, go to the polls on next Tuesday to select nominees to carry their party's banner into the general election next fall. It is very important that every voter in Chilton County, Democrat or Republican, exercise his or her franchise at the polls next Tuesday.

This newspaper, being Democratic by political faith, points out to the voters the group of able candidates whose names appear on the Democratic ticket, but the same applies to the Republican ticket. No matter under what emblem you cast your ballot, it is primarily important that you exercise the right you enjoy, and name men whom you conscientiously believe best qualified and fitted to fill the offices they seek.

This newspaper would urge every voter to sit down and carefully analyze the situation which exists across the seas today, and come to realize that now, more than ever, should we, without coercion and sans personal gain, cast our votes for the men who have shown their capability of leadership, and who, if elected, will best serve the people as a whole. The responsibility is too great to be ignored or treated lightly. There are over six thousand qualified voters in Chilton County this year. Our hope is that when the ballots are tabulated the total will be over six thousand, and every one will have been cast by a conscientious voter who realizes his citizenship responsibility.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

An Associated Press dispatch from Illinois relates the story of a blind man being arrested while driving a car. The man insisted that he just "felt his way" along the road, but his explanation did not inspire the confidence of the traveling public and neither did it satisfy the policeman making the arrest. To make bad matters worse the blind man was driving without license. That blind man driving a car was no more of a menace to himself and the public than a lot of the so-called intelligent people of today who are out dashing here and there with no vision of God in their hearts. When a man tries to make the pathway of life without God and God's guidance, he becomes a menace to immortal souls and a menace to himself as well. God is to life what the eye is to the driver. You are driving blindly if you do not have God.

One Sunday afternoon a Kentucky wife started home in her car after spending the day with a friend. She chose to drive the car and relegated her husband to the rumble-seat. During a pause along the way, the husband stepped out of the car and the wife drove off and left him standing in the road. On reaching her home garage ninety miles away she stopped to the ground to see that the rumble seat was empty. She had to return on a long, anxious journey, but finally she found her husband. A great many people treat their religion as that woman treated her husband. They decide to do the driving and they relegate their religion to the rumble seat. They drive on without giving the occupant of the seat a thought and they lose their religion along the way. God refuses to ride with any man when he is relegated to the rumble seat. It is high time that some folks get busy hunting for the religion that they have lost along the way of life. While you drive God steps out.

I was raised on the farm and made this suggestive observation. When we went to the barn in the afternoon to feed, the rattle of fodder and shucks caused the cows to swish their tongues, made the mules bray while the pigs would trot and squeal. When we took a close-up look at some people they remind us very much of what took place at the barn. Around election day, in our legislative halls, just rattle a few bills of green-back and tongues will begin to swish, mules will begin to bray and human pigs will begin to trot and squeal. Do you have your price? Just a little money will make many a human sell himself.

While strolling along the sidewalk I saw this sign on a closed shoe shop: "We thought that we could make good in this shoe shop. We can't and there's no use trying. We give up and have closed up." As I journeyed on thinking of the sign I could not decide whether I was sad or mad. To be sure there was a pathetic note in the sign and I felt like sympathizing with the man who had sent up the white flag, but still there was a feeling of disgust at a bunch of men who would quit. Every hand I hear people saying, "I can't do this and that" and they are down and whine. Why not be a man and knock the letter T out of your can't and you have can. If you do not truly in the philosophy of the Sparrow, the door of that thriving business we see, "We thought that we could make have. Perseverance is a precious gem in life."

A Robin and a Sparrow sat together in a tree top. As they watched the rain and push on the street below, said the Robin to the Sparrow, "I wonder why that those human beings that we see below, are in such a rush. They seem to be so anxious about something. In answer to the Robin's query, the Sparrow made reply: "It is this way with human beings, they do not seem to think that they have a Heavenly Father to take care of them as you and I. I wonder if there is not a bit of truth in the philosophy of the Sparrow. Men everywhere are in a great hurry. They seem to think that they have to take care of themselves. If we had the Sparrow's faith in God, we could be much more content and we could be still and know that He was God. Oh, that we could trust God and be calm in our souls."

Helpful Hints To Peach Growers On Caring For Trees Following Freeze

Most of the peach crop is gone and there is no way to get it back but there are some things the peach growers can do to help the trees set a crop of fruit for next year.

1. Keep the orchard cultivated enough to prevent the weeds from taking all the fertilization of the land from the trees.
2. Control water sprout growth in the trees. Where trees were fertilized before the freeze this fertilizer may cause excessive growth on the tree. Many of the trees may develop water sprouts. The water sprouts should be removed during the summer while small. Very few fruit buds are set on watersprouts.
3. Summer sprays are applied to control worms and disease on the fruit. If trees have no fruit it is not necessary to apply summer spray. Just keep the orchard in good condition during the summer in order that the trees may set a good crop of fruit for next year.
4. It is discouraging to lose a crop, but the fruit grower should remember that crop losses are not limited to peaches. The farmer made the following statement: "I had rather have one peach tree crop every year" Many farmers have had experience of this kind. If orchards are properly cared for this summer there should be a good crop in 1941.

Cotton Insurance Will Be Available

In 1941 crop insurance will be available to cotton growers, reports P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service. It will be under a Federal law which passed the Senate in 1939 and the House, April 9, 1940.

"For sometime we have been leaning toward crop insurance for cotton and the season of 1939 made us strong for it because thousands of Alabama farmers had their cotton crop severely reduced by unfavorable weather and other factors beyond their control," says Director Davis. "For them it was almost like having their home burn with no insurance on either building or contents."

"This law corrects a major deficiency in our agricultural program. It will not, of course, guarantee yields against all conditions but only against conditions over which farmers have no control, and then only up to a stated percent of the normal yield. It will still be necessary for farmers to do their duty in producing cotton."

"With this law we now have a floor under our agricultural program for each individual who takes advantage of it. Like other divisions of this program it will be optional. No farmers will be required to take advantage of it but, in my judgement, it will be very attractive to growers. It will not "pay off" every year but it will provide the satisfaction of protection all the time for each grower who takes advantage of it. When emergencies occur it will pay as well as protect."

A total of 378,000 wheat growers have taken out "all-risk" crop insurance on their 1940 crop and guaranteed themselves approximately 106,000,000 bushels this year.

MRS. M. E. ELLISON MAKES HOME IMPROVEMENT AT VERY NOMINAL EXPENSE

It means much to the comfort and happiness of the family to have an attractive home. Mrs. M. E. Ellison of Calera, Ala., Route 1, who is a member of the Minooka Home Demonstration Club, has added much to the appearance of her home by repainting her bedroom at a cost of $1.50. She used casein paint which is now on the market. It is in a powder form which is mixed with water and then applied as any other paint. Mrs. Ellison painted the room herself thus saving the cost of labor.

That's Uncle Natchel's philosophy... if Mother Nature made it, it's good.

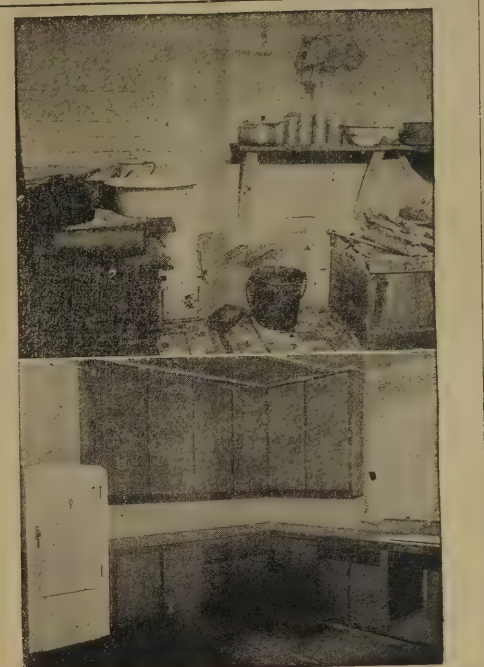

Chilean Soda is good because it's "Natchel"—the only natural nitrate in the world. It's good for all crops, before planting or after. It's particularly profitable for sidedressing and topdressing. It acts quickly, picks the crop up and pushes it ahead to early maturity.

"BETTER HOMES WEEK"

No room in the home is used more than the kitchen and for that reason it should be efficiently planned to save steps and prevent drudgery. Cheerful surroundings are also important since Mother likely spends more than half of her time in the kitchen. Shown above are pictures of two different Alabama kitchens. The one at the top can be made as attractive as the one at the bottom with very little expense. A sink and plenty of storage space are needed in every Alabama kitchen.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Brackeen, shown above with P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service, Auburn, made the first Alabama mattress under the south-wide mattress making program.

National "Better Homes Week" April 28-May 4

Nothing is more important in any home than food and good beds. Preserving fruits and vegetables on a budget basis gives the farm family an adequate diet during the winter months and at the same time saves money. More than 25,000 mattresses have been made by farm women of Alabama during the past two years and many thousands more will be made under the cotton mattress program now going on throughout the State.

Alabama Is Leading Nation In Mattress Making

Alabama is leading the nation in Mattress Making under the south-wide program to make surplus cotton available to low-income families.

Indications are that 100,000 mattresses will be made under the program in the State. This would consume approximately 10,000 bales aside from the ticking used.

To date over 2500 applications have been received at the office of the Home Agent for mattress materials in this county.

Chilton County Calf Club Will Be Enlarged By Addition Of Forty-Seven New Members

Forty seven 4-H Club members will attend for the first time a Chilton County Calf Club meeting on Saturday, May 4, announces C. L. Breedlove, Assistant County Agent. This will increase the enrollment of the calf club from thirty members to seventy-seven members.

The Chilton County Calf Club is an organization of 4-H Club members in the County who are interested in dairy cattle production. Each member has a dairy calf or cow for his project. Meetings are held throughout the year to discuss feeding problems, improving and increasing milk production, and other problems of managing dairy cattle.

Two registered Jersey bulls are owned by the Club and are placed in the County for the use of farmers who want to develop high producing dairy cattle. Additional bulls will be bought and placed in the county as the club becomes able to do so.

Members of the club exhibit their animals at the County and State fairs each year. A dairy cattle judging team from the Club competes each year at the State Fair in Birmingham with judging teams from other counties over the state.

A film strip prepared by Mr. F. W. Burns, Extension Dairy Husbandman, on "Selecting The Home Dairy Cow" will be shown at the meeting Saturday. The new members will also learn more about the activities of the calf club.

National Employment Week May 1-5

Responding to the appeal of President Roosevelt for general observance of National Employment Week, hundreds of civic, business and professional organizations in Alabama will give special attention to employment of residents of Alabama beginning May 1 and continuing through Sunday, May 5, according to reports received by the Alabama State Employment Service, a Division of the Department of Industrial Relations.

President Roosevelt's proclamation fixed Sunday, May 5, as National Employment Sunday and ministers of all denominations in Alabama indicated that they will observe the day. In many instances special programs with employment as the theme will be carried out. In others, ministers will deliver special sermons on the subject of employment, with special emphasis on the efficiency of men and women over 40, who have been unable to regain positions because of age rather than because of loss of efficiency.

REGULATIONS FOR IMPOUNDING LAKES, FISH PONDS, SET OUT

The following regulations for the impounding of lakes and fish ponds are offered by the Health Department for the information of prospective fish pond builders:

In the area of the pond that will be flooded at all times, all brush, trees, and undergrowth shall be cut off below the low water level. All stumps in this area must be cut as close to the ground as possible. A bottom drain at the low point of the dam must be installed so as to control the water elevation. The size of the drain will depend on the volume of water stored in the pond and the amount of water flowing into the pond. The drain should be large enough to drain the pond under any circumstances in less than seven days. Three common methods of mosquito control are water level fluctuation, the application of larvicides, and the maintenance of a clean shore line and water surface and the stocking of the pond with Bambusia. Water level fluctuation is the raising and lowering of the water level of the pond. Larvicides are applied at weekly intervals to the water surface containing vegetation and foliage. There are many types of larvicides, but a larvicide usually consisting of three parts of kerosene and one part black oil has proved to be the most satisfactory type for small ponds in Alabama. An artificially created pond requires attention and maintenance. The amount will depend on the particular lake. If some reconditioning work is continually carried out the whole problem will remain simple. The major amount of work should be done during the fall and winter months. Experience has shown that as the amount of vegetation in the pond increases, mosquito control becomes more difficult and expensive. In certain instances the pond will not respond to any of the control measures and the only alternative is to completely dewater the area and start over again.

IN MEMORY OF MARSHELL

A little time on earth he spent Until God His angels sent,
And carried him away from our home
To stay with Him forever on His golden throne.
But weep not dear friends
For Marshall is gone from this wicked world
To a bright and happy home.
Though we miss him no one will never fill his place,
But how rejoicing it was to hear his footsteps around the place.
How sad it leaves our hearts to stop seeing his darling smiling face,
But we hope and pray
We will meet him in heaven some day.
He has been gone eight months today.—His mother, Geneva E. Price.

Candidate For Re-Election

HUGH WHITE

Montgomery, Ala.—Hugh White, President of the Alabama Public Service Commission and candidate for re-election, an outstanding figure in the South's fight for fair freight-rate revision, today stated his stand with regard to the affairs which the Commission administers:

"To reach no conclusion without a full consideration of the facts from all sides, of any matter under the jurisdiction of the Commission;

"To exercise a policy of fair play, toward all parties in every matter brought to the Commission for decision;

"Not to pre-judge any case brought before the Commission; and

"To keep in mind that while rates for electric, gas and water service should be as low as conditions will permit, they should be sufficient to enable the utility to continue to render adequate service to the communities in which they do business."

Speaking of his personal platform, Mr. White stated that "in this campaign, as in former campaigns, I do not intend to stop to personalities. My record as a public official speaks for itself and has won for me the respect of all those who have had occasion to deal with me. I intend to make no campaign promises other than that I shall continue to exercise the functions of the office of President of the Commission in a manner consistent with the American ideals of honesty and fair play. Campaign promises are seldom kept, largely because when the promises are made they are not based on full knowledge of all the circumstances. My record speaks for itself. The people will not be misled by extravagant campaign promises."

Judge J. Lee Smith, Candidate For Re-Election To The Office Of Judge Of Probate, Makes Final Appeal To His Friends And Supporters

To The Voters of Chilton County:

As the campaign is drawing to a close for the May 7th Primary Election, I want to take this opportunity to say a few words in the behalf of my candidacy for re-election to the office of Judge of Probate. Due to the duties in the office I have been unable to see all the voters, but I trust that I have the opportunity before May 7th.

I would like to state in a brief way some of my qualifications for the office, and the things I stand for. It is only fair that the people of this County know how the several candidates stand, so they may be in a more enlightened position to choose the best qualified to manage the affairs of our County.

I have been a resident of this County over forty years, a taxpayer for twenty-seven years, and I have always taken an active interest in public affairs.

During the time I was in business I always endeavored to serve my customers honestly and fair and I believe they will bear me out in that statement.

I have served the people of Clanton as their Mayor for two terms, and was Mayor of the Town of Clanton when you honored me with the highest office within the gift of our people.

I am for paved roads and during my next administration I shall do my very best to see that each District gets its pro-rata share of paved roads.

I am a staunch believer in public schools and will do everything possible to secure a nine-months term for every school in favor of Old Age Pensions and will work to that end.

I am in favor of County Agent's office and 4-H Club work and I shall continue to work with our senators and representatives in order to get all the aid possible for our farmers. I will not run our County in debt or permit it to be done, unless you vote for it.

J. LEE SMITH

It is needless for me to go into detail and give you a past history of my service, as you know something of the service I have rendered, my record is well known.

In conclusion I would like to say that I have conducted a clean campaign and at this time I want to congratulate the other candidates for the manner in which they have carried on their campaign.

To my friends and supporters I want to thank you for the wonderful cooperation I have received and I solicit the continuation of your support. A good record is better than campaign promises.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated.

Yours very truly,
J. LEE SMITH.

Death Swoops Twice

But Girl Squeezes By

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Marion Subrenheing, eight years old, was crossing a railroad track on her way to school.

An automobile knocked her into the path of a train. She stumbled from in front of the locomotive and fell unconscious. She had only a slight head injury and a leg bruise.

Chain Letters by Phone Stop Crook

Air Raid Technique Is Used By Police Chief.

BUTTE, MONT.—The chain letter idea, outlawed by the post office department, has given Police Chief W. H. Breen a crime prevention plan he thinks is going to make Butte a pretty undesirable place for "cash and run" crooks.

With one man talking steadily making a telephone call every two minutes, it would take the police department more than two eight-hour working days to notify all 520 business establishments in Butte when a "bum check artist" appears in town.

By borrowing an air raid warning system, Breen has planned it so the forgery notification job can be done in approximately 45 minutes. This is important because cash and runners usually appear unexpectedly in a town, work their check forgery or counterfeiting schemes on a dozen unsuspecting merchants and are gone before the police can catch up with them.

"If a crook—a check forger, a counterfeit, or some other clip artist—comes to town and gyps one of our business men we want him to report it immediately," says Chief Breen.

"When he calls us we immediately call 14 key business firms. We have assigned two men to do this and allowing two minutes to a call, the job shouldn't take more than 14 minutes.

"These 14 key firms each call five other merchants. That makes 70 calls. Then each of these 70 firms call five others. That makes 350 calls. Added to the 70 and the 14 original calls the total is 434. Certain designated persons among these 434 make one call each notifying the remaining 91 firms."

Blind Man Builds Addition To His House Without Help.

PITTSBURGH.—Robert L. Grove Sr. is building a three-room addition to his house "by feel." Grove, a carpenter for 45 years, has been virtually blind for six years.

Grove decided last April to build the annex because he couldn't stand the cold. He built the main dwelling of four rooms in 1929.

Grove's blindness does not appear to handicap him greatly. Already he has made excavations, laid foundations, set in the sills and the building has begun to take form. He hopes to complete the project by next spring.

The blind carpenter uses a T-square or a strip of lumber to guide him while sawing lumber, but driving nails is his biggest problem. He feels the nail until the hammer head begins to pinch his thumb and forefinger, then lets go and sinks the nail with one or two more strokes.

"But it gnaws his hands pretty bad sometimes," said Mrs. Grove.

Blind Since Birth, Youth Trains to Be a Detective

VERMILION, S. D.—Although blind since birth, Vernon Williams is determined to be a crime detector.

Williams, a junior law student at the University of South Dakota, has a long record in other senses and intuition so strongly that he travels without aid of any kind.

A reader, supplied by the N. Y. A., does all the necessary reading for him and also takes notes for him. He is given the same examination as other law students but is placed in a separate room where he dictates the answers to a stenographer.

Coffin Was Occupied; Dumpman Must Explain

IONIA, MICH.—Ed Shattuck won't try to save space any more at the city dump he guards.

Two women unloading household rubbish found a small coffin in a corner of the dump, lifted the lid, and saw a body inside.

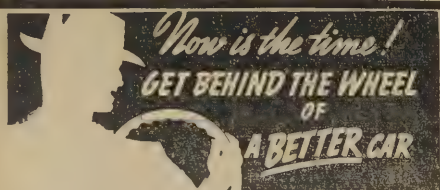

The coffin, Shattuck explained, had been used by a fraternal group at a lodge service. To save space at the dump, a mannikin discarded by a boys' clothing store had been stuffed inside the coffin.

Father Is a Big Talker, But Son Gets The Turkey

MORGANTOWN, W. VA.—Dr. C. Romine took his 12-year-old son hunting after explaining the fine points of the sport.

"Don't be discouraged," he cautioned, "if you don't get a wild turkey the first time. Your dad will get one."

That's right—Romine returned empty handed; the boy got a fine big fowl.

Mrs. Gentry will be remembered here as the former Dera Rowell.

Mrs. James Rollins and Ruth were here Monday. They are moving this week to Panama City, Fla.

There will be a Community Club meeting at the Club hall on Tuesday night, May 7. Everyone invited, as at this meeting plans will be made for the Fourth of July celebration. It costs nothing to belong to this Club, only your help in making a better community in which to live and that is something everyone should be interested in.

O. D. Walker, Jr., gave a weiner roast Thursday night at his home here. Games were played and weiners and marshmallows roasted over a campfire in the grove.

Miss Mary Ruth Chamblee of Birmingham spent last week end here visiting Miss Ella Howard and relatives.

Miss Martha Williams of Wadley visited her parents here over the week end.

Misses Vivian Mullins and Margaret Roy Hensley were week end guests of Miss Ruby Raybon.

The Congregational Ladies Aid will meet Thursday, May 2, with Mrs. Bertha Davenport at her home.

Mr. H. L. Collins and the other members of the "Deep South" Quartet were dinner guests of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker Monday evening.

Mrs. H. L. Walker and Miss Pauline Walker spent Friday in Birmingham.

Mr. Pope Payne has purchased the W. W. Robinson residence here and plans to move his family in the near future. He is putting in a five and ten cent store and hardware in the Martin Buildings which he recently purchased. This promises to be first class stores of this kind and Thorsby has long been in need of a place of this kind. We are indeed glad to have good citizens of this type move to our town.

Don't forget this is "Better Homes Week." Let's clean up our town.

Mrs. Hattie Russell and children and Mrs. M. Higgins, Ruth and Eugene, spent Sunday at Sulphur Springs.

On Friday night, May 24, the Senior Class will present the play, "Sunbonnet Jane in Sycamore Lane."
About 110 attended the banquet of the Christian Life Conference which was held on Saturday night, April 27. The conference was one of the best ever held here. President Dana of Piedmont College was one of the speakers. Other speakers were: Mr. W. Earl Holston, Executive Secretary of the Temperance Alliance; Mr. W. A. Redfield, a teacher at Southern Union College, Wadley, Alabama, who had charge of the young peoples' class on Sunday; Mr. H. R. Maddox, County Superintendent of Education, whose subject was "Preparing Youth;" Dr. I. T. Sanders, Professor of Sociology at Woman's College, Montevallo.

Any students who are planning to attend Thorsby Institute next fall may register at any time and are urged to do so as soon as possible in order that class for next year may be arranged. For the first time there has been a class in Public Speaking for pupils of the Institute, free of charge, and it is the plan to have such a class next year. Students not enrolled in Thorsby Institute may take public speaking in a class or private lesson for a very small charge. There is such a class this year made up of several young girls.

"The Road To The City"
Remember the play! It's "The Road To The City" at the Thorsby Institute auditorium Friday, May 3 at 7:30 P.M. Be sure to come for all will laugh at the antics of Jud Judkins, the country farmers, who never gets his cows driven home from pasture. Admission is ten cents for children and students and fifteen cents for adults. Thorsby Lions Club is very pleased with

Cream Station Success
The response to the opening of the cream station sponsored by the club in Thorsby, last Saturday, more than one hundred twenty pounds of cream were brought in before the closing time of three P.M. There were some additional cans of cream brought in after the representative of the dairy had left for Birmingham. Most of this tested fifty per cent butter fat. The large amount of cream brought into the local station on the first day indicates that local people intend to take advantage of the opportunity to secure added income, which will in turn serve the community, which is of course the purpose of the Lions Club. Other progressive measures of civic interest are on the Lion's program for Thorsby.

Mrs. Stapp Writes Again About Mr. C. E. Stapp

I wish to call your attention to Mr. Stapp's statement in this week's issue of the papers. Ask your friends to read Mr. Stapp's appeal for voters to vote their convictions.

Although Mr. Stapp and I were not born in Chilton County, we have been legal residents here since 1927. Chilton is our county-by-choice. We own a humble home here and love it.
During the past thirty years, I do not recall any time Mr. Stapp has ever refused a call to help in any civic undertaking in the county. He has given unstintingly and happily of his time and means whenever possible.

If you see fit to elect Mr. Stapp your Judge of Probate, I feel that his opportunities to further help the county will be increased.

Let me urge each voter to go to the polls on May 7th and vote for the man whom you think can best serve our county.—Mrs. C. E. Stapp.

New Town in California
A new town has been added to the map with the official section of Topyon as the name for the government's settlement of 400 workers building huge Shasta dam in California. The term comes from a striking red berry that grows on surrounding hills.

Stakely Okehed By Capital Bar For The Supreme Court

Montgomery Attorney Given Unanimous Endorsement

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Completing a whirlwind tour of the state in which he contacted his many friends and made several speeches, Davis S. Stakely, prominent Montgomery attorney and candidate for the vacancy on the Alabama Supreme Court, returned to his home county of Montgomery this week to find his candidacy had been bolstered by the unanimous endorsement of the Montgomery Bar Association.

This unanimous endorsement is more significant because of the fact that several members of the present Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals and the president of the Alabama Bar Association are members of the Montgomery association.

Stakely, who has practiced law in Montgomery for more than 30 years and is the son of the late Dr. Charles A. Stakely, Baptist minister, is a candidate for the vacancy created by the retirement of Chief Justice John C. Anderson and the promotion of Justice Luelan D. Gardner in the May 7 Democratic primary.

The endorsement of Stakely by his brother members of the Montgomery Bar added impetus to the campaign, inasmuch as the action came a flood of letters and endorsements going out to all sections of the state. The endorsement followed introduction of a resolution by Circuit Judge Walter B. Jones which was carried without a dissenting vote.

"I am indeed happy at the vote

J. C. Pattillo Writes To The Voters

To The People of Chilton County:
I have not made a general canvass of the County in the interest of my candidacy to succeed myself in the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court for the following reasons:

1. The duties of my office require my constant attention.
2. Candidates for other offices have probably taken a good deal of your time and I thought that you would, therefore, like it better if I stayed in my office and attended to the duties here rather than in taking up your time pleading for your vote.

3. I also feel that you are familiar with the manner in which I have conducted the office and have made up your minds as to whether you desire to give me a second term or not.

I am asking you for a second term, in the office you were so kind to give me six years ago, solely on the record I have made. I am sure all of you know what that record is, and if you think I am worthy and deserve a second term, I promise to render the very best service that is in my power to give and to show my deep appreciation and sincere gratitude in every way possible.
I am particularly happy to note the tranquility of the campaign which is now near its close and the high plane upon which all of the candidates in this party have conducted the same. I sincerely trust that this same cordial feeling and honorable conduct will prevail throughout all of the remainder of the campaigns this year.

Safety Light Switch

A new type of electric light switch, which allows the light to stay on from 20 to 60 seconds after the switch is turned off, should prove particularly valuable as both a safety device and a convenience.
Its manufacturers maintain added conveniences for the switch when installed in hallways, bedrooms, children's rooms, porches, garages, basements and all other points where the switch may not be near the exit or where a margin of light is needed after the switch is turned off.
When turned off, the light goes out from a few seconds to a minute after the switch is snapped, depending upon an adjustment allowance.

SENATOR HILDRETH SPOKE AT COLUMBIANA ON APRIL 27TH

Columbiana, Ala., April 27—Senator Emmett Hildreth, Candidate for Congress, Sixth Congressional District, spoke to a large crowd at Columbiana today and received an enthusiastic response from the crowd to his able address. At the conclusion of his address Senator Hildreth requested all who are willing to pledge their support to his candidacy for Congress to come up and shake his hand, and it was a real revelation to political observers in this section to note that the crowd with few exceptions, pledged themselves to Senator Hildreth and his candidacy.

In his stirring address, Senator Hildreth stressed his legislative record, and enumerated numerous bills which he had prepared, introduced and successfully piloted through the legislature of Alabama during his three terms in the Senate. He called attention to the records which show the progressive, beneficial legislation which he has sponsored and aggressively supported, and showed that he has not only voted for and actively supported good, helpful legislation for the benefit of the schools, the farmers, the veterans, the teachers, the laborers, and for all the people generally, but that he has himself worked out, prepared, introduced and successfully piloted through the legislature many excellent measures which bear his name, and which show what can be accomplished under courageous, intelligent leadership.

He pledged to give the Sixth District active, intelligent, and progressive leadership, and to obtain for the people of the district the benefits and service to which they are rightfully entitled. It is generally recognized throughout the district that Senator Hildreth has gained strength at a remarkable rate. He has been an active, aggressive campaigner, and has won friends in every section of the District by his open, friendly, and earnest manner. He speaks and states his position on any question openly and without evasion.

'Turn-Outs' Asked For State Roads

Construction of "turn-outs" on vantage points along Alabama highways had been proposed today by Highway Director Chris J. Sherlock. The parking spaces would be built so that motorists might park and view worthwhile scenes throughout the state.
The building of "turn-out" it was said, is a common practice in other sections of the country but Alabama would be leading the south in the plan materializes.—Alabama Journal.

CHEERING CROWD GREETS
PARTLOW HERE SATURDAY

In a ringing call to action before a cheering throng of friends and supporters, W. D. (Billy) Partlow, Jr., prominent attorney of Tuscaloosa, and candidate for Congress from the Sixth District, Saturday brought his campaign into Chilton County with a scathing denunciation of inaction and lack of initiative on the part of the incumbent, Pete B. Jarman. The tremendous acclaim with which the Tuscaloosa attorney was received indicates that a majority of the Chilton County democratic voters are ready to bring an end to a period of inaction and place in office an aggressive, energetic Congressman.

Partlow spoke to the overflow crowd in the courtroom of the Chilton County Courthouse.

Thunderous applause rose from the audience as Partlow frankly discussed the principles underlying his platform and lay bare the record of Mr. Jarman. Pointing out Jarman's failure to record his vote for the parity payments to farmers in the amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill of 1939, and Jarman's failure to take any action toward securing Federal aid for education, Partlow was wildly cheered as he pledged alert, aggressive representation to the people of the Sixth District.

Partlow praised the human welfare program of the Democratic Party of today and urged the necessity of carrying it through to a complete conclusion. "We must go through with the great program of the Democratic Party —a program based on common decency and fair treatment to all," Partlow continued, "a program opposed to the maintenance of government for the privileged few and dedicated to the establishment of equal economic opportunity for all the people." Partlow discussed at length his platform, calling for legislation to benefit the farmer, the laborer, the aged, the veteran, federal aid for education, elimination of discriminatory freight rates, continuation of useful federal emergency relief work and other progressive plans.

Speaking sincerely and frankly Partlow demonstrated characteristics of initiative and originality. Obviously, the needs of the Sixth District are uppermost in the Tuscaloosa's mind as he pledged representation to all the people of the Sixth District. Stating that he felt the people of the Sixth District were entitled to a working Congressman, Mr. Partlow closed his address by thanking the people of Chilton County for their support of him and urged his followers to continue the battle until its successful conclusion on May 7th.

Mr. Partlow plans to speak in Bibb, Shelby, Perry, Sumter and Tuscaloosa Counties this week.

COL. HARRY AYERS
BOOSTS BANKHEAD'S
PRESIDENCY STOCK

Finds Sentiment at Washington
Favors Speaker

WINDS UP ACTIVE CAMPAIGN FOR DELEGATE-AT-LARGE

Col. Harry M. Ayers, publisher of the Anniston Star, who originated the Bankhead-for-president movement in Alabama, declared this week after a visit to Washington that Speaker Bankhead is one of the most favored dark horses for the presidential nomination if President Roosevelt does not seek the office for another term.

Col. Ayers, who announced for one of the four posts for delegate-at-large in order to further the interests at the Democratic National Convention of his friend, Speaker Bankhead, expressed confidence today that he would be one of the four delegates selected, "as the people of the state are thinking for themselves and are opposed to any slate of candidates." Col. Ayers is the son of Dr. T. W. Ayers, the first medical missionary sent to China by Southern Baptists, where he spent several years with his father. He has been commended for his liberal policies by both former President Woodrow Wilson and President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Col. Ayers is a past commander of the Alabama Department of the American Legion, a member of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and a member of the State School Board. He has devoted his life toward the upbuilding of the state, and Col. H. O. Murfee, founder of Marion Military Institute, says of his services:

"The essential and distinguishing mark of the Government of the U. S. is that of a Representative Democracy. The efficiency and the permanence of such a Democracy depends upon the intelligence, and the character of the representatives of the people. This is true in every phase of Government—in State Legislature, in Congress, and especially in National Conventions—unless National Conventions are doomed to corruption and degeneracy after the manner of State Conventions.

"In Alabama, fortunately, the people themselves now elect their Representatives to Legislature, to Congress, and to National Conventions. Therefore, it becomes the supreme duty of every citizen to vote, and to vote with intelligence, for the candidates most highly qualified to go as their Representatives to the Chicago Convention of 1940.

"Who is the most highly qualified? Pre-eminently, by intelligence, by character, and by pure patriotism—COLONEL HARRY M. AYERS OF ANNISTON. He is not an office-holding politician. He is, and has been, a patriot who seeks only his Country's good. Without public office and public pay, Colonel Ayers has perhaps done more to advance the welfare of the people of Alabama than any other citizen of this Commonwealth. His exemplary character, his superior intelligence, and his life of good works are his true praise, commending him to all who love our State and Country.

"The wisest Statesman of our English race has just said:

"Nothing is a due and adequate representation of a state that does not represent its ability."

"Colonel Ayers represents the ability of Alabama.

"Finally, may I commend the wisdom of Woodrow Wilson's praise: 'What is it we all seek for in an election? To answer its real purpose, you must first possess the means of knowing the fitness of your man.'

"I have had the means, and the privilege, of knowing intimately the eminent fitness of Colonel Ayers. His election will reflect honor on Alabama and will greatly serve American Democracy. I commend him to the People of Alabama."

Senator Hildreth Continues Aggressive Campaign

Clanton, Ala., April 20—Senator Emmett Hildreth, candidate for Congress, Sixth District, wound up the week Saturday with addresses at Clanton, Jetson, and Maplesville. He delivers a straight forward speech, setting forth his position in clear, detailed form on each of the major issues in the campaign; and the people who hear him are impressed with his sincerity, directness, and the able manner in which he states his position and his record.

Senator Hildreth continues to challenge his opponents, Mr. Jarman and Mr. Partlow, to meet him in public debate on the vital issues of the campaign, and calls attention to the fact that both Mr. Jarman and Mr. Partlow have failed to respond to this challenge.

He is carrying his message to the people in a militant, aggressive manner. He has loud speakers on his car and is speaking to the people at each village, town and city in the district. This personal campaign appeals to the people and they are giving him close attention, and show by their response their approval of what he says.

Senator Hildreth is continuing to gain strength rapidly, and his aggressive, out-spoken style of campaigning is fast becoming the talk of the people throughout the district. He is recognized by all who have heard him as being one of the best and ablest speakers in political life in Alabama.

VOTE FOR Emmett Hildreth
FOR CONGRESSMAN

SIXTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT OF ALABAMA

Let's Talk Common Sense!

WHAT SORT OF CONGRESSMAN DO WE WANT AND NEED?

Do we need a man who merely votes, and then not all the time, on measures which come before Congress?

Do we want a man who is unwilling or incapable of debating the issues with a primary opponent before the people?

Do we want a man who has never prepared and introduced a bill, or an amendment to a bill, or a resolution, in any legislative body?

Do we want a man who is untrained, unseasoned, and inexperienced in legislative and public affairs?

Do we want a man who has so far forgotten the people that he does not even issue a platform, or state his position on the vital issues before the people?

Do we want a man whose lack of experience and training in public and legislative affairs causes him to constantly change his platform and position in the primary campaign?

YOUR ANSWER

We want and need a level-headed, sound, well-trained, experienced man who can speak and debate, and who is capable of intelligently preparing and introducing bills, amendments to bills, and resolutions which will serve best the interest of all the people, and who is a courageous, intelligent, successful leader with a proven record in public and legislative affairs.

Emmett Hildreth is an able speaker and debater.

Emmett Hildreth can and will debate the issues before the people in the primary campaign and in the Halls of Congress.

Emmett Hildreth has shown by his record his capacity to intelligently prepare, introduce, and successfully pilot through the Legislature of Alabama helpful, progressive bills, amendments to bills, and resolutions.

Emmett Hildreth is a level-headed, sound, well-trained, experienced man with a proven record and ability who can and will fight intelligently, courageously, and fearlessly for our people, rendering to all of the people of the district at all times the service and leadership to which they are rightfully entitled.

Emmett Hildreth is a courageous, capable leader with a proven record in public and legislative affairs. He has demonstrated time and again his capacity for useful, public service. The records are full of progressive, beneficial legislation which he has sponsored and aggressively supported. He has not only voted for and actively supported good, helpful legislation for the benefit of the schools, the farmers, the veterans, the teachers, the laborers, and for all the people generally, but he has worked out, prepared, introduced, and successfully piloted through the legislature many excellent measures which bear his name and which show what can be accomplished under courageous, intelligent leadership.

Accordingly, by every rule of reason, we should give our unhesitatingly, whole-hearted support to Emmett Hildreth in his race for Congress.

When you vote for Emmett Hildreth, you are voting for the man generally recognized by all as being the ablest and best qualified man in the race.

Vote your conviction without fear, favor, or coercion.
Study the record.

BE SURE WITH HILDRETH

Your vote for and support of Emmett Hildreth for Congress will be gratefully appreciated.

You are urged to hear Senator Hildreth next Saturday, May 4th, at 10:30 A.M. at the Tuscaloosa courthouse.

This address will be one of the highlights of the campaign and will be broadcast over WJRD, Radio Station, Tuscaloosa.

CHALLENGE TO DEBATE

Again Senator Hildreth is consistently challenging Mr. Jarman and Mr. Partlow to debate the issues—again he receives no answer, just silence. Again we ask, how can a man effectively represent you in the Halls of Congress if he feels unwilling or incapable of meeting a primary opponent in a debate of the issues before the people?

These statistics are obtained from the records of the County Health Department and are published for the purpose of promoting better registration of births and deaths. Filing of a certificate for births and deaths with local registrars is made compulsory by the State Vital Statistics law. Responsibility for filing a birth certificate within five days after the birth rests on the physician or midwife in attendance; undertakers or persons in charge of burials are required by law to obtain a burial permit before the body is interred. Such permits are obtainable only on the presentation of a completed death certificate to the registrar in the beat in which the death occurred.
Anyone having knowledge of births or deaths occurring during March and not included in the above list should report this matter to the County Health Office immediately.

$40,000 For The Finns
Birmingham, Ala., April 17, 1940—Thos. W. Martin, Chairman H. A. Berg, Co-Chairman of Finnish Relief Fund, Inc. for Alabama, today announced that contributions from the people of the State totaled over $40,000 and that further solicitation by the organization would be suspended. Messrs. Martin and Berg stated that they felt under all circumstances, this was a most generous response from the people of the State and that everyone who had made a contribution and all who had been active in the work of the organization could feel great satisfaction in having been a part of this humanitarian effort; that the funds had been promptly remitted as collected and that the contribution from Alabama was now performing its errand of mercy among the aged and infirm and women and children of devastated Finland.
"We desire," they further stated, "to express our personal appreciation for the ready and cordial responses that we received from every person we asked to take part in the work of the organization and in the work of solicitation. Following our announced plan of incurring as little expense as possible in order that 100 cents of every dollar collected might be sent on its errand of mercy, we are not incurring the expense of writing personal letters of thanks to workers and contributors. However, everyone may be assured that what they have done is most deeply appreciated by our State organization and the National organization."
"We find," they stated, "that contributions are still being made and we request that in future such contributions be sent direct to "Finnish Relief Fund, Inc., Herbert Hoover, Chairman, Graybar Building, 420 Lexington Ave., New York City."

Pete Jarman Again Called To Washington

Sends Personal Message To EVERY VOTER

PETE JARMAN

I am again called to Washington to vote and work for Parity Payment Legislation but will return immediately.

I was anxious to see every one of you personally because nothing affords me more pleasure, but the duties of my office and the necessity to return to Washington twice because of important agricultural measures have prevented it. My failure to see you whom I missed was my great misfortune and I wish to assure every one of my sincere appreciation of the excellent work done for me.

The ever-increasing vote which is assured me next Tuesday indicates your interest in your Government and your approval of my record and my hard work in your behalf. My energy has been and will continue to be dedicated to the best interest of the whole citizenship of our District.

Let us renew our efforts until the election that we may win in the first Primary. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Sincerely your friend,
PETE JARMAN

Women In White For The Navy

There is one ship in the Navy which has women as regular members of the ship's complement, that is the Hospital ship, U.S.S. Relief, and the women are members of the Navy Nurse corps. These nurses are sea-going and travel aboard the Relief as the Ship accompanies the Fleet. The hospital ship Relief has the most modern equipment that is obtainable and is ranked with the leading hospitals of the country.

If you are single, mentally, physically and morally fit, also between the ages of 18 and 31 the Navy offers you free board, room and hospitalization with good pay and a pension after 20 years. High school education is not necessary. A representative of the United States Navy recruiting service will be in this city on Saturday, May 4, 1940, located in the Court house building to accept for enlistment and to answer all questions to the interested public.

Vegetable Laxative Makes Happy Friends

Here's a laxative that usually acts thoroughly as harsher ones but is a gentle persuader for intestines when used this way: A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of spicy, aromatic BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight; a drink of water. There's usually time for a good night's rest, with a gentle, thorough action next morning relieving constipation's headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath.

BLACK-DRAUGHT is a splendid combination of vegetable ingredients, chief of which is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" that helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. It's economical. 25 to 40 doses: 25c.

CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ANDERSON DIED FRIDAY

Chief Justice of the Alabama Supreme Court John C. Anderson, age 76, died at midnight of a heart attack at his home in Montgomery last Friday night. John Crawford Anderson, of Demopolis, chief justice of Alabama, was born August 5, 1863, at Burton's Hill, Greene County, the son of John Crawford and Elizabeth McAlpine Anderson.

He was the grandson of James Mason and Mary Miller Anderson and William A. and Ann Watson McAlpine, and the great-grandson of Major David Anderson, who held both civil and military office under the Colonial government in Spartanburg District, South Carolina.

Judge Anderson was educated in the public schools and academies of Greene County, and at the University of Alabama. He took a course in the law department of the University, from which he graduated in 1883, with the LL.B. degree.

He practiced law in Linden and Demopolis from 1886 to 1895, when he was appointed judge of the First Judicial Circuit. He served on that bench until 1904 when he was elected associate justice of the Alabama Supreme Court.

He was reelected Nov. 8, 1910 and on Jan. 15, 1914, was commissioned chief justice to succeed James R. Dowdell, who resigned. He was elected Nov. 3, 1914, to complete Judge Dowdell's term, which expired in 1916, and was reelected for successive six-year terms thereafter.

Chief Justice Anderson was known as a foremost authority on Alabama's constitution, and often was described by his associates and members of the bar as the "bulwark of the court" on constitutional matters.

Strictly businesslike on the bench, in private life he was known for his sly sense of humor and his interest in helping younger members of the bar.

He was a Democrat and served as a member of the executive committee of Marengo County for four years. He was alternate presidential elector in 1892.

He was a deacon in the Presbyterian Church, and a member of the Knights of Pythias. He was married the first time Feb. 24, 1897, at Tuscaloosa, to

MAPLESVILLE

Our Sunday School attendance was good Sunday. Maybe with the coming of pretty weather the attendance will soon be back normal.

Brother Hopper, pastor for the Baptist Church, delivered very interesting sermons Sunday and Sunday night.

Mr. Jim Boykin of Birmingham, Ala. spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Boykin.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Shanks spent the day Sunday with relatives below Selma.

Mr. Tootsie Hayes of Auburn spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie James Hayes and Mr. Jim Boykin were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Graham Friday.

Mr. Douglas Hayes of Birmingham Mary Byrd, daughter of Capt. E. B. and Julia Martin, of San Marco, Texas; the second time at Birmingham, Dec. 29, 1927, to Glen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. David, of Talladega. There were two children, Julia and Elizabeth, by the first marriage, and one, Glen, by the second.

spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hayes. Mr. and Mrs. Carter of Auburn spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Maples.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Holliman of Camden, Alabama spent the day Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Mize.

Miss Geraldine Ratcliff made a trip to Birmingham Wednesday.

We are glad to know Mrs. J. W. Guin, who has been sick, is much better. We hope she will soon be well again.

Very sorry to know Mrs. C. J. Stinson was so sick Thursday night. She is better now and here's hoping she will soon be all right.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McGee and daughter, Nina, spent a while Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Edmondson.

Mr. W. L. Hampton is building a house on the lot formerly owned by Mr. J. P. Payne. One look at the foundation will convince anyone it will be a large house.

Prevent Losses
As Alabama farmers go about planting their 1940 cotton crop, they are making every effort to plant within their acreage allotment to prevent loss of payments, loss of fertilizers and to prevent penalties.

RELATIVES AND OUTSIDERS TABOO AS GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES, SAYS PARTLOW

Relatives of the Congressman and persons who are not qualified voters of the Sixth District will have no place on the public payrolls when he is elected to Congress, said W. D. (Billy) Partlow, Jr., in an interview in Clanton Saturday. Partlow's opponents are denigrable on this issue as the wives of at least two of them have graced the public payrolls on several occasions. In employment by Congressman Jarman of persons who at the time of their employment were not qualified voters of the Sixth District has aroused a storm of protest within the District, and the refreshing candor of the Talladega candidate met with widespread approval. CLEAN as electric refrigeration—clean as electric light—clean as sunshine—that's one of the plus values you get in a modern electric range. Kitchens stay bright and fresh looking longer.

A small down payment places an electric range in your kitchen—dresses it up—makes it more modern. Balance may be paid in small amounts over a period of months.

To The FARMERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Fully realizing that the farmers of the Sixth District need increased farm income, more security of farm income, increased soil conservation and progressive legislative adjustments designed to relieve the farmer from the burdens placed on him by our economic structure, we urge you to Send Billy Partlow to CONGRESS on May 7.

We who are neighbors of Billy Partlow know that during his entire career he has supported every measure designed to assist the farmers and has given without stint of his time and energy in an effort to better conditions in the rural sections of his District. We know that Billy Partlow is an energetic, capable man who is not given to making idle political promises. We know that Billy Partlow will as your Congressman at all times support legislation designed to benefit the farmers of this District. He will give to the Sixth District the able, alert and aggressive representation that it sorely needs today. Therefore, we urge you to

Who says you can't have EVERYTHING!

You can have V-8 performance—and gas economy, too!

An 85 h.p. Ford gave 24.92 miles per gallon in the annual official Gilmore-Yosemite road test, open to all cars. This was best mileage of all standard-equipped cars in this class!

You can have easy-handling—with big-car room and ride!

Everyone knows how easy it is to drive a Ford. But no one could know, till he gets inside, how big this Ford is in leg-room, seat-room, knee-room... nor what a thrillingly soft, steady, big-car ride it gives!

You can have low cost upkeep—and enjoy real fine-car features!

You shift gears on a Ford with the easy-acting type finger-tip shift used on costly cars. You get a semi-centrifugal clutch giving lower pedal pressure at shifting speeds, also typical of costly cars... to say nothing of the biggest hydraulic brakes ever used on a low-cost car. Your Ford Dealer's ready and willing to trade... See him now!

YOU CAN HAVE A FORD V-8

—and that's what you'll want when you try it!

How Pete Jarman's Work Benefits The District

PETE JARMAN

Pete Jarman's three years of service as your representative in Congress have proven to be a period of definite accomplishment, bringing real results for the people of the Sixth District. You see these results in the many buildings built through PWA help, the streets and roads paved, benefits paid to farmers, etc.

Since committee work and seniority are factors determining a Congressman's influence in Washington to get things done for his district, it is important to you that this seniority and influence not be sacrificed, lest matters of importance not be given their proper weight in the nation's capital. So, let us briefly review Pete Jarman's committee work and what might be expected of him in this connection in the next Congress.

Pete Jarman is a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and helped steer the Neutrality Bill through the House last fall when there was real danger that this country might be drawn into the war. He made two speeches on the floor of the House in favor of the bill as revised by the Committee, and in these speeches he strongly advocated the necessity of legislation designed to keep this country at peace.

Pete Jarman accomplished the very unusual feat of becoming chairman of a committee immediately upon being seated in the House. Later, he was made chairman of the Printing Committee and also vice-chairman of the joint House-Senate Printing Committee. In the frequent enforced absence of the chairman, Senator Hayden, Pete Jarman has acted in the capacity of chairman.

In the next Congress, his colleagues freely predict that Pete Jarman will become chairman of this great joint committee which directs all government printing—the largest printing business in the world! It will be the second time in history that a House member has been chairman of this committee!

Moreover, it is also expected that our Congressman's rank on the Foreign Affairs Committee will be considerably advanced, so that his influence for peace will be even more powerful.

Therefore, Pete Jarman's prestige in the House will considerably benefit his constituents by affording him additional power to wield when it becomes necessary to act for the best interests of the Sixth District.

Let us insure and preserve the place the District has gained in national and international affairs. Let us keep Pete Jarman on the job of ably representing us in the affairs of the nation, yet looking after the people of the District!

Shelby County Paper Praises Billy Partlow

Democrat's Editor Calls On Voters For Support

In a stirring editorial proclaiming the qualifications and virtues of W. D. (Billy) Partlow, Jr., young Tuscaloosa attorney and candidate for Congress from the Sixth District, and urging the people to put their shoulders to the wheel to insure his victory on May 7th, Mildred White Wallace, brilliant Columbian newspaperwoman, predicted in her Shelby County Democrat that Partlow would lead the ticket next Tuesday in Shelby County.

Mrs. Wallace, in addition to being editor of the Democrat, is also the wife of Circuit Judge W. W. Wallace of Columbiana, and is popular throughout Alabama and the South as a composer of song ballads and other writings.

Excerpts from the editorial endorsing young Partlow which appeared in the Democrat are printed below:

In Shelby County, second to the largest county in the Sixth District, it is conceded by political commentators that W. D. (Billy) Partlow, of Tuscaloosa, will be the high man in the four-way contest for Congressional honors.

"Traveling through Shelby County during the past few weeks discussing intelligently a well chosen platform, containing the vital issues of the day, and issuing straightforward statements concerning them, the brilliant young attorney has gained an incredible momentum toward his official governmental goal.

"In every county in the District there are young democrat clubs sponsoring 'Partlow for Congress.' Seasoned politicians and older members of the Democratic Party recognize a gifted leadership in this young man, who is alertly and energetically working to achieve his ambition to represent the eight counties comprising the Sixth Congressional District, and are now engaged in wholeheartedly supporting this worthy exponent of true democracy, conceding him to be the outstanding candidate for this highly responsible position.

"In a talk with Mr. Partlow, during his last visit to Columbiana, we sought to find out the cause for the unprecedented favor he has gained with hundreds of our citizens. . . . We believe you will be interested in his impressive answers to questions which we feel are of vital importance to this county.

"Mr. Partlow states that if he is elected to Congress he will fight to guarantee to the farmer a fair return for his products; to the laboring man a fair wage for his hours of work; for the veteran legislation placing the burden of proof on the government that a veteran's disability is not service connected, rather than placing the burden of proof on the veteran that his disability is service connected.

"Concluding the few minutes interview we were accorded during his stay, Mr. Partlow stated: 'My political concept is the simple one of real democracy. I want to see the greatest good for the greatest number—and in this spirit I offer myself to the Sixth District and if elected I pledge my entire time, full vigor, and every fiber of my energy and all the capabilities I possess to the end that this district shall be properly represented in Washington.'

"Wherefore, the Democrat proudly joins thousands of citizens and electors who have endorsed Mr. Partlow for Congress, and wholeheartedly pledge our support to his cause. We believe a brilliant future awaits this worthy exponent of true Americanism, and if elected, the entire District will be creditably represented.

"We further predict that if Mr. Partlow goes to Washington as your Congressman and mine, he will not only HEAR THE BELL RING, when a bill of vital importance to the farmers, the veterans or laboring men of this District is to be voted upon, but will PROMPTLY ANSWER same, and on May 7th he will play a successful and leading role in TOLLING THE BELL of IN-ACTIVITY now noticeable in this District and RING IN A NEW ERA for the entire Sixth Congressional District which will be marked by noteworthy ACHIEVEMENT."

The Shelby County Democrat also carried a lengthy editorial on Page 1 recently commenting on the endorsement of Partlow's candidacy by Judge Fleetwood Rice, prominent Tuscaloosa jurist.

Our Trip To Moundville

On a bright April morning of nineteen forty, Our class was all fixed in the bus. Being told by Mrs Thomas not to be noisy For in us she placed much trust. After waiting for all of our fifty-one. At last we were ready to go. Jammed we were and packed so close, Yet, there we sat, just so. Then up the highway we sped away Passing beautiful dogwood trees, And, what right then impressed me most.

Was how they were grouped in threes. In passing by those well-tilled fields, I also noticed the soil.

Some of it was red and some of it was black; All showed how man will toil. We all grew tired as we traveled on So eager were we to be there. The bus was so crowded I actually thought

We were in need of an extra chair. When we had ridden almost into Hale, Taking all of three hours and more. We suddenly came to Moundville and then Stopped by at a small country store. Then out we scurried, one and all. For we wanted to buy a good drink. But to choose the right one to quench our thirst

We figured to think and think. Then into the bus we all were packed And drove out to Mound State Park. You can have no idea how happy I felt.

I wanted to sing like a lark. We viewed the mounds as we hurried along; Then at the museum we gazed, Standing all alone on that bottom land

Where formerly cattle grazed. At last we passed into the museum Where I noticed everything well. For I longed, when I should return to school,

All things to my classmates to tell. I strolled about from case to case. Having first seen The Ages of Man. The shapes of the skulls were curious indeed,

Like different shapes of a pan. Then, eager to hear more definite words, We met Dr. Snow in South Pit. 'Tis true we were crowded so all 'round the top

That sometimes each other we'd hit. At last we knew we must onward move, So we drove to the highest mound. Before I succeeded in reaching the top I knew not for where I was bound.

To our greatest state college we decided to go, To see some unusual things. The museum there is lovely indeed, And a visit there happiness brings. Of all the interesting things of the day

The very best surely are there. The buildings and grounds there are lovely indeed, And to visit the museum there's no fare.

In cases for view were old weapons of war. On the walls were stufed animals, too. There findings from Moundville were all stored away

Indian relics that would interest you. The sunset was grand as viewed from the rear. At seven we'd reached our warm home. Now, sure, when again an excursion is planned

We'll all want to join you and roam.

Mt. Carmel

On Tuesday of last week at the home of Mrs. Gracie Clecker, fifteen ladies met and quitted the quilt to be given to Rev. and Mrs. Nix as a love offering for their untiring service to us. The day was much enjoyed by those present and a good dinner was served at the noon hour. The W.M.U. wishes to extend thanks to those who helped in any way, especially those who do not belong to our union, and to the young men who gave some money for material in the quilt.

Sunday School attendance was rather low last Sunday, some went to the singing, others were sick. We hope next Sunday to have more present.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell Higgins are happy upon the arrival of an eight-pound son who arrived April 25.

Mrs. Jewel Smith and children spent Saturday night and Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Hattie Lenior.

Miss Ruby Mae Higgins and small brother and sister of Clanton visited relatives and friends here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sewell visited their mother at Stanton Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. G. C. Williams spent last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Houston in the

ALA. NEGROES

More Than 10 Times As Many In Alabama As All New England

Tuskegee, May 2—There are more than ten times as many Negroes in Alabama as in all New England, Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, pointed out in an address to Negro doctors and others attending the annual meeting and clinic of the John A. Andrew Clinical Society. The address was delivered at a meeting devoted to public health which was held in the Tuskegee Institute chapel.

"Only two other states of the Union—Georgia and Mississippi—contain more Negroes than Alabama, and in all four states—Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina and Louisiana—does the ratio of colored population to total population exceed that in this State," he said. "In the United States as a whole, approximately one person out of every ten is a Negro. In New England colored people represent only slightly more than one per cent of the total population. They constitute less than one-fourth of the South's total population. Yet Alabama's population would be reduced by more than one-third if all our Negroes should suddenly move away in one mass migration, assuming, of course, that others would not move in to take their places. Negroes in Alabama at the present time exceed the State's total population six years after the end of the War Between the States."

Isabella community.

Miss Ethel Mae Johnson of New Cedron spent Tuesday night of last week with Miss Gladys Oden.

Miss Clyde Ruth Collins of New Cedron was the guest of Mrs. Margarette Russell on Tuesday night of last week.

Dr. Baker declared that, because of the large number of Negroes in Alabama, the State Department of Health was paying special attention to the problems of Negro health.

CHILTON VOTERS FLOCK TO PARTLOW FOR CONGRESS AS RACE NEARS ITS CLIMAX

Brilliant And Energetic Tuscaloosa Is Given Edge In Hotly Contested Fight; Reports From District Indicate Win On May 7

With the final blasts of oratory from ambitious political office-seekers dying away in the distance, voters of Chilton County settled themselves in their easy chairs to await the opening of the polls next Tuesday.

Most sensational of the final bids for votes in Chilton County was the tremendous gain in support made by Tuscaloosa's brilliant and energetic attorney, W. D. (Billy) Partlow, Jr., who is a candidate for Congress from the Sixth District. Political prognosticators over the county were free in their prediction that Partlow would carry Chilton County with a safe majority next Tuesday.

Partlow has had his eye on the post now occupied by Pete B. Jarman of Livingston for several years and has been making valuable contacts in this county as well as over the District. He has consistently stuck to issues in the campaign in talks over Chilton County. His farm program, labor program, educational program and other features of his platform have made a lasting impression on the voters, according to what we hear.

Disatisfaction over Jarman's inability to serve the people of the District has been brewing for some time in this county. Most of the voters, however, stuck with Jarman as they put it "until a better man comes along." Many prominent business men and farmers of this county were among those who induced Partlow to offer for Congress.

On a visit this week in his final appearance in Chilton before election, Partlow was enthusiastic over the prospects for victory next Tuesday. He expressed thanks for the splendid support and encouragement which has come from people in all walks of life from Chilton.

"I think the voters of Chilton County as well as the entire Sixth District, are familiar with the issues in this campaign," Partlow said in Clanton this week. "They should know each candidate and for what he stands. I feel perfectly secure in the belief that when the final vote is tabulated in this great County next Tuesday that you will have rolled up a fair majority for me. For your kindness, your encouragement and your advice and support I am grateful."

"These have been hard times, and the coast is not yet clear for smooth sailing," Partlow continued. "Our farmers are still perplexed as to what the future will bring; our workers are still looking around the corner for more stable days. Things are much better today than they were in 1933, but we have a hard, rough road ahead before things will return to normalcy."

"I have outlined my platform in several speeches in Chilton County, and I have pledged myself to a straight and unswerving course, calling for immediate action in behalf of my people. I believe I have made myself clear on important issues of this Congressional campaign, and it is my earnest and sincere desire to render a valuable and meritorious service to you as your representative in Congress."

"Between now and election day, I want all my friends and supporters to continue their drive for votes. I also want to urge every qualified voter to march to the polls next Tuesday and exercise his franchise. I appreciate your support, and I know we shall not lose."

As the Partlow for Congress avalanche gained momentum over Chilton County, reports from other sections of the Sixth District indicated a tremendous shift to the camp of the Tuscaloosa attorney. Shelby County leaders predicted freely over the week that Partlow would emerge with a comfortable margin in that county.

Following the epoch-making speech of Partlow in his home town of Tuscaloosa two weeks ago, reports indicate an overwhelming majority for him in his home territory. Partlow for the first time went into a careful analysis and appraisal of the record of Pete Jarman in his Tuscaloosa address which evoked much cheering and applause from the big audience.

Perry County is in good shape for the Partlow camp, with many new converts coming over daily, according to reports from campaign leaders in Marion and Uniontown. Bibb and Hale Counties also will furnish their share of the Partlow votes when the final day for speech-making is over.

Sumter County, the home county of Jarman, is in good shape, according to Partlow lieutenants there, and he will get his share of votes in Greene County, home of Emmett Hildreth, another candidate in the race.

Tom Thumb Hox
Tom Thumb, as Charles Sherwood Stratton was professionally known, was most famous of all the little people due to the shrewdness of P. T. Barnum in proving that printer's ink was a powerful medium of advertising. Stratton, who stood 3 feet 4 inches, was not the smallest man the world has ever known, nor was he, properly speaking, a midget, since he possessed the qualification to classify him as a dwarf.

J. Monroe Parrish Asks Voters' Support

J. MONROE PARRISH
To the Voters of Chilton County:

As you know, I am making the race for re-election as commissioner from the Fourth District, having served as your commissioner for almost three and a half years, however I have only had charge of the roads in the county for a little over a year, or since the Road Supervisor's law went out of effect.

Since I have had charge of the roads in this district I have straightened and re-surfaced the road from Clanton to Enterprise. I have re-arranged and surfaced the road from the Selma road to the line of Beat Four on the Billingsley road and am now making improvements and taking out the curves and graveling the road from Cooper on the road passing Enterprise and intersecting the Billingsley road near New Cedron Church. Since I have had charge of the roads in my district I have made every effort to improve and straighten the roads and have assisted the people in their wants and troubles as far as I was able with the money available.

I have never used malice, hatred and prejudice in the discharge of my official duties, but on the other hand I have tried to be friendly and helpful to all of our people and I will appreciate it if you will entrust me with the duties of Commissioner from the Fourth District for another four years. Therefore, I will appreciate your vote and influence in the election on May 7, 1940.

I am, yours very truly,
J. MONROE PARRISH

Alabama Goes High Hat On Daylight Saving

(Editorial)

Of course, there is no such thing as "saving daylight," which is controlled by "Universal Mind" and not by Governor's proclamations and clock-setting.

The faddists, in order to get themselves talked about, and otherwise ape the big Northern and Eastern cities, started a "drive" several days ago for "daylight saving time" in Alabama. A few responses and presto!—the Governor decides that everybody in Alabama wants it and proclaims thus:

"Whereas, it appears from a poll taken by the League of Municipalities of Alabama that it is very evident the wish of a great majority of the citizens of Alabama that daylight saving be instituted in the State, although such poll of the cities and towns of the State has not yet been completed; and

"Whereas, in my judgment this move will prove to be of great convenience and satisfaction to the people of our State, especially to our working people;

"Now therefore, I, Frank M. Dixon, as governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby proclaim and establish in Alabama, beginning at 2 A.M. May 5, 1940, and ending at 2 A.M. Sept. 29, 1940; and I hereby direct that all of the departments of the State government comply with this order."

It is Chilton County News' opinion that Alabama's work-a-day world will go right on doing their work in their own way, paying no attention whatever to the faddists and fellows who like to be funny.

'Buck' Roberts Makes Final Plea To Voters

To the Voters of Chilton County:

When I announced as a candidate for Commissioner from the Fourth District of Chilton County I made up my mind to conduct my campaign in a way that would not reflect on the Democratic party or anyone connected therewith. I want to again express to you and to those whom I have been unable to see that I really want to represent this district, that I elected, that I will give my best effort to this job.

The tax payers, and I have been a taxpayer myself since I became of age, are entitled out of every dollar expended by its Commissioners, to receive in return the fullest amount possible. My best efforts will be expended along those lines.

Again assuring you that I want your vote, your influence, and to represent you on the Commissioner's Court of this County, I am,

Your friend,
and Chilton County's friend,
Norman L. (Buck) Roberts

(W. D. (BILLY) PARTLOW)

Livestock Freight Rates

Three Alabama agencies—the Extension Service, the Department of Agriculture, and the Public Service Commission—have joined with other southern state agencies in seeking adjustments in livestock freight rates, protect livestock development in the south and to place the southern livestock producers on an equal basis with those in other section of the country.

All of Prattville's City officials were re-elected last week without opposition.

ALABAMA'S 4-H REPRESENTATIVES

These four Alabama boys and girls will represent Alabama's 102,000 4-H Club members at the National 4-H Club encampment at Washington, D. C., June 15-21. They are left to right, top, Fred Summers, Elmore County; and Russell Scott, Mobile County; bottom, Blanche Bachelor, Escambia County, and Virginia Heaton, Butler County. They were selected by 4-H Club leaders of the Alabama Extension Service, on the basis of outstanding work in club demonstrations during 1939.

Home Dem. Clubs Enjoy Successful Rally At Courthouse

The Home Demonstration Clubs of Chilton County, observed National Better Homes Week at the Courthouse in Clanton Friday, May 3, with Mrs. R. R. Sutley, President of the County Council, presiding.

A county-wide Dress Revue was held with 28 women entering as representatives from the various clubs. First place was awarded to Mrs. Belle Dorminey, of Union Grove Club. Mrs. Dorminey will represent Chilton County at the State Dress Revue held in Auburn during State Farm and Home week, July 29-Aug. 3. Mrs. H. M. Kelley, Poplar Springs Club, placed second and Mrs. Zebbie Gray, Friendship Club, placed third.

Mr. W. A. Ruffin, Extension Horticulturalist and Entomologist, from Auburn, was the principal speaker of the day. He used the following poem as a basis of his talk on Better Homes.

"A garden and a cow,
Three pigs and a sow,
Twenty-five hens and rooster,
And you'll live better than you used to."

The program for the day was as follows:

- Opening song—"America."
- Devotional—Rev. G. G. Williams.
- Talks—Mr. Fred Summerville.
- County Council Objectives.
- Community activities—Miss Serena Mitchell.
- 2 Farm Bureau—Dr. W. L. Parrish.
- 3 Live-At-Home—Mrs. A. B. Jones.
- 4 Southern Problems That Concern the Nation—Mrs. T. J. Cowart.
- 5 Reaching More Rural Women—Mrs. J. H. Wells.

Song—"Homemakers' Song."
Talk—W. A. Ruffin, Specialist, Extension Entomologist and Horticulturist.

Dress Revue—
12 to 1:30—Lunch and Exhibits.
1:30—Song—"Eats," tune, "Smile."
Better Homes Week Song—"Sing Your Way Home."

After the program a tour of the CCC Camp was conducted. The following demonstrations were observed and studied: (1) poultry, (2) quail, (3) quail, (4) turkeys and (5) hogs. The woodwork shop and recreational center was also visited.

Every woman attending the meeting wore a cotton dress, thus emphasizing the use of cotton and its importance to Southern farm families.

The following exhibits were on display for the women at the office of the Home Agent:

- (1) Thirty-five sack articles showing 20 different ways that sacks might be used for the home. Among them being: bed spreads, vanity sets, table and luncheon cloths, quilts, dresses, children's dresses and others, (2) table with covers for one correctly set, (3) pickles made from brined vegetables by Mrs. A. B. Jones, Alpine Club, (4) sanitary pit privy, (5) bed correctly made, (6) device for treating cotton seed, (7) frame for holding garbage pail, and (8) home-made brooder for baby chicks. One bedspread made of cotton bagging was also on display.

Plan To Have An Abundant Hay Crop

The economical feeding of workstock, dairy and beef cattle, and other farm livestock depends to a great extent upon the production of plenty of hay and roughage on the farm. Now is the time to make preparations for growing the summer hay crop.

There are a number of good hay and roughage crops that may be grown. Legume hays, such as soybean and cowpeas, should be grown if possible. It is with such legumes that the greatest amount of feeding value per acre may be grown. However, there are other non-legumes, such as sudan and sorghum that may be grown.

For the production of soybean hay a half bushel of seed should be planted per acre in rows wide enough to cultivate. An application of 200 to 400 pounds super-phosphate per acre will increase the yield of hay. Soybeans should be cut for hay when most of the bean pods are filled. The Ottotian variety is the best soybean to use for hay. Cowpeas should be planted at the rate of one bushel per acre in 2½ foot rows. 200 to 400 pounds superphosphate should be applied to each acre of cowpeas for hay for best results. Cowpeas should not be cut for hay until the pods fill out unless the leaves begin falling.

Cowpeas broadcast at the rate of two bushel per acre with 10 pounds sorghum will make excellent hay. The sorghum helps in the curing process of the peas. Sudan grass and sorghum furnish good non-legume hays. Sudan and sorghum may be broadcast but the best results will probably be obtained by planting in rows 2½ feet apart. Fifteen to twenty pounds of Sudan or sorghum should be planted per acre.

Every farmer should plan now to grow plenty of hay for his farm livestock. For every farm animal there should be one acre of hay planted.

CONTROL OF CUT WORMS BY POISON MASH IS URGED

About this time of year cut worms work havoc with spring gardens, says W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist, in recommending that cut worms be controlled with a poison mash.

The formula for the mash is 3 ounces of white arsenic or Paris Green, 5 pounds of coarse wheat bran, 1-2 pint of molasses, and enough water to make the mixture sticky. Cabbage slaw sprinkled with arsenate of lead also makes an excellent poison bait for cut worms.

He says to "strow" the mash or bait along the row late in the evening so that the worms can get a dose of it that night.

Legume Seed

Farmers wishing to take advantage of the AAA grant-of-aid plan to obtain winter legume seed for planting next fall are advised to make application to their county agents as soon as possible. This is important as definite information must be sent to Washington before arrangements for Alabama supplies of seed can be made.

Cream Production Is Compared With Cotton

Cream money is just as good as cotton money and has the added advantage of coming in every two weeks instead of only once each year, says F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist, in pointing out that five good dairy cows would bring in as much income as would be received from eight bales of cotton at present prices of cotton and butterfat.

"With reduced acreage in cotton and a smaller income from this source, dairy cows can fill an important place in the farming program in Alabama," he states.

"Five acres of legume hay, one acre in sorghum silage five acres in corn and 10 acres in good permanent pasture will feed five good dairy cows if you will swap two tons of cottonseed for cotton seed meal this fall."

Farmers Advised Save Crimson Clover Seed

A shortage of crimson clover seed is expected this year in Alabama in the opinion of J. C. Lowery, Extension agronomist, who advises farmers with good stands of crimson clover to save the seed.

Lowery bases his opinion on the dry weather in the fall of 1939 and the cold that followed which killed out a great deal of the cover that normally would have been saved for seed this spring.

"The reduction of seed imported due to the European War will also add to the shortage of the seed supply," he explains.

"Farmers having seed on hand will not have to buy high-priced seed and if a surplus is produced, they can be sold to good advantage," he says.

CORN AND COTTON WILL SOON NEED SIDE-DRESS

Auburn, Ala.—Now is the time for farmers to make plans for side-dressing corn and cotton.

Experiments and experience have shown that cotton fertilized with low grade fertilizers should be side-dressed with nitrate at first cultivation after chopping. Cotton fertilized with 6-8-4 does not need to be side-dressed.

Corn should be side-dressed about 35 to 40 days after planting. Corn following a good growth of hairy vetch, Austrian winter peas or crimson clover will not need to be side-dressed.

Farm Real Estate

An increase of about one percent is reported in the average of farm real estate values the country over during the 12 months ending March 1. In Alabama the value was the same as one year ago.

Approximately one diphtheria case out of every nine reported in Alabama from 1934 to 1938, inclusive, brought death to its victim, according to information received by the State Department of Health from the United States Public Health Service.

I Have No Sons

(Reprinted from May Good House-keeping)

By Claudia Brand

I have no sons.
With strong young limbs
To stand straight and tall
And face the guns
At warlords' whims—
And rot upon the spot they fall.
I have no sons to lay
At the feet of the lords of war.
Yet I might have had—
If on a day
These twenty years ago or more,
They'd spared a lad
They crushed beneath the torch he bore.

Bonnie Hand

Honest, versatile, clean, courageous, dependable. That is Bonnie D. Hand, who leaves Chilton County News this week to become associated with The Lafayette Sun as Editor and Manager. Hunter Colson, of Wetumpka, president of the Alabama Press Association, recently purchased The Sun.

Bonnie came to the News more than nine years ago, and has been with the paper ever since—working his way step by step from the bottom rung of the printing and newspaper ladder to the top.

He has filled successfully, faithfully and well every position connected with Chilton County News and its printing plant, and will be missed—like as if one of the presses had broken down, or something. There will just be something "not clicking" around the place.

We commend him and his fine young wife to the good people of Lafayette and Chambers County. And, furthermore, we're expecting great things from Bonnie, and will be watching for "his smoke."

A Real Danger In The Offing

The following News Story appearing in last week's Baldwin Times shows a dangerous trend that must be watched, else the paper mills of the South will become a curse instead of a blessing.

Many can remember when the rich ore lands were owned by Alabamians, that today are owned by big foreign corporations which have little interest in Alabama outside of the "rich pickings" she affords.

Says The Times:
Sale of 13,000 acres of county timberland belonging to Ben May to Southern Kraft Corporation was bargained for recently in Baldwin in recent months.

Deeds and titles have yet to be abstracted but life protection to the pine woods has already been turned over to B. B. Kinnard, county forester, by the paper company.

This boosts total county holdings of Southern Kraft to 88,000 acres, almost one-tenth of all timberlands in Baldwin. One tract sold, approximately 4,000 acres, was known as the Ewing tract and lay along the Brady Road below town near the old Chandler place.

The other section comprised around 9,000 acres of the Sibley tract north of Stapleton, one of the best turpentine areas of the section. Turpentine rights on practically all this property are being leased from the Kraft company but seedlings will be used to stock the Mobile mill.

Baldwin Timber and Naval Stores, of which May is a large holder, has recently abandoned their turpentine still south of Stockton. The still will continue operation, however, with four crops, 40,000 trees, leased to Billy Robertson, Jr., and the remainder idle.

With more than 30,000 acres under his title, Mr. May, a Mobile resident, is still the third largest land-owner in the county and Tennessee Land Company is second with approximately 52,000 acres, 22,000 of which are under state protection.

Gyp Advertising

What a pity all merchants and business men wouldn't take just a minute to ask their newspapermen about the various gyp advertising schemes that come along. How much money we could save them. In fact, why don't they know their newspapermen better anyway? Why don't they discuss printing more with them?

Wishes Of A Country Editor

Things that a country editor wishes he had time for: Time to read the Congressional Record, Time to make trips over the country and circulate among subscribers. Time to go to more important gatherings. Time to read exchanges more thoroughly. Time to read a few good books. Time to write editorials that have thought and meat in them. Time to write each country correspondent a personal letter of thanks for sending in the news, also to make suggestions that might make such correspondents better reporters of the news. Time to clean up the shop and make it tidy, so it will not look so much like a blacksmith shop—not that there's anything dishonorable about a blacksmith shop. Time, generally to read more and think more, and give better answers to the numerous questions that are asked about nearly everything that is going on. And along with wishing for more time we'd wish for keener perception, a brighter intellect, plenty of patience, more tolerance—and more of the things that go into the making of a really good and successful editor of a country weekly.—DeKalb Times.

Mark Remarks

Alabama has gone on "daylight saving time," but the Night Hawks will continue to gather at the honkey-tonks and night clubs after sundown.

What Alabama farmers need is a "Farmers State Chamber of Commerce" like the one the Industrialists have.

"Daylight-saving-time?" Bah, bunk! and baloney!

Instead of "hollering" "Camera!" you English are squawking—"Come on you dumb-bells and get us out of this mess."

Cody Hall has proved that big type and wide columns do not make the Editorial page more interesting to newspaper readers.

Listen Buddy! It isn't whether you won or lost that counts, but "how you played the game."

If the results of the primary isn't to your liking, just think of the fate of Benedict Arnold, and all those who have followed him "Honesty is the best policy."

Gallup's poll says 77 per cent of the American people do not want war. Then why should the 30 per cent, for selfish motives, force us into it?

Sure Uncle Sam is going to get something out of Europe's war. A few more millionaires like Samuel Harden Church and his associates and several more million unemployed, underfed and ill-clad Americans.

BEYOND REASON

The Senior Three Class of C.C.H.S. will present their class play "Beyond Reason," on next Friday night, May 10, at the City Hall auditorium. The time is 8:30 Daylight Saving, or 7:30 Central Standard.

The Sunday Journal

The new Sunday Montgomery Journal came to us May 5th one hundred pages big, in nine sections covering just about every phase and feature of newspaper making.

Under its new management The Journal is showing marked improvement in all departments, and Montgomery is to be congratulated on this new addition to its Sunday newspaper field.

"Lebensraum"

Despite Adolf Hitler's dramatic cry for more lebensraum (living room) Germany is less densely populated than many other European states. Greatest human concentration "over there" is found in Moscovia, in whose area of only 370 acres (.799 sq. mi.) is crowded a population of 24,000 persons. Belgium ranks as the second most heavily populated with more than 700 persons to the square mile. Running Belgium a close second is The Netherlands with 680, while Great Britain has 480 persons per square mile. In comparison, Nazi Germany, including recent acquisitions of territory, has less. Germany's axis partner, Italy, can count only a few more, 360. France has less than 200, while vast and growing Russia has little more than 20 persons to each of her 8,100,000 square miles. The figure for the United States, incidentally, is approximately 42 per square mile.

—Ozark Southern Star

"It isn't the population per square mile that is so important—it is the 'raw materials' on each square mile—that the capitalists and the industrialists are interested in."

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST SCHOOL COMES TO A CLOSE

Friday, May 10, will close a successful nine months term at the Seventh-Day Adventist school. Plans for the coming year promise improvement in the building, equipment and teaching staff. According to present plans the school will have two new rooms, will be better equipped, and will have the services of Mrs. Heifner's sister, Miss Eastin, who is an experienced teacher. Those wishing to enter school for the coming year are asked to call 245-J.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

I stood before a two story brick building that had not been in use for ten years. Cobwebs covered the walls and rubbish filled every corner. As I looked upon that building I had a dream of an apartment house. Plans were drawn and ten men were employed to recondition it as an apartment house with ample room for four families. Within a month that building had gone through a change that was nothing less than marvelous. It became a thing of beauty and met a long felt need in the little city. Many a time have I looked upon human lives that were worthless. Cobwebs and rubbish filled every part of the being. Under the touch of God's Spirit, those lives were transformed and reconditioned for bright service. A changed life become a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

An old Negro man—was upon his death bed. His doctor informed him that if he had anything to say, or a will to make, that he must hasten to let his wishes be known. The old man had lived to himself and to the doctor's warning he quietly replied, "Doctor, dis old negro had nothing to do with coming into dis world and he had made no preparation to leave it, but I see sartin that I am goin to leave it now." He turned upon his side and was gone. That is the thing that I am called upon to witness almost every day. I meet so many people who are living as though they had nothing to do with their coming into this world, and they are making no preparation to leave it. You are going, I am going and it will not be long. Better make preparation.

In Dallas Texas Pop Galloway had a Sunday School class that was just existing, having a membership of twelve. One morning a tired woman sat down in her chair and remarked: "I am so lonely that I can hardly stand it." That caused the teacher to think and the outcome of his meditation was the organization of a class with a dauntless Bureau. He would help each pupil to fellowship with a responsive spirit and in a month's time his class had increased to a membership of 265. Any man, preacher or laymen who will help the lonely hearted to comradeship, is going to have people drawn toward him.

When sunshine is brought to a lonely heart that one will tell it aloud: "Others will come flocking in. Have others helped a lonely heart?"

Well do I remember that day, as a little lad I sat on the floor, peddled the machine for my thread. She was doing the washing and the sewing for nine children and now I can understand. While I was employed with this I learned that the machine peddler easily when the needle did not catch thread. I would beg my mother to thread her needle for the machine, so easy when there was no Mother said, "Son, if there is no thread in the needle, the running of the machine will do no good." I find the needle of life. To them it is easier to live without work. Let tell you, it may be easy to run a machine unthreaded, but you are a useless life. Thread your needle get down to business.

Not long since there was quite a canning company. The labels on cans of this Company told of the peaches on the inside. On opening the can the consumer found not a very mild form of Gelatine, never associated with a peach. It was not the label on the can that determined what the can contains. It seems that I have met some people who rather use conspicuous labels. They were labeled as a D. D., a L. L., Ph D. but they failed to produce standard of the label. A University can offer a degree on a man who nothing on Baalam's donkey. It is titles that produce brain. It is all to put a label on a can when the carries what the label claims. We should make ourselves false by ing to measure up to our labels.

Way "Build-up" Helps Will Interest Women

The cause of a woman's periodic suffering from headache, irritability, cramp-like pain, may be functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, a condition that is often helped by CARDUI.
Principal way CARDUI helps is by stimulating appetite and the flow of gastric juices. Thus it may aid digestion; help build up a woman's strength, energy and nerve-force; so increase physical resistance to periodic discomfort.
It also helps reduce periodic distress for many who take it a few days before and during "the time." Your confidence in CARDUI is invited by its 50 years of popularity.

Hall, will be the Senior-Alumni party, beginning at 7:30, followed by the annual Alumni Business meeting. Sunday morning, May 28, at 11:00 A.M. in the school auditorium, the Baccalaureate service will take place. Rev. J. B. Gonzales, the new pastor of the Thorsby Congregational Church will preach. Monday, May 27, at 10:30 will be the final graduating exercises. Rev. W. H. Lefsted, pastor of the Lutheran Church in Summerville, South Carolina, a graduate of Thorsby Institute in the Class of 1920, who is also a graduate of Birmingham Southern College and the Lutheran Seminary in Columbia, South Carolina, will give the Commencement Address. After the exercises there will be a community dinner. The work of the various departments of the school will be shown in the Dining Hall.
Miss Elsie Tinker of Hudson, Ohio, is to take Miss Burr's place as music teacher at Thorsby Institute next fall. The school would have liked to retain Miss Burr as she has done very well, but because of her approaching marriage, was not a candidate for re-election. Miss Tinker has studied in the same conservatory as Miss Burr, Oberlin Conservatory, one of the best in the country. She has done considerable solo work in one of the Oberlin churches. She can teach both voice and piano, has had experience in teaching in her home town and also as pupil-teacher at Oberlin. She is well recommended by the conservatory. As she has both a speaking and reading knowledge of French she will probably have a class in beginning French.
The Sophomore Class of Thorsby Institute won the greatest number of points in the Field Day exercises which were held on May 3, which titles them to have their name on the Athletic Loving Cup.
Students are being registered at Thorsby Institute. Those wishing to enter should register as soon as possible so that courses for next year may be arranged.
Mrs. Carl Peterson and Arleen, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Peterson, Mr. Hilliard Baggett and Miss Edna Taylor motored to Tuscaloosa Sunday. Mrs. Carl Peterson and Arleen remained for a visit with her son, Harry, and family.
Mrs. J. H. Goddard and Mrs. J. O. Johnson were joint hostesses on Friday afternoon at the former's home, for a miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. Jack Peterson (nee Rebecca DuBose), a recent bride. Mrs. Russell McCain, Miss Ruth Higgins and Miss Edna Taylor received and displayed the many lovely and useful gifts. The Bride's Book was presided over by Miss Laurell DuBose. The guests were served by Misses Tommy Ellen Conway, Barbara Hayman and Jimmy Ruth DuBose of Jemison. Sixty-five friends called during the afternoon. Others who could not be present sent gifts.
Misses Mae Pearl and Jacqueline Sorrell are spending a few days with relatives in Birmingham and Bessemer.
Mr. and Mrs. David Vines recently visited in Tallahassee. They carried Mrs. Dunn home. She is Mrs. Vines' grandmother and had been visiting them several days.
Mr. and Mrs. Grover Bice and girls and Mrs. H. L. Walker spent Saturday in Montgomery.
Mrs. Lloyd Howard and children spent several days last week in Birmingham visiting her mother.
Messrs. Charles and Lloyd Howard made a business trip to Birmingham Saturday.

Mrs. L. C. Lowery entertained her sewing circle Friday. Those present were Mesdames Hubert Rinehardt, Ralph Pate, Charles Clevelker, Henry Karm and Herman Robinson. Refreshments were served.
Messrs. S. M. Pate and W. F. Ross made a business trip to Dadeville last Friday.
Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Rinehardt and John Mc. of Birmingham visited relatives here during the week end.
Miss Helen Lowery of Clanton spent the week end at home.
Mrs. Oxford and two daughters of Orville, Ala., were recent visitors of her sister, Mrs. E. B. Wallace.
Mr. and Mrs. Jack Boine of Greenville spent last Wednesday with Mrs. Elizabeth B. Wallace.
Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jackson and family of Elmore visited friends here Sunday.
Mrs. W. E. Martin and grandson of Birmingham visited relatives here Sunday and attended Memorial services at Salem.
Richard Hicks is spending this week in Elmore with Ralph Jackson.
Douglas Clevelker entertained a group of little folks at his home Saturday afternoon. The occasion was his fifth birthday.
Friends of Mrs. Bergit Erdahl, a former resident of Thorsby, will regret to learn of her death May 2 at her home in Los Angeles, Calif.
Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Marcus and Miss Hilma Collins spent Monday in Birmingham.
Miss Betty Sue Gandy of Maplesville spent a few days recently with Misses Annie Ruth and Marguerite Pate.
Mr. and Mrs. William F. Ross had as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ross and son, Jerry, of Demopolis, Ala.
Mrs. E. P. Nichols is spending a few days in Birmingham with her sister, Mrs. Ward, who is very ill.

News from Eastview

The Ladies' Aids of the three churches which make up the Clanton Larger Parish of the Congregational Church, met at the parsonage of the Eastview Church last Thursday for an informal get-together. The other two churches represented were the Mountain Creek and Mountain Springs Ladies' Aids.
Mrs. Alma Waites represented the Mt. Creek and Mountain Springs Ladies' Aids.
Mrs. Elsie Ballou discussed various plans of the Ladies' Aid of the three churches. Mrs. Ensminger, wife of the District Superintendent for this area, discussed women's work all over this state.
Mr. Ballou gave an introductory explanation in regard to the Lord's Acre Movement. This was followed by a Lord's Acre play which was given on the parsonage grounds. Those taking part in the play were: Mrs. Victor Coward, Mrs. Alpha Dobbs, Rose E. Henry, Mrs. Marshall Patterson, Mrs. Laura Kilgore and Rev. Luther Ballou. The play was the contribution of the Eastview group to the program.
Dr. F. P. Ensminger gave the address of the day, which was much enjoyed by all.
Besides group singing by all, special musical numbers were presented by the Mountain Springs delegation. There were also trio numbers by Mrs. Lorraine Eubank, Mrs. Estelle Williamson and Mrs. P. Lillie.
The days entertainment was concluded with games by all. A delicious picnic lunch was enjoyed on the parsonage grounds.
The following were present from Mt. Creek: Mrs. Annie Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Gary ohnson, Mrs. Nolia Strength, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Waite and baby, Mrs. Romia Yarbrough.
Delegates from Mountain Springs were Mrs. Robert Teel, Miss Ruth Teel, Mrs. Henry H. Cox, Mrs. Molly Gentry, Mrs. Laura Kilgore, Mrs. Hattie Rutherford, Mrs. Estelle Williamson, Mrs. Lorraine Eubank, Mrs. P. Lillie.
The Eastview group was: Mrs. Lou Nelson, Mrs. Sally Gray, Mrs. Alpha Dobbs, Hilaria and Morelle Dobbs, Rose E. Henry, Mrs. Susan Moores, Mrs. Mattie Lou Welles, Mrs. Oscar Welles, Mr. Marshall Patterson, Mrs. Victor Coward and daughters, Aberdeen, Mrs. Arthur Williams, Mrs. U. Courtney, Mrs. Minnie Nelson and daughter, Betty Sue, Rev. and Mrs. Chas. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith, Mrs. Roxie Thomas, Rev. and Mrs. Ballou, Pearl Patterson.
Dr. and Mrs. Ensminger of Birmingham were guests of the three societies.
It is planned to make these get-togethers an annual occasion.
This week end will be the occasion of the regular monthly services at the Eastview Congregational Church. Saturday morning at 11:00 o'clock standard time, Rev. Luther Ballou will preach on the subject: "Miracle Stumbling Blocks"; 11:00 A.M. Sunday, "The Church, The Heart Of The Community"; 7:30 P.M., "Crossroads." This is a friendly church. All are welcome.

SINGING AT ALPINE

There will be an all-day singing at Alpine Sunday, May 25. All singers are invited to come, bring your books and help make the day one of success.
Hoping to see you all and enjoy a good singing at Alpine.

JEMISON CHAPTER F.H.A. MET

The Jemison Chapter of F.H.A. held their last regular meeting on May 1. The meeting was called to order by the president, Willie Jean Northcutt. The most important business was the election of officers for the coming year as follows:
Helen Hubbard, president; Mildred Ellison, vice-president; Laureal Dorminy, secretary; Essie Loyd Robinson, treasurer; and Mary James Patton, parliamentary referee. Plans were discussed for the annual picnic on May 18. Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned to meet again in September.

CARD OF THANKS

Please give me space to thank the people of the Sardis community and Billingsley for their help and kind words shown us in the illness of my mother. We also want to thank the doctors and nurses. I want to especially thank Dr. Gray and the nurses at the Central Alabama Hospital, also T. J. Deason and family of the Sardis community. May God's richest blessings rest with you all.—C. C. Headley.

Marine Recruiting Here May 14-15

A member of the United States Marine Corps Recruiting Service will be at the Post Office in Clanton, Alabama, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 14th and 15th, 1940, for the purpose of interviewing and conducting preliminary physical examinations of applicants for enlistment in the United States Marine Corps.

In addition to the hundreds of technical positions open, Marines are offered one hundred and fourteen complete courses through the Marine Corps Institute in academic and trade subjects at no cost to themselves. Among the courses offered are Agricultural, Accountancy, Grade and High School Subjects, and Engineering courses in Automobile, Aviation, Civil and Structural Electrical, Diesel, Radio and Air conditioning, permitting them to prepare themselves for important positions upon the completion of their enlistment, while in the service.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ENLISTMENT ARE:

Height, 64 to 74 inches.
Age, 18 to 27 years. (If under 21, written consent of parents or guardian must be furnished.)

Education, 8th grade or above.
General requirements. Physically sound, white, single with no dependents and of good moral character.

For further information: Ask your postmaster; or write the U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting officer at the above address.

Drilling For Oil In Marion County

Hamilton, Ala.—Drilling for oil six miles west of Hamilton, near the Lamar County line, was started Monday.

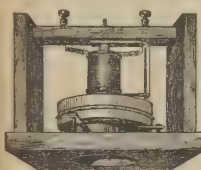

The Helmerick & Payne Company Inc., of Tulsa, Okla., arrived with the equipment over the week-end and began the construction of derricks and preliminary structures. It is understood that the drilling is being financed by the Seaboard Oil Co., of Dallas, Texas.

Sales on Alabama's 16 curb markets in operation during January, February and March totaled $96,731.33 during the first three months this year. Total sales from the time the markets opened to date are $4,576,678.56.

... the telephone has been made a world-wide medium of voice communication... a dependable servant, available at low cost, to people in all walks of life. This remarkable achievement is the result of American initiative, organization and ingenuity.

The 21,500 Southern Bell workers have had an important part in this achievement. It is a source of satisfaction to them to know that they, together with thousands of other Bell System workers, have made it possible for anyone today using a Bell or Bell connected telephone to talk to almost any point in America, many foreign countries, and to ships at sea.

Americans enjoy the best, most dependable and cheapest telephone service in the world. They are assured of its continuance because it is the Company's policy to keep telephone facilities and quality of service ahead of public expectation.

All-Plastic Auto Body

Predicted by Scientist

An all-plastic automobile body produced complete in less than eight minutes is predicted in a report to the American Chemical society.

Designers and automotive engineers have only just started to take advantage of the many properties inherent in plastics, according to the report, written by Archie J. Weith. "The growth in the variety and amount of plastics is decidedly the result of consumer demand. Some 200 parts of the automobile are now made in whole or in part of plastics.

The car runs smoothly because its ignition system is protected with a moulded phenolic distributor head and other parts. It runs quietly because of silent phenolic laminated timing gears; safely because it is equipped with phenol resin-bonded brake linings and safety glass which is laminated with a vinyl acetate.

Electrical wiring is insulated with a vinyl plastic. Colorful, decorative fittings, handles and other accessories of cast phenolic resin or molded acetate or urea adorn the modern car. The steering wheel and horn button are molded of tough, flexible acetate in a variety of pleasing colors. Instrument panels and clock case faces are of polystyrene, while the windshield may be of acrylate.

Today the metal body is protected with a priming coat of phenol resin varnish and a finishing coat of an alkyd or cellulose lacquer. This development alone reduced car finishing time from 17 days to less than eight hours. Tomorrow we may witness an all-plastic automobile body produced complete in less than eight minutes.

Plastics benefit the automotive industry in still other ways. Synthetic phenol resin-bonded abrasive wheel, which can be operated safely at high speeds, and abrasive papers make possible the fabrication of metal parts to those exacting tolerances which are so necessary for interchangeability in mass production. Again, plastics in the form of phenolic or urea resin adhesives serve to bond laminated wood for truck bodies and trailer construction.

The automobile is only one example of many that could be cited to show how plastics serve industry in its efforts to make a better world in which to live. Such major factors in modern life as the central station, the telephone and radio, the textile industry and building and electrical appliances could also be mentioned.

150-Year-Old Paintings

Found Under Wall Paper

Murals apparently painted in the days just after the American Revolution have been uncovered in an old Rockport, Mass., home. Buried under four layers of wallpaper for several generations, the murals, quaint in design and of antiquarian value, were found when decorators cleaned the walls preparatory to repapering.

Mrs. Marian J. Cooney, whose family owned the house for many years, was unaware of the murals' presence. The stock of new wallpaper she had selected to cover the small parlor's walls never will be used.

Identity of the artist who created the work is not known, although Mrs. Etta S. Moore, 80 years old, recalled that the builder, George Knowlton, had a daughter who was artistically inclined.

The paintings were believed to have been executed about 150 years ago as the two flags crossed over an apple tree and a brace of doves, contained 13 stars and 10 bars walls. Figures in this mural and those on the other three walls are stiff, but attractive.

Most interesting of the panels is one depicting a farm worker at a well who lifts an oaken bucket to his lips as a small blue dog looks on.

Plea For Appraisal Of M. & O. Approved

MOBILE—U. S. Judge Robert T. Ervin has granted a petition by receivers for the Mobile & Ohio Railroad for appointment of an appraiser to evaluate its properties in event of a sale.

Judge Ervin said he would make the appointment next Tuesday.

Recommendations that Ford, Bacon & Davis, New York consulting engineers, be named appraisers came from J. M. Williams, Montgomery attorney representing Chase National Bank.

Judge Ervin expressed belief the appraisal could be completed within a week and said he hoped to complete hearing on the appraisal before June 15.

The appraisal is another step in the proposed merger of the M. & O. with the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad, a move already approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

World-Wide Return To Religion Predicted

A world-wide resurgence, bringing peace and real democracy, will be humanity's benefits from a return to religion, the principles of Christianity and the Golden Rule.

Such a renaissance is coming, in the opinion of Dr. R. H. Crossfield, Presbyterian minister, if humanity accepts Christian ideals, "but it will not come during the lives of the present generation."

Dr. Crossfield made the prediction before a luncheon meeting of the Birmingham Kiwanis Club at the Tutwiler yesterday, when he spoke on the Scandinavian countries.

A visitor to the countries several times, the minister observed that the Scandinavians "are the most democratic people on earth," that they are educated, industrious and generally economically secure, and that the percentage of crime is low. He said 17,000,000 people in the Scandinavian countries are church members. —Birmingham Post.

Chevrolet Sales Maintain Increase

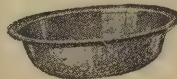

Detroit—Paced by a new passenger car and truck sales gain of 400 per cent over the comparable period last year, Chevrolet sales figures for the second 10 days of April maintained the strong upward trend that has marked the 10-day reports since the introductions of the new models last fall. William E. Holler, general sales manager, announced here today.

For the 10-day period ending April 20, Chevrolet dealers sold at retail a total of 35,491 new passenger and commercial cars, a gain of 2,598 units over the figure reported for the preceding period, as well as the 40.9 per cent increase over last year.

Used car sales were up 5,515 units over the preceding period. Mr. Holler said, and 26.3 per cent above the same period in 1939. Total used car sales, month-to-date, were 113,945, as against 88,780 units-retailed in the first 20 days of the month in 1939. This represented a gain of 28.3 per cent.

Truck sales likewise showed a substantial increase during the period. Total units retailed were 5,960, a 13.3 per cent gain over the same period last year.

Farmers Advised Save Crimson Clover Seed

Auburn, Ala.—A shortage of crimson clover seed is expected this year in Alabama in the opinion of J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, who advises farmers with good stands of crimson clover to save the seed.

Lowery bases his opinion on the dry weather in the fall of 1939 and the cold that followed which killed out a great deal of the clover that normally would have been saved for seed this spring.

"The reduction of seed imported due to the European War will also add to the shortage of the seed supply," he explained.

"Farmers having seed on hand will not have to buy high-priced seed and if a surplus is produced, they can be sold to good advantage," he says.

MOTH MENACE

Here's What Leaflet 145 U. S.
Department Of Agriculture Says

1. Drycleaning kills all forms of moth.
2. Clothing just drycleaned or washed, if wrapped in paper with its edges well folded back or sealed carefully, will remain free from moths indefinitely if the paper is not broken.
3. Sealing in unbroken flat boxes or other cardboard boxes will accomplish the same result. Garment bags are of no value in themselves in killing moths, but if clothing free from moths is put into an unbroken garment bag, then tightly closed and sealed, the paper will keep moths out indefinitely.
4. All forms of moths are killed upon exposure over a short time to temperatures of 125 degrees to 130 degrees F. (Pressing machines are heated to a temperature twice as great.)

WE OBSERVE

SWAN SONG—

This week terminates a period of over nine years this writer has been affiliated with Chilton County News. We leave this week with the Chilton County News, where we will be connected with the Lafayette Sun in the capacity of editor. Our heart is filled with many things we would like to say in parting with friends in Clanton and Chilton County, but the right words cannot be found to express these things. Chilton County has been our home for many years, and these past nine years with this newspaper have afforded us an opportunity to work for those things which make for a more prosperous and happy people in Chilton's stride of progress.

One fact, however, makes this parting somewhat easier. That fact is that Mark L. Tucker is at the helm of the Chilton County News, and all of you who have come to know Mr. Tucker can realize that with this newspaper in his hands, its influence will ever be directed for the welfare of the people of this County. Again words fail us when we try to express our esteem for this man whose love for honesty and fair play makes him one of the most beloved and respected newsmen in Alabama. Our association with him during the past 18 months has meant much to Mr. Tucker loves Clanton and Chilton County, and is always on the alert to render a better service to its people. May we urge you one and all to cooperate with him in giving your County the cleanest and best weekly newspaper in Alabama.—"For the Good That It May Do."

Garden Suggestions For May and June

It has been said so many times that the Home Garden is the most important piece of ground on the farm that some of us are beginning to believe it. There never has been a time when the garden was so important as in the year 1940. This situation is due to a number of factors. A short crop last year followed by a severe winter exhausted all of our food and feed supply; late spring freezes resulted in severe losses of early vegetables and almost a total loss of the fruit crop. Such a situation certainly calls for the best sort of planning to insure a reasonable supply of food for this winter. The garden, if kept busy growing vegetables, will do its part to replenish the food supply of any family.

Sweet Potatoes: All the potatoes on many farms were destroyed by freezing the past winter. This might be a blessing in disguise. It might be wise to start over by buying one thousand or more plants of the improved Porto Rico or Louisiana Copper Skin potato. These plants should be set on ground that has not grown sweet potatoes for two or more years. Fertilize potatoes with 400 to 600 pounds of 4-10-7 to the acre. The main crop of potatoes should be set with vine cutting spaced about 18 inches in the drill.

Control of Bean Insects: Rotenone dust should be applied to the underside of the leaves to most effectively control bean insects, especially the Mexican bean beetles. Dusting should be done whenever insects become numerous, but an interval of at least a week should elapse between dustings under ordinary conditions. It may be that considerable longer periods may elapse before a dusting needs to be repeated. The amount of dust needed varies with the size of the plants. A good growth of pole beans requires 20 pounds of dust per acre per application, whereas bush beans require only 8 to 10 pounds per acre. It is very easy to apply more dust than is needed to control the insect; this is particularly true of Sulphur-Rotene dust. The number of dustings per year will necessarily vary with the abundance of bean insects. It is probable, however, that 3 or 4 applications will be needed. Hence, each grower might safely plan to use about 10 pounds of rotenone dust containing 0.5 per cent rotenone on each acre of pole beans.

Control of Melon and Pickle Worm: Pair to good results may be obtained by dusting squash, cucumbers, and cantaloupes with a rotenone-talc dust containing one per cent rotenone. The dust should be applied at the rate of 11 to 21 pounds per acre. Dustings should begin when the plants are 10 days old and continue at 7-day intervals until the crop is harvested. The dustings must be thorough and timely in order to kill the worms before they enter the fruits. Do not use a dust containing sulphur on these plants.

"OH, PROMISE ME"

The Senior Class of Jemison High School will present a thrilling play, entitled "Oh, Promise Me," on May 10, at 8:00 P.M.

This is a hilarious, jolly rollicking swift-moving new farce which will keep you laughing throughout the performance.

Six Showings Of G.W.T.W. At New Wadesonian Theatre

The greatest theatrical event in the history of Clanton is scheduled for Sunday, May 12, at 1:30 P.M., when David O. Selznick's production of "Gone With The Wind," starring Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara, "Gone With The Wind" boasts a superb cast of featured players headed by Olivia de Havilland as Melanie, Leslie Howard as Ashley Wilkes and Ona Munson as Belle Watling.

Commenting on the forthcoming engagement of "Gone With The Wind" C. W. Wade, Jr., manager of the New Wadesonian Theatre, had the following to say:

"We are proud to present this important picture and feel sure that our friends and patrons join us in this pride. Few cities the size of Clanton have been permitted to show it and many of the larger cities are still clamoring for the opportunity to see this super-production which has been hailed far and wide as the greatest motion picture of all time."

"Clanton will be privileged to see 'Gone With The Wind' at the New Wadesonian exactly as it was presented at the gala world premiere in Atlanta, Ga., when 2,031 persons paid $10 per seat to see the most brilliant and costly—debut of a motion picture in the history of the cinema industry."

"We have started our advance sale of reserved seat tickets at a special box office at the New Wadesonian Theatre and urge our friends and patrons to secure their tickets early since seats will be reserved to all six performances."

"For the convenience of our many friends and patrons in the Clanton territory we are accepting mail orders when they are accompanied by cashier's check or money order and stamped, self-addressed envelope. Judging from the number of inquiries we are receiving concerning the Clanton engagement of 'Gone With The Wind' hundreds of visitors are going to be attracted to our city during the three days this truly great picture is shown at the New Wadesonian."

Mr. Wade explained that "Gone With The Wind" will be presented twice daily at 1:30 P.M. and 8:30 P.M. on Sunday, May 15, and 1:30 P.M. and 7:15 P.M. on Monday and Tuesday. The following prices will prevail:

—$1.12, including tax; weekday matinee, 77 cents, also including tax. Attention is called to the fact that seats will be reserved to all performances.

Although the Clanton engagement of "Gone With The Wind" is limited, this production will not be shown anywhere, at least until 1941, except at advanced prices.

"Gone With The Wind" is filmed entirely in Technicolor and requires four hours in its presentation. Directed by Victor Fleming it is being released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Mr. Wade wishes to call the attention of friends and patrons of the New Wadesonian to the fact that "Gone With The Wind" will not be presented on Daylight Saving Time.

Tuscaloosa counties voted to stay "dry" in last week's election. Baldwin County potatoes are going north.

Trucks from many states have been in Chilton County the past week picking up strawberries.

Side-Dressing Cotton And Corn

During the years 1934 to 1939, inclusive, the Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau, Inc., in cooperation with official Agricultural workers and progressive farmers conducted in Alabama a total of 392 cotton side-dressing demonstrations. All plots were one acre in size and carried a check plot through the center of the demonstrations which received no side-dressing.

Throughout the State all plots were fertilized before planting with an application of 300-400 pounds per acre of a fertilizer as 3-8-5, 4-8-4, 4-10-7 or other low-nitrogen mixtures. Each demonstration was side-dressed, just after chopping and before squaring, with 200 pounds per acre of Chilean nitrate.

The average yield of all demonstrations without side-dressing was 750 pounds seed cotton per acre. With a side-dressing of 200 pounds Chilean nitrate per acre, the yield was increased to 1067 pounds. The average increase was 317 pounds seed cotton per acre. Estimating the value of seed cotton at 31.2 cents per pound, and the cost of nitrate at $35.00 per ton, the increased yield shows a profit of $7.60 per acre.

A summary of results from a total of 382 cotton side-dressing demonstrations during the same six-year period shows that the average increase in yield of seed cotton per acre for 200 pounds Chilean nitrate applied as a side-dressing when the corn was about knee high or 40 to 50 days old. This practice doubled the State average yield of 12.70 bushels for the same period. Experiment Station results indicate that farmers may expect an increase of six to nine bushels of corn for each 100 pounds of nitrate of soda used.

These results are of special interest to bankers and others who supply money for financing fertilizer purchases. It is safer and more economical to wait until cotton and corn are up to a good stand and free from grass and weeds before applying most of the nitrate. At this stage both the banker and the farmer can determine the crop and price outlook. Side-dressing has many advantages.

Watt T. Brown

Passes At Wattsville

Watt Thomas Brown, active in Alabama and national Democratic circles for more than 40 years and a pioneer coal operator in St. Clair County, died Monday night at his home in Wattsville. He was 74.

Born in Talladega County, Mr. Brown spent most of his life in Ragland and Wattsville, where he operated coal mines and was instrumental in the development of the brick and cement industry in that section.—Birmingham Post.

CLANTON, ALABAMA, MAY 16, 1940 EIGHT PAGES NUMBER 20

County Purchases 40 New Buses For Schools

All-Steel Equipment Designed To Protect School Children

COUNTY TO OWN AND OPERATE ITS OWN SCHOOL BUSES

Thursday of this week the Chilton County Board of Education bought 40 new school transportation equipment to replace the present worn out equipment. The new equipment consists of forty Wayne all-steel bus chassis. By buying in quantity from the manufacturers thru local dealers the County Board of Education was able to save approximately thirty thousand dollars over retail prices.

In choosing these new buses the board considered the safety of the school children who are to ride in the buses. All steel bodies only are used; they are equipped throughout with safety glass; they are lined and insulated against heat and cold; the lining provides extra protection. The bodies are built to withstand wear and tear over years of service on country roads.

For several days in anticipation of the purchase of these buses, Clanton has been the mecca of many bus body and truck chassis folks. They came from demonstrators from Louisiana, Tennessee, Indiana, North Carolina and Georgia.

The Wayne bodies are manufactured in Richmond, Indiana whose factory was visited this spring by Superintendent of Education Madox, Dr. W. L. Parrish and Mr. T. L. Lecroy. The purchase deal was handled by the Wayne Chevrolet Company of Clanton and the Wayne deal by Cruse-Crawford, Birmingham.

The purchases made on a competitive basis, were described as "the most advantageous, considering quantity and price, ever attained by the board of education anywhere."

There were eight bidders on the board, five on the chassis.

Following the purchase it was announced the 21st in Alabama to own and operate its own fleet of buses. The system, Dr. Johns said, was expected to result in a great saving and increased efficiency and safety.

Announcement was made also, that Clanton County, following a survey by the State Department of Education, would rush its consolidation program, erection of numerous needed buildings, and speedily terminate its one of two-teacher schools.

The survey was conducted under the direction of Dr. A. R. Meadows, of the State Department of Education, and was made known to Prof. Madox. The new buses, which will replace the old ones, will have steel bodies, upholstered seats, approved ventilation, and safety glass, approved ventilation, and by the end of August.

C. E. STAPP CORRECTION

Through an oversight, a paragraph was left out in Cohen Stapp's article last week which read, "As previously stated to several of my friends, it is my intention and desire to vote the Democratic Ticket in November." This was left out through error and the News is glad to make this correction.

Postoffice Closed Wednesday Afternoons

Starting Wednesday May 22, the Clanton Post Office will be closed at noon on Wednesday, according to R. W. Lowe, postmaster. This is in accordance with the custom of all Clanton business houses of giving their clerks one half holiday each week throughout the summer months. Mr. Lowe also asks that we announce, the postoffice will be open all day Saturday.

B. F. Bookholdt Thanks the Voters

To the voters of Chilton County: I regret that I am unable to contact each of you personally and express my appreciation for the support and influence you gave me on May 7 in the primary election.

If you people see fit to elect me in the general election, I pledge my full support and cooperation for the welfare of our children.

IT'S A BOY AT ED'S

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mullins announce the birth on May 4th of a son. The News congratulates the three of them and last reports are that the father will recover. They have named the new arrival Edwin Renfro Mullins.

ARCHER'S CHAPEL

Services at Archer's Chapel will be at 7:30 P. M., standard time, Sunday, May 19, instead of at the regular time announced at the last meeting. Rev. Luther Ballou will preach. Everyone is welcome.

CLANTON PILOTS ELECT OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of the Clanton Pilot Club held Wednesday night, May 8, new officers for the coming year were installed. A very interesting installation was carried out. A miniature light house was used with the various colors representing its beams of light. Each color represented a symbol of the duties of each officer and the members.

The following new officers are: President, Mrs. Laura Little, replacing Miss Ruth Sessions; vice-president, Mrs. Mamie C. Smith, replacing Miss Nolan Meroney; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Sophia Jones, replacing Mrs. Virginia Rummel; secretary, Miss Myra Johnson, replacing Miss Lois Posthale; treasurer, Mrs. Olive Fiquette, replacing Mrs. Dellaiah Grant; reporter, Miss Ethel Mae Jones, replacing Mrs. Bo Searcy.

Directors to serve are as follows: Miss Mattie Joe Barber, Mrs. Lillian Simpson, Mrs. Mary Will Browder, Mrs. Bo Searcy, Miss Nolan Meroney and Miss Ethel Mae Jones.

The Pilot Club, composed of leading social, civic and business women of Clanton, has rendered a splendid service to town and county during the past year.

Following is the speech given by Miss Ruth Sessions, retiring president: "Pilots, it has been a great privilege to be at the stern of the Pilot Ship this year. This year's work with you has given me a broader outlook on Pilot International and the importance of this great organization of business and professional women.

"Your loyal cooperation and ready willingness to help me at all times has really given me a true picture of you. It has stimulated a deeper feeling of love and friendship for each of you. We cannot know each other when we work side by side in some mission. I would have been helpless without your fine loyalty; you deserve the credit for a successful Pilot year.

"To the officers and committees who have worked together in such perfect unity, I thank you; to the new president and officers I pledge my service. I hope that we can enlarge our visions and ideals every day and always be ready to lend a helping hand to those in need."

Daun Patrol Pays Clanton Sunday Visit

Sunday morning the Daun Patrol alighted at Clanton at the airport and was greeted by three score or more flying enthusiasts. A beautiful breakfast supplied by the Pilots Club, with Miss Mattie Joe Barber in charge, was served to about seventy-five.

During the two hours that was spent at the airport, speeches were made by Judge J. Lee Smith, Mayor J. Fenn Jones, and Judge L. H. Reynolds. Visitors were introduced by Dr. V. J. Gragg. After breakfast Earl Newman of Birmingham entertained the crowd with some mighty nifty stunt flying and all who cared to go got free rides. Horton Walker was in charge of the program.

Glover Thanks Friends And Supporters

I thank all my friends and supporters for the excellent vote that was given me in the recent Democratic Primary Election of May 7th. I am deeply grateful for the renomination to the office of Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit.

Respectfully,
Arthur Glover

Clanton Red Cross Quota Is $600.00

Clanton has been asked to raise $600.00 of a $10,000.00 Red Cross war relief fund for European War victims. It was announced Monday afternoon by Col. W. A. Gayle of Montgomery who attended the Convention of the National Red Cross in Washington.

Dr. C. O. Lawrence well-known local physician has been named chairman of the County Chapter and Mel Martin secretary.

Alabama's war relief quota is $125,000 and a campaign has been started in every one of the 67 counties of the state to raise this amount. Of the $10,000.00 to be raised all but 15 percent of the amount goes over seas, while the balance will be used here for similar purposes.

Chairman Lawrence said that some of the contributions had already started coming in and if possible to please mail or bring your check in and it would be that many less to have to contact.

Europe's War Heliions At Grips In Mightiest Combat Of All Time

The "Four Horsemen" Are Riding Hard

It has happened and if reports from Europe mean anything, the greatest battle of all time is now in progress.

FRIDAY: Germany's nth degree war machine invaded Holland, Belgium, and Luxembourg by land and air. Before the day ended important air bases, forts and strategic positions had been taken over.

England's Chamberlain resigned and was succeeded by Winston Churchill, who proceeded to organize a new cabinet. The British and French advanced to meet the enemy on Dutch and Belgian soil.

Saturday: The Nazi machine rumbled on through Holland, capturing one town after another. Thousands of aerial troops were dropped from airplanes all over the country, Luxembourg was taken over without resistance.

Advances were made into Belgium in the face of stiff opposition of the Belgians, French and British.

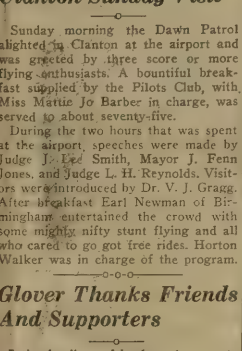

Sunday: Queen Wilhemina, together with the royal household fled to London, followed by government officials. The Dutch government has been reestablished in London. The German juggernaut rolled on through the Low Countries like a Western prairie fire.

Monday: Heavy French and English mechanized troops were brought face to face with the enemy, and the beginning of what will perhaps be the greatest battle in all history had begun. Germany continued to advance all along the line however, splitting the Netherlands in two, capturing Rotterdam, pushing into Belgium as far as Leige and the Meuse River.

Tuesday: The blitzkrieg moved on over a wide area from the Moselle river to the English Channel, capturing the city of Sedan in France, ten miles behind the Maginot line. Thousands of men, guns, tanks, airplanes, tractors, warships, submarines, munitions and supplies are being destroyed every hour in this great holocaust.

Wednesday: Most all Holland capitulated and orders to cease firing given. Germans claim to have broken through the Maginot line in three places, and to have crossed the Meuse river at several places. Tremendous fighting is going on along the whole Western Front. City of Nameur falls to invaders. Germans claim to have established air bases within 30 minutes flying distance of England, which seems to be the main objective of the blitzkrieg. Hitler's "new weapon" whatever it is, up to now, seems to be getting "the answer."

MAYOR REPORTS PROGRESS ON CITY PROJECTS

Mayor C. Fenn Jones stated to a representative of the News Tuesday that within the next two weeks the new South Clanton Sanitary Sewerage project would be completed. The city fathers and also the laborers are to be commended on this fine work that they are doing within our city limits. Also, said the Mayor, "The bridge on sixth street will be ready for use in the next five or six weeks." This is a piece of work that has been missed for some time and has been sorely needed.

Work on second Avenue continues to the satisfaction of all and we are soon to have a broad outlet to the Maplesville Highway through West End.

Field Director Lions International Speaks Here Friday Night

Mr. C. W. Webb, field director of Lions International will meet with the local Lions Club Friday night of this week. Mr. Webb comes direct from the Chicago Headquarters and will deliver the main address of the evening to all members who can be urged to be present at this meeting. A. B. Foshee in charge of the program for this week also announces a program of special interest. Time of the meeting has been changed to 8:00 o'clock daylight saving time.

R. L. Ousley Thanks Voters for Big Vote

To the voters of Chilton County: I desire to express to the people of the county my heart felt thanks for the very splendid vote of confidence which I received in last week's primary as Commissioner of the Third District to succeed myself.

I was unopposed in this race, but in spite of that, I called on as many of the people of the County as I possibly could in my spare time and regret that I have been unable to see all of them yet.

I have used my every energy and my every ability that I possess since I have been Commissioner in the Third District to run the affairs of the County and of the Third District in a way that the people of the county and of my District would be proud. Between now and the election in November I will continue to call upon the voters of the county and continue to request of each voter your sincere vote and influence in my behalf in the November election.

Respectfully
R. L. Ousley
Commissioner from Third District

J. Monroe Parrish Thanks Voters

To The Voters of Chilton County: I wish to take this method of thanking the voters of Chilton County for giving me the nomination as Commissioner from the Fourth District in our Primary on May 7, 1940. I fully realize the responsibility you have placed upon me and I assure you again that I will do all within my power to conduct the affairs of the office in a way that you will not have cause to regret having voted for me.

To those who did not vote for me, I wish to assure you that I hold no ill will against you, and will continue to accommodate you and do what I can in the interest of all of our people.

When I can be of service to any of our people, you feel free to come to me and discuss your matters with me. I will give you every consideration.

Thanking you again, I am,
Yours very truly,
J. MONROE PARRISH

Modern Cold Storage Plant Chilton's Need

Eric Alsbrook of the State Department of Agriculture, was in Clanton last week and was talking modern cold storage as usual.

"Clanton is one of the best located best suited for a modern freezing and cold storage plant of all the towns in Alabama," said Mr. Alsbrook. "You have a splendid town and farm population. You produce lots of farm commodities and will produce much more when the proper handling facilities are formed."

"For years I worked to get a high school education available to every boy and girl in Alabama. I am equally interested in every farmer having a modern cold storage plant available. It means a better living for the producer and more prosperity for the community."

"Your County Agent and his assistant Chilton County and the next step is to have done a wonderful job for provide facilities for getting the most out of what is produced."

"Mr. Haygood Patterson, Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, says that a town without a modern freezing and refrigeration plant will soon be just as out of date as one without a bank."

Mr. Alsbrook states that several parties are interested in building a plant in Clanton and that in the near future something definite will be announced.

STRAWBERRY MONEY

Alabama farmers are at present in the process of receiving between two million and three million dollars for strawberries, Irish potatoes and cabbage being shipped from the State. Despite damage caused by the cold weather in April, these crops are producing fair yields.

Need Laxative? Take All-Vegetable One

Don't let impatience lead you into harsh measures for the relief of constipation!

There's no use, for a little spicy, all-vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT, taken by simple directions, will gently persuade your bowels.

Taken at bedtime, it generally allows time for a good night's rest. Morning usually brings punctual, satisfying relief from constipation and its symptoms such as headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, no appetite or energy.

BLACK-DRAUGHT'S main ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" which helps tone intestinal muscles. 25 to 40 doses, only 25c.

Cash Income Of Alabama Farmers

Total cash income received by Alabama farmers during January and February was $14,332,000, including Government payments, compared with $9,788,000 income for the same period last year. Alabama's cash income in February was $8,651,000; $4,912,000 from marketings and $3,739,000 from Government payments. Income from crops and livestock were about balanced with $2,400,000 from livestock and $2,512,000 from crops.

WOMEN WILL CELEBRATE NATIONAL COTTON WEEK
Auburn, Ala.—Over 30,000 Alabama farm women will join in helping celebrate National Cotton Week, May 17-25.

Plans have been made for a cotton dress revue to be held in each of the 1,112 home demonstration clubs in the state, announces Etna McGaugh, State home agent. All club women will wear cotton dresses to the revue.

Emphasizing the importance of men and women using more cotton materials, the national cotton council estimates that:

More cotton dresses, suits and pants, underwear and pajamas offer a potential market for 50,000 bales annually.

Cotton bags for feed, fertilizer and other uses could increase consumption 700,000 bales annually.

Wrapping cotton in cotton would increase consumption 200,000 bales annually.

The textile manufacturers say that: Every 5,000 tons of fertilizer sold in 200 pound cotton bags uses 85 bales.

Every 5,000 tons of cottonseed meal or other feed in 100-pound cotton bags uses 83 to 87 bales.

Every carload of sugar (40 tons) in five pound cotton bags uses 1.9 bales.

Eggs Have High Food Value; A Recipe

Eggs have an exceptionally high food value and should be included in the diet at least three or four times a week along with a plentiful supply of milk, vegetables, and fruits.

When eggs are selling for a high price it is quite a temptation to sell them, but unless there is a substitute for eggs it is not a wise plan to deprive the family even for a fancy price.

Plenty of fresh vegetables, milk, and lean meat may be depended upon for a while, but eggs are too valuable a food to be absent long from the diet, especially if there are children or old people in the home.

Most egg spoilage is due to bacterial action.

Egg shells in their natural state are coated with a thin transparent covering which serves as a protection against the invasion of bacteria. This covering is easily soluble in water and is removed when the eggs are washed, which leaves the porous shell exposed. For this reason, eggs should not be washed until just before using.

Eggs should be kept in a cool place because low temperatures discourage the development of bacteria.

Egg Goldenrod (Serves 4-6)

6 hard cooked eggs
2 cups milk
4 tablespoons butter
8 slices toast
4 tablespoons flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper.
Remove yolks and put them through a sieve. Chop or slice whites. Make a white sauce by blending flour with melted butter, adding hot milk, and cooking until thickened. Stir in salt, pepper, and egg whites. Pour over toast. Sprinkle with grated yolks, serve hot.

Successful Kudzu Growth

Much of the success in getting a good growth of kudzu depends on proper care during the first growing season according to County Agent J. W. Fant and James H. Wood superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC camp area near Clanton.

Growth of young kudzu plants will be seriously retarded if they have to compete with other vegetation during the first spring and summer. Clean cultivation is therefore extremely important throughout the entire first growing season.

Proper cultivation includes sufficient plowing along the rows to control other vegetation to keep back the soil well broken and to keep the vines dragged back to a relatively narrow strip along each row as well as hoeing weeds and grass out of the rows, if necessary.

Such a system of cultivation will result in a thick stand of plants along the rows by keeping the surface of the soil in good condition for vines to take root at the joints and develop new crown. Soil thrown on the runners by the plow also induces root formation.

Where cotton or corn has been planted in the middles between the rows of kudzu, cultivation of the row crops will control weeds and keep the soil in good condition for establishment of the kudzu plants.

DISTRICT F. F. A. NEWS

Monday, May, 6, the Chilton-Shelby district of the F. F. A. met the Columbiana to play the soft-ball tournament. Columbiana and Isabella played the first game. This was a tight one. Columbiana won by the score of 2-1. The next game was played by Columbiana and Clanton. The Clanton team won 17-3. This left Columbiana out. The third game was played between Clanton and Isabella. Clanton won 15-0 until the last inning, then Isabella ran in 7 runs making the final score 15-7.

The championship game was then played between Clanton and Isabella. This was an interesting game. Clanton finally won by a score of 14-7.

We all hope to have good teams next year and have more interesting games.

After the final game we decided not to hold a meeting. Everyone went home hoping to play again next year.

Cotton Hose May Come Back Again

Auburn, Ala.— Cotton hose for women, which have been practically taboo in the United States for more than a decade, may come back again. That is, if Uncle Sam's interest in the matter is accepted by the feminine public.

Under recent legislation designed to stimulate the use of cotton in women's cotton hosiery, the Bureau of Home Economics of the USDA has already designed and released to the trade 56 types of full-fashioned hose. The hosiery industry, too, has shown its willingness to cooperate, and one or more of the hosiery designs are to be manufactured and placed on the market in the near future.

OVER GRAZING INJURES PASTURE TO GREAT EXTENT

Many farmers who are careful not to overwork their stock, fail to give the same consideration to their pastures, according to Mr. J. W. Fant, County Agent, and Mr. James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp area near Clanton.

Farmers in this section are taking more interest in improving pastures than in previous years. It is extremely important that new pastures in process of being developed be protected from over grazing. It is easy to damage pasture plants before they become well established.

The growth of pasture plants is seasonal and is subject to drought periods. Permanent pastures, therefore, seldom furnish satisfactory grazing throughout the summer months. It is important to provide temporary grazing to relieve permanent pastures during critical periods.

Sudan grass, millet, cowpeas, and soybeans or a mixture of these plants can be planted during the next few weeks to help carry livestock during summer droughts. Many farmers have areas of annual lespedeza that can be used for this purpose.

Conservation plans which Soil Conservation Service technicians are assisting farmers to develop provide for the planting of kudzu on steep and eroded land on areas convenient to permanent pasture, wherever feasible, to provide temporary grazing and hay production as well as erosion control on these areas.

When a screw worm-infested animal dies, the carcass should be burned immediately.

Will No Longer Tolerate Inactivity In Congress

Congress

The legislative program of the federal government is designed to benefit the needy sections of our nation. The benefits of this program are open to all—if the representatives of the people intelligently and aggressively present the problems of their Districts.

The Sixth District has suffered because of a lack of adequate aggressive representation in Congress. The Federal Government does not discriminate against the Sixth District—we discriminate against ourselves when we send deadwood to Congress.

We call upon the people of the Sixth District to put an end to four years of lethargy. Send a man to Congress to represent all the people, the farmers, the laborers, the veterans, the professional men, the housewives, not just a chosen few. Send a man who will not wait for a bell or telegram before acting.

Milk is one of our most important sources of food. It is a part of the diet of almost every person from infancy throughout life. Not only is milk a palatable and well-liked food but it is also one of the best body building foods.

A plentiful and economical supply of milk on every farm is desirable. Without a plentiful supply of milk on the farm it is impossible to have a balanced live-at-home program. Milk should be produced on the farm for human consumption and the surplus milk fed to hogs and chickens.

Milk also has a place in adding to the farm income. Over two hundred farmers in this county are producing and selling milk, either as whole milk or cream, and many others are selling country butter. Whether cows are kept for the production of the home milk supply or for producing market milk it is important that the cows we have on our farms are producing milk economically. The average Alabama cow produces a total of 3300 pounds of milk and 147 pounds of butter fat per year. This is about equal to 1.4 gallons of milk and 1-4 pounds butter per day. Such cows cannot produce milk economically. The cost of feeding such a cow is more than the value of the milk and butter she produces. Remember that a poor cow eats practically as much feed as a good cow. Then how can we develop high producing cows?

High producing cows may be obtained on the farm in two ways. The quickest way is to buy good, high producing cows or heifers. This method usually requires too great expense. The cheap-higher than 5 deaths per one thousand live births. Chilton County, according to records of the Health Department, had a heavy loss of maternal lives in 1939 with six deaths attributed to this cause. The 1939 Chilton County rate was 10 compared with 6 for the state as a whole.

"In view of the facts that a large percentage of these deaths from childbirth are preventable, the tribute which we pay motherhood on Mothers day does not ring quite true," declared Dr. Sturkie, County Health Officer. "If our respect for motherhood is as sincere as it should be, we should show it by taking every possible step to make childbearing a safe process, entailing the minimum risk for both mother and infant."

The senior high school boys and girls were told of the Health Department's program and informed that the Department conducts prenatal clinics in Clanton and Maplesville to bring medical supervision to those expectant mothers who do not have the money to pay for this service.

The necessity of placing the expectant mother under the care of the family physician early in pregnancy and of having her make monthly visits to the doctor's office during the first seven months and at intervals of every two weeks, during the last two months, was made clear to the senior boys. As prospective husbands and fathers they were urged not to wait until the wife is ready to deliver before a doctor is seen.

Murders Wife and Slays Self Over Financial Clash

Second Marriage Is Marked By Continuous Rows About Money.

WYANDOTTE, MICH.—Two orphaned children and an aged grandfather have pleaded together for police the story of despair that reached its climax recently when Fred A. Martell Jr., engineer for the Michigan Alkali company of this place, killed his wife of two years and ended his own life in their home here.

It was the story of a sober, hard-working father who worked for 17 years in the big plant and saved and dreamed for the future of the two girls, Norine, 18 years old, and Rita, who at six, is just starting school. The two girls are alone now, except for the grandfather, the security that was their shattered by the tragedy.

Two years ago the girls were married. Martell decided to remarry so that they might have a home and a mother. After less than a year Mrs. Josephine Martell, who at 46 was one year younger than Martell, left the home and the children.

An Unhappy Year.

With no emphasis in his voice, Fred Martell Sr., 79, the grandfather who also lived in the home, explains it was an unhappy year.

Two weeks before Mrs. Martell returned to the home.

The next day, Norine, a student in the Wyandotte high school, failed to appear at her classes. Martell, for all his good record of 17 years in the plant, failed to appear at his work.

During three days the girl huddled in her room on the upper floor of the home and the grandfather remained in his room. Both have painfully recited to police snatches of the loud, continuous dispute that came to their ears through the days and nights. Martell had a bank account of $5,000 and he owned the small home.

"My stepmother kept saying she wanted everything turned over to her," Norine told police, in recalling the words of the quarrel. "Father kept saying he had saved it all for us."

Screams Herald Tragedy.

Screams brought the aged grandfather and frightened girl from their rooms one afternoon. In the downstairs bedroom they found the woman dead from knife wounds and beside the body stood Martell, bleeding from wounds he had inflicted on himself.

With a feeble gesture of despair the grandfather reached for the blade and then dropped his hand as the edge bit into his fingers. Martell handed a bank book and a wallet to Norine.

"This had to be for you," he said, and fell to the floor. He was dead when the girl ran screaming for help.

Detective Sergt. Fred T. Schwartz obtained the same account from neighbors and closed the police book on the case.

But two little girls and an aged grandfather sat alone in the frame home and tried not to speak of the future or of the tragedy that left them alone. Norine has already explained to her friends and the police.

"He wanted us to have everything. He couldn't have known he would leave us alone."

Poor Woman Has Only Gold and Bond for Fare

LATROBE, PA.—When an elderly woman passenger on his railroad car offered him a thousand dollar government bond in payment of her fare, the conductor gaped unbelievably. After he had recovered sufficiently to inform her he could not accept the bond, the passenger reached into her bag, came up with a handful of $10 and $20 gold pieces.

Another shake of the head from the conductor brought a handful of $5 gold pieces instead.

After the trainman went into detail about federal laws on gold hoarding, a younger woman traveling with the old lady came to the rescue with paper money.

Officer's Wife Tosses Prowler Out of Window

BOSTON.—A prowler made a mistake here recently in invading the home of Mrs. William Killeen, wife of a patrolman—even though her husband was on duty.

Looking to find a man trying to choke her, Mrs. Killeen grappled with the intruder, tossed a nightgown at his head, kicked him and then threw him out a first floor window. A suspect was picked up later.

"I got into the wrong house," police quoted him as saying.

So the Judge Plastered

$100 Fine on the Driver

SOUTH PORTLAND, ME.—Alfred Swinborn, denying a charge of drunken driving, told the court that if his driving appeared wobbly it was because plaster dust on his eyeglasses obscured his vision.

"In any event," said Municipal Judge Clinton Goudy, imposing a fine of $100, "you admit you were plastered."

Unwritten Law Forbids Meddling With Nature

These seem to be an unwritten law forbidding man to make too intimate contacts with any of nature's host of wild folk. Tragedy and unhappiness usually follow when man, with the best of intentions, substitutes his own association for that of the animal's own kind. Hand-raised young western tanager found helpless as a fledgling, is a case in point.

Beautiful Sequoia National park in California was the setting, and the park ranger scrupulously followed the schedule he knew most other birds observed, feeding the youngster, chiefly on insects, every 30 minutes during the daylight hours.

This normal regime brought the bird to its juvenile period in a satisfyingly healthy state. But its human guardian could not furnish the stimuli that should have aroused in it instincts of self-preservation and animal cunning. Thus the bird could not protect itself from the menace that lurks in the form of weasels and squirrels. One afternoon it failed to appear at feeding time. Search was made, a little bunch of bloody, matted feathers was the only trace of the little stranger.

Nature's inexorable law of competition between the species, and the absence of instruction by a parent, resulted in a hopeless handicap for the young bird.

Two Ohio Ministers Run 'Crimeless' Town

Two ministers who rolled up their sleeves and went to work to stop crime and accidental death, are credited with making Shelby, Ohio, town of 7,000, a "crimeless community" and the winner of two national safety awards. One of them is the Rev. D. B. Young, pastor of the First Lutheran church and mayor of the town.

The other is Leroy Coffey, who was minister of a Baptist church before the Rev. Mr. Young selected him for his chief of police three years ago.

"I couldn't see why we could not have the best-policed community in the country," the pastor-mayor said. "Coffey and I decided to apply big-city technique to our crime and accident prevention."

One of the things which has caused police officers throughout the state to comment is the two-way radio system installed in Shelby's police cruisers. The system, said to compare favorably with those used in major cities of the country, was installed for only $800. Police Chief Coffey and his force of seven did all the work.

"Before we could use the system," Coffey said, "all seven on the force had to learn how to operate the sets, know the Morse code and become licensed operators. It was a big job, but the men seemed to get a big kick out of it."

A criminal identification division was set up with cameras and fingerprinting equipment. Coffey inaugurated a series of crime prevention and safety talks, at schools and before club groups.

Monument to a Cook

In Villeneuve-Loubet, France, near Grasse, there is a monument to Auguste Escoffier, the great French chef and inventor of peach Melba. At Mount Saint Michel, France, there is the tomb of Mme. Poulard, famous as a maker of omelettes. She and her husband kept a tavern which was popular because of her skill as a cook. The inscription on the grave reads: "Here repose Victor and Annette Poulard, faithful spouses and good tavernkeepers. May the Lord reward them as they received their guests."

Parking Problem Answer

Stepping forward with a solution to the ever troublesome parking problem recently was Miss Constance Kiehel, an economic analyst for the Social Security board at Washington. After extensive research Miss Kiehel has found that it's cheaper to park illegally in congested downtown areas and be fined than to pay for parking privileges. Although she has received four parking tickets in the last few months and in the last year costs, she cited that her system costs much less than $1 a week.

Precision Instrument

Aids Eye Operations

A new instrument, which is expected to enable surgeons to transplant a clear cornea to an injured or sightless one in about one-fifth the time it has taken for the delicate operation, has been developed by Dr. Meyer Weiner, retired St. Louis eye surgeon.

Formerly the operation required about an hour and a half and its chances for success were limited. With the instrument tested, the operation can be completed in 15 minutes and its chances for success greatly increased, it is believed.

Cornea operations have been performed for 45 years, but only in the past 10 or 15 years were they relatively successful. Cutting out the cornea segment to be transplanted had to be done with ordinary surgical instruments and making the segment fit into the eye in which it was transplanted was difficult.

Instead of cutting and fitting by hand, Dr. Weiner's instrument enables the surgeon to cut it in the segment by a precision instrument. It also enables the surgeon to obtain a segment with a beveled edge which must remain in place after transplantation.

The instrument, under Dr. Weiner's supervision, was used in the successful operation on the eye of a blind woman in a Los Angeles hospital recently.

Moorish Controversy

One of the lines of information developed by a controversy going on at Rabat, French Morocco, is that "there does not even exist in the Moorish language a word for 'old maid,' that poor creature, that victim of our civilization." The controversy began when a young Moroccan student, student of the prophet himself, appealed to the French authorities to aid in the liberation of Moorish women, who, he alleged, were no better than slaves. Those who point out the absence of old maids in Morocco, declare that the legal status of the Moorish woman is better than that of the French woman.

Largest Meteorite

Biggest meteorite ever dug out of the ground was found at Bacubirito in Mexico; it is a mass of iron weighing about 50 tons. In western Arizona, there is a mile-wide crater believed to have been dug by a giant meteor in prehistoric times. What was probably the earth's largest meteor was the prodigious Podkamennaya Tunguska body—possibly a small comet—which crashed into northern Siberia in 1908. It dented the earth with a crater several miles broad, killed 1,500 reindeer, dammed a river and scared forests for 100 miles around.

American Homes

Out of every 100 American homeowners 50 buy their first house "to have a better place to bring up the children." The next greatest motive is just a sentimental longing "for a home of our own." Investment runs a poor third as a reason for home ownership. The average American couple buy their first home when they have been married five years; when the husband is 32 years old, and the wife is 29.

The average price paid by the families studied was $4,899, almost exactly two years' salary, the average annual income reported being $2,452. New homes were built by 31 per cent of the families questioned. Sixty-nine per cent purchased older houses and there were children in 61 per cent of the families at the time their first home was purchased.

California Mystery House

The Winchester House of California, built by the widow of the famous firearms manufacturer, is about four miles from San Jose and two miles from Campbell in the Santa Clara valley. Mrs. Winchester, a spiritualist, believed that she had received a message from the spirit world that she would not die as long as the sound of hammers was heard in the house. As a result, it is a strange composite of architecture with steps leading nowhere, strangely placed balconies and some rooms no larger than one foot wide. It is estimated that at least a million dollars was spent on the structure, parts of which have not been explored.

Mississippi River Piloting Offers Job Opportunities

Development of a nine-foot Mississippi river channel near Davenport, Iowa, resulting in an increase on towboat operations on the upper river has disclosed a shortage of good pilots.

Navigation companies report that plenty of positions are open at pay well above $300 a month. Board, room and laundry are furnished.

The major drawback to piloting is the hours involved. On a round trip from St. Louis to Minneapolis, for instance, the pilot may get away from the boat about 24 hours. Sometimes there are shorter periods of freedom when the boat is docked at a terminal.

Then, too, on the upper river a pilot usually draws pay for only about nine months. In some cases a large line will guarantee a ten-month salary.

During the navigation season the captain and the pilot each stand two six-hour watches at the wheel. The pilot's or aft watch is usually from midnight to six a. m. and from noon to six p. m.

Two courses are open to youths wishing to become river pilots. One is to become a steersman, in reality an apprentice pilot. The other is to start at the bottom as deckhand and work up. In either case, knowledge of the river in its various moods is essential.

Snake Expert Discounts Many Popular Beliefs

Seven years of hunting snakes, during which he has caught as many as 100 a day, have taught Larry Kersten, of McGregor, Iowa, that most popular beliefs about rattlesnakes are fallacies.

One such notion blasted by Kersten is that the rattler's age can be told by the number of buttons on the rattle.

The truth is, according to the reptile hunter, that rattlers grow a button every time they shed their skins and that is two or three times a year.

Kersten just laughs at the belief that a rattler won't strike unless coiled.

"The fact is," he said, "the snake assumes the shape of a letter S, then straightens out when it strikes."

Early in the spring, Kersten takes to the hills with a gunny sack, heavy gloves and a pair of homemade tongs. He seizes a rattler just back of the head with the tongs, snips out the poisonous fangs while it thrashes madly about and maneuvers it into the sack.

He has collected as much as $700 a year in snake bounties.

Navy Recruiting Office Here May 18

Rapid advancements in the Navy are expected due to the expansion of the Navy on the East as well as on the West Coast, the building as well as modeling of ships has opened numerous fields to the ambitious young men of this Nation, among one of the many ships the young men, enlisting as of today will serve on will be the latest Battle Ship to be launched some time during the month of May. The Navy Yard, Brooklyn, N. Y., will be the scene of double ceremony in connection with our present Ship-Building program. The occasion will mark the launching of the Navy's new 35,000 ton battleship North Carolina and the laying of the keel for the 45,000 ton battleship Iowa.

When the North Carolina slides down the ways it will be an event that is expected to be witnessed by many high ranking officials from Washington for it will be the first battleship to be launched in this country in 19 years.

The Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department has informed Commanding Officers of all ships and stations of the need for increased effort in the training of enlisted personnel for advancement in promotion due to recently authorized increases. An actual shortage of qualified men in various trades was reported. Since Commanding Officers have been requested to make every effort to train and qualify men for promotions in order to meet the demands to fill the present need of personnel to fulfill promotions which now exist, it is apparent that promotions will be more rapid than at any time since 1920.

For more information contact your Navy recruiting representative, who will be in Clanton Saturday, May 18 located in the Court House, to answer all questions of the interested public, and accept for enlistment those interested between the ages of 18 to 31 years, high school education is not necessary. The Navy recruiting representative will visit this city during 9 A. M. to late afternoon.

CHRIS GOES AFTER MORE ROAD MONEY

CHRIS J. SHERLOCK

State Highway Director Chris J. Sherlock called on Alabama Senators and Congressmen in Washington last week to urge their active support of the pending bill to appropriate additional Federal aid to the States for roads. If the bill passes, more than $8,000,000 will be made available to Alabama for highway construction.

Bankhead, Hill, Carmichael, Stegall Victorious

The magic of President Roosevelt and the New Deal campaign, organized labor, endorsement and its own vote-getting machine, today apparently had brought victory for the Bankhead-Hill-Carmichael-Stegall ticket for four posts as delegates at-large to the Democratic National Convention at Chicago, July 15.

This ticket, labeled the "Roosevelt-New Deal" slate and which was circulated over Alabama the closing week of the campaign, had swept Senators John H. Bankhead, Lister Hill, Congressman Henry B. Stegall, and Lieutenant-Governor Albert A. Carmichael far ahead of the other two candidates, Col. Harry M. Ayres, Anderson, Publisher, and David S. Anderson, Birmingham attorney and anti-third term.

The defeat of Ayres, original plunger for Bankhead-for-President, and close friend and political ally of Gov. Dixon, was seen by politicians as a rebuff to the governor, who was looked on as Ayres' chief backer. In fact, when the so called "New Deal" slate was endorsed by AFL at its Gadsden Convention, Dixon promptly predicted that Ayres would be among the top four, declaring the publisher was acceptable to the Bankheads and the people not in the habit of submitting to slates for candidates.

Although former governor Graves had emphasized he was taking no part in and of the current campaigns, some observers interpreted yesterday's primary results as indicating Graves' strength in this third term bid for the governorship in 1942. The slate had the backing of political associates of the former chief executive.—Birmingham News.

Old Records Show Cruel Apache Had Bent for Gambling

Used Hewn Sticks as Form Of Dice to Provoke Fortune's Smiles.

TUCSON, ARIZ.—Apache Indians, traditionally known only as cruel, fierce fighters, were in times of peace an easy-going lot with a particular bent for gambling, according to records at the state museum.

Roughly hewn sticks, flat on one side and round on the other, are cited as proof that the Apache was as fascinated by "galloping dominoes"—or dice—as is the modern devotee. Though the Apache's dice were not quite so well modeled as the ivory objects now in use, they served the purpose just as well. The principle of their game, however, was a little different.

Pos Sticks in Air.
A number of the sticks were taken and tossed into the air. The brave who guessed correctly the number of round or flat surfaces to land upright was adjudged the winner.

The squaws were even more ardently possessed to play with fate. Stories recount how they bet everything from their beads to their clothes, and occasionally belts of wampum money, on the turn of the dice sticks. At times they went so far as to bet such intangible commodities as their ability to weave, with the loser obliged to work around the winner's camp.

As far as sheer public recreation was concerned, the Apaches went in for a form of Indian polo which—although usually ending in a gang fight just short of tribal civil war—was considered the most exciting game on the list.

Their liking for gambling was a factor here, too, for the game was considered of no interest unless each brave bet his bow and arrow on the outcome.

Wagered Their Rifles.
Even tribal chieftains, usually the only ones to possess a white man's gun, or "thunder stick," wagered their rifles against those of the opposing chieftains in the event the game was an inter-tribal affair. And the players made individual wagers with their opponents.

Then all the wagered material was stacked on a boundary line of the polo field. When the game ended, there was a scramble with "winner take all" the cry.

With the wagering done, the braves settled down for the game. The field was a rectangular area with goals at each end. The players, usually the youngest and best-conditioned, armed themselves with bent sticks or mallets and tried to knock the buckskin ball over the other team's goal. There were no rules and the game usually ended up in a slugging match.

The records show that when the game developed into a brawl, the onlookers either joined the melee or stole off with the "booty" piled along the field.

Dry Sticks Prove Aid to Fire-Fighters in Forest

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—California's forest rangers are using dried sticks to help suppress fires.

As humidity goes down and wind rises, the fire hazard increases amongst the brush and wooded areas.

The forester can't just stick his finger up in the air and say: "It's very dry today" or "It's humid today—not much fire danger."

The forestry men must have exact knowledge and their ingenuity has developed unique methods of ascertaining weather conditions.

One of these methods uses the dry sticks, dried in an oven, leaving them without a trace of moisture and weighing exactly 100 grams. On exposure to air, these sticks soak up the moisture in the atmosphere. When weighed, and the difference computed, forest rangers can find out the exact humidity conditions.

Readings from a wind velocity machine are compared and the rangers know how far the fire can spread in a given time and map out their defense lines accordingly.

Boy Dies for Fulfilling Autoist's Queer Request

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Obliging a stranger cost 10-year-old Lonzo Dodson his life.

Several days ago a man in an automobile stopped in front of Lonzo's house, his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Banks, related, and asked him to blow into the exhaust pipe. As the youth complied, the automobile backfired, setting his clothing afire. He died of burns.

Police found no trace of the stranger, and they had no explanation for the peculiar request.

Looked Like Grim Crime But Blood Was Chicken's

SELAH, WASH.—Town Marshal Burleson was sure he had a murder to solve when screams of a woman attracted him to a home. Inside he found the walls and floor of the living room saturated with blood and a blood-spattered woman leaning against the wall.

In the kitchen was the woman's husband—armed with a butcher knife. But in his hand was a chicken with no head. The husband had decapitated the chicken and beaten the woman with it.

HARP AN HARMONY SINGING CONVENTION

The Harp and Harmony Singing Convention of Chilton County met Sunday, May 5 with members of the Gospel Tabernacle Church of Clanton. The Convention was called to order by the County Chairman, Mr. T. J. Miller, after a song, prayer was offered by Brother Will Cox who has been a lifelong lover of Harp and Harmony music. The program committee arranged for directors for the entire day. We are sorry that we cannot give the names of all the directors, but they were all good. At noon a bountiful dinner was spread for all and everyone surely enjoyed it.

The attendance was short of what it would have been, because of serious illness among members of both the Convention and Church. We are all wishing them a speedy recovery.

After about three hours of good old singing in the evening, the Convention elected new officers for the ensuing term. M. C. Jackson, chairman; Mr. John Hayes, vice-chairman; and Ira Crowe, secretary.

The Convention membership is deeply grateful for the invitation to sing at their church and the manner in which they entertained the members while there. After the business of electing new officers was disposed of, the song Parting Hand was sung while members and friends shook hands and bade each other farewell until they meet again. The Convention was then closed with prayer by Brother J. N. Scott, who is also a life time lover of old sacred music.

What We Should Know About Tuberculosis

The following essay won first place in the Tuberculosis Essay Contest conducted by the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

Tuberculosis is a disease known to all and of course dreaded by the entire universe. Although most of the victims that once wiped out thousands of lives are no more. But tuberculosis has never given civilized man peace. Slowly however, this old enemy is being subdued to the wall.

Contrary to popular belief tuberculosis is curable. The treatment (at all times) must be fitted to the needs of the patient. In order to help the doctor the patient and his family must know certain facts about the disease. In fact, everyone should know and understand simple facts about tuberculosis, because it may strike anyone at anytime. This might be you.

Tuberculosis seldom strikes a sharp blow in the beginning; it usually creeps up like a thief from behind. We must therefore, be on the lookout for this enemy by watching for the shadows he casts before him. There are four common signs that give us warning. They are tiredness, loss of weight, in-play, and a cough that hangs on, digestion, and a cough that hangs on. Few people are worried by feeling a little tired or worn out now and then. It is natural to become tired after work. But the tiredness, or fatigue that comes too easily or for no good reason, the lazy feeling that lasts, is usually due to something wrong. It may be tuberculosis. Right then it is time for the family doctor to diagnose by physical examination. But yet many cases of early tuberculosis can be found only by the use of the x-ray. The x-ray helps to reveal tuberculosis before the familiar obvious symptoms are recognized, and when found in the early stages, the disease can usually be cured.

When the diagnosis of the tubercular patient has been made he or she must face the situation squarely and faithfully follow the instructions as to treatment even to the smallest detail. Tuberculosis can be cured if it is discovered before it has become too far advanced if the patient works with the doctor. It will take time and patience. There is no medicine or serum or vaccine that will cure the disease. Patient medicines are dangerous for at the best they only relieve and the real cure is delayed.

Time is a very important item in the cure. The earlier the treatment is started the better are the chances of a cure. Delay is dangerous. Rest alone is a very essential treatment for tuberculosis, not merely a change of scene or work, but absolute rest in bed. Fresh air and sunshine do their part of the cure.

Since many homes are not prepared to take care of patients of this type we now have the sanatorium.

The best place to take the cure is at a sanatorium. Here everything has been planned for the one purpose of helping people to win the battle. Here the patients are protected from the big and little frets of home and shop. They have no fear that he may be exposing any of his friends and family to danger. Here is one of a band fighting the same kind of battle. The doctor and nurses constantly on duty. Specialists and instruments such as the x-ray are close at hand in case of need. Besides that, the sanatorium is a training school. Ones who have tuberculosis cannot dodge the fact that an unwelcome visitor has set up house keeping in his lungs for the rest of his life; he must "put up with" the tubercle bacillus but in the sanatorium he can learn to keep the villain under his power and thereby enjoy good health. The sanatorium trains people how to get well and stay well.

There are places where sanatorium care cannot be had. Then the rest treatment must be carried out at home with a good doctor to direct; it is entirely possible to cure at home, but it means that every member of the household, including the sick one, must obey orders strictly and be ready to make sacrifices. A bright sunny room with windows on two sides should be selected for the cure room. A sleeping porch is good not only for the patient but also for the person who must wait on him. Above all let the doctor direct every step. How to feed the patient is so important that only a doctor can work out a diet that is suitable. A general principle is that the patient should never be overfed. He should eat just enough to gain gradually in weight. A good diet consists of milk, eggs or meat at one or two meals, plenty of vegetables (some fresh) including one that grows above the soil like cabbage, and another that grows beneath the ground, like potatoes, leafy salads, raw fruits, and desserts that are easy to digest. The patient should have his own set of dishes, knife, fork, and spoon. These should be kept apart from the family dishes. His bed linen and washable clothes also should be kept away from the family wash, at least until they have been boiled or soaked in hot soapsuds.

Getting rid of the sputum is most important. There are paper cups made for this purpose which can be burned after they have been used.

In late years a number of ways have been found to give the lungs extra rest in addition to the rest it gets by lying in bed. Rest of the diseased lung being very important, may be increased by a slight operation named Phrenicectomy on one of the nerves of the neck. This causes the diaphragm, a large muscle between the abdomen and the chest and abdomen, to rise and to decrease the aperture about the afflicted lung. The nthe lung is unable to

THE FARMER SAYS:

"I need the RAILROADS"

"I AM dependent in large measure upon rail transportation in sending my products to market. Distant markets would not be within my reach and that of all farmers if it were not for the speedy mass transportation furnished by the railroads every day in the year.

"Many of the consumers of my products are railroad men and their families. There are nearly a million rail employees and a goodly portion of the one and three-quarters billions of dollars they are paid in wages is spent for things the farmer produces.

"Then there are the 70,000 different items that the railroads purchase from dealers in practically every county in the country—many millions of dollars worth each year. Much of this money finds its way back to me and other farmers.

"And the railroads' tax payments are important to me. Millions of railroad dollars go to build and maintain better roads and other millions of railroad tax money go to support our schools. If there were no railroads my taxes would be substantially increased.

"Farmers in a Western state lost their branch railroad some time ago and they found farm values went down precipitately and transportation costs increased in proportion. I don't want that to happen in my county.

"Yes, I need the railroads."

The railroads also value the farmers' contribution to the common weal and to their own welfare. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad is a carrier of freight and passengers, an employer of 25,000 persons, a purchaser of 16 million dollars worth of materials annually and pays more than eight million dollars in taxes a year. It maintains a neighborly policy of giving sound advice and practical demonstrations of efficient methods in agriculture through its expert representatives, without cost, to every farmer in L. & N. territory who applies.

move as freely as before. Another device is to collapse the diseased lung by putting air in the pleural sac between the chest wall and the lung. This is called Pneumothorax. It has saved many lives. It is safe and causes little pain. Sometimes this operation is successful in flattening the lung so that it is unable to breathe. In that period of rest the diseased part heals. In some cases pneumothorax is for various reasons unsuccessful, then the physician may recommend that the ribs be shortened by an operation so that the chest wall may push in and compress the diseased lung. This is called Thoracoplasty. It is a more serious operation, and is done only when other means have failed. Many persons owe their lives to this operation.

As we have already seen that this disease can only be cured by the aid of a doctor, plenty of rest, and things similar. Most people of this County are not financially able to support a tuberculous person. It should be to the interest of Chilton County that this County build a Sanatorium for its victims.

Every Kind Of Business Been Aided By RFC

The broad scope of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's operations during the past eight years in fostering the recovery movement and in supporting the national economy was described by Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones in a recent statement.

Mr. Jones pointed out that more than ten billion dollars of credit has been made available by the RFC in the course of its program.

"There is no line of business that we have not aided, and probably every man, woman and child in the United States has benefited from RFC operations," Mr. Jones declared.

"We have saved banks, insurance companies, building and loan associations, railroads and business enterprises of every description," he continued.

"We have aided agriculture through loans on farms and the products of those farms," he said. "We have made more than three billion of dollars of credit available to agriculture in one form or another. We have made loans to more than a million and a half farmers."

In its lending operations, the RFC's interest rate has averaged no more than 4 per cent.

Public Invited To Visit W. P. A. Projects Week of May 20-25

The department of Archives and History of Alabama, through which its Director, Mrs. Marie Bankhead Owen, will extend to the public a cordial invitation to visit projects sponsored by the Department and operated under the Work Projects Administration during the week of May 20-25.

"We know the great value of these projects have been to the Department and people of Alabama as a whole," Mrs. Owen said. "The work has been so far-reaching and has meant so much to Alabama that we want the public to see the work actually going on."

This invitation came simultaneous with the invitations from other State Departments as sponsors of W. P. A. projects under the Professional and Service Division of that agency to visit projects throughout the State during that week. A proclamation by the Governor of Alabama sets the period of May 20 to 25 as "This Works Pays One Community" Week and clubs organizations and other groups are expected to visit projects of Professional and Service Division of the W.P.A. that are sponsored by departments of the State of Alabama.

The projects sponsored by the State Department of Archives and History include library service throughout the State, library books repaired, transcribing old records, manuscripts, preparation of various inventories and other valuable work.

Visitors to these projects, which will be marked for identification, will see the work actually being done by W. P. A. employees and will be able to obtain first hand information of the "whys" and "wherefores" of the work and learn of its usefulness to Alabama.

In the library work done by the W. P. A. employees on these projects, the visitors will see library books repaired, rebound and made suitable for further use. Library units throughout the State are being assisted through this project.

Visitors will be welcome and a guide will be on hand to explain the work during the week of May 20 to 25, Mrs. Owen states. This is a most interesting phase of the work and many will be interested in the work of transcribing old and valuable records to further preserve the information they contain.

JARMAN THANKS VOTERS

Having just returned from Washington where I went to vote on an important measure before Tuesday's returns were complete, I avail myself of my first opportunity to wholeheartedly thank you for your approval of my record and your expression of confidence. I am particularly grateful for the fine work voluntarily done in my behalf during my necessary absences.

It was fine indeed of the good people of Chilton to favor me with such a splendid majority and I will appreciate your continued support. You will be interested to know that your friendship and activity for me caused me to receive 46.76 per cent of the total vote of the district, to obtain a majority in four Counties, a plurality in two and to run my present opponent a close second in his home County.

I entertain only the friendliest attitude toward you who voted for my opponents. I am convinced that an overwhelming number of you will now join our ranks to contribute toward a very impressive majority on June 4. Until then I urge the continued energetic activity of all of my friends.

MT. SPRINGS

Next Sunday, May 19 will be a special treat at Mt. Springs Church, an all day meeting. In the morning after the regular Sunday School services, Rev. Luther Ballou will preach on "The Church, the heart of the community." In the afternoon at 1:30 there will be singing in charge of Mr. T. E. Wyatt. Sunday School will be at 10:00, church at 11:00, standard time. Following the preaching service, there will be a business meeting regarding plans for building the new church. Dinner will be spread at noon. Everybody bring baskets and spread together.

All singers of the vicinity are invited to come and join in the service. Bring your new books. Quartets and directors of the County have a special invitation to attend.

A controlled press is not a "free press" and that goes for radio and the public speaker regardless from whence the controlling influence emanates.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

Church School, 9:45. Daylight Saving Time, each Sunday. L. J. Stewart, General Superintendent.

Morning Worship Service, 11:00 Daylight Saving Time. Sermon by the Pastor.

Young Peoples meeting, 7:00 P. M. Daylight Saving Time.

Evening Worship Service, 8:00 Daylight Saving Time. Sermon by the Pastor.

Lets be concerned about our church. To Martha Jesus said, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: But one thing is needful: Is it true that we need to hear the voice of Jesus say to us, 'Thou art concerned about many things, but it is needful that you be concerned about my church?' Jesus promised Peter that the gates of Hell shall not prevail against His church and "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my father." "Sir, what must I do to be saved?" "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shall be saved." Do we believe? If we do, we shall do great and greater works. "And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is." The Lord shall judge his people." Let us be concerned about his church.

Remember the hours mentioned are Daylight Saving Time, and let's get to all services on time. There is no excuse good enough to stand the searching eye of God on the Judgement Day for going elsewhere for pleasure instead of to Church School and Worship Services to hear the Church School teachers and the good pastor who has been sent to us, to whom we have the privilege of listening every Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Lowe and son Bobby were in Roanoke the past week end visiting relatives.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my appreciation through your paper to the many people that were so nice and considerate of me during my recent illness. I particularly want to express my appreciation and thanks to the Kiwanis Club of Clanton for the many nice things they did for me during my illness.

Let's Cooperate In Giving Hot Lunches To Needy Children

It is the opinion of the Chilton County News that no greater service can be rendered humanity than in aiding under privileged school children.

All P. T. A.'s and school officials are being urged to cooperate in the W.P.A. school lunch room program by the Chilton County Health Officer, Dr. S. D. Sturkie. "In view of the wide prevalence of mal-nutrition in Chilton County school children," says the Health Officer, "It will behoove all of us who are interested in the health of our children to do everything possible to further the progress of the school lunch program. Not only may we expect an improvement in the health of the children eating in the lunch room but increased interest on the part of all parents in the feeding of school children and the provision of a well balance school lunch room will be a natural result of the serving of hot lunches. That this is true is shown by the fact that several schools which did not have a lunch room during the past school year are already making plans to have on during the coming year. One mother whose husband was out of work said that she was so glad that her boys were getting lunches at school, that they would have to go without lunches if they stayed in school. The mother said that her husband had no work lunchroom in the school where her house. When she was told about the fact that he had almost no food in the children would attend she was glad to send them in order to get lunches.

Just Wait and See

Raffaele Bendandi, amateur seismologist and astronomer of Italy, said recently that he had discovered four new planets the existence of which would cause North America—or maybe Europe—to sink beneath the ocean on April 6, 2521.

Bendandi, who has claimed success in forecasting earthquakes during the last six years, said his calculations indicated that North America—or Europe—would become another "lost Atlantis" in a map-changing deluge comparable to the Biblical deluge which Noah survived in his ark.

"I have baptized the new planets Italy, Rome, Rex and Dux," Bendandi said. "I estimated that the solar system becomes 50 times vaster than was previously discovered before this discovery. I consider my calculations precise enough for me to say that the cataclysm will strike the world in 582 years precisely on April 6."

Stopped on Way West

Grover Cleveland, who became President, when fresh from college could not find work and, like most young men of those days, determined to go west to seek his fortune. On his way there he stopped in Buffalo to visit an uncle, was persuaded to remain there, given a place in a lawyer's office as an office boy—the West thus losing a prospective settler.

PILOTS

"The span of life is none too long and let us strive to sail toward a definite goal, keeping in mind always our motto—'True Course Ever'."

The following response was given by the in-coming president, Mrs. Laura Little:

"Ruth, it is with gratitude and pride that I take this wheel, to help in steering our Club on a true and steady keel; I am strongly hoping for the year that has begun, that I may be as good president and do the things we have done, to the other Pilots who have been so faithful to you may I ask, that to me will be just as true; only through cooperation can the club progress and prove to our city its real usefulness.

"It is my desire that through this year ahead; we will do many helpful things and for sorrow give cheer instead. May we be alert with never a thought to sever; and uphold and live our motto—'True Course Ever'."

Mrs. J. D. Broadhead, Fanny Jo and John Durward, visited Florence Sheffield and Tusumbia last week. They also visited Mrs. Wheeler Parson in Haleyville and Mrs. Broadhead's brother, Jewel Howell, in Carbon Hill. Joe Wheeler, Jr. came back with them for a visit.

Miss Bertelle Holmes spent last week end in Montevallo with Miss Margaret McCorley.

Honestly, He Was This Big!

With the opening of fishing seasons throughout the country, disciples of Izak Walton are brushing up their acquaintance with lake and stream. Although the motor car and ever-expanding highways have made hardly a stream safe from the ardent fishing fan, the wary trout is still a match for all but the expert angler. Here Ralph Harris, who has driven his 1940 Chevrolet to the water's edge, is returning from a jaunt upstream to tell Evelyn Clark about the perennial "big one that got away."

Live At Home Program A Great Need

The past winter with its disagreeable weather, its snow and low temperature, has emphasized the strong need of a Live-at-home program. Farmers spend millions of dollars on foods each year that should be produced at home. These they have been denying themselves. Millions of dollars could buy for them other necessities and comforts which each farm family should have as their objectives:

1. Production of foods adequate in kinds and amounts to provide health and prosperity for the family.
2. Acquaint themselves as to what constitutes a good diet for all the family members.

3. The responsibility of the family food supply should be the farmers as well as the farm women. By this it is meant that the man in the family should aid in the planning the food preservation budget and in seeing that a sufficient quantity is raised to fill this budget.

4. Each farm family to make a food budget in order that they may know what should be raised to furnish adequate supply throughout the seasons of the year.

It should never be forgotten that money spent by farm families for food products that could have been raised at home is money that they could have used for other things.

Listed below is the amount of food which should be conserved for one person: Tomatoes 66 pints; Leafy green and yellow vegetables 66 pints; Other vegetables and fruits 70 pints; Meat 20 pints, or a total of 222 pints person.

This budget is based on the average quantity of food needed for an adequate diet during the season when fresh foods can not be produced. At least 10 quarts and 5 pints should be added for such emergencies as company, spoilage and breakage.

The above budget does not include jams, jellies and pickles.

SWINE ERYSIPELAS

Rapid spread of swine erysipelas into 30 states, and the serious danger of farmers becoming infested in handling hogs suffering from the disease, led to a warning here today by Dr. I. S. McDermott, Dean of the A. P. I. School of Veterinary Medicine.

"Human beings are dangerously susceptible to swine erysipelas, and farmers should be extremely careful in handling erysipelas hogs," he says.

"The human disease known as 'Erysipelas' involves severe and painful swelling of the hand, wrist or forearm, plus systemic condition, from which and in some instances results in a septic heart lesions may result. Treatment extending as long as ten weeks may be required before the disease can be conquered."

The Poultry Flock

"A poultry flock has a place on every farm to supplement the farm income and to make the surplus feed grown on diverted cotton acreage," stated Mr. John E. Ivey, extension poultry specialist, Auburn, to a group of farmers who met in Clanton, May 14, to discuss poultry problems.

As a basis for his talk on poultry growing Mr. Ivey cited to the group records kept by farmers on poultry flocks all over the state. Six poultry owners keep records for the Extension Service in the county. During the years 1937, 38 and 39 poultry records were kept on 673 farms in 64 counties of the state. There was a total of 111,254 hens on these farms. With this number of hens the average production per hen per year was 169 eggs and the average price of eggs during the three years was 24.3c per dozen.

The gross income per year from each 100 hens in these flocks was $332.37 which is equivalent to the gross income from seven bales of cotton. After all feed and other costs were deducted, each 100 hens produced a net income of $152.80.

There are common parasites and diseases which infest the farm poultry flock that may successfully be treated or prevented. Poultry flocks may be treated successfully for lice, mites and intestinal worms infestation and preventive means may be taken to keep sore head out of the flock.

Poultry owners should inspect their flocks regularly for the presence of lice. Lice are blood-sucking parasites and multiply rapidly after appearing in the flock. On the first sign of lice infestation in the flock each hen should be treated. Either Sodium fluoride or "Black Leaf 40" may be used. If "Black Leaf 40" is used, a drop of this liquid should be placed on the skin under each wing, on the back of the neck, and between the legs. If sodium fluoride is used, it should be dusted in the same regions as stated for "Black Leaf 40". The treatment should be repeated in 10 days to get the lice hatched from eggs.

Mites are parasites which stay in cracks and crevices on the roost. They attack hens while roosting. By painting the roosts once or twice a year with Creosote oil mites may be controlled.

Tape and roundworms infest the digestive tract of poultry. These parasites are usually present wherever poultry is grown. Commercial worm tablets are probably the best treatment for intestinal worms. These tablets may be obtained in pullet or hen size. One tablet should be pushed down the throat of each bird.

Sorehead is the cause of great losses by poultry owners. There is no effective treatment once the disease is present, but it may be prevented by vaccination. Vaccination should be done when the birds are from 8 to 12 weeks old. If done after the hens begin laying, egg production will be effected. A small-bladed knife may be used for this job. The point of the blade should be dipped in the vaccine and the skin on one thigh of the birds pierced with the knife.

MINOOKA HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB NEWS

The Minooka Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Hoyt Cleveland Friday afternoon, May 10th. Mrs. J. L. Stockdale as hostess with 19 members present, one visitor and one new member.

Miss Barber gave quite an interesting talk on curtains, how to make them, the correct material to use, showing how to choose materials for durability and how they should be hung to give length or to broaden the effect of our windows, what colors should be used for artistic results, ending her discussion by distributing pamphlets that give us every phase of the subject.

After a happy social hour when refreshments were served, we adjourned to meet again in June.

At its commencement exercises Monday, May 27, Alabama College, Montevallo, will be graduating the largest group of girls ever to receive diplomas there. These girls come from every section of Alabama. The National President of Phi Beta Kappa, Dean Marjorie Hope Nicolson of Smith College, a distinguished educator, author, and scholar, will deliver the commencement address. She is the first woman president of Phi Beta Kappa in the long history of this foremost scholarly society.

In the lower pictures are Martha Terry, Greensboro, president of the graduating class, and Celia Methvin, Zionsville, president of the Student Government Association, who was elected "Miss Alabama College" by her fellow-students.

Cotton Ticking Project

Over 3,000 farm families in Chilton County are expected to participate in which is being conducted in all cotton surplus cotton and ticking project producing states.

To date 3,190 applications have been received for this surplus material in the office of the home agent.

Mattress ticking for a large number in the county. Work on this project will begin as soon as the cotton is received.

Mattress needles and tufting twine are available to farmers participating in this project through the Chilton County Exchange.

SCREW WORM ADVICE

Each year for some time screw worms have done some damage in Chilton County. If proper precaution is taken when first cases are observed it will help prevent future infestations. When a screw worm infested animal dies, the carcass should be burned immediately. Recent investigations by the U. S. Department of Agriculture workers show that some of the more mature screw worms leave the carcass, bore into the ground, and later produce flies. Thus to kill all larvae, both the larvae in the carcass and in the surrounding soil must be destroyed.

One of the most effective means to kill larvae is to burn the carcass on the top of the ground and spread the fire over an area extending at least three feet from the carcass in all directions.

Infested animals should be treated with benzol and diphenylamine or pincator oil to prevent reinfection, advised Dr. R. S. Sugg, extension livestock specialist.

Way Found For Small Farmers To Save Silage

The Alabama Experimental Service has found a new practical way for the small farmer to store sorghum for silage.

Last year the experiment station preserved silage by laying the sorghum plants lengthwise in a trench silo, reports J. C. Grimes, head of the animal husbandry department.

"A sharp spade was used to cut the ensilage as it was fed. This makes ensilage practical for even the very small producer," comments E. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist, in a letter to all extension workers.

Best sorghum variety for silage production is the Texas seeded ribbon cane sometimes known as "gooseneck";

Side Dressing Tests Are Being Made

Tests are being made in this county this year to determine the increase in field of corn by side-dressing the corn with nitrate of soda. These tests are being carried out on three different farms in the County. The results of the tests will be published when the yields are determined.

Results of such tests carried out at the Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, Alabama, showed that corn yields were increased from 15-20 bushels per acre when 225 pounds of nitrate of soda was applied per acre.

Best results from side-dressing corn with nitrate of soda are obtained when applied at the rate of 225 pounds per acre about 30-40 days after planting. If corn is growing on land on which cotton or some other completely fertilized crop was grown last year or the year before the corn needs no fertilizer other than nitrate of soda. If the corn follows a good crop of winter legumes it does not need the side dressing of nitrate of soda.

SOME PERTINENT FACTS ABOUT SOIL EROSION

1. Once the Blue Ridge Mountains stood 30,000 feet high. Now their utmost summit stands less than one third that high.
2. Topsoil seldom exceeds the depth of a spad.
3. The preservation of the food-giving value of the soil as used by civilized man depends on the efficiency of the means by which he keeps the passage of the soil to the sea at the rate no greater than that at which it is restored by the decay of the materials on which it rests.

4. The farmers of no great country rip open as much of its soil, bore it stir it, push it around with implements as we do here in the United States.
5. Wounded farm land cannot be partitioned off and considered by various specialists with special cures as a problem exclusively agricultural. Skinned farms, gutted mines stunted growth where great forests flourished or seas of grass were spread, offer a general and terrible exhibit of covered National vitality. Farmers are not to be viewed as peculiar offenders.

June 6 is lamb day at the Union Stock yards in Montgomery. It will be the annual lamb sale day.

NEW FEDERAL SEED ACT

The Alabama seed testing laboratory in Montgomery has been selected to work in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture in the enforcement of the new Federal Seed Act in the southwestern states. L. N. Allen, Alabama seed analyst, will be in charge.

Planting Plans For Your Summer Garden

It is hoped that everyone has the spring garden coming along in good shape. To have a good summer garden we should plan for it now and keep something growing on every row all the summer through.

If you have not already done so why not plan to make the following plantings during May

1. At least two and probably three plantings of bush snapbeans.
2. One planting of pole beans.
3. First planting of bush lima beans.
4. First planting of pole lima beans.
5. Second planting of beans.
6. Set a few cabbage plants for summer use or to follow immediately after the crop set in winter.
7. Second planting of carrots.
8. First or early planting of collards.
9. Two plantings of roasting ear corn.
10. At least one planting made every 2 or three weeks to have succession of corn.
11. Set eggplants.
12. A planting of cucumbers.
13. A planting of table peas such as crowder or blackeye.
14. Set hot and sweet pepper plants.
15. Set some tomatoes if weather prevented setting earlier.

Within a few days after the first leaves are formed on beans small holes will appear in the leaves. This damage is caused by a small beetle that will fall to the ground if the plant is touched. This pest is called the bean leaf beetle. Dusting the bean plants with derris-sulphur will control the insect. The same material will control the Mexican bean beetle. These insects are so common in most parts of Alabama that beans should be dusted with derris-sulphur once a week from the time the plants are a few inches high until the crop is harvested.

Farmers Receive Lime and Phosphate

Farmers participating in the 1940 Agricultural Conservation program have just received 1,099,694 tons of lime and 100,699 tons of superphosphate under the AAA grant of aid program. In Alabama 9,510 tons of liming material 1,527 tons of superphosphate have been received.

Alabama's wheat allotment under the 1941 program is 5,433 acres. The national allotment is 62,000,000 acres.

Farmers Warned Against 'Sweet Poison'

W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist, warns farmers against the "sweet poison" method of poisoning boll weevils this year.

Instead, he recommends the use of calcium arsenate after cotton squares begin to form and as soon as 10 percent of the squares are punctured.

"The number of boll weevils caused a peak last year and caused Alabama farmers a loss of at least 200 bales of cotton," he says. "However, we know from close observation that boll weevils cannot live long with winter temperature down to 10 degrees above zero. This temperature was reached in most parts of the state in January this year. This does not mean there will be no boll weevil damage this year, but it certainly does indicate that there will not be any need for early applications of poison. 'Sweet poison' can be used wisely only early or pre-square poisoning.

Roosevelt Warns Nation of Impending Peril. We Must Re-arm!

The text of the special defense message which President Roosevelt personally delivered to Congress May 16, 1940, is a warning of the most ominous days—days whose shadows and shocking developments force a neutral nation to look to its defense in the light of new factors. The great force of modern offensive war has been loosed in all its horror. New power of destruction, incredible in its swiftness and deadliness, have been developed; and those who wield them are ruthless and daring.

No old defense is so strong that it requires no further strengthening and attack is so unlikely or impossible that it may be ignored.

Let us examine, without self-deception, the dangers which confront us, measure our strength and our resources without self-delusion.

CLANTON, ALABAMA

Potential Savior of the World's Civilization. He should be kept at his post by common consent of the whole people regardless of political or other affiliation.

Our own vital interests are widespread. More than ever the protection of the whole American hemisphere against invasion or control or domination by non-American nations has the united support of the 21 American republics, including the United States. More than ever this protection calls for ready-at-hand weapons capable of great mobility because of the potential speed of modern attack.

The Atlantic and Pacific Oceans were reasonably adequate defensive barriers when fleets under sail could move at an average speed of five miles an hour. Even then by a sudden foray it was possible for opponents to actually burn our national capitol. Later the oceans still gave strength to our defense when fleets and convoys propelled by steam could sail the oceans at 15 or 20 miles an hour.

But the new element—air navigation—steps up the speed of possible attack to 200 to 300 miles an hour.

Furthermore it brings the new possibilities of the use of nearer bases from which an attack or attacks on the American continents could be made. From the fjords of Greenland it is four hours by air to Newfoundland; five hours to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec; and only six hours to New England.

Bermuda Three Hours Away

The Azores are only 2,000 Miles from parts of our Eastern Seaboard and if Bermuda fell into hostile hands it is a matter of less than three hours for modern bombers to reach our shores.

From a base in the outer West Indies the Coast of Florida could be reached in 200 minutes.

The islands off the West coast of Africa are only 1,500 miles from Brazil. Modern planes starting from the Cape Verde Islands can be over Brazil in seven hours.

And Para, Brazil, is but four flying hours to Caracas, Venezuela; and Venezuela but two hours and a half to Cuba and the Canal Zone; and Cuba and the Canal Zone are two and one-quarter hours to Tampico, Mexico; and Tampico is two and one-quarter hours to St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

On the other side of the continent, Alaska, with a white population of only 30,000 people, is within four or five hours of flying distance to Vancouver, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. The islands of the Southern Pacific are not too far removed from the West Coast of South America to prevent them from becoming bases of enormous strategic advantage to attacking forces.

Surely the developments of the past few weeks have made it clear to all of our citizens that the possibility of attack on vital American zones ought to make it essential that we have the physical, the ready ability to meet those attacks and to prevent them from reaching their objectives.

This means military implements—not on paper—which are ready and available to meet any lightning offensive against our American interest. It means also that factories for production must be ready to turn out munitions and equipment at top speed.

Aggression Is Cited

We have had the lesson before us over and over again—nations that were not ready found themselves overrun by the enemy. So-called impregnable fortifications no longer exist. A defense which allows an enemy to consolidate his approach without hindrance will lose. A defense which makes no effective effort to destroy the lines of supplies and communications of the enemy will lose.

An effective defense by its very nature requires the equipment to attack an aggressor on his route before he can establish strong bases within the territory of American vital interests.

Loose talking and thinking on the part of some may give the false impression that our own army and navy are not first-rate, or that money has been wasted on them.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

In recent years the defensive power of our army, navy and marine corps has been very greatly improved. The navy is stronger today than at any time in the nation's history. Today also a large program of new construction is well under way. Ship for ship, ours are equal to, or better than, the vessels of any foreign power.

The army likewise is at its greatest peace-time strength. Its equipment in quality and quantity has been greatly increased and improved.

The national guard and the reserve strength of the two services are better equipped and better prepared than at any other peace time period.

On the other side of the picture we must visualize the outstanding fact that since the first day of September, 1939, every week that has passed has brought new lessons learned from actual combat on land and sea.

Bomb Defense Studied

I cite examples. Where naval ships have operated without adequate protection by defending aircraft, their vulnerability to air attack has increased. All nations are hard at work studying the need of additional anti-aircraft protection.

Several months ago the use of a new type of magnetic mine made many unthinking people believe that all surface ships were doomed. Within a few weeks a successful defensive device against these mines was placed in operation; and it is a fact that the sinking of merchant ships by torpedoes, by mine or by airplane are definitely much lower than a similar period in 1915.

Combat conditions have changed even more rapidly in the air. With the amazing progress in the design of planes and engines, the airplane of a year ago is out of date now. It is too slow, it is too weak in gun power.

In types of planes we are not behind the other nations of the world. Many of the planes of the belligerent powers are at this moment not of the latest models. But one belligerent power not only has many more planes than all their opponents combined, but also appears to a weekly production capacity at the moment that is far greater than that of their opponents.

From the point of view of our own defense, therefore, great additional production capacity is our principal air requisite.

For the permanent record I ask Congress not to take any action which would in any way hamper or delay the delivery of American made planes to foreign nations which have ordered them, or seek to purchase more planes. That, from the point of view of our own national defense, would be extremely shortsighted.

During the past year American production capacity for war planes, including engines, has risen from approximately 6,000 planes a year to more than double that number, due in greater part to the placing of foreign orders.

50,000 Planes Asked

Our immediate problem is to superimpose on this production capacity. I should like to see this geared up to the ability to turn out at least 50,000 planes a year. Further more, I believe this nation should plan at this time a program that would provide us with 50,000 military and naval planes.

The ground forces of the army require the immediate speeding up of last Winter's program to procure equipment of all kinds, including motor transport and artillery, including anti aircraft guns and full ammunition supplies. It had been planned to spread these requirements over the next three or four years. We should fill them at once.

At this time I am asking the immediate appropriation by the Congress of a large sum of money for four primary purposes:

First, to procure the essential equipment of all kinds of a larger and thoroughly rounded out army.

Second, to replace or modernize all old army and navy equipment with the latest type of equipment.

Third, to increase production facilities of everything needed for the army and navy for national defense. We require the ability to turn out quickly infinitely greater supplies.

Fourth, to speed up to a 24 hour basis all existing army and navy contracts and all new contracts to be awarded.

I ask for an immediate appropriation of $896,000,000, divided approximately as follows:

1. For the army, $546,000,000.
2. For the navy and Marine Corps, $250,000,000.
3. To the president to provide for emergencies affecting the national security and defence, $100,000,000.

Authorization Asked

In addition to the above sum I ask for authorizations for the army, navy and Marine corps to make contract obligations in the further sum of $186,000,000.

And to the president an additional authorization to make contract obligations for $100,000,000.

The total of authorizations is, therefore $286,000,000.

It is my belief that a large part of the requested appropriation of $100,000,000, and the requested authorization of the increase, anti-aircraft guns and the training of additional weapons. This would be in addition to the direct estimates for these purposes in the other items requested.

The proposed details of the appropriation and authorization asked for will be given to the committees of the congress.

These estimates do not, of course, duplicate any item now in the pending war and navy appropriation bills for the year 1941. Nor do they include supplemental or deficiency estimates which may become necessary by reason of pending legislation or shortage of funds under existing programs.

There are some who say that democracy cannot cope with the new techniques of government developed in recent years by a few countries—by a few countries which deny the freedom which we maintain are essential to our democratic way of life. This I reject.

I know that our trained officers and I men know more about fighting and the weapons and equipment needed for fighting than of us laymen; and I have confidence in them.

I know that to cope with the present dangers we must be strong in heart and hand! strong in our faith—strong in faith in our way of living.

Tough Fiber Needed

I too, pray for peace—that the way of aggression and force may be banished from the earth—but I am determined to face the fact realistically that this nation requires a toughness of moral and physical fiber. Those qualities, I am convinced, the American people hold a high degree.

Our task is plain. The road we must take it clearly indicated.

Shares Milk Checks With Tenants

Auburn's L. O. Brackeen sends out this story of how one Alabama farmer is helping to solve in a practical way the farm tenant dilemma:

One large Alabama landowner furnishes the feed, pasture, barns and cows and gives the tenant one-fourth of the milk check for looking after and milking the herd.

Eight units of 30 cows each are being kept on the farm and each tenant is getting between $300 and $400 per year in addition to the cotton he produces on halves.

"MY BREAD and BUTTER"

RETAIL beer dealers have their troubles when inconsiderate patrons seek to violate ABC laws prohibiting sale to persons visibly intoxicated.

When this situation arose recently in a North Alabama beer outlet, the owner tactfully told the patron:

"I know you wouldn't like for me to make you lose your job. Well, this business is my job. It's my bread and butter. If I sell you beer when you come here visibly intoxicated, I'll lose my license. And that means lose my job. I know you wouldn't want to do that to me."

That type of retailer deserves your patronage. Help us in our "clean up or close up" campaign by refraining from asking retail beer dealers to violate the ABC law. Thanks!

A Seething Hell On Earth!

Since the last issue of Chilton County News, the most terrific, devastating slaughter of humans and property in the history of man-made war, has taken place in northwestern Belgium and northeastern France next to the English Channel.

The German juggernaut has lumbered all the way across the northern end of France to the Straits of Dover, crushing everything as it went. Although the French, British and Belgians have contested every inch of the way. What the outcome will be no one can even guess. No one has ever seen anything like it in warfare. As you read this the German leviathans of the air may be pounding into powder London and Paris.

The end is not yet. England and France have been equal to every emergency in the past, and the hell-made holocaust will continue its searing, perhaps unto exhaustion.

A Salute To Chilton County

Doyle L. Buckles, field manager of the Alabama Press Association, comments favorably on Chilton County officials' plan of keeping the public informed as to what the tax payers' money is spent for thus:

"We Salute Chilton County! Yes, indeed, Editor 'Tucker' has reasons for being proud of the financial condition of Chilton County, and the nine page itemized statement of the County Treasurer. Such publicity of expenditures is the best investment that a county can make in the interest of better and more efficient local government. If all local governmental units gave such a regular public accounting there would be a marked decrease in the cost of local government."

The New Busses

Our Superintendent and County School Board cannot be commended too highly for discarding the ramshackle and dangerous vehicles that have been in use a long time, and have served well their purpose, and replacing them with new all-steel body busses that will afford greater safety and comfort for Chilton County's school children.

It is indeed time to know that while millions of children, women and men are being slaughtered and driven from their homes by Europe's madness that here in Chilton County members of our school board are deeply interested in saving the life and limb of even one child.

Don't Lose Your Head

Of all times, right now, we of Uncle Sam's household should keep our shirts on, and not lose our heads.

A few weeks ago Chilton County News pointed out that the "build-up" for putting the U. S. into Europe's War was the same as that of the first World War. Since that writing the "build-up" has been intensified greatly—in fact it is reaching the "blitzkrieg" stage. The Airplane builders, the ship builders and other furnishers of war materials are far more interested in stock dividends than they are in how few will come back from the armies that are sent to die the fighting.

President Roosevelt's fine speech to a joint session of Congress on the acuteness of the situation appears on another page. He, more than any other man in the whole world, is in a position to know real facts as related to our own safety. He urges that every force at our command be put to work as fast as possible for the making secure our own country.

There is a very great difference between the President's calm warning of a very real danger confronting the United States, and the frenzied ballyhoo of those who would profit by plunging this nation into the European madstrom.

Right now is the time when we nephews of Uncle Sam should keep our shirts on and not lose our heads.

Lions and Lambs Lie Down Together

The United States of America knows no politics when the well-being of the Western Hemisphere is endangered.

While the whole of western Europe is mowing furiously as a result of the most devastating war thus far known to man, cool heads in the United States are quietly making plans for the preservation of American ideals and the safety of all America.

Leaders in a coalition for arming the United States against foreign aggression are President Roosevelt, Democrat; former President Hoover, Alf

Landon former presidential nominee and Col. Frank Knox, former vice-presidential nominee all Republicans. This is ample proof to the world that this nation, whatever the outcome across the sea may be, is united as one mind insofar as the determination to preserve and protect our Western ideals is concerned.

Alabama Editors Going Places

The Board of Strategy of the Alabama Press Association has decreed that, come what may, the editors of Alabama must quit their work (that is those who work), turn all their troubles over to the "devil" the third week in July and join the editorial caravan which proposes to travel about a bit and take a look into things to see whether or not "weans" who have been telling it to the world" have been altogether truthful.

Nothing could be finer than for the editorial eye of the State to give the glorious natural beauties of this God-given inheritance the once over. They will go back home with first hand facts that nowhere in all the world is there a better, more beautiful or more substantial social and political unit to be found.

Scientist Develops New Skin Test for Cancer

Dr. Benjamin Gruskin, director of oncology (tumor and cancer research) and experimental pathology at Temple Medical school in Philadelphia, has developed a simple skin test for cancer.

Revelation of the new cancer test was made when Dr. Gruskin filed for patent rights, thereby acknowledging apparent success for his discovery.

The test, which was reported successful in 90 per cent of cases attempted, consists merely of injecting a specially prepared fluid under the epidermis, or outer skin. The fluid is processed from tissues of embryo of calves, sheep or pigs.

If a person is cancerous in some part of the body, the section of the skin where the fluid was injected will turn a telltale red, according to the test. The wheel will then push out thin projections, or pseudopodia (false feet).

However, if the skin does not change color, and the pseudopodia do not appear, the person is not suffering a cancerous condition, the test showed.

Dr. Gruskin described his experiment in the Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine.

He explained that cancer cells are skin to normal cells but never "grow up" and remain in an embryonic state which causes them to grow wild instead of becoming useful tissue.

The whole body becomes sensitive to that type of cell, the article said, and so, if outside embryonic cell material is injected the skin reacts and produces pseudopodia.

A similar test can also be performed on the blood if the skin is unhealthy, according to the Temple scientist.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

And it came to pass that a preacher friend of mine wrote a hundred letters to his brethren in the ministry, asking for certain information that vitalize the spirituality of their congregations. After weeks of waiting he received ten replies in return. Another preacher friend had occasion to write eighty letters to his comrades in the ministry, asking for information that would help him in increasing their salaries, and in less than a week he had seventy-eight replies. Verily, verily, I say unto you that as I compare the two efforts, it seems to me that preachers are more concerned about an increase in salary than they are about the salvation of the lost. Peradventure, this is one of the sad reflections that arises among the ministry of today.

An auctioneer held up an old battered violin with a smile he asked, "Who will start the bidding?" "One dollar, two dollars" came quickly, but no other bids were made. The violin was about to be sold when an old gray-haired man arose in the back of the building and came down to the stage.

Before noon everyone talked and sang in groups and family quartets. At noon lunch was served in picnic fashion under the trees with plenty for everyone.

After lunch the old people talked over old times while the younger ones went on picture making excursions to the Rock Narrows near Birmingham.

Later in the afternoon everyone started for home, looking forward with eagerness to the time when they would go again in the coming year.

Another 'Tame' Robin

Mrs. Carl G. Hall, West Hartford, Conn., nursed an injured robin to health and the bird adopted her home as its own. The robin likes to fly around in the trees nearby, but when she whistles it dashes back into the house through an open window.

Taking the violin tenderly in his hands he brushed off the dust, tightened the strings and drew his bow. Then he played music that was like the singing of angels. The auctioneer received the violin into his hands and then he cried "Who bids?" "One thousand, two thousand, three thousand" came quickly from the audience as they wept and cheered. What had changed the worth of that battered violin? It was the touch of a Master's hand. Many a man with his life out of tune, all battered and broken on account of sin, is auctioned off very cheap to a thoughtless crowd, much like the old violin. When Jesus touches human life, it is made to vibrate with music and value.

Our hearts bleed for Finland because of what they have had to experience in recent months. They are strictly honest, having paid their war debt to us with a smile. They never lock doors at night. If a purse is found containing money, it is nailed to a tree to await the coming of its owner.

Fins were the first to adopt national prohibition. They love learning, and have more published books and University students than any other nation.

They refuse to make a fuss over their virtues that make them great people. Some day Russia will repent in ashes for the way she has trampled this great people in the dust. "Chickens will come home to roost." "Be sure your sins will find you out."

One Sunday morning a noted Theological teacher shared his seat with a little lad, who carried his Bible in his hand. "Going to Sunday School?" inquired the learned man. "Yes Sir" politely replied the lad. "Tell me, my boy, continued the man, thinking to have some fun off the lad, "Tell me where God is and I will give you an apple."

This time the boy looked up sharply at the man and replied, "I will give you where he is not." The big professor changed the subject. The big shot got a whole barrel of apples if you will m. his dose from a small gun.

Just now the papers are full of discussions of how to balance the national debt. No nation can hope to go on indefinitely, ever increasing the national debt, but that is not the only question of balancing that the individual needs to face. Personally, the most of us are making an effort to balance our financial budgets, but not many of us are trying hard to balance our lives. I know a young man who is running himself into the red because he spends too much time on the links. I know a young matron who is leaving her home to rags and tags because she spends too much time on bridge parties. I know a preacher who spends his time trying to help other children while his own are going wrong. Anyone who tries to live alone in this world, is sure to live in a very poor world. It pays to balance your life, your interest of all kinds, so that you can live a well balanced life. If you believe in a national balanced budget, then balance your own affairs.

I know a young matron who is leaving her home to rags and tags because she spends too much time on bridge parties. I know a preacher who spends his time trying to help other children while his own are going wrong. Anyone who tries to live alone in this world, is sure to live in a very poor world. It pays to balance your life, your interest of all kinds, so that you can live a well balanced life. If you believe in a national balanced budget, then balance your own affairs.

One Sunday morning a noted Theological teacher shared his seat with a little lad, who carried his Bible in his hand. "Going to Sunday School?" inquired the learned man. "Yes Sir" politely replied the lad. "Tell me, my boy, continued the man, thinking to have some fun off the lad, "Tell me where God is and I will give you an apple."

This time the boy looked up sharply at the man and replied, "I will give you where he is not." The big professor changed the subject. The big shot got a whole barrel of apples if you will m. his dose from a small gun.

Just now the papers are full of discussions of how to balance the national debt. No nation can hope to go on indefinitely, ever increasing the national debt, but that is not the only question of balancing that the individual needs to face. Personally, the most of us are making an effort to balance our financial budgets, but not many of us are trying hard to balance our lives. I know a young man who is running himself into the red because he spends too much time on the links. PAUL BUNYAN, legendary hero of the North, celebrated his birthday early in the Spring whenever the ice goes out of the northern rivers and logs begin to move toward the mills. In the above photo he is straddling the American and Canadian side, watching over the insulate and the Minnesota and Ontario Mills located at International Falls, Minnesota, and Fort Frances, Ontario, Canada. Beneath him is the Rainy River which provides the raw material for the manufacture of insulate and newspaper. In real life Paul is Len Costley, veteran of 40 years of logging experience.

THE young manager of the gown shop looked at the display-room with knitted brows.
Daphne, the model, giggled. "The boss is grouchy about something, Irene. Better not sit down."
Irene, smoothing the frill on a gown that had just been tried on, looked up. Daphne was certainly lovely. At that moment Jim Carlson saw them talking.

"Please keep at work, Miss Irene," he snapped. "The overhead here is getting beyond reason. Have you stitched the fur on that rest gown yet?"
Irene shook her head. "I can do that now," she replied.

"Do so," he looked at Daphne, who was standing at the end of a mirror in a sinuous wrap faced with ermine. "That's a good idea," he praised, "show off the goods and attract attention, Miss Daphne. That wrap makes you look like a queen."

Irene found that her vision was blurred by a mist of tears, and she bent over her stitching. She wasn't envious of Daphne's beauty—at least she didn't want to be, but she, too, would have liked to swim about in the exquisite creations that so enchanted the models' heads. Irene's fragile prettiness. "How I'd love to try the scarlet chiffon," thought Irene, "and the black feather cape. I'd look a bit different."

But Irene might as well have wished to have the sun bend down suddenly and hand her a bit of magic fire, for Daphne was the princess of the showroom and she only wore the lustrous silk underthings and the imported gowns. And Jim, the man Irene secretly adored, looked at the outer husk of Daphne and admired her.
"This turquoise velvet must be marked down. The sun has faded it. Take $20 off it and hang it on the rack, Miss Irene, and put the rose and gold satin in the window."
Irene obeyed. Then she stood a moment in the great show-window looking at the gay garments in the display. She was thinking deeply and failed to notice that a man had paused outside and was staring at her. It wasn't until Daphne's high voice shrilled out that she started.

"Look at Irene, Mr. Carlson. She's trying to cut me out as a manikin. I guess she's got the prize in there in that serge frock. She ruins our artistic picture, don't you think?"
"Come out of there," ordered Jim, "and help Miss Daphne into this transparent velvet."
As Irene glanced at Daphne in the little changing alcove Daphne glared at her. "Don't you try anything funny, Irene. That is my man out there and I won't have you posturing about to attract him."
"Mr. Carlson?" demanded Irene, amazed.

"No. The man in the street. He was watching you in the show-window. Jim Carlson is just about to fail. I'm leaving at the end of this week. I don't intend to wait until I have a salary due that I can't collect."
A young girl with her mother entered, and asked to see the scarlet chiffon dance frock. Jim was out and the slim little gown was too small for either of the other clerks, so Irene put it on.
Jim, hurrying in, paused. Irene, flushed with excitement, was moving idly toward the strip of velvet carpet, her dusky head shining above her white shoulders.

"We have a feathered wrap that looks well over this," Irene was saying. "It's lined with scarlet chiffon. Bring it, Mabs," she directed in her low, soft voice.
When the purchases were completed and the shoppers gone Jim looked at Irene as she emerged from the changing alcove in her new dress. Facing east, her window gets the sun and the awnings flirts at neck and wrists. "You did wonderfully well to sell that outfit, Miss Irene. Funny I never noticed before how low—" he checked himself, flushing.

Irene felt a surge of joy.
"Suppose you model instead of that blonde girl."

"Very well," said Irene, not troubling to tell him that Daphne was leaving in two days anyway. "Mr. Carlson, I've been thinking about the losses you stand because of window display. Facing east, our window gets the sun and the awnings flirts at neck and wrists. "You did wonderfully well to sell that outfit, Miss Irene. Funny I never noticed before how low—" he checked himself, flushing.

"That's a good idea. Would you be willing to stay tonight and fix it up? We could go out and get a bit more here and come back."
When they returned Irene arranged a background of pale ivory and across a low gilt chair she arranged a sumptuous wrap of black transparent velvet. The effect was stunning, and there was nothing to be spoiled there.

MRS. GRADY HEFLIN HOSTESS TO STUDY CLUB

Mrs. Grady Heflin was hostess to the Study club for final meeting of the club year 1939-40 on May 3rd. During the business session the P-T-A. committee recommended that members cooperate with the garden project of the Clanton Grammar School by donating jars for canning the produce. Mrs. J. W. Hayes announced the Betty Joyce Smith received the Jesse Chandler Memorial Award, consisting of a copy of Charles Dickens, Tale of Two Cities. Mrs. John Higgins was elected a member of the club.
The program comprised two features, a completion of the years study on the South and an observation of National Poetry and music week. The response to roll call was most interesting as members contributed items on music and poetry. Mrs. J. E. Gowan gave a very comprehensive review of Journey Proud, a novel, depicting ante-bellum Virginia, written by Thomasine McGee, a native of Montgomery, Alabama. A musical program was presented by the following young artists of Clanton: Helen Hayes, Sallie Gowan, Jean Mullins and Henry Grady Heflin.
The hostess served delicious refreshments to the sixteen members and several guests present. An out of town guest was Mrs. H. H. Keynton of Montgomery, Ala.

This year's graduating class, numbering 160 students from every section of Alabama, is the largest in the history of Alabama College, Montevallo.

New Bridge Will Be Dedicated Tomorrow At Selma

MT. CARMEL

Brother Reuben Bearden of Maplesville will preach here 2nd Sunday in June. Come hear this devout man who is young in ministerial service.

Mr. Tooley Jarrett of Montgomery is visiting relatives here this week.

Mr. Odie Sewell is suffering with a bruised foot, which happened to be hurt as he was changing tires on a truck in Clanton last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Oden went to Stanton with Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sewell Sunday afternoon to see Mr. C. R. Sewell who has been ill for several weeks, and is expecting to go to the Veterans Hospital in Tuscaloosa within the next few days.

Mr. Lum Williams went to Tuskegee Sunday, where he is employed.

Mr. Ira Whately is improving.

Mrs. Hattie Lenoir and family visited her sister Mrs. Will Burks at Fairview Sunday. Dorothy Williams went with them.

Mrs. Silas Oden spent Tuesday of last week with Mrs. H. R. Oden of Isabella.

Mrs. Maudie Mims of Highland visited her Mother Mrs. Foshee here on Sunday.

We are glad of the generous offering Sunday for the orphans home.

Mr. J. C. Scott is confined to his home with the mumps this week.

The massive Edmund Pettus Bridge, over the Alabama River on U. S. Highway No. 80 at Selma, constructed by the State Highway Department at a total cost of $863,000, which will be formally dedicated with impressive ceremonies on Friday May 24, the celebration program to continue through May 25.

Inset, under arch in bridge picture, is reproduced photograph of the late former U. S. Senator Edmund W. Pettus of Selma, in whose honor the bridge is named. A Lieutenant in the Mexican War and a General in the Confederate Army in the War Between the States, during which he commanded a celebrated Combat Division made up entirely of his fellow Alabamians, General Pettus served continuously as United States Senator from Alabama from March 4, 1897, until his death July 27, 1907. Lawyer, Soldier, Statesman and Patriot, his career as a leader in both war and peace is one of the most notable and distinguished in the history of his native State.

Those whose photographs appear immediately above are left to right: Bridge Engineer J. P. Trotter of the State Highway Department, who had general supervision of the preparation of the plans for the new bridge, and execution of the project. Gov. Frank M. Dixon who, as the Chief Executive of the State, expedited in every way possible completion of the bridge. State Highway Director, Chris J. Sherrill, over whose desk came, for approval, all bridge plans and the carrying out of those plans, including every item of cost as well as every engineering detail connected with its construction, and who has consistently speeded up work on the badly needed project so that it could be opened to motor traffic at the earliest possible date. H. K. Stephenson, bridge designer for the Highway Department, and a native of Selma, who had personal charge of designing and preparation of all plans and specifications for the huge structure soon to be opened to the public.

A historical pageant and celebration opening Edmund Pettus Bridge will be held at Selma May 24th and 25th.

How The Sixth District Can Help America In the Perilous Days Just Ahead

War clouds hang menacingly over the entire world. The tangible, imminent dangers of the foreign situation were brought closer to us by President Roosevelt's address to the Congress and the American people. Now, more than at any time in recent years, can the people of our District best serve themselves and the nation, by retaining as your Representative a man who has the experience, the balanced mind and the real desire to serve you, and through you, the nation.

As a veteran of the World War I know what the horrors of armed conflict can mean, and I intend, as your Representative in Congress, to exert every human means to protect this country and keep it in secure, honorable peace. My experience and my membership on the Foreign Affairs Committee have afforded me the opportunity to do effective work for peace, and I have consistently advocated a strong national defense system as insurance against attack. Last Fall when this country was in danger of being drawn into the European conflict because of laws inadequate to cope with the situation, I worked as a Member of the Foreign Affairs Committee in revising and passing the Neutrality Bill, designed to keep America out of war. I made several speeches on the floor of the House, advocating the adoption of our revised Bill, and my work on this Committee prompted an invitation by the National Broadcasting Company to speak over a nation wide hook-up.

BUT THE JOB HAS ONLY JUST BEGUN. Even now tanks rumble over neutral countries; innocent people are drawn into the maelstrom, lives are sacrificed; mother's tears are shed over maimed bodies of sons and fathers.

No war resolution can come to the House for a vote without the approval of the Foreign Affairs Committee; further legislation to protect this nation's interests will be drawn up by this Committee and steered through the House by its members; additional laws designed to keep this nation out of the conflict that now rages will be prepared by our Committee members.

You, the people of the Sixth District share both the honor and the responsibility of my membership on the Foreign Affairs Committee. You share the honor because it is now the most important in the House. You share the responsibility to the nation to keep the experienced, careful, safe membership of this committee intact.

In this day of terrible uncertainty when, even as this is written, plans may be under way for a continuous Congressional session on war problems, I ask your support, your active efforts and your vote in returning me to Congress. I promise to remain worthy of your confidence in these perilous times.

Respectfully your friend,
Pete Jarman

Jemison Independents Elect New Officers

The Jemison Independent baseball club held a meeting on May 17, and elected following officers for the coming season: Fred Smith, manager; Ras Langston, official umpire; Glenn Green, official score keeper; and Doris Jean Smith, secretary-treasurer.

The team played their first game at Clanton CCC camp Saturday, May 18, began to click with some nice fielding. After getting off to a slow start they including two double plays.

The first lead of 6 runs gained in the first two innings proved too much to overcome and they met defeat by score of 7 to 6. They open the season at home Saturday, May 25 with CCC Camp.

Veteran of A. E. F. Recalls of Once Arresting Hitler

Picked Up Fuehrer When He Started a Small Riot in 'Occupied Territory.'

SARANAP, CALIF.—Carroll Boswell, assistant city engineer, is glad that he is an American citizen and is back in the United States instead of being back in what was known as the "occupied territory" of Germany after the World war.

The reason is that Boswell and his one-time buddy in the A. E. F. had occasion once to arrest Adolf Hitler.

Boswell saw a year's action in France with the Company F of the Fifteenth infantry. He was wounded and gassed but after his recovery served another year and a half with the American army of occupation in the Rhineland. It was at Mayen in October, 1920, that he and Corporal Jeffries of the same company arrested Hitler when the latter was an obscure agitator.

"The American army of occupation at Mayen," Boswell said, "was at one time left alone to police the entire city, which has 50,000 inhabitants, while other Allied contingents went to stimulate war maneuvers near the Polish front, but which in reality was intended as an effort to halt the Russians who were then threatening to move in through Poland on an armyless Germany."

Guarded Munitions Stores.

"We had a big job on our hands, because in addition to policing the city in general, we were charged with the protection of the bridgeheads and the ammunition stores. The result was that any agitator that showed up usually got short shrift."

Corporal Jeffries and I were on our round of duties through the city that evening when we passed the Hofbrau, one of the city's 'hot spots.'"

"It was usually going full blast till one or two in the morning, but this evening, although it was 8:30, all the windows were shuttered and the door was locked."

"We peeked in through a broken shutter and saw a slim, youthful appearing man on the platform and about 125 people listening."

"Suddenly, a one-armed man, who, we learned later, was an ex-major in the German army, picked up a wine bottle and threw it at the speaker, knocking him off the platform. A riot started at once."

"We knew the place and its surroundings well, as we had been at Mayen for a year, and when we saw the speaker dive for the rear door, which we knew opened on a narrow alley, we dashed for it, stationing ourselves one on each side."

Hitler Not Armed.

"Then as the man dashed by we stuck out our feet and tripped him up. He was unarmed, so we merely trussed up his arms and turned him over to the provost officer."

"Before the military police he gave his name as 'Adolf Hitler' and at once launched into a long tirade."

"The next day Hitler was turned over to the German civilian police and they kept him moving from city to city, wherever he provoked a riot, while all the military police were notified to pick him up at any time and turn him over to the local German authorities."

"Two months afterward I was returned to the United States and to my home at Oakland, and never heard of Adolf Hitler again until his name began to appear in the news in 1936."

Boswell said that while Hitler was making his Mayen speech he still talked in the accent of his native Austria. He had his "toothbrush" mustache at that time, too.

Only Hardy Skiers Dare Use Skipping Ski-Plane

ST. GALLEN, SWITZERLAND.—The St. Gallen Aero club operates a mountain skipping skiplane for skiers only.

Their special plane leaves airports near the railroad and flies in commercial air lines and skims across snow-covered Alps, which few commercial planes would risk crossing to the ski resorts of the Engadine.

It is equipped with landing skis and has room only for the pilot, two passengers and three pairs of skis. The extra pair is for the pilot—just in case.

The plane's top speed is 112 miles per hour and it can land on any flat stretch of ground over 40 yards in length—which is a good thing in Alpine country.

Stephen Decatur Trophy Is Found in Pawnshop

WASHINGTON.—A silver goblet awarded to Stephen Decatur, naval hero of the War of 1812, has turned up here in a pawnshop where it was left as security for a 50-cent loan.

Detectives making a routine check of pawnshops found the cup recently. It is inscribed: "By the citizens of Philadelphia to their townsman, Commodore Stephen Decatur. Estimated for his virtue, honored for his valor."

A "Mr. Johnson" had "hooked" the cup and given what the police discovered was a fictitious address. They had no record of the goblet's having been stolen.

Child's Amazing Gift of Prophecy Intrigues Science

Tiny Girl Predicted War in Europe and Many Other Events.

NEW YORK.—Prophecies so accurate as to impress scientists are coming these days from the bright lips of Faith Hope Charity Harding, 4½ years old, of Trucksville, Pa., fourth and youngest child of Harry Harding, manufacturer and salesman.

Faith's oracular powers have won the interest of Dr. J. B. Rhine of Duke university in North Carolina, whose experiments in extrasensory perception have attracted international attention. The psychologist has asked for a record of the child's predictions, which include the war in Europe, the Hitler-Stalin pact, and the attack on the duchess of Kent, not to mention the schoolhouse fire in her native Trucksville.

First Prediction.

The child first disclosed her gift when, barely 18 months old, she sat on her mother's lap in the office of Attorney Jercehek in Wilkes-Barre and said:

"Mummy, Frank McWiggin is dead."

"I didn't know what Faith was talking about," Mrs. Harding said. "Then I realized she was speaking of a family friend who had drawn up the incorporation papers for my husband's business. She was so insistent that I went to the phone and called Mr. McWiggin's office. They told me he had gone to New York and would be back Saturday."

Next day the Hardings learned that Mr. McWiggin had fallen dead in the Pennsylvania hotel in New York.

Mrs. Harding, prematurely white haired and dressed in simple black, recounted Faith's revelations while the child played about.

"A week before Richard Halliburton left China Faith suddenly warned us that he must not sail on the junk," said Mrs. Harding. "She told us waves would engulf him if he did. It was all Greek to us. We didn't even know who Halliburton was until we read later in the papers that he was missing."

From what her mother says Faith knows even less than her parents about these prophecies. Five minutes after she has uttered them she can't repeat a single word of what she has said. Mrs. Harding, or any one else handy, takes them down.

Often they come in the middle of the night.

"I've got so now," said Mrs. Harding, "that when Faith's predictions seem important I have them notarized so that we may check up systematically later."

Wants to Be Magician.

Faith, a thin, brown-eyed child with an elfin smile, speaks in a baby voice and declares she has no knowledge of these predictions. When interviewed in New York Faith insisted that when she grew up she wanted to wear a green silk dress and be a magician. Her mother was out of the room.

"I don't think Faith has ever used the word 'magician' before," said Mrs. Harding when she returned and was told of the conversation. Asked what the word meant, Faith shook her head and skipped off.

"She has different phases of consciousness about all this," Mrs. Harding explained. "As a rule the most important prophecies come to her at night. She may be almost awake, in a trance, or just on the borderline. Whoever she speaks through calls herself an entity. Often she uses words I've never heard and usually talks in archaic English."

Train of Glass

A railroad train, the coaches of which were constructed entirely of glass between wheels and roof, recently left Liverpool, England, on a tour of important cities of England, Scotland and Wales to demonstrate the possibilities of glass for construction, home building and equipment.

It required more than 120,000 pieces of special glass to construct the exterior of the train. The interior even had a glass bathroom. Manufactured by a Lancashire firm of glass makers, the train was equipped with practically every known product of the glass-making industry.

Fastest Growing City

Houston, Texas, lays claim to the title of the South's fastest-growing community as publishers of a new city directory listed a population of 421,617, a gain of 38,865 since 1938. Births in Houston averaged 19.39 a thousand population during the last year and deaths 11.58 a thousand.

THE FORD WAY OF DOING BUSINESS

The Ford Motor Company was founded by a working-man for working-men. Its present officers began as employees of the Company. It was the first company to pay a minimum wage, beginning in 1914, at the then astounding figure of $3 a day. That was double the prevailing wage of the time. The Ford minimum is now $6 a day for all employees engaged in production work. And from that, the wages rise to $10.80 a day, with the average wage $7.25, exclusive of salaried employees.

The Ford Motor Company was the first large company to establish the 8-hour day—also in 1914. And the 40-hour week was inaugurated by the Ford Motor Company in 1926, years before any such laws existed.

The Ford Motor Company employs men without regard to race, creed or color. It is common knowledge that working conditions in the Ford shops are the best that science and constant care can make them. A square deal, a just wage and stabilized employment for a large proportion of our employees—and as fully stabilized for all as conditions will permit—enable our men to retain their personal independence.

In consequence of these policies the Ford Motor Company has one of the finest bodies of employees in the world. The larger proportion are mature men of long service with the Company—sober, decent family men. Hundreds of them have been with the Company for more than 25 years—thousands for more than 15 years. Their health record, home ownership and citizenship records are good.

All this is reflected in Ford products, whether cars, trucks or tractors. The work is honestly done. Materials are the best that can be made or procured. Less profit to the Company and more value to the customer is known throughout the motoring world as "Ford's way of doing business."

Ford Motor Company was the first to make a motor car within the means of the average family—quitting the manufacture of what was then the largest selling model in the world to do so. Its chosen field in all the 30 years since that time has been the average American family—for which it has consistently provided car facilities which formerly only the wealthy could buy.

It is the policy of the Ford Motor Company to share the benefits of advanced methods and management with workers and public alike. Increased wages and employment over a period of many years have resulted in

A 300 per cent increase in the built-in value of the Ford car and a 75 per cent reduction in its price.

Henry Ford and Edsel Ford keep daily personal touch with all phases of Ford manufacture. In a conference with his staff, Henry Ford often says: "Go ahead—I'll sit here and represent the public."

STRENGTHEN YOUR CONGRESS

This year the people of the United States elect a President. We don't know who he will be, but we do know that he can be successful only if he has a strong Congress to work with him. A strong President can accomplish nothing if we have a weak Congress; a weak President's mistakes can be prevented by a strong Congress.

The problems of the nation and of the Sixth District require the full time service of an able, alert, aggressive representative. We know Billy Partlow to be such a man. We know him to be a determined fighter, a true friend, and a staunch advocate of Peace. His work for farm legislation, for education, for national defense and for the public welfare will always be uppermost in his mind. He will secure committee appointments which offer opportunities for service to his district and not chairmanships of minor committees which are of no value to his people. His appointments will be made from qualified voters of the Sixth District who are not members of his own family.

Police Say Youth, 16,

Never Has Worn Shoes

FRESNO, CALIF.—A 16-year-old youth, arrested for a minor crime, according to police, apparently had never worn shoes. Officers said the youth was identified as a sneak thief by footprints found near homes that had been entered. The youth's feet, the police record said, were "tough, calloused and dirty."

New Driver Takes Spin for Practice

Then Suddenly Many Things Begin to Happen.

NEW YORK.—Philip Zampemma, 28 years old, of Brooklyn, who is just learning to drive an automobile, started out to get some practice at the wheel.

At about the same time, Mrs. Rose Gerace, who operates a grocery in Brooklyn, put her two-year-old son, Alfred, in front of the door of her store with the stern admonition that he stay right there and play.

Then things began to happen. Zampemma's car got out of control and smashed through the front of Mrs. Gerace's store.

The car overturned a counter piled high with foodstuffs.

The counter overturned a kerosene stove.

The overturned stove splashed oil over the Gerace puppy.

The oil caught fire, and the puppy became a bundle of flame.

The dog leaped into a pile of papers, setting the store afire.

Mrs. Gerace mistook the dog's cries for her baby's screams.

She faintly and struck her head on the floor.

Firemen put out the fire.

An ambulance surgeon bound up Mrs. Gerace's head.

A policeman shot the dog to end its suffering.

Another policeman gave Zampemma a summons to traffic court.

And Alfred, the baby, who had disobeyed his mother's instructions to stay where she had put him and had toddled into another doorway nearby, wasn't hurt a bit.

Pet Fox Liked Treatment

But Preferred Freedom

NEW BRITAIN, CONN.—The call of the wild proved too strong for "Reddy," pet fox of Dr. Robert J. Stadler.

Stadler found the animal when it was a few days old and suffering a severe leg injury. The fox responded to kind treatment and learned to make its way around on three legs. But when the door of its cage was accidentally left open "Reddy" scampered off into the woods.

Volunteer Firefighters To Be Organized

W. L. Shaddix of Winston County, representing the Southern States Forest Fire Commission was in Clanton and other Chilton County points last week conferring with land owners and educational authorities in the interest of a fall campaign to enroll all boys of the County in the Volunteer Forest Fire Fighters. Membership together with forestry literature is free to boys under 21, Mr. Shaddix stated.

The plan to reduce forest fire losses is on the old time town Volunteer Fire Department.

The Commission is conducting an extensive campaign to have forest fires featured as a citizenship project by the schools of the state next year, and to help distribute forestry literature to residents of woodland areas of the state.

This organization sponsors extensive nation-wide broadcasts on forest fires, including programs over "Grand Ole Opry" in Nashville.

All expenses of the organization is borne by land owners who are paid members, Mr. Shaddix stated. A number of Chilton County land owners have become members of the Commission this year.

Each Junior Volunteer fire department organized are to elect their fire chiefs, fire wardens, and other officers—the plan being to effect a sort of rural boy scouts work. These organizations meet at regular intervals, prepare maps of any burnt over woodlands and submit to the Commission headquarters.

The headquarters of the organization is at Room 205, Hillman Hotel, Birmingham.

C. W. Webb Speaks To Clanton Lions

C. W. Webb, district field director of Lions International paid the Clanton Lions Club a visit last Friday night. He was accompanied by Mrs. Webb. During his address Mr. Webb stated that International was well satisfied with the progress of four local Clubs and predicted great things and much good from us.

On the same program was Assistant District Governor Powell, Probate Judge of Walker County who made a fine talk.

Earl Andrews, well known to the citizens of Clanton talked to the Club on "Happiness."

Miss Anne Saxon, of Thorsby contributed several numbers to the program and was very much enjoyed by the guest and members.

Lion A. B. Foshee was in charge of the program.

Jimmie Bell spent Monday and Tuesday of last week in Birmingham attending a convention of Hardware dealers.

JEMISON BASEBALL TEAM WINS OVER C C C CAMP

On May 25, the Jemison Independent Baseball team opened their season at home by defeating the Clanton C C C Camp with a score of 16 to 8. Although the score was tied in the early part of the game, nice pitching by Cofer and Bean and close cooperation of the rest of the team made them the winners. The team played the Draper Baseball Club on Sunday, May 26 at Speigner Alabama. Although Cobb pitched a wonderful game for Jemison, the team suffered a defeat by a score of 7 to 5. After the game the boys enjoyed a good supper served by the Draper Club. Jemison played at Randolph, Saturday June 1, and at Clanton C C C Camp on June 2.

"Unto the Least of These"

The Call Comes Clear And Plain---Help Us Or We Perish

RED CROSS, THROUGH EXPLICIT FAITH IN YOUR AND MY GENEROSITY SAYS: "WE ARE COMING." WE MUST NOT FAIL

As a result of the terrible slaughter and destruction in Holland and Belgium within the past two weeks, the most urgent call, perhaps in its history, comes to each of us from the American Red Cross to aid in providing succor for Millions of helpless, naked and hungry individuals who have been ruthlessly driven from their homes through no fault of their own.

An enthusiastic meeting was held at Exchange Hotel Tuesday night, with Dr. C. O. Lawrence presiding. Organization of working committees was promptly accomplished, and other means of quickly providing funds through solicitation was discussed and arranged for.

Members of these committees will become active at once in Clanton, Thorsby, Verbena, Jemison, Maplesville and other localities in the County.

When you are called upon contribute promptly and liberally. If you are not called upon do not hesitate, but send your contribution direct to Dr. C. O. Lawrence, or to your county bank and it will be forwarded promptly to local Red Cross headquarters.

The president of the United States has said that this appeal was most urgent and asked that everyone give as liberally as they feel they could.

So let your conscience be your guide---and DO IT NOW.

A number of ladies will be soliciting on the streets of Clanton throughout the day Saturday. When you meet one of these don't fail to give your bit---remembering that every penny of it will go to helping someone who, though they may not see or know you, are pitifully calling to you for help.

RED CROSS APPEAL

Again our world is threatened by the presence of war that has lifted its hate-filled, hostile, inhuman head above the battlements of peace. Following the mad, murderous and mechanical devastation of modern war, millions in Europe will find themselves homeless and almost hopeless. Hopeless indeed, unless perhaps the friendly hands of the American Red Cross can bring hope and temporary help. Regardless of which of the combatants is the victor in arms, the only sure thing is that famine will ride the winds of Europe. In peace and in war, the Red Cross can help. She will need strong hands now and in the days to come. YOU can help by responding generously to the Red Cross appeal now being made.

Recollections of Speech in Kiwanis, Requested.

Pastor, First Baptist Church.

POPE PAYNE HARDWARE AND LITTLE POPE 5 & 10 OPEN DOORS AT THORSBY

Two new businesses open their doors in Thorsby this week end. They are the Pope Payne Hardware Company and the Little Pope 5 and 10c Store. Both or either are a credit to the town and both have a line of stock that would do credit to a much larger city. Formal opening will take place at 8 o'clock Saturday morning and plans have been made to handle a large crowd of shoppers and visitors. Four grand prizes will be given away during the afternoon and 25 prizes will be handed to the first 25 ladies entering the store on opening date.

J. P. (Pope) Payne is well known to the farmers and business men of Chilton County and surely needs no introduction, having for years owned and operated successfully The Maplesville Hardware Company. The News wishes both "Big" and "Little" Pope every success in their new business.

E. G. Power Jr. Falls From Car Near Lomax, Ala.

E. G. Jr., small son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Power, of Birmingham narrowly escaped death Sunday morning near Lomax.

Mr. and Mrs. Power were on their way to Clanton to spend Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ramsey when the accident occurred. The child, who is three years old, was sitting in the back of the Sedan and evidently pressed down the handle of the door and when the door swung open fell from the car. Mr. Power stated that he was traveling at about fifty miles an hour. The child was brought to Clanton and given treatment by Dr. Charles Moore. Bad bruises were received but Dr. Moore stated that with proper care they were not serious.

Montgomery County Singing Convention

The Montgomery County annual singing convention will be held on the 2nd Saturday evening and Sunday of June, at the Capitol Heights Grammar School building auditorium in Montgomery. The Saturday evening session will begin at 8:00 o'clock and last until 10. The Sunday session will begin at 10 A. M. and last until 4 P. M.

This convention will no doubt be one of the very best ever held there. The attendance both of singers and lovers of singing promises to be the largest ever. The officials of the state singing convention, representatives from a large number of music publishing houses and some of the best quartets will attend this convention. All the singers will be given a plate lunch at the noon intermission Sunday.

We wish to extend to all singers everywhere a cordial invitation to come and be with us on this occasion.
A. F. Beasley, Chairman.
J. W. Williford, Secretary.

Pilot Club Holds Regular Meeting

The Clanton Pilot Club held its regular meeting last Wednesday night, May 22, at the Methodist church. It was the first meeting of the new Pilot year. The club had as their guest Miss Marguerite Davidson of Thorsby.

Miss Davidson taught the Club numerous Folk Songs which were highly entertaining. Miss Lillian McKee rendered a violin solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Glennie Parrish.

The following members were present: Mamie C. Smith, Myra Johnson, Olive Fiquette, Lois Foshee, Ethel Mae Jones, Laura Little, Nolen Meroney, Helen Breedlove, Sophia Jones, Bob Searcy, Lillian Simpson, Mary Will Browder, Della Grant, and Lillian McKee.

MRS. W. C. ROBINSON OPENS NEW BEAUTY PARLOR AT THORSBY, JUNE 1ST

Mrs. W. C. Robinson has opened a new Beauty Parlor at Thorsby and invites all her many friends to call and see her.

The latest modern equipment has been installed and the same courteous service can be expected that the other Modern Beauty Shops are noted for. The new Parlor will be located in the rear of Little Pope 5 and 10c Store.

More than 40 planes already have been entered in the 1940 Alabama air tour Thursday and Friday by Asa Routree, State aircraft director, who predicted a final registration of more than 50.

Planes entered to date, 17 of them from outside the State, will carry 90 pilots and passengers on the tour, to end at Birmingham for the National Air Carnival June 12.

The tour will be made in two sections, one starting at Muscle Shoals and the other at Mobile, both wings being consolidated at Montgomery for the flight to Birmingham via Clanton. Clanton will be the only city in the State where the Northern and Southern wing will meet and dine together.

Large preparations are going on and all members of the party will be well taken care of in true southern style when they meet here at noon Friday of this week. The Clanton Aero Club and others will entertain the visiting pilots. Following is a partial list: Mrs. Chas. Wade, Mrs. V. J. Gragg, Mrs. Leo Thompson, Mrs. S. L. Ellis, Mrs. J. Lee Smith, Mr. Jim Wade, Mrs. Dick Hayes, Mrs. W. C. Nuss, Mrs. Leroy Martin, Mrs. Mamie C. Smith, Miss Ruth Sessions and Miss Bessie Gilmore.

The State Aviation Commission is sponsoring the event and an oil corporation is furnishing free fuel for the tour.

Jack Sedwick, of Mobile, has been named flight commander of the southern section and Frank Hulse, of Birmingham, commander of the group starting from Muscle Shoals. Each will cover a route of approximately 300 miles.

Thursday the southern wing will fly from Mobile to Brewton, where luncheon will be served by the city and Chamber of Commerce. From Brewton it will proceed to Dothan for an overnight stop and entertainment planned by the city and Chamber of Commerce.

The northern wing, also starting Thursday, will fly to Huntsville for a luncheon given by the Chamber of Commerce. From Huntsville it will proceed to Anniston for an overnight stop, a cocktail party and dinner date to be given by the Anniston Airport Board.

Friday the southern wing will fly from Dothan to Montgomery. The northern wing will go from Anniston to Auburn and then to Montgomery. From the capital the consolidated tour will fly to Clanton for lunch and then to Birmingham.

Entries for the tour include: Charles W. Wade, Jr., Clanton; C. A. Thigpen, Jr., Montgomery; F. Leo Thompson, Clanton; Raymond Lee Kidd, New Orleans, La.; George Phillips, New Orleans, La.; Bob Wright Bilodeau, Miss. Herbert M. Toomey, (Continued on Back Page)

H. G. Thompson Wins Prize In Display Contest

H. G. Thompson for the second year has won a prize in the Canned Salmon Industry's nationwide display contest. Mr. Thompson, who is connected with Lowe's Grocery in South Clanton says the prize wasn't so very much but when every dealer of canned salmon in the country competes; then it is quite an honor to be lifted among the prize winners.

An All-Expense Paid Vacation

Ft. McClellan, Ala., May 1, 1940—An all-expense paid vacation from June 12th to July 11 is the gift of the United States Government for local youths at Ft. McClellan, Ala. C. M. T. Camp Fort McClellan, Alabama, announced Mr. J. B. Atkinson, head of the Chilton County C. M. T. C. procurement committee. Each enrollee is given his fare to camp and return, uniforms, food (and plenty of it), athletic equipment, laundry service and medical attention—plus a delightful entertainment program which includes dances, parties and a complete athletic schedule.

Mr. Atkinson urges every interested young man to make his application directly at his home at once, since the Chilton County quota is rapidly being filled by both new enrollees and those who have attended former camps.

Chief requirements for enrollment are that you be of good character and sound physique between the ages of 17 and 24 years.

The Boy Scouts ask that all attending the revival of C. C. Wilcutt please observe parking rules so as to cause less trouble in getting away from meeting.

Chilton County's First Mattress

The first mattress in Chilton County was made from the surplus cotton and was received by Mrs. J. A. Marston of the Baker community on Friday, May 24. The Baker community met and made 33 cotton mattresses. This is the beginning of the program that is to reach over 3,000 farm families in Chilton County.

Persons who are to receive mattresses will be notified from the office of the Home Agent, when they are expected to meet to start work on this project.

There are 80 communities in the county established for making the mattresses. It will be some time before all communities will be reached.

Applications received after May 24 can be given consideration since orders for cotton must be placed before May 20 in order to receive the material. Applications must be approved by the county committee before requisitions are placed.

A Gentle Laxative Good For Children

Most any child who takes this laxative once will welcome it the next time he's constipated and has him headachy, cross, listless, with bad breath, coated tongue or loss of appetite.

Syrup of Black-Draught is a tasty liquid companion to the famous BLACK-DRAUGHT. The principal ingredient is the same in both products; helps impart tone to laxative muscles.

The Syrup's flavor appeals to most children, and, given by the proper directions, its action is usually gentle, but thorough. Remember Syrup of Black-Draught at bedtime. Two sizes: 50c and 25c.

Harvesting Crimson Clover Seed

Most farmers who planted crimson clover for the first time last fall have been pleasantly surprised by the stand and growth obtained after unfavorable fall seeding conditions and the exceptionally long, cold winter which followed.

With the clover now maturing, many farmers in this section are making plans to harvest seed for expanding the acreage of this soil conserving crop, according to County Agent J. W. Fant and James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp area.

The most generally used method of saving crimson clover seed, they explain, is to mow and rake the clover and thresh out the seed on a poultry wire screen stretched tight over a wagon bed. For this method of harvesting seed, the clover should be mowed at the time the last blooms begin to lose their brilliant color. To prevent loss of seed by shattering, it is highly desirable for mowing and raking to be done when the dew is on the plants.

Several other methods of harvesting may be used, such as combining, and hand or machine stripping. When a method of harvesting is used which requires seed to be dead ripe, there is always danger of losing the seed crop from shattering during a heavy rain.

MISS WHATLEY ARRIVES

Miss Margaret Whatley, student in Home Economics at Auburn, arrived Sunday to spend a period of six weeks in Chilton County with the Home Demonstration Agent. Students in Home Demonstration work are placed in the counties to become acquainted with the various projects and activities in Extension work.

Dried Sweet Potatoes Make Good Stock Feed

Experiments by the Alabama Experiment Station have shown conclusively that an acre of sweet potatoes will produce two to three times as much feed as an acre of corn and now indicate dehydrated or dried sweet potatoes make excellent livestock feed.

The experiments show that sweet potato production can be stepped up to 200 to 400 bushels per acre in most sections of the State.

Average per acre yields on experimental plots over periods ranging from three to five years have been 336 bushels at Auburn, 231 bushels at Crossville, 314 bushels at Belle Mina, 432 bushels at Fairhope, 1-5 bushels at Monroeville, and 232 bushels on Greenville soil and 115 bushels on Norfolk soil at Prattville.

Ten steers fed sweet potato pulp, peanut hay, cottonseed meal, and minerals last winter gained 199 pounds per steer per day compared with .88 pounds daily gain on similar steers receiving peanut hay, cottonseed meal and minerals. The potato fed steers showed a profit of $3.25 per steer above feed cost compared with a loss of $4.43 per steer not receiving the potato pulp, a difference of $7.68 per steer.

Agricultural leaders at Auburn now predict that as soon as a practical and economical way is found to dehydrate or dry them, sweet potatoes will play a most important role in Southern livestock development.

Timber Profitable To Alabama Farmers

Silas, Ala.—Fire protection and wise use of the axe and saw caused 515 acres of cut-over timberland to net its owners $5,100 in six years.

In 1933 G. G. and Sims Singley of Silas purchased 515 acres of cut-over timberland for $900. Realizing the potential value of the young timber, these Choctaw County farmers posted this tract, protected the timber from fire and cut only defective and diseased trees for fuel wood.

In 1939, six years to a day later, the entire tract was sold for $4,500, and the following year the timber was resold to a saw-mill for $6,000 by the party who purchased the land and timber from the Singley brothers.

Forest protection and the wise use of axe and saw netted the Singleys $3,600 in six years' time, and the party to whom they sold the tract, $1,500.

"To these men, as to many other Alabama farmers, timber is no longer a natural resource, but a farm and commercial crop, and as such is contributing its proportionate share to the annual farm income," says Rufus Page Jr., forester of the Alabama Extension Service.

Curiosity Kills Bull; Head First in Bucket

BLYTHEDALE, MO.—Here is a story of curiosity killing a bull. Jerry Roche, a farmer, had a prize Red Polled bull. The animal's curiosity led it to poke its head into a gallon sirup bucket.

The harder the bull worked to get the bucket off, the tighter it stuck. When Roche went to check up on his herd, he found his bull dead of suffocation.

Giant Catfish and Sheep in Struggle

Battle to the Death, Says This Strange Tale.

BOULDER DAM, ARIZ.—Out here in the West where everything is the best and the biggest or it isn't recognized, they're telling the story of a catfish so gigantic it swallowed the head of a live bighorn sheep and hung on so tenaciously that both died in the struggle.

And to prove it, they point to the whitened bones of the bighorn, with the jaws of the catfish clamped firmly over its skull.

Any good Arizonan will say the story is true. And in particular, John Edwards, deputy game warden, because he's the one who found the evidence of the historic battle-unto-death along a cove in Lake Mead, the 15-mile-long body of water impounded by Boulder dam.

"I was walking along the edge of the lake," Edwards said, "when I noticed churning in the sand such as would be made by the struggles of an animal with sharp hoofs.

"Well, sir, I got interested and followed the tracks. There, in shallow water, were the whitening bones of a bighorn sheep, gilly clean by the vultures. And, by poky, clamped around the sheep's skull was the mouth of the largest doggone catfish I've ever seen."

Judging from the jaws of the fish, Edwards said, it must have been four or five feet long.

"The way I reconstruct it is this," explained the deputy warden. "The bighorn went down into the shallow water to get a drink. The sound of his hoofs churning the water awoke this granddaddy of a catfish and he decided to have a look at the intruder.

"Well, he saw the sheep's head in the water and shot for it, straighter and harder than an arrow, his mouth wide open. He got such a terrific hold on the sheep's nose and fore skull that the bighorn couldn't shake loose and the catfish couldn't even let go if it wanted to."

A group of Arizona sportsmen are going to look for that catfish's mate, using a submarine instead of a row-boat and a torpedo instead of rod and reel.

This Ought to Be News:

Man Bitten by Bookends

CLEVELAND.—John Donnelly, chief clerk of the municipal court, explained that his nose, strangely bruised and swollen, had been "bitten by a pair of bookends."

The accident, Donnelly told skeptical friends, occurred while he was moving bookends and books from one table to another.

"I picked 'em up, bookends and all," Donnelly said. "Then the books began to slip and I tried to push them back between the bookends with my chin. They fell to the floor anyhow and I guess I didn't get my nose out fast enough!"

Kills Himself as Science

Battles to Save His Life

DENVER, COLO.—A man facing death while lying in an oxygen tent used his waning strength to stab and kill himself with a pocket knife kept by his bed to open letters. Calvin Campbell, 48 years old, twice drove the two inch blade into his chest after a nurse stepped out of the room. Death came two hours later. Physicians told of Campbell's successive illnesses: Chronic stomach ulcers, pneumonia, heart attack—nine major operations in recent years.

Elected as Joke, Woman

Makes Good Police Chief

WARREN, N. H.—Elected last year as a joke, Mrs. Dorothy Clark made good to such a degree as New England's only woman chief of police that she was re-elected on the first ballot by a wide majority at today's town meeting. Mrs. Clark surprised the voters by accepting her first term and immediately began strict enforcement of the law. She made many arrests, but retained the admiration and respect of the townspeople, who today also elected her overseer of the poor.

Bermuda Grass Lawns Need Care

There are several things that should be done during the growing season for Bermuda grass lawns if they are to be kept in good condition and looking as attractive as they should during the summer months. Mowing, fertilizing, weeding, and topdressing are some of the things that if properly done will contribute materially to the beauty of such lawns.

Bermuda grass lawns that have been planted in Italian Ryegrass should be given careful attention at this time of the year. The ryegrass should be cut back very close to the ground and should be kept clipped in that manner until it dies out. Otherwise it often grows rather tall, falls over, and tends to smother or shade out the Bermuda grass sod. Immediately after the Italian Ryegrass has died out the Bermuda grass should be fertilized. An application of some complete fertilizer, such as 6-8-4 broadcast over the area at the rate of 10 to 20 pounds for each 1,000 square feet as a top dressing will be effective at this time. Cottonseed meal applied at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds is another good top dressing fertilizer for lawns.

Most Bermuda grass lawns respond favorably to an application of about one-half to three-fourths of an inch of good composted soil or rich garden soil spread uniformly over the area. If the soil to be used is not rich, it will probably be best to apply a top dressing of cottonseed meal, as suggested above, and cover this with the soil. If a good rain falls soon after this soil is applied it will need no further attention, otherwise it should be raked so as to settle it down around the grass or it should be watered thoroughly.

Systematic applications of the cottonseed meal, 6-8-4 nitrate of soda (applied at the rate of 5 to 10 pounds for each 1,000 square feet) at intervals of about three or four weeks during the growing season together with regular and careful mowing will make Bermuda grass lawns satisfactory on most soils. Very poor soil and very sandy soil will not respond to these measures. The nitrogen in nitrate of soda, 6-8-4 and similar fertilizers is rather easily washed out of very sandy soils. Though a good sod of vigorously growing Bermuda grass will help keep down most other types of grass and weeds that may get into the lawn area, in order to keep the lawn looking its best some hand weeding will be necessary.

Growing Marketable Sweet Potatoes

Producing the right size, shape and quality sweet potato for market is quite largely a matter of proper timing of planting, harvesting, etc. It is true that the very early planted potatoes, particularly those from draws, tend to be short and blocky on the order of a turnip while those planted in early summer are larger and smoother and those set as late as July tend to be to stringy.

The potatoes grown from draws are usually large, giving a higher percentage of jumbos, frequently cracked, and not the desired market type. Too, because of the bunching of the potatoes on the end of the vine, which causes them to crowd, they are poorly shaped. For these reasons, growers in commercial potato growing sections dig these April set potatoes in mid summer and dispose of them as green potatoes or feed them to livestock. They have secured enough vine cuttings from these to set the main crop which is the chief function of the "parent" patch. The crop grown from vine cuttings, which are set about the first two weeks in June in Central Alabama come along at a time when conditions seem to be best for sweet potato growth and have a length of season of about four to four and a half months, all of which appears to promote a desirable shape and size and satisfactory yields. Many growers feel that June is too dry to set potato cuttings. Weather records show that if ground is prepared in advance enough rainfall may be expected to enable the setting of a reasonable acreage. When these rains come all hands should get busy cutting vines and setting them out. A high percentage of shapely U.S. No. 1 potatoes should be the aim when planting and these are obtained more dependably from the vine cutting crop.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By IRVIN LANDE

What the French and British, as well as the rest of the free world feared, has happened. The well-trained and experienced German army has made good its claim of blitzkrieg (lightning war), thus far, at any rate.

Striking hard at Holland in the early days of the new phase of the war and quickly subduing the land of windmills in five days, Hitler turned his juggernaut toward Belgium and northern France. To subdue Belgium, the German army started a scythe-like movement beginning at Rotterdam in the Netherlands. This drive proved effective and it swooped down to within sixty miles of the French capital, Paris. The Nazi legions started another scythe-like drive beginning at Antwerp Belgium and swinging low to meet the German forces coming from the opposite direction. This trap-like movement had the desired effect of the Germans. British and French as well as Belgium soldiers in Belgium were trapped with the alternative of facing destruction and fighting it out or retreating to the sea. Up to now, they have done a little of both plans.

The obvious logic of such drives is that the Germans are planning not to attack the French capital, Paris, but rather to push through to the sea in the northern part of France and launch whole-sale slaughter raids on London, the British capital. The Germans, seemingly hope to strafe the British into submission, and then give the French, without its powerful British ally, a separate peace.

The German drives to reach the coast have been carried out by taking over Belgium and by driving hard in northern France. The Germans started their drives in France by first capturing the historic city of Sedan and then moving westward through Lille. Then they attacked Boulogne, Dunkirk and Calais. Around these points, only 20 miles across the English Channel to London, the heaviest fighting of any war has taken place. Reports from the Allied capitals say that the important and vital cities of Calais and Boulogne have not been taken, but the Germans strongly insist that they have been and are now completely German. At any rate, the German drives have added new and undreamed of territory to the Third Reich, the totalitarian era of Europe.

Perhaps now it demands that we study how the German armed forces penetrated so deeply into France during the first few weeks of the real war. The main credit goes, as Hitler himself credits it, to the German air force. The G. A. F. first went ahead of the infantry and bombed all large obstacles. Having cleared the way of all big resistances, the heavy tanks came next. These tanks succeeded wonderfully in subduing all little opposition. After the tanks came the trucks of soldiers and bicycles carrying men. After these came the heavy supplies and large guns. Therefore, the Germans had carefully planned their attacks so that all resistance could be overcome before sending large numbers of men into battle. However, merciless slaughter has been committed and it is reliably claimed that the Nazis have lost men five times more than the Allies. But Hitler does not care, apparently about men. He is interested in winning a war.

But the Allies have not been asleep. True it is that the Germans surprised the Allies by their swiftness, by their vast numbers of troops, by invading a comparatively little fortified area. The French now realizes that the Germans have made them fight the kind of war that they do not like to fight. The French, under General Gamelin, fought defensive war. Now, they will have to battle offensively. To that end, they have replaced General Gamelin with General Weygand. In Britain, General Ironside was replaced by General Dill. Ironside is now commanding the home forces.

In Italy, Count Giano recently made a speech that Italy would enter the war. He did not mention what side Italy would go in with. Up to now, however, Italy has not gone in and by making the French keep 1,500,000 soldiers on the Franco-Italian border, she is doing Germany a greater aid than by entering the war.

Here in our own country, President Roosevelt has made two history-making speeches. His first was to Congress asking for unprecedented defense appropriations. His second was a "fireside chat" to the American people telling them of the present conditions of the army and navy, and asking them not to get over-excited, but to act coolly and calmly. Another speech by Charles Lindbergh asking this country to "continue to bury their heads in the sands" as Senator Byrnes of South Carolina branded the speech, has met common disapproval.

And lastly, in the Balkan area, there is renewed apprehension. Rumors of Italy going into the war would set the Balkan countries; that is, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia, and all; into the thick of the conflict.

The latest report is that Belgium has capitulated. King Leopold has surrendered some half million Belgium troops to the Nazi cause. This means that France will have to retreat to new lines of defense, and that the British will have to get their expeditionary force out of Belgium before it is annihilated by the Germans. This latest action has stunned the capitals of Europe and our own capital. Belgium gave up on Tuesday, May 28, 1940. It has not but one meaning to the United States—we must prepare more heavily.

That's all of the news up to now.

Mother Builds On

By ANTHONY WADE

(Associated Newspapers)
(WNU Service)

THE usual crowd of loafers was sitting about the stove in Jake Blair's office regardless of the fact that the balmy spring weather had permitted him to let the fire go out.

A worn, tired-looking little woman emerged from the inner office, Jake following. A bright new spring bonnet failed to freshen the woman's tired face.

"I want it built just as soon as you can get to it. And you don't need to spare expense," she said as she left the office.

The men about the stove were interested. "I believe that woman's crazy," said Bill Smart.

"I can't see what she wants with more room. There all by herself. I thought she would stop when Sam died anyway," injected Lew Beggs.

"She doesn't need the room. But she's building her dream house. And she's justifying Sam, in a way," answered Jake. "I see some of you fellows don't know the story. I'll tell you how it was."

This was the story Jake Blair told to the group of men in his office that spring afternoon:

The Berry family had started life in very humble circumstances, but, as the years went by they added to their little store and by the time they reached middle age had accumulated a competence.

When he was married Sam had no money to buy the furniture for his house, but as a steady young workman he had credit and, by saving, the debt was soon paid. Then they wanted a home. As usual they began to plan modestly. Two more years of saving paid for a 10-acre plot.

"I want a 10-room house," Mrs. Berry said. She had reason for that. Her father had not approved of Sam.

"What kind of a place will you live in with him?" he had asked her. "You've got 10 rooms here."

"Sam will get me 10 rooms, too," she had answered.

But the house Sam built her had only one room. "We'll build on next year," he told her.

But when the time came a baby was coming and they had to put off building.

The first three children were born in that room.

They were 10 years of waiting Mrs. Berry became despondent. The pretty rooms, which she had furnished so many times in her imagination, were given up. When Bill Southern sold his old house after he built the new one Mother Berry was satisfied when Sam bought the old summer kitchen and moved it up behind their one room.

Two rooms now seemed a palace. Years passed. The children were growing up.

They were as healthy and apparently happy, all six of them.

The girls entertained their sweethearts in the front room, the family retiring tactfully to the lean-to. In that front room the daughters were married. The boys went away to work, leaving the father and mother alone, their need for building seemingly over.

But with the expense of the family gone the bank account grew from year to year. Mother Berry began to talk of building a dining room. The children were coming home now and she needed room to set the table for the new grandchildren.

Father Berry wanted to build a new house, but she would not hear of it. "What does an old couple like us want of a new house?" she asked, and he let her have her way.

The summer after the dining room was built Mother Berry's father came to visit her. His first question after greetings were over was, "Where's the 10-room house?"

Mrs. Berry did not answer, but in her soul the old dream was reborn. A new room became a yearly event.

Each new room was added to the back of the house until it looked like a string of apartments. When the new room was opened for occupancy the front room would be deserted and after a while closed. The bank account was kept low by these expenditures. The children complained to the father about their mother's extravagance, but he would not heed them.

"She gets a lot of pleasure out of it," he would say. "I'll let her do as she pleases."

When the house consisted of nine rooms Sam Berry died. But Mrs. Berry was building on. "I came out of a 10-room house when I married Sam," she had said to Jake that day. She was building her dream house and through it justifying her defiance of her father, even though he was dead now.

When Jake Blair finished even the men who had scoffed were silent. They saw in the dream house of Mrs. Berry the symbol of their own defeated hopes. The house had come too late for her greatest happiness. She had the courage to accept it in the face of disappointment.

HIGHLIGHTS OF PRESIDENT'S 'FIRESIDE CHAT'

Pleds For Liberal Contributions To Red Cross Appeal

Following are some of the quotations from President Roosevelt's speech Sunday Night, carried in AP newspapers:

"Please—I beg you—give according to your means to your nearest Red Cross chapter, give as generously as you can (for war relief). I ask this in the name of our common humanity."

"We have spent large sums of money on the national defense. This money has been used to make our army and navy today the largest, the best equipped, and the best trained peacetime military establishment in the history of this country."

"Recent wars, including the current war in Europe, have demonstrated beyond doubt that fighting efficiency depends on unity of (aircraft) control."

"I will not hesitate at any moment to ask for additional (defense) funds when they are required."

Patriotic Americans of proven merit and of unquestioned ability in their special fields are coming to Washington to help the government with their training, experience and capability."

"We must make sure, in all that we do, that there be no breakdown or cancellation of any of the great social gains which we have made in these past years."

"Some national policies come to be viewed with a new and unreasonable skepticism, not through the wholesome political debates of honest and free men, but through the clever schemes of foreign agents."

"Fortunately, American men and women are not easy dupes. Campaigns of group hatred or class struggle never made headway among us, and are not making headway now."

"In common affection for all mankind, your prayers join with mine—that God will heal the wounds and the hearts of humanity."

ALPINE SINGING

We had a very good singing at Alpine church May 25, even though the morning was rainy. The singing was started by Mr. Henry Ousley leading a song and after that Mr. Edward Jones of Prattville was elected chairman for the day.

Directors for the morning were: Buford Durdin, William Jones, Charles Ingram, Jesse Walker, Anrie W. Moore, Elsie Mae Walker, H. T. Ousley, and Mr. Johnnie Boone. We had some quartets sing also.

The directors for the evening were: Olen Williams, Walter Kendrick, Mr. Burns, Eugene Ousley, W. H. Ousley, Jesse Walker, Buford Durdin, Woodrow Deason, Emmette Wilson, Philip Headley, Hudson Williams Lee Moore, H. T. Ousley and William Jones.

We were then adjourned to meet again the 4th Sunday in May, 1941. We wish to invite everyone back.

When you sit down to your table to eat, remember there are millions in Europe who have nothing to eat. Contribute today to the Red Cross war relief fund!

Wood-Bartley Vows

Pledged In San Antonio

Miss Mary Will Bartley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Bartley, Cullman, and Frank Parnell Wood, of Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Wood, of Dallas, Tex., were married at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. M. Ivey in San Antonio, Tex.

Dr. Perry Webb, of the First Baptist Church, read the ceremony. The bride wore a dark tailored dress with white accessories and a corsage of white callias.

Mrs. Edwin Lucas was the bride's only attendant. Her dress was dusty rose with blue accessories and a corsage of blue iris.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood will make their home in San Antonio. Mrs. S. C. Wood, parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Batchelor, Miss Katherine Moss, Mrs. Edwin Lucas, all of Lufkin.

Health Department News

Sixteen children received free operations at a clinic held in Clanton May 23 and 24, according to the news release from the Health Department. The clinic was sponsored by Clanton Kiwanis Club and was in charge of Mel Martin, Chairman of the Club's Underprivileged Children's Committee. Ten of the operations were performed at the Central Alabama Hospital and six at the Lawrence Clinic. Physicians who donated their services at the clinic included C. O. Lawrence, Dr. W. C. Gold, Dr. Charles R. Moore, Dr. H. G. F. Finlin, and Dr. V. J. Gragg.

Appreciation by the Kiwanis Club for the cooperation of the physicians and nurses whose generosity made the clinic possible was expressed by county Health Officer, Dr. S. D. Skie, also a Kiwanian and member of the Underprivileged Children's Committee. The latter voiced the hope that other such clinics might be held in the future as there are many children needing this service whose parents are unable to pay the cost.

It was also reported that the buttermilk suspected as the cause of a poisoning outbreak last week in Clanton contained an appreciable quantity of arsenic as shown by a report of the State Toxicologist at Auburn, H. W. Nixon. All the known points to accidental introduction of poison into the milk. The incident served one useful purpose, the health officer believes, in that it has made Clanton public aware of the potential danger of raw milk produced without supervision by the Health Department.

Stunning news, brought to the attention of people in great black head across the front pages of newspapers on May 10 was the startling gain in this campaign. Tragic news! Headlines told of the simultaneous invasion of Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

American Red Cross promises people in the November election to campaign it would wait until the necessary absolutely imperative before it would call for social war relief funds. Screaming headlines removed all tancy.

It requires $1,000,000 per day to feed the refugees wandering through Europe. American Red Cross has geared machinery to aid in this desperate situation. Alabama volunteer workers in the field to raise the state's quota of $125,000. Contribute your bit. Contribute generously!

W. D. (BILLY) PARTLOW

An inefficient, inattentive, inept Congressman does not become able, alert or efficient simply because foreign nations choose to go to war with each other. The international crisis cannot correct the defects in our representation.

If our Congressional orchard needed pruning before the war, it needs it today. The deadwood should be removed, root and branch. When a Congressman fails the remedy lies in the hands of the people. They should change their representation.

This Sixth District has suffered for lack of adequate representation. The people of this District owe it to themselves and to the nation to plug the gap in our legislation defenses.

We need not seek in vain for the benefits of the federal government. The remedy is in our hands.

During the summer months it is proposed that we enlarge the program of our Recreation Group to include both Monday and Thursday night of each week.
The tentative program will be study periods Monday night at 7:30 in our fellowship hall at the church lasting one hour followed by an hour of directed play and a full evening of recreational activities on each Thursday night beginning at 7:30. We invite all young people of the community to join in his effort to provide wholesome recreation under favorable conditions.

The study periods will be devoted to two hours of Bible Study and two hours of our study of the Human mind per month. If you do not wish to do some thinking do not come to these classes. We are not interested in "thumb worn creeds" but a Christian faith that leads to a Christian life.

Misses Charlotte Matson and Gertrude Loehl, of Minneapolis, Minn. were visitors at the home of Mrs. V. H. Suttive on Friday night, May 24. They were enroute to Cincinnati, O., where they expected to attend a Library Association meeting.

Thorsby Institute News

A large and appreciative audience attended the Senior Class play and Class Day exercises which took place in the Thorsby Institute auditorium on Friday night, May 24. Just before the play began, the Class President, Howard Minor, announced the Class Day Exercises which followed the play. The following parts were given in the exercises: Class History, Inez Duke; Class Will, Elaine Burdette; Class Poem, Lucille McCain; Prophecy, Gus Downs. The entire class assembled on the stage for the prophecy and as it was read the Fritorian, Wayne Adams, presented a gift to each member of the class.

The Thorsby Institute Alumni entertained the Seniors at a party at the Dining Hall on Saturday night. Games were played and Miss Gail Gletty of Thorsby presented her marionette show of Story Book characters, which was enjoyed by all present. Lemonade and cookies were served. Each member of the Senior Class and the class teacher, Miss Ruth Ford, was presented with a gift. A short meeting of the Alumni Association was held after the party. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President Helen Kendrick; Vice-president, Howard Minor; Secretary, Ruth Cox; Treasurer, Phares Raybon.

Rev. J. B. Gonzales, pastor of the Thorsby Congregational Church, gave the sermon at the Baccalaureate service on Sunday morning. Special music was given by the choir and a solo was rendered by Rubye Raybon, a Junior at Thorsby Institute. An offering was taken for Student Aid.
At the Commencement Exercises at 10:30 on Monday morning, May 27, in the school auditorium, the two Seniors have the highest grades for the last three years of their high school course, read essays. The essays were by Fred Blankenship and Doris Parker, the subjects being "Electricity" and "The History of Radium." Special music was given by the Girls' Quartet and the Girls' Chorus. Rev. W. H. Leitstead, A. M., pastor of the Lutheran church of Summerville, South Carolina, a graduate of Thorsby Institute in the Class of 1920, gave the address. His subject was "The Soul of Thorsby Institute."

The Reader's Digest Annual Award for Scholastic Achievement has been won by the valedictorian of the Class of 1940 at Thorsby Institute, Miss Doris Parker. Each year the Reader's Digest presents the award to the young men and women throughout the country who, by successful records in school work, give promise of attaining leadership in their communities. Miss Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Parker of Jemison, received an engraved certificate of award upon graduation. Principals of preparatory and high schools are increasingly urging their students to read the most significant articles from current magazines, in the belief that contact with the important writing and thinking of our day is essential to education both before and after graduation. As one principal said in a letter to The Reader's Digest: "Your award and your magazine keep our best students in the mental vanguard through the difficult transition from school to society at large." The educators of this community are among those who use material in current magazines as an aid to modern classroom work. Through their cooperation, the students in Thorsby Institute have been enabled to compete for The Reader's Digest Annual Award.

Besides the Reader's Digest Award which was given at the Commencement Exercises, a number of other prizes and awards were given. Scholarships were given to the two in the Sophomore Class having the highest record for the school year, Ann Spear of Birmingham, and Annie Lee Williams of Thorsby. As the two in the Junior Class having the highest record for the school year were the two who received pins last year they were given honorable mention. They were Norman Harris, Clanton, and Norman Ertson, Siluria. The pins for the Juniors went to the next highest William Callen, Clanton and Bill Darby, Clanton. The Helen Drummond Fund award went to Ruth Duke. This fund of $1000 is a memorial fund, the interest of which goes to help some worthy girl attend Thorsby Institute. The recipient is to be a boarding pupil. She is expected to do high grade work, to be cooperative, and willing to obey the rules of the school. The $500 Perry English Award was given to Irvin Lande, who has the highest average in English for the year. The $500 Perry Mathematics Award went to Lowell Smoot, of Woodbury, Georgia, who has the highest average in mathematics for the year. These awards are given by Mrs. Caroline Perry of Watertown, Mass. An undergraduate scholarship covering one semester's tuition at Thorsby Institute, which is given by Miss Marion Butler of Rockville, Conn., went to Irvin Lande, who had the highest average for the year. A prize of $25 was given to Doris Wiley, Thorsby, who has the highest average in Bible for the year; a prize of $250 was given to the student in History having the highest average for the year. This went to Norman Harris. A biology prize of $250 was awarded to Annie Lee Williams, Thorsby, and Howard Lambert, Helena, for the highest average in that subject. $100 was given to Lowell Smoot for the best kept room for boys during the year. Those receiving perfect attendance prizes of $100 for the year were: William Callen, Lula Mae Collins, Kay McClain, Annette Merchant, Katherine Pratt and Lowell Smoot.

The Senior Class presented the following gifts to the school: An Alabama Flag, $25 to be used to purchase a desk for the library, a mirror for the boys' washroom, a mirror for the girls' washroom, back steps for the main building, six half tuition scholarships, of $650 each, the balance of the money to go for books for the library.
The office will be open each day this week from 8:00 until 12:00 and from 1:30 to 4:30. Mrs. Suttive will be in charge. Beginning next Monday, June 3, Mr. Campbell will be in charge of the office, which will be open from 8:00 until 12:00 each morning from Monday through Friday. Students may get their report cards on Friday of this week.

This library will be open on Friday of this week from 8:00 to 12:00 in the morning and from 1:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon. Beginning next week the library will be open on Tuesdays and Fridays from 8:00 until 11 in the morning and 3:30 until 5:30 in the afternoon.

Snake River Valley

Is 7,900 Feet Deep

The deepest gash in the North American continent is not the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, as most people believe, but the canyon of the Snake river in Idaho. At its deepest point the Snake river canyon is 7,900 feet while the canyon of the Colorado reaches 6,650 feet. The Snake river canyon averages for 40 miles a depth of 5,500 feet, which is almost equal to the Grand canyon at its deepest point.
Otis W. Freeman, head of the department of Geology and Geography of the Eastern Washington college of education, Cheney, Washington, points out that the Snake river canyon is also one of the last remaining pioneer areas in America, some 200 people, including 40 families living in the canyons 75-mile length.
Much less spectacular than the Colorado, the Snake river canyon "is both the narrowest and the deepest gash in the North American continent," he states. "From the summit of He Devil peak, seven miles east of the river, to the edge of the river the depth is 7,900 feet; from Bright Angel point, an equal distance from the Colorado, the depth is 5,650 feet. From Huntington, Ore., to Lewiston the Snake river descends on an average nine feet to a mile, in some stretches more than 12 feet to a mile."

Red Cross forces of America are raising $10,000,000 for relief of invaded countries of Europe. Consider the case of the Belgians. Though faced with the threat of invasion themselves they raised more than a million dollars for the Finns. Now their own country is overrun. Their plight is desperate. Millions of them are wandering through France seeking shelter and food. Can we fail such people? Contribute generously today at your Red Cross chapter headquarters.

To The Voters

Of Chilton County

I wish to thank you for the splendid reception I have received at your hands during this campaign. Your kindness and generosity have been an inspiration to me.

Knowing of your interest in good government, I have clearly and unequivocally stated my position on vital issues in my platform. On that platform I base my appeal for your support on June 4th. It is my purpose to be a working Congressman, to give the Sixth District the able, aggressive, alert representation which it needs today.

With complete confidence in the outcome, I urge you to continue your efforts in my behalf in order that victory may be assured on June 4th. I shall at all times strive to be worthy of the trust placed in me.

Sincerely yours,

BILLY PARTLOW

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By IRVIN LANDE

When the second world war broke out, American public opinion said that the United States would enter the war under no circumstances. Today, with the Allied forces near defeat, that opinion has changed. It has not changed essentially from not entering the war to entering it, but it has changed its belief about the possibility that we have to enter it.

The French have been losing. There is no question about that. The German march has proceeded from Sedan, in France, to a point only a few miles from the capital, Paris. The Dutch have capitulated. The Belgians have been defeated; they have lost their capital Brussels and their city, Antwerp. Today, as never before in history, a battle is raging. And never before in history have the liberties of the individual been so vitally threatened; both the liberties of the European and of the American.

The United States and the Americas have also been losing. They have not been losing in the sense that their men have been killed. They have not been losing in the sense that their ships have been sunk. They have not been losing in the sense that military battles have gone against them. But they have been losing in the fact that they have not prepared. President Roosevelt said this the other day in his address to Congress. The President demanded 50,000 airplanes, more ships, more training, and more everything for our national defense. But it has been too late? Britain and France have prepared for about two years, and today they are being defeated. If they lose in less than another year, can we, the American people, expect that a Germany will let us have time to prepare? We hope that the Allies do not lose. Have we any assurance that they won't?

Hence, today, the United States is preparing for it knows not what. We hope we do not have to fight again. We do admit however, that we will fight if we are invaded. The best protection that we will not be invaded is for the Allies to win.

What does the Allies need that we can supply? Certainly it is not men, for the Allies have more men than the Germans. But the Allies need credit. And we can give them that credit. Today, under our present neutrality law, an individual in Canada cannot place a loan in the United States. And yet, we admit that the Allies, in fighting a war against tyranny and oppression, are fighting our war. Does it not seem logical then that we should give them every possible assistance? If we are afraid that by giving them that aid, we are going away from our principles of neutrality and will eventually have to enter the war, then we are not as self-governing as we think we are.

We cannot afford to argue that the Allies have not paid back their previous war debts. Great Britain and France have not repudiated their debts. Germany has. We failed to help Europe after the war when she needed help, and then she fell into economic chaos, and we expected her to repay us with money she did not have. Anyway, are we going to allow these facts to interfere with a loan that could be made in our own self-interests?

Observe 100 Years of Quadruplet Life

A century of quadruplet life will be celebrated Tuesday June 4 when the Keys quadruplets of Waco, Texas, observe their twenty-fifth birthday. Once a year—on their birthday—the Keys sisters return to Hollis, city of their birth. Left to right: Roberta, Leota, Mary and Mona Keys.

And another thing, today the United States must stand united. We can not let petty prejudices and selfish interests interfere with our own security. Democrats and Republicans must stand together. If we don't, we are tampering with our own destiny and freedom.

Today, Americans are asked to give to the Red Cross for the relief of war sufferers. Do your part.

These statistics are obtained from the records of the County Health Department and are published for the purpose of promoting better registration of births and deaths with local registrars is made compulsory by the State Vital Statistics law. Responsibility for filing a birth certificate within five days after the birth rests on the physician or midwife in attendance; undertakers or persons in charge of burials are required by law to obtain a burial permit before the body is interred. Such permits are obtainable only on the presentation of a completed death certificate to the registrar in the beat in which the death occurred.

Anyone having knowledge of birth or deaths occurring during April and not included in the above list should report this matter to the County Health Office immediately.

EASTVIEW

Too late for last week's issue

The various churches within four miles of Eastview this year have worked out a schedule for their revivals which will not conflict with each other. The aim is to make it possible for the people of these different communities to attend the revivals of the different churches within this area. To avoid conflicting with one of the neighboring churches, Eastview church will have its revival during the week beginning July 21st, instead of following the second Sunday of the month according to custom.

Owing to the ill-health of her mother Mrs. Luther Ballou has gone to her mother's home in Millersburg, Ohio. Before returning home, Mrs. Ballou will teach in an eight day school of religion in Pleasant Hill, Tenn.

MT. SPRINGS

Mt. Springs church had an enjoyable occasion in the all-day meeting last Sunday. Many old friends from a distance were present. We appreciate the assistance of Mrs. Marguerite Davison in our sing in the afternoon, besides the pleasure of the sing. Mrs. Jewel Gentry was accompanist. At a business meeting of the church, George Kilgore was elected clerk and treasurer. A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring clerk and treasurer, Miss Ruth Teal, for her faithful services during the past six years. Selection of the date of the revival was left in the hands of the deacons and the pastor, in order to select a time which would not conflict with neighboring churches.

DOLLARS WASTED ON UPKEEP

CAN'T BUY NEW ROADS

INFERIOR roads seem cheap and easy to build. They stretch a paving fund so that it covers a lot of territory. But after a year or two, the trouble begins! Maintenance costs go up and up.

That's why it's wise—and economical—to build concrete roads. Concrete lasts! It requires almost no upkeep. Concrete's smooth, non-skid surface is safe and satisfactory to drive on. It speeds up traffic ... reduces accidents ... you save in gas, tires and repairs.

JARMAN SPEAKS AT GREENSBORO

In a very forceful address to an overflow audience at Greensboro Saturday afternoon, Congressman Pete Jarman challenged the opposition to cite any "real issues" of the congressional campaign, saying that the only issue before the people was the "ability of two men to serve you."

He declared that the promises of his opponent and his so-called "platform" contained things which he has already "voted for, worked for, spoken for on the floor of the House" or otherwise publicly advocated. He implied indirectly that even if every promise and every claim of his opponent was fulfilled, the people of the Sixth District would not improve their position in the national capital.

The Congressman outlined his work on the important Foreign Affairs Committee, of which he is the only Alabama member, stressing the responsibility of experienced membership working for the people of the District to keep its peace and American security.

"I have a strong responsibility to you," he said, "in seeing that your affairs in Washington are handled efficiently. I also have a responsibility to the nation as a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee to do everything in my power to keep us at a secure, honorable peace and to advocate measures for national defense to preserve America's integrity and wholesome form of government.

"You too, have a responsibility to the nation in seeing that your member of Congress is worthy of your trust and able to weigh with care and balance any measure that concerns the future security of our citizens."

Mr. Jarman has been a working member of the Foreign Affairs Committee which is now the most important in the House because of the war situation. It is through this committee that war resolutions would come to the House for a vote. Its members write, work for and pilot through the House all measures concerning neutrality and laws governing our relations with foreign governments.

The Congressman cited his work for people and his cooperation with city farmers, for war veterans, for laboring and county officials of the Sixth District in getting government money for worthwhile projects. He said he appreciated the fine vote of confidence given him in the first primary in which he received over 46 per cent of the total vote. He urged all voters to cast their vote in the June 4th run-off primary.

"I regret that I have been unable to see all my friends and supporters during the campaign," Mr. Jarman said, "But I want all of you to know of my desire to do so and be assured that I have been and will continue to work for your best interests."

In a final message to the voters in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue Mr. Jarman, although expressing positive conviction that he would be elected, said, "I urge you to guard against a feeling of over-confidence and get out the maximum vote. Let us be vigilant . . . and roll up a majority that will express the strong approval of my record which I am sure you honestly and sincerely feel."

"Many who voted for other candidates," in the first primary have now pledged their support to me and I wish to tender my sincere appreciation to everyone for your fine efforts and unselfish work in my behalf."

Chile Severs Ties With League of Nations

The required two-years' notice having expired, Chile's official withdrawal from the League of Nations will take place Sunday June 2. Chile's resignation from the league leaves 51 member nations, as compared with peak membership of 60 as of December 1, 1934. Twelve remaining members are Latin-American states. Since Clanton airport or Gragg Field, was built some years ago, more and more attention has been directed to it from aviation circles over the State and nation. It is fast becoming an important factor in the business of flying in Alabama and even the Southern States. So much attention has been turned Clanton's way that only recently a government official, Mr. W. L. Seely, just finished up arrangements surveys, etc., preliminary to spending $8,000.00 on a lighting and beacon-building program for the field, besides $2,000 already spent in payment to landowners adjacent to the field for timber to be cut. This will facilitate approach to the field by large planes wishing to land there. Also Mr. Asa Roundtree, Jr., of the Alabama Aviation Commission, has applied for a teletype system to be established at the field, wherein four men will be employed all hours of the day to collect weather and flying information. All will be paid for by the federal government.

Arrangements and plans are also well under way for establishing and conducting a non-college unit for training amateurs, under the Civil Aeronautics Training program. Under their arrangement a number of young men will be trained to pilot ships; local teachers will be used if a sufficient number are available. The non-college unit is a four year program, supported solely by the federal government. The war situation in Europe and the huge preparedness program about to be instituted by the United States government will likely give new impetus to this training program, and may greatly enlarge the program originally planned for this place.

The most extensive and elaborate event coming our way up to this time, however, is the visit next Friday, May 31, of members of the Alabama Air Tours, sponsored by the Aviation Commission of Alabama. There will be about forty planes and about one hundred aviators and aviatrixes. They will come mostly from Alabama, but there will be some from adjoining states of Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida.

The Alabama Tours are composed of two wings or groups—the northern wing and the southern wing. The northern wing will assemble at Muscle Shoals, Thursday morning, take dinner there, then to Auburn and Montgomery. The southern wing will assemble at Mobile, Thursday morning, take dinner at Brewton, spend the night at Dothan, thence to Montgomery. The two wings will unite at Montgomery Friday morning and fly to Clanton. Both wings as one unit will make only one stop—at Clanton Airport.

The planes will arrive here about noon Friday of this week, and will spend two hours at the field and in the city. The visitors will be served dinner at the hangar, as the guests of Clanton business and professional men and local organizations. Members of the Pilots Club will serve the meals.

Local people may obtain meals at one dollar per plate; tickets are now on sale at J. Mel Martin's place in Clanton.

The group will go from Clanton to Birmingham, where they will spend the night; they will participate Friday and Saturday in the National Air Carnival to be held in Birmingham.

The group is composed of private flyers; there will also be some demonstrations from different aircraft manufacturers.

Last Sunday we enjoyed more than we can tell having our neighbors from other churches and the seniors of C. C. H. S. worship with us. We especially enjoyed the most inspiring message from Rev. Davis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. It was good to listen to and good to live by. May we, not only the seniors to whom it was principally addressed, but may we each and every one live better because of having heard that message.

We cordially invite all members, visitors and friends to attend all services at all times at the Clanton Methodist Church. It will always be a privilege worth your while.

Senior Class Activities At C. C. H. S.

By Doris Newell
Friday night, May 24, the Senior class gave their Class night exercises in the form of a Circus. Kenneth Thompson acted as Ring Master while the Class put on the show. At the close of the program, the valedictorian, Elizabeth Newell, delivered her speech to an appreciative audience.

Sunday morning the Baccalaureate address was delivered by the Rev. Oscar Davis, at the Methodist Church. The sermon was on the attitude of the people, and the Seniors thoroughly enjoyed it.

Monday night at 8:30, graduation exercises were held in the gym of the high school. Instead of having a speaker, Mr. Hicks had one of the teachers, Miss McRee prepare a pageant in order to give the people of Clanton and surrounding towns an idea of what is carried on in the school. The program was very interesting as it showed the different departments of the school and some of the functions. At the close of the exercises, Mr. Hicks presented diplomas to fifty-one seniors who are as follows:

Cecil Baggett, Earle Baker, Carl Cooper, Heavy Canton, James Daniel, L. Z. Dickey, Joe Eastburn, Carl Foss, Eugene Higgins, Charles Honeycutt, J. W. Johnson, Carl Jones, B. J. Littlejohn, Earl Melton, Wyndal Murrish, Herschel Penton, Ben Posey, Herbert Poole, T. J. Rasberry, Noel Robinson, Will Porter Rush, Harry Sims, Cecil Smelter, Roy Smith, Kenneth Thompson, Addis Wyatt, Orene Wyatt.

Elizabeth Armstrong, Mary Frances Atkinson, Edith Bell, Annie Laurie Bryson, Marie Crowson-Jones, Elizabeth Culp, Lennell Eubanks, Ruby Foshare, Mary Holley, Margaret Lowery, Janie Martin, Helen Mahan, Nell Ross Mahan, Pearl Moore, Eugenia Newton, Doris Newell, Elizabeth Newell Frances Powell, Dorothy Jean Rush, Annie Cordelia Smith, Willie Marie Thornton and Doris Williams.

Directly after the Graduation exercises, the Seniors were entertained with a reception at the Thomason Hotel. The Sub-Deb club was hostess at this reception. The dining room was decorated with large vases of roses and ferns and the punch bowl was banked with red roses. Refreshments which carried out the class color, were served.

Following the reception, the Sub-Deb Club sponsored a dance at the Hotel. All in all the Seniors had a very busy week end and every minute was very enjoyable.

Auto Quiz No. 1

Answers

1. & twenty to thirty feet. The Uniform Vehicle Code specifies 30 feet. Various states specify varying distances between 18 and 30 feet. Your answer is correct if you checked c. Now check one thing more—your brakes!

2. c. pull over to the curb on your right and stop. In many cities the ordinance requires this practice. Whether or not there is such a provision in the local ordinance, good judgment dictates this wise move.

3. True. When following another car a driver should allow himself sufficient space to stop safely in an emergency. The minimum distance at 35 miles an hour is about 25 feet; and 45 miles an hour, 33 feet.

Calling All Quiz Fans—

Maybe you know all there is to know about safe driving, but then again maybe you only think you know. A good way to find out is to take the AutoQuiz which starts in today's paper.

It is a known fact that most traffic accidents are caused not by wanton carelessness on the part of a few wilfully reckless drivers but by common mistakes made by the rank and file of us who wish to be safe and law-abiding but whose education in safe driving principles has been neglected somewhere along the line.

These quizzes, which have been developed by safety experts of The Travelers Insurance Company, will help you to rate your own abilities as a driver. Starting today, they will run for ten consecutive issues.

Read each question carefully; then check the answer you think is correct. Then, and not until then, study the answers which you will find in the Want Ad Section.

WAR OR NO WAR, THE SIXTH DISTRICT STILL NEEDS ABLE, ALERT, AGGRESSIVE REPRESENTATION IN CONGRESS.

At this time it is highly important that the people of the Sixth District do not lose sight of the fact we need adequate representation in Congress. Any attempts to cloud the real issues by indulging in glittering generalities about the foreign situation must be swept aside by a searching inquiry into the type of service we receive from our representative.

The domestic problems of this nation must be faced squarely. Your Congressman must be on hand when then problems of the nation are being discussed. He must be ready to take a stand on controversial issues. He must be on hand to vote when important legislation is before the House. Failure to do so is to violate the sacred trust placed in him by the people at the time of his election. No excuse can be made for the betrayal of that trust.

The farmers, the laborers, the school children, the business and professional men all cry out for stronger representation. Our present Congressman has already failed the farmers of this district by withholding his vote on parity payments. He has failed the laboring man by voting against his interests on several occasions. He has failed the schools by refusing to take any action on their problems. We may reasonably assume that he will fail us in dealing with foreign affairs.

Don't take chances! Strengthen your Congress now! SEND BILLY PARTLOW TO CONGRESS

JUNE 4TH

S. Senators Argue That We Should Pay As We Go For Defense Spending

WASHINGTON. — An influential group of senators, arguing that the country wants a "pay as you go" defense program, urged today that Congress raise at least $1,000,000,000 in new taxes before adjournment.

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) brought the question of additional taxes before the Senate session with a resolution that Congress raise by $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000, measure now pending before the Ways and Means Committee, approved by the administration, would raise $650,000,000 a year.

Senators George (D., Ga.) and McNamara (D., Tex.) said that the country should provide at least $1,000,000,000. George suggested that Congress broaden the tax base before adding the measure.

He also suggested higher taxes on all incomes up to $60,000. George said that a revision of the income tax schedule might be necessary to increase income taxes by a flat 10 per cent, as passed in the House. He asserted the percentage increase might be necessary to broaden the base.

His base-broadening proposal, he said that the present $1,000,000,000 for single men might be cut to $600,000 and that the $2,500,000 for married persons might be reduced to $1,000 or $1,700.

In his Senate speech, Tydings asserted that the country must realize that we are very close to war and added "if we don't begin to face this situation now we will be the American people down."

He believed the people are ready to be added. "There is more danger of financial chaos after this war than there is from the possibility that country might be invaded."

Things erected a big chart in the of the Senate chamber showing federal deficits of the last 10 years. Tydings pointed out the figures with a teacher's pointer.

"We have got to get every dollar from every man," he said.

BETTER THAN A FISH TAIL

Earl Parrish and J. E. Easterday went for fishing this week. They have been hanging a tail. That is what I hear from Earl Parrish. He says that the Bull Frogs are doing so educated that they jump out on the bank and splash out to the water so that the fishermen can't spot them so easily. Roy, page Isaac Walton.

Pete Jarman

Goes Back To Congress From The Sixth District

The unofficial count at the time of going to press indicated that Pete Jarman has been returned to Congress by the voters of the Sixth Alabama Congressional District, in Tuesday's run-off Democratic Primary election with Billy Partlow. Nomination is equivalent to election.

Old Dallas High May Be Jr. College

Rumors circulating in Dallas County and the western part of Chilton this week is to the effect that Old Dallas County High at Plantersville, may be turned into a Junior High College.

This would be a great help to the boys and girls in this section of the state who are not financially able to go away to College but would jump at the chance should this dream come true.

With the highway and splendid country roads, with able transportation facilities that we have many who never get the opportunity to go further than High School would benefit wonderfully if these plans materialize. Several of the citizens from this section of Chilton County have expressed themselves as highly in favor of this and put themselves on record as doing all in their power to support such an institution.

DEMOCRATIC ACHIEVEMENTS UNMATCHED IN OUR TIMES

James A. Farley, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in an address before the students of Lafayette College described the new conditions facing the youth of the country were facing and the importance of their attitude toward public affairs and then set forth what would inevitably be the foundation of the Democratic party's appeal in the coming presidential campaign.

"The presidential candidate of the Democratic party in 1940," said Mr. Farley, "must base his claim for success upon the record of the Democratic administration for the past seven years and he must convince the public of his desire and ability to see that record through to a complete and successful conclusion."

"When the Democratic party came into power on March 4, 1933, it inherited from the Republican party a defeated, discouraged United States, tangled in the bog of financial and economic chaos."

"We inherited a prostrate banking system, fifteen million unemployed workers, farmers in at the edge of bankruptcy, and a federal budget badly out of balance. We started—nobody out of balance. We started—nobody out of balance."

"The constructive achievements of the Democratic administration stand unmatched in recent history."

Dixieland Dairy To Open Store In Clanton

The Dixieland Dairy will have the formal opening of its Clanton Store next Saturday, June 8th.

This modern Store, situated on the highway in the Exchange Hotel Building will handle ice cream, malted milk, Chocolate Milks, all kinds of milk shakes and sweet and butter milk. The store will be able to get prompt curb service and there will be plenty of parking space. Turn to another page of this issue of the News and read their formal opening adv.

Thorsby Matron Dies

Mrs. Karl W. Carlson, of Thorsby, died in a Chicago Hospital last Thursday May 30th. Mrs. Carlson, a resident of Thorsby for many years had gone to Chicago, her former home on a visit. She was taken seriously ill while there and died. Mrs. Carlson had many friends in Thorsby and Chilton County who will be grieved to hear of her death. She was buried there.

Old Age Benefits Extension Urged

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board, recommended today that federal old-age insurance be extended to all agricultural workers and proposed that other phases of the social security program be expanded in rural areas to provide "freedom from the haunting spectre of insecurity."

He testified before the Senate Civil Liberties Committee.

Navy Recruiting Officer Here Saturday

Applications are being received for enlistment in the United States Navy, after Spring Graduation of all High Schools.

It is surprising at times to note the lack of interest young men show in their future, if a young man would stop to consider he cannot help but realize that the average organization for whom he may work does not offer him retirement at any early age, yet the young man who enlists in the United States Navy at the age of say Twenty years may be financially independent at the age of Forty years.

Statistics show that less than 10 per cent of the men in this locality are financially independent at the age of sixty-five, would it not be something to look forward to, to be able to retire twenty-five years younger than that fortunate few. Watch your paper for other interesting news of the Navy.

NEW SALEM SOCIAL

The New Salem Social will meet Thursday, June 13th at 2:00 P. M. We want all members to be present, as we are going to plan a menu for a plate supper. Lets don't forget and all come out.

Large Crowd Expected To Attend Two Weeks
Meeting

Clanton Methodist Young Peoples Revival begins next Sunday night at the First Methodist Church.

Rev. Eugene Peacock, well known in Clanton, having conducted the singing at the revival last year, will open one week Young Peoples Revival and on June 16th Rev. B. F. Tingle will take charge of the regular revival. Rev. Tingle, who is from Jasper is a forceful speaker and all who can and will be urged to come out and help make this the largest and best ever held in Clanton.

Chilton County Farmers Obtain Longer Loan Terms

The opportunity to reduce the annual principal payments on Land Bank Commissioner loans by reamortizing them over a longer period of years has been opened to many of the 250 Chilton County farmers who have Commissioner loans, according to a statement received today from the Farm Credit Administration of New Orleans.

There were about $196,925 of Land Bank Commissioner loans outstanding in this county at the beginning of 1940 and in addition approximately $300,575 of Federal land bank loans. Some of these loans have already been reamortized.

Most of the Federal land bank loans are already written for long terms up to 30-odd years, but the "Commissioner's" loans were originally made on a 10-year basis, requiring considerably heavier principal payments.

In a recent statement from Washington, A. E. Black, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, said many of the "Commissioner's" loans were being reamortized over a longer period of years in order to ease the payments of farmers with the heaviest mortgages. Spreading out the payments over a longer period will provide these farmers with the same opportunity of working out of debt as already provided for Federal land bank borrowers through long-term repayment period, Governor Black said.

Federal land bank loans are all first mortgage loans whereas the Commissioner's loans are made on both first and second mortgage security.

HOME-coming AT SHILOH

The annual Homecoming at Shiloh Baptist church was enjoyed by a large crowd last Sunday. A splendid program was rendered in the morning, Rev. W. P. Lowery brought an inspiring message at 11 o'clock. A bountiful dinner was served at the noon hour.

Good singing was enjoyed in the afternoon. Directors and quartet were O. L. DeVaughn, Lee J. Grant, Liberty Hill quartet, Louis Kilpatrick, Emmett Wilson, Stewart quartet, I. D. Huett, Clem Kilpatrick, Crew quartet, Mr. Stewart, W. M. Gilliland, Prattville quartet, Philip Headley, Olen Littlejohn, Raymond Crew, Alpine quartet, J. B. Crew, Johnson quartet, Williams, New Cedron quartet, Hiram Hudson Williams, R. W. Kimbrough, Audie Brown, J. W. Cagle, Clarence Billingsley, pianist, were Elson Maddox, Lee J. Grant, Pauline Ousley, Mrs. Lowery, Clarence Billingsley.

We are looking forward to this same occasion next year. One who enjoyed the day.

DEATH OF E. L. STILL

E. L. Still, age 39 years was found by a negro worker at Camp Verbena late Thursday evening dying from what is said to be self-inflicted bullet is not known but as Mr. Still had been wounded. The exact cause of the death on sick leave for about a month it is thought that bad health was a possible motive. Spigener Funeral home prepared the body for burial and shipped the remains to West Point, Ga., Friday. He was buried at LaFayette, his home sometime Saturday.

Mr. Still came to Verbena a short time ago from Camden, Ala., where he had been stationed for some time, with the Convict Department of the State.

Clanton's Airport Growing In Popularity

Gragg Field, Clanton's airport, is becoming more popular every day. This was clearly demonstrated last Friday when approximately half a hundred American Eagles of the Alabama airmen swooped down on their way to the Birmingham air carnival for lunch and a pleasant hour with Chilton County business and professional men, and ladies. A splendid chicken dinner was served by the Clanton Pilot Club.

After refreshments the armada, composed of two airlift divisions—North and South Alabama—consolidated earlier in the day at Montgomery, proceeded on its way to take part in Birmingham's great annual air event.

As Gragg Field grows in importance it is evident that enlargement and improvements must be made accordingly. Some additional land has recently been purchased, but not enough.

Located as it is, just seven miles west the national airline half way between Chicago and Miami—it bids fair to become one of the most convenient and emergency landing fields in America. A Newsman heard while at the luncheon that a beacon is to be placed at a point near the Coosa river on the airline pointing the way to the landing field.

It was also quite evident to this writer while waiting the arrival and take off of nearly half a hundred planes that more space is needed—the trees a serious hazard, need to be cleared away—and another real need right now is a paved road from the city proper to the airport. These improvements cannot all be done at once, but it is time progressive minded business men were bestirring themselves in this behalf. The eyes of the "eagles" are watching Graggfield.

Considered As Air Training Site
From the Montgomery Journal:

Consideration of Clanton, Ala., as a site or an aviation training center under the War Department's expanded program was revealed Wednesday by Asa Rountree, state air fields director.

The Clanton training site would be similar to that now located at Tuscaloosa, where the Alabama Institute of Aeronautics trains 320 cadets annually in preliminary aviation.

Walter Thorpe, institute director, recently announced war department authorization to triple the Tuscaloosa training program, enabling the center to give instruction to 240 cadets simultaneously.

The expanded program is effective August 1.

Only nine such training centers are operated by the army. The Tuscaloosa school is the only one in the south-east.

There's A Reason

"It is indeed heartening, observes The Dothan Eagle, to learn that there is at least one group of county officials in Alabama who have not permitted the extravagance and easy spending methods to make them lose sight of the value of an American taxpayer's dollar. That group has charge of the affairs of Chilton County, and reports that it has a surplus of $83,645.12 in the bank."

Mark Tucker, editor of The Chilton County News, is also proud of that achievement. "For a generation, or more, Chilton County has been blessed," says Editor Tucker, "with county officials who have indeed been servants of the people, and who have steadily conducted the business affairs of the county in such a way that the greatest good to the greatest number has been the result."

We cannot conceive of Chilton County, or any other Alabama county, having that much in the bank without a real object in it. We presume that Chilton's object is this: It knows that the Montgomery to Tuscaloosa highway through the lower part of Chilton County, is the most important undeveloped highway in the state, and it wants to have the money on hand to pay its part of the bill when the state gets ready to act.—Tuscaloosa News.

The fellow who saves his marbles is always ready to play when the game starts.

You fellows in Tuscaloosa, Bibb, Autauga and Montgomery counties will recall that a few months ago Chilton County News revealed that when and if you built that University-Capitol highway to the borders of Chilton County that the citizens of this County could be depended upon to do their part.

We're ready to "play marbles" whenever you are.

With Hitler and Clarabelle cutting up like they are, Granny Advertiser's editor, Doctor Something-or-other Hall seems to be having a pretty tough time.

We have too damn many big wigs in this country right now who are trying to get in front of the spot light instead of in front of the blitzkrieg. And too many others who are trying to get their fingers in the till instead of on the trigger.

You know you have been doing without Chilton County News long enough. Reach for the phone or drop us a post-card telling us to start sending it to you.

Three Troubled Rulers 'Celebrate' Anniversaries

Rulers of three gravely troubled European nations will "celebrate" anniversaries during the next few days, but in a much different manner than in former years. King Carol of Rumania, center, Europe's only royal dictator, observes the tenth anniversary of his return from exile on Saturday June 8. King Gustave of Sweden, left, will be 82 years old Sunday June 16. King George VI of England, right, will celebrate his birthday Thursday June 13. Though his birthday actually falls on December 14, English custom sets the date for his anniversary.

He Serves Best Who Serves Most

Whether he is holding office, or whether he is just a plain citizen; whether he is on a pay roll, or whether he is off the pay roll, there is one man in Alabama who through more than a third of a century has never failed when opportunity afforded to serve his fellow man. That man is Bibb Graves.

Honored as few men in the State have been honored—he is a grateful, humble, sincere, in his desire to aid whenever and wherever he can—those of God's children who are less fortunate than the common run.

The Montgomery Journal says of his recent appointment as chairman of the Montgomery Housing Authority:

In the appointment of Colonel Bibb Graves as chairman of the Montgomery Housing Authority, Mayor Gunter has selected a man not only highly capable of executive direction of his important work, but one who from the beginning has been actively sympathetic with the whole purpose and intent of the housing innovation.

"It was during his administration as governor that Colonel Graves sponsored the necessary legislation to secure the greatest benefits of the federal laws for Alabama, and Alabama's larger cities have profited greatly by his foresight. It is especially appropriate that he should be chosen as chairman of the housing authority in Montgomery."

The Democratic Way

There is a lesson on the soundness of the processes of democratic government in the Presence of Governor Frank Dixon and Former Governor Bibb Graves on the same speakers' stand at the bridge celebration here today. Sworn enemies in the political arena, these two distinguished figures relegated their rivalry to the status of unimportance as they joined in the common purpose of presenting to the people of Alabama a symbol of progress and development.

It was in the second administration of Bibb Graves that the bridge was started and Frank Dixon saw to its completion just as carefully as if it had been inaugurated under his regime. And Selma, which supported neither of them, was the scene for the occasion.

As long as things like this continue to happen, we shall maintain our faith in the system of government that has carried this nation to the pinnacles of greatness despite occasional detours along the way. Say what you please about American politics, but we like it when two men can scrap like fury one day and then get together in a common purpose the next—Selma Times Journal.

Nothing that God created, science discovered, or man invented but what can be put to a bad use. This being true, what a tremendous responsibility for the individual.—The Houston Herald.

More than 6,000 pounds of white clover seed were saved in Madison County in 1939, reports J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, in advising Alabama farmers to save their own white clover seed.

Alabama's representatives to the National 4-H club encampment will leave next week to spend June 15-21 in Washington D. C. They are Fred Summers, Elmore County; Russell Scott, Mobile County; Blanche Bachelor, Escambia County; and Virginia Heaton, Butler County.

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

There is in our swamp pasture a wise old turkey gobbler. He had strutted and gobbled for many a spring. He was so wise and cunning that the hunters man could not deceive him. One morning my father came home with this cunning old fowl swinging across his shoulder. Of course we were anxious to know all that led up to the killing of this large bird. Never shall I forget the word picture that my father drew of this turkey as he cautiously approached his call that morning. He said that the wise old gobbler came but he was holding back all the time. He would come two steps and then he would step back. I see people today going to their jobs just about as that turkey. They go but they seem to be holding back. It does not pay to drag to your place of service.

A friend of mine went into a store and asked for a compass. The clerk was somewhat uncertain of the kind of compass carried in the store and said, "We have one of those kind of compass that draws a circle, but we do not have the kind that will carry you places. That is the kind of compass that the most of trouble to find people just moving in people carry in their stock. It is no circles. Like a merry-go-round, they travel, but it is in a circle. Place that compass in your stock that will carry you places. A good compass will get you out on a line and it will help to keep you there."

Simon, the colored pastor, was in his pulpit and had warmed up to his subject. He said that the world was in a mess and that something had to be done about it. There was Hitler, defying the whole world. There was Mussolini strutting his stuff like a Peacock and on Simon went. Over in the corner there was a black deacon who shouted, "Listen at dat preacher. Let um have it Simon". Finally the pastor stood on his tiptoe and shouted, "And brederin, here is a bunch of chicken thieves and I tell you dat something has got to be did about it". At that moment the shouting brother slid down into his seat and murmured, "Now just listen at parson Simon, he done quit preaching and am gone to meddling". As long as the preacher is ringing the golden bells the people will shout their approval. But, when a man of God lifts the top from some social garbage can in the community they howl, "Now just listen at that preacher, heeaps quit preaching and has gone to meddling". We do not like to be told about the persons that we cherish.

Cool Heads Open Shirts and Clubs

"Right now is the time when we nephews of Uncle Sam should keep our shirts on and not lose our heads," says Mark Tucker in the Chilton County News. Mark, the way we put our shirts on, we have to stick our heads out. We have seen pictures of KuKluxers who didn't stick their heads all the way through their shirts, but that's different. You are right about keeping cool heads, but to do that, the heads must be stuck out where we can see.—Green County Democrat.

Recent newspaper reports say the Kluxers have lost both their shirts and their former "head"—Evans who was last week indicted in Rome, Ga., by a U. S. Grand Jury on a charge of fraud.

May we add, that while keeping a cool head, a handy club for defense, might come in handy in case there is any puddle jumping.

ment I walked up to the old family clock on the mantle. That old clock cared nothing about the storm that was raging. While window pane cracked and trees split, that old clock sat there a perfect picture of calmness. It said "Tick-Tock Tick-Tock" and never missed a swing. What a lesson that was to me. Friends, when you are disturbed, just walk up to that old family clock and stand there for five minutes and look and listen. What if there is a storm, what if there is agitation, that clock calmly says "Tick-Tock Tick-Tock". It matters not what may come, be calm in thy soul, like that clock on the mantle.

I am always interested in a bee hive. True, the bee has a sting, but I never think of its power to hurt as I watch it come and go. I know that a bee is not hunting trouble and if it has to sting it is done for self preservation, or to protect its cargo gathered from the hive. I have watched the bee as it leaves the hive, light and swift, and I have watched it as it would return heavily laden with honey for the hive. They never idle when the sun is shining. Often they work themselves to death when they are gathering the pollen and carrying it to their group home. There is no selfishness in working bee. Like the great Master me, the bee will give himself for comrades. With the bee it is to live or give.

kitchen coolness

— a plus value of cooking electrically *

BAKING was once a cool-weather art, but no longer. At least, not in homes with modern electric ranges, where baking can be done as comfortably on the hottest Summer day as on a cool Spring day. That is because the controlled heat of an electric range is kept inside the oven, cooking the food, and not the cook!

Ask about this plus value of cooking electrically the next time you are in one of our stores. A small down payment places an automatic electric range in your kitchen—dresses it up—makes it more modern. Balance may be paid in small amounts over a period of months.

Where Are Tricks In The Fitting Of A Dress

Fitting a dress is easy—but there are many tricks to it; learn the tricks and you will fit a dress.

The grain of the garment must be straight.

Every seam must be properly adjusted at the proper place.

About 75 per cent of fitting troubles are due to incorrect grain lines in the garment. Every piece of material is made of crosswise threads woven into lengthwise threads. These crosswise threads form what is called cross grain. The grain line at the bust, hip, and upper arm must be parallel to the floor. The lengthwise thread or grain must be straight at center back.

A slight twist of the pattern, in order to cut from a short piece of material, will result in an off-grain garment. As an example of this a 22-inch sleeve might be cut from a 22-inch length of material by placing the pattern diagonally; this, however, would result in a sleeve cut off-grain or slightly bias. Such a sleeve will twist on the arm and set uncomfortably. A shirt cut off-grain results in a sagging, poorly fitted garment.

For further information ask your Home Agent for extension service bulletins on Dress Fitting and Construction details.

Peas For Fall Planting Through AAA

Chilton County farmers who want to obtain Austrian winter peas through the AAA grant-of-aid planting this fall are urged to make applications as soon as possible, according to J. W. Fant, County Agent.

Mr. Fant said vetch would not be available under the grant-of-aid plan but indications were that the supply of Austrian peas would be extremely large. He has been advised that the peas will cost $4.85 per hundred. Inoculation will not be furnished with the peas, making it necessary that farmers obtain inoculation from other sources.

"Those farmers who have been unable to plant a part of their land in winter legumes each fall because they did not have money enough for seed should welcome this plan to obtain pea seed without any cash outlay," he said. "Under this plan farmers make application for the seed and the cost is deducted from their AAA payment. The seed will be delivered in car-lot shipments of 60,000 pounds."

Farmers who want to take advantage of this opportunity to obtain winter legume seed should contact their county office as soon as possible since all possible orders should be in by June 15th.

J. W. FANT,
County Agent.

In 1939 more than 25,000 of the more than 100,000 Alabama 4-H club members chose livestock as their major project as compared with 8,000 in 1939.

This year Alabama has more than 170 one-variety cotton communities where farmers planted improved varieties of cotton and will have the staple ginned separately from inferior staple grades.

War To Be Waged On Forest Fires

A war on forest fires will be declared this Fall, it is stated in announcement received here from the headquarters of the Southern States Forest Fire Commission. "We want to recruit a million high school boys in this campaign against our principal southern enemy—fires in our woodlands," the statement adds. "It will be a volunteer service for our country, for the betterment of all."

The statement contained reference to reports from farmers of Chilton and other nearby counties that the huckleberry crop, source of considerable income to farmers and their families, is being injured by fires, together with destruction of quail and bird nests, as well as little pines. The bulletin refers to an investigation recently made in which it was brought out that for every pine set out under the government reforestation plan, a hundred has been burnt up by incendiary fires which could have been stopped in many instances with little effort of volunteer sources.

The Commission sponsored a meeting of Central Alabama negroes at Bald Hill school house near Plantersville last Saturday night to discuss ways and means of saving the possum and other wild life from destruction. A large attendance was reported. The meeting was presided over by Dr. T. M. Martin and was addressed by Robt. D. Sturdivant of Berlin, J. T. O'Neal of Plantersville, W. L. Shaddix of Birmingham of the Forest Fire Commission, and others.

While here recently, Mr. Shaddix went over plans with local educational authorities in the interest of adopting forest fire work as a citizenship project by the schools. Free literature for Chilton county school children is to be provided under the plan in cooperation with state and national forestry agencies.

A 10-Point 10-Year Program

With the objective of boosting the income of Alabama citizens and bringing about a "balanced prosperity," the State has inaugurated a 10-point, 10-year program.

State officers, Alabama civic leaders and representatives of agriculture, industry, labor finance, education and the press have joined in the campaign that is being promoted by governors and leaders of 11 Southern states.

A meeting held in Montgomery last week authorized Gov. Frank M. Dixon and Donald Comer, textile mill chain operator and chairman of the Alabama Committee, to appoint groups and to perfect organizations that will work toward realization in this state of the aims of the program.

Objectives of the Alabama group are to:

1. Balance money crops (including forestry) with food, feed, and fertility crops.
2. Balance crops with livestock consistent with sound land use.
3. Balance farms with factories.
4. Balance scientific production of high-quality products with scientific marketing, including grading, processing, packing and adequate transportation without trade barriers.
5. Utilize and develop all natural resources in keeping with wise conservation policies.
6. Provide adequate educational opportunities at all levels, and institute educational programs designed to aid in solving the persistent problems of our people.
7. Encourage thrift, home-ownership and local investment.
8. Beautify homes, communities, highways, and public grounds, parks and playgrounds.
9. Raise present average living standards by improving housing facilities, health conditions, and other essentials of human welfare.
10. Balance economic gains with gains in culture and moral values.

Gov. Dixon pledged his administration to the Alabama program, stating that "problems of the South cannot be solved solely by attacking outside discriminations set up against us. The 10-year program is one established to bring about gradual improvements in all the many phases of activity that bring about our better living."

Industrialist Comer said, "We're making progress in this State, but still we have only $28 for each school child a year. A survey shows that farm hands get 90 cents a day, without board, and that 300,000 young Alabamians left the State in a decade because there was no place in our cotton economy for their brains."

If our Southern farmers can buy a trace-chain made South of Pittsburgh or an axe made south of Wheeling, W. Va., I don't know about it. If we can change 90-cent agricultural workers into $3 a day factory workers, we can go a long way toward bringing about a balanced prosperity. We shall endeavor to blue-print our needs and then see how we can best meet these needs."

State organizations of the CIO and the AFL joined to pledge labor's aid toward the plan, and other support came from many civic and State organizations.

ation with state and national forestry agencies.

Later a meeting is to be held in Clanton for the purpose of discussing definite details of the volunteer forest fire department to be organized in this County, it is said.

Lespedeza Sericea For Early Hay

With the feed supply exhausted on many farms as a result of the severe winter just past, farmers with Lespedeza sericea ready to cut now are in a fortunate position with respect to livestock feed.

The quality of Lespedeza sericea hay, however, is entirely dependent on the time of cutting, according to County Agent Mr. J. W. Fant and Mr. H. Wood Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service at the CCC Camp area, near Clanton, Alabama.

The proper time for cutting sericea hay is when the plants average 10 to 12 inches in height, they explain. It is desirable to set the cutter bar of the mowing machine so as to leave a 2 to 3-inch stubble to provide enough stems for the new plants and to protect the land against erosion.

Many farmers who have planted Lespedeza sericea as a part of the Soil Conservation program on their farms have found that mules and cattle graze sericea readily. Observations show that milk production picks up immediately when cows begin to graze sericea.

After cutting a first crop of hay in the spring, sericea can be used for grazing when the new plants reach a height of 4 to 6 inches.

HOUSEHOLD PESTS

House flies are most annoying and most dangerous because they are disease carriers. Flies breed only in filthy—stable manure, decayed garbage, etc. Keeping things clean and getting rid of breeding places are the best methods of freeing the house of such pests. All garbage cans should be kept clean and covered. The policy of "swat the fly" should be followed constantly.

Rats and mice are dirty and destructive. They eat food, leather and clothing, and gnaw holes in wood—a good cat is one of the best ways of freeing a house of such pests. All holes or openings where the animals enter the house should be covered with tin.

Health Department

MOTHERS ADVISED ON INFANT FEEDING

Regular feeding by a definite schedule and the addition of foods besides milk at the proper time were described as two of the most important principles of sound infant feeding by the County Health Officer in a discussion of feeding the infant under one year of age. The tendency of mothers to nurse the baby every time it cries was said to be one of the commonest mistakes made. This practice, it was pointed out, is responsible for much of the regurgitating or spitting back of milk by babies. The infants stomach being very small with a capacity of only 4-12 ounces at 3 months of age, too frequent feedings cause over filling. A three hour schedule with seven feedings in 24 hours is advised for the first month. During the 2nd month a four hour schedule with six feedings is recommended. Beginning with the third month, the number of feedings is reduced to five by omitting the feeding at 2 a. m. Such a schedule calls for feedings at 6 a. m. 10 a. m. 2 p. m., 6 p. m. and 10 p. m.

The superiority of breast feeding over "bottle feeding" was emphasized by the Health Officer. Infants "on the bottle," he states, should be carefully supervised by the family doctor and the formula readjusted as the baby gains in weight. Evaporated milk is a cleaner and safer milk for babies. If raw milk is used, it should be boiled for three minutes being stirred constantly. The heating will destroy most of the disease producing germs which may be present. The baby's drinking water and water used in the preparation of the formula should be boiled for at least fifteen minutes.

Because milk, though being a nearly perfect food in itself, is deficient in certain minerals and vitamins essential for health. According to the Health Officer, certain foods have to be added to the baby's diet early in the first year. Codliver oil (at least 3 teaspoonfuls daily) and orange juice 4 table-spoons daily should be given beginning at 6 weeks of age. A cooked cereal (oatmeal), cream of wheat or farina) is added at the beginning of the fifth month. In the sixth month one egg yolk and a pureed vegetable (mashed and strained) should be given daily. Weaning should be started in the seventh month and completed by the tenth month. Prune pulp, hard toast, baked potato with butter, and baked ripe bananas are to be added during the last 3 months of baby's first year.

For the benefit of those readers who failed to see the Health Department's schedule for free diphtheria and typhoid inoculation clinics published week before last, the time and place of the clinics for the month of June are announced below. The Health Officer wishes to emphasize again that the typhoid vaccine should be taken every two years beginning at 2 years of age and the diphtheria 'toxoid' should be given babies at 6 months of age and further that two doses of toxoid are given instead of one.

Tackle Mystery of Dead Man on Peak

Legend of Frozen Body Is To Be Looked Into.

REVELSTOKE, B. C.—An expedition to clear up the 74-year-old mystery of the "dead man of Mount Begbie" may be sponsored by the Revelstoke board of trade next summer.

After 74 years the rumor still persists that the frozen body of an adventurous climber was to be seen on the frozen slopes of 9,000-foot Mount Begbie in the Canadian Rockies, encased in a deep crevasse near the summit.

Actual proof has never been furnished in connection with the story, but legends die hard in the West and the old tale emanating from the Indians still lives.

Many mountaineers vow they have seen the frozen body embalming in the side of the crevasse, while many more vow with equal fervor the whole tale is but another Indian legend.

Two theories exist among proponents of the tale. Some insist the unfortunate mystery man was a French-Canadian prospector, one of a group of three who worked the district in the early sixties.

Another version is that he was a Salish Indian who climbed the peak to locate new hunting grounds for his tribe, pressed by the coming of the whites.

The first white man to report the tale, according to local historians, was the late J. C. Montgomery, British Columbia pioneer, who came up the Columbia river in 1866 as a crew member of the historic steamship Porty-Nine, carrying gold miners to the Big Bend gold fields. Montgomery then told the tale by Indians.

Skeptics assert it improbable that anyone would be near the summit of the peak at that time. No self-respecting Indian would be found on the top of such a mountain, they contend, this form of sport being looked upon by them as a violent form of insanity.

However, when the Big Bend highway opens in July the Revelstoke board of trade will sponsor a climbing party that will attempt to prove or disprove the story.

Auto Charges Farmer But Can't Gain a Yard

TWIN VALLEY, MINN.—To Carl Lucken, Red River valley farmer, an all-star team is a brace of Percherons and interference has something to do with the federal government.

Yet Lucken, according to the Twin Valley hot stove league, executed the most spectacular—and hardest block—of the 1939 season. Lucken, his automobile gone suddenly balky, got out to crank it. The motor started, the car bore down on Lucken, who found himself suddenly in danger of being crushed between the car and a substantial stone milkhouse.

His back literally to the wall, Lucken crouched, then plunged head-on into the oncoming car.

There was a crash as the car, motor and all stopped dead in its tracks.

Garagemen said repairs to the radiator grill would run about $12.

Shave Literally Close In Crossing Accident

GILROY, CALIF.—Because a train was going so fast when it struck an automobile near here, the driver's life probably was saved.

Crossing the intersecting car, Gilbert Atinip said he failed to see the limited until it was too close. He applied his brakes, and the front end of his truck came to rest on the tracks.

The result was a clean shave—slicing off the radiator and front part of the light truck.

Witnesses believe that if the train had been proceeding slower, it would have dragged the car several feet—probably killing Atinip, who escaped without injury.

Wife Hands Over Radio; He Wasn't the Repair Man

BURLINGTON, N. J.—John Corbett called a repairman to work on his $70 radio.

"Do you want the radio?" Mrs. Corbett asked a man who appeared at the door a short time later. The man looked a little startled, she said, but he took the radio and disappeared. He wasn't the repairman.

Court Sets Aside Marriage in 1911 Of First Cousins

Rules Indiana Contract Is Invalid Under Laws Of Illinois.

CHICAGO.—The 23-year-old marriage of Arthur Spencer, 32 years old, and Mrs. Jane Spencer, 72, was annulled by Judge Grover C. Niemeyer in Superior court. The judge upheld Spencer's contention that he and his wife are first cousins and that therefore their marriage in 1911 was invalid under Illinois law.

The clinching evidence in the case was a will written by Mrs. Spencer in 1935 and introduced by Attorney Irving Eisenman, counsel for Spencer. In this document, Mrs. Spencer said: "I leave my estate to my cousin, Arthur, to whom I entered into a marriage believing it valid." The judge held this was proof that she knew of the close blood relationship.

Read Letter of Uncle.

Also introduced was a letter written by Benjamin Supree of New York, who said he was an uncle of the Spencers and deplored the court controversy. Supree's letter said he was a brother of the fathers of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer. (The Spencers' name was originally Supree.)

Spencer asserted that the annulment suit, one of the most unusual actions ever filed in Cook county, that his father and Mrs. Spencer's father were brothers.

"On the witness stand Mrs. Spencer showed a lack of knowledge of the family relationship," Judge Niemeyer said, "but it is hard to believe that a woman, who otherwise appeared so capable, could have that lack. Notwithstanding the long time this couple lived together as man and wife, there is no alternative under the statutes but to grant an annulment."

Violations of Illinois Laws.

Mrs. Spencer denied that she was her husband's first cousin, but contended that even if she was the court should not dissolve the marriage because Spencer was an active participant in violating the Indiana state laws when they were married in Crown Point. At that time he was 23 and she was 43.

Although the marriage was in Indiana, both the Spencers were residents of Illinois, and, due to the county of stay, Illinois laws control Illinois residents even in out of state marriages.

Mrs. Spencer's petition for temporary maintenance was also dismissed by Judge Niemeyer. Spencer said that under a separation agreement last June he had already paid her $27,000. Mrs. Spencer lives at 3501 Jackson boulevard and Spencer, a retired clothing merchant, lives in the Stevens hotel.

Faithful Dog Saves His Master, Hurt in Desert

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—Water soaked up in a flannel shirt, carried from a waterhole by a dog, saved the life of James Donald, 58, a kangaroo shooter who succumbed in the Central Queensland desert.

After crawling half a mile with his right leg fractured, caused when he was thrown from his horse, Donald lay for several hours 400 yards from the waterhole, with the temperature at 114 degrees in the shade. His dog went to the waterhole, lay down in it and then returned to him. Taking off his flannel shirt, Donald tied it round the dog and sent the animal to the waterhole. When the dog returned Donald squeezed the soaked shirt and obtained enough to ease his parched throat.

Donald was found several hours later calling deliriously for water. He said that he owed his life to the dog and the flannel shirt.

Rings Fire Box to Report Theft and Is Arrested

NEW YORK.—Albert Lass' decision to report a $200 robbery at District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office in the early hours got extraordinary results. When the 35-year-old suit designer found the office closed, he turned in a fire alarm and was greeted by:

Four fire engines, two hook and ladder trucks, a water tower, two battalion chiefs and a deputy chief, three police patrol cars and a squad car full of detectives.

"Where's the fire?" Patrolman William Carolin asked.

"There is no fire, I just wanted to see the district attorney," was the reply.

Lass was booked on a charge of sounding a false alarm.

I'm a Burglar, Won't You Please Come and Get Me

CLINTON, N. J.—The desk sergeant's police headquarters rubbed his eyes twice at 3:15 a. m. when a voice on the other end of the telephone wire said nervously: "I'm a burglar and I tried to rob Roy's Clam Bar. Roy caught me and he's making me call you up. Will you please come and arrest me."

Police found Roy Dalrymple with a shotgun and his prisoner, identified as Anthony C. Ochab, with hands high in the air. Dalrymple explained that, robbed of $20 a fortnight ago, he had been awaiting the burglar's return. He even had nickels on the counter for the telephone call.

New Highway Signs To Be Placed Soon

New black on white metal signs like the one of photo above-marking the routes of State Highways as distinguished from U. S. Highways—will soon be making their appearance at road-sides and on routes through cities and towns replacing the old type black on-yellow diamond shaped markers like those shown at the right of the picture. Maintenance Engineer Marvin Taylor of the State Highway Department estimates it will require approximately 5,000 of the new markers which are 16 inches long by 12 inches wide, to complete the replacements, that will be carried out in addition to their other activities, by maintenance forces under his direction. The first new markers will begin to appear in Birmingham and its surrounding area within the next 30 days.

Americans Coming Home From Europe

The Steamship President Roosevelt is on its way from Galway, Ireland to New York bringing 720 passengers, and the Manhattan is coming from Genoa with 1,973. Most of these are Americans, fleeing from Europe's war zones.

Many Americans unable to find room on these two ships hope to be able to get passage on the President Harrison which will sail later in the week. Before these vessels sailed Germany warned the U. S. that her enemies were planning to attack these vessels and lay the blame on Germany.

Alabama May Get New State Building

Construction of a new building on Capitol Hill will "proceed at once" if the U. S. Senate joins the House in doing away with the present $50,000 limit of Federal contributions to WPA construction projects Gov. Frank M. Dixon has announced.

W. C. Henderson, State Works Projects Administrator, has already expressed his desire to "cooperate in getting the proposed new building under way." The House of Representatives last week voted to eliminate the $50,000 limitation, and the Senate is expected to concur.

The new building would be located on Dexter Avenue opposite the Highway Department Building. It would be similar in design to the Highway Building and would house the Departments of Education, Health, Agriculture and other agencies now occupying frame buildings which the new structure will replace.

Milwaukee Girl Killed In Accident

Josephine McGuire of Milwaukee, Wis., was killed Sunday afternoon when a motorcycle attempting to pass an automobile struck the rear bumper and careened off the Montgomery Clanton highway near Montgomery. The lady was riding in the side car of the motorcycle. Her companion Lyle Anadell, also of Milwaukee, was severely injured.

Freedom of Press

The publisher who established freedom of the press in America was John Peter Zenger, born in Germany about 1680. He came to America about 1700 and became a printer's apprentice. He began the publication of the New York Weekly Journal November 5, 1733, an organ opposed to the governor and supported by Chief Justice Lewis Morris and other leading men. The paper was credited with greatly influencing public opinion against the government, and Zenger was arrested November 17, 1734, on a charge of publishing seditious libels. He was imprisoned for some time before his trial, which he was defended by Andrew Hamilton, and his acquittal by the jury was regarded as the first important victory for the freedom of the press.

This Way Out

After a six-mile run on the foot-board of a runaway train speeding 70 miles an hour, Engineer John Vallance and Fireman Thomas Eaglesham jumped from the engine seconds before it crashed into a freight train near Ayr, Scotland. As they lay gasping for breath at the side of the track they heard the crash. Neither was seriously injured. The speeding train had gotten out of control on a steep grade.

Concrete Preferred In Highway Construction

State Highway Department records present a strong case for the construction of all our main highways with concrete in preference to asphalt.

Although asphalt is far cheaper, records show that the maintenance bill on concrete makes the comparison silly.

The Highway Department reckons that a net savings of $256 a mile per year can be effected with concrete over asphalt. When we consider the great mileage of low type asphalt roads in Alabama, then the full savings can be imagined. For instance, the road between Birmingham and the Georgia line, running through Anniston, is partly concrete and partly asphalt. Annual cost per mile of the concrete is $55.81, that of the asphalt, $68.78. The 81.1 miles of concrete costs $4,525.93 annually, the asphalt 14.4 miles $9,904.02. By that you can see that the 14.4 miles of asphalt cost twice as much as the 81.1 miles of concrete.

Another example of the expense of asphalt is the Chattanooga to Mississippi highway through Birmingham, which is paved with concrete, high type asphalt and low type asphalt. The 107 miles of concrete is an annual expense of $70.11 per mile, or a total of $7,501.76. The high type asphalt costs $97.57 per mile, or a total of $1,414.80 for the 14.50 miles. The low type asphalt costs $409.43 per mile, or a total of $236,34.98 for 64.35 miles.

On the Chattanooga - Mississippi stretch, at such a rate, $22,214.41 could be saved annually—$21,815.24 on the low type asphalt and $399.17 on the high type asphalt.

If such savings can be shown possible, then why aren't more of our highways being paved with concrete. Apparently we are sending thousands of dollars each year down the sewer when we might be paying more roads with it, or diverting the money to other sources. The reason, of course, is the initial cost, for concrete cost twice as much as the low type asphalt. The cost per mile for concrete surface is estimated at $19,275, while the asphalt costs but $8,423. However, when we get all our principal roads paved with asphalt the upkeep bill is going to be so great that it should be far better to stretch the program out longer and get quality.

Any motorist can recite the benefits of concrete in addition to the lower upkeep. Concrete is of light color and can be more easily seen at night, cutting into the accident rate. Concrete is much safer because of the rougher surface it offers to the spinning automobile tires. In rainy weather, this gritty surface of concrete permits safe travel, while asphalt becomes slick.

As we write this editorial, we have particularly in mind some of the roads leading out of Anniston. The Gadsden Highway is constantly being repaired, and the bumpy road down into Talladega County has such ragged edges and such a bumpy surface that it is actually dangerous to travel. On the other hand, there are the concrete highways leading toward Birmingham and Atlanta, discussed a bit previously from the standpoint of upkeep, which are a marvel to ride. You can travel on concrete at a greater speed and still be safer.—Anniston Star.

Mt. Carmel

Bro. Rube Bearden will preach at this place next Sunday. Come and hear him.

There will be a B. Y. P. U. Social here next Saturday night. We are expecting Mr. Fred L. Kelley, a student of Talladega, to play his guitar and sing, also some other visitors, Rev. and Mrs. Nix will be with us, and we urge all the members to be present as this is our first social given. Visitors are always welcome to Mt. Carmel. So we are hoping for good weather and a good time.

You missed a good sermon if you failed to hear Bro. Nix Sunday night. The subject being "Cover Up, Ruff Up and Blow Up," and his text being, "A Short Bed and Narrow Covering." Isaiah 28:20.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sewell are attending veterans meeting in Montgomery part of this week. They plan to spend a few days with their son at Gainesville, Ga., before coming home.

Bro. Nix and family went to Montgomery Sunday night after service to spend Monday with Mrs. Nix's parents.

Mr. Leonard Johnson of Clanton, spent a day or two last week with his sister, Mrs. Odie Sewell.

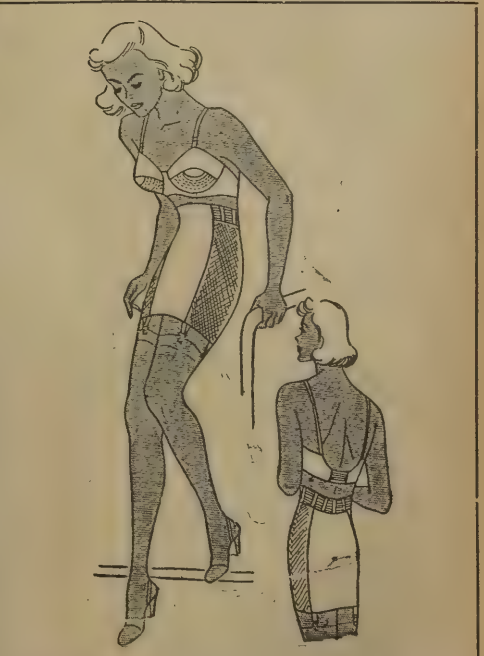

Edwin Holley of Clanton spent part of last week with his aunt, Mrs. Mary Davenport.

Mr. Marlin Patterson of Samaria was a visitor here Sunday.

Mr. Ross Foshee and family and Miss Gladys Oden visited Mrs. Foshee's mother near Sunshine church Sunday afternoon.

Sherlock Meets With Highway Officials

State Highway Director Chris J. Sherlock left last Friday for Washington, D. C. to join groups of highway officials from other States in urging the passage by Congress of the pending legislation providing additional federal funds to the States for road construction.

Mr. Sherlock said that he personally would stress the vital importance of adequate highway systems in any national defense program to be adopted by the Federal government, now or in the future. The Director expects to return to Montgomery sometime this week.

University Speaker Dr. Rupert Vance

DR. RUPERT VANCE

University, Ala.—Dr. Rupert B. Vance, author and research professor in the Institute for Research in Social Science of the University of North Carolina, will headline the list of speakers at the twelfth annual State Education Conference to be held at the University of Alabama on June 17-19.

As a past president of the Southern Sociological Society and a recognized authority on the South and its problems Dr. Vance has been called to serve in various research capacities on the National Resources committee, the Study of Population Redistribution, the Social Security Board, the Rosenwald Fund, and the Social Science Research Council.

Invitations have been extended to all Alabama teachers, school board members and others interested in education to attend this conference. Dr. Vance will give a series of six lectures during the three day session, his subjects being: Regionalism; The South and the Nation; Our Human Resources; Whither Agriculture?; Organizing the Pursuit of Happiness; Measuring Our Cultural Development; and The Quality of Life in the South.

Eastview

Services at Eastview will be Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9th. Saturday at 11 a. m., Standard time, Rev. Luther Ballou will preach on the subject: "You Are Important." Sunday the sermon will be at 10 a. m., Sunday. The sermon subject at the preaching service at 11 a. m. will be, "He Gave Them Power." At the service Sunday night at 7:30 p. m. the sermon will be, "Listen to God." All are welcome at all services.

Remember that the revival services will be the week of July 21st. The churches within three miles of Eastview have arranged to have their revivals so that they will not conflict with each other.

The Ladies Aid will meet at the church Saturday June 8th at 10 a. m. Standard time. All ladies of the community interested are cordially invited to be with us.

The Persian Kitten

By EMORY SMITH

(Associated Newspapers.) (WNU Service)

SUSAN put down the curt letter with a stunned look on her face. She had thought her cup of troubles full when the bulk of her money had been lost in the disastrous investment that her son had insisted on making.

Since that failure she had been obliged to cut off many of her usual comforts and she was no longer young. She had her cottage and a small monthly income and that was about all.

Jerry, contrite at the result of his meddling, had been sending her $10 a month. He earned $200 in the city and he conveyed to her the impression of being extremely generous when he wrote the note that accompanied the check he sent her every month.

Now he was about to be married and he could—or would—no longer send her anything. "You ought to be able to manage with what you have. Marcia thinks you have quite a bit for just one person, mother."

For goodness' sake, let up on the pet cats. They use too much milk. Marcia dislikes cats extremely. If we decide to visit you you must not have one about. Don't forget."

In that moment Susan's world turned, almost overnight, from a gay, freckled and impulsive lad into a stranger who ordered her to give up her little animals.

Susan dropped the knitting that was becoming almost impossible because of her age-stiffened fingers. In the patch of sunshine on the hooked rug she had made lay an old scarlet ball. The once gay color was now a grayish-rose and the ball was one that Jerry had possessed. Susan wasn't looking at the Persian kitten that rolled the ball with playful paws and pretended fear when it approached her.

The old lady said, instead, a fat infant with unsteady steps holding out his hands for help.

Well, Jerry was a man now approaching middle age. He no longer needed her. He was taking to himself a young and modern wife and

—Susan was ordered to give up her dumb little companions. There must be some way. Before her daughter, Polly, died she had had some one to help her with her hard ideas and good ones. "You can find the answer to almost any question in the daily papers, mother. A glance through the want ads opens many unthought-of avenues. Why don't you ever read them?"

"Wonder," pondered Susan, wishing with the old poignant ache that Polly had not left her alone.

Polly, the beloved one, gone and Jerry—she brushed away a tear—thoughts like that were useless, they led nowhere.

"And," she muttered, unfolding a paper from the nearby city, "Jerry has no idea that I've got seven cats here now because some of my friends are away on vacations."

In the column of advertisements devoted to cats and dogs, Susan found her answer.

"Wanted—A place in the country where I can leave my pedigree

Angora cat for three months while abroad. Only cat lovers need apply. Price no object. Write or telephone. Mrs. James Jerrold, No. X,

Walton place."

A few days later Jerry arrived.

"I've been thinking over things, mother. How would you like to sell your cottage and enter a nice home for old ladies?"

Susan reached down and picked up her pet kitten. "Not at all," she said calmly. "Look, Jerry, this is a real Persian."

"Oh, well," he looked somewhat ashamed, but he'd plainly been out to push the proposition home.

"Of course it's as you like. You see,

Marcia won't keep house—that's why—

"Why are you worrying about me, son? You don't need to. I'm making money and expect to make more."

"Not if you harbor all the cats of folks who go away and let you hold the bag," he exclaimed.

"The cat is out of the bag," Susan smiled. "Remember that old story of the king of the Persians who lacked guns when unexpectedly attacked by foes? How he sent his soldiers into every alley and byway

to gather up stray cats and then advanced on his enemy, each soldier holding his cat behind him until the signal, when the snarling biting animal was flung full into the faces of the astounded foes. Well, I've turned my odd fancy for cats into an asset."

"Asset for the milkman, I suppose," he said puzzled.

"No, Jerry. I've sent in a standing advertisement for a city newspaper to carry and I assure you

I'm not belittling myself by giving my care too cheaply."

"Mother, do you feel real well?

A standing advertisement in a city paper? Who's to pay for all this?

I can't. Marcia isn't satisfied now with what I can give her."

"Thanks, dear. I'm feeling fine.

I've flung my cats into the face of poverty, and Jerry, I've got an income right now. I board cats when folks want to go abroad or on vacations and—I simply love to do it,"

she proudly declared.

USED CAR SUGGESTED AS GRADUATION PRESENT

Parents puzzling over the question what to give the June graduate, may find the ideal answer this year in a good used car. This is the commencement-gift suggestion of W. E. Holler, general sales manager of Chevrolet, whose dealers handle the largest volume of used cars, as well as of new, of any organization in the world.

"In these days when personal transportation is all but indispensable, it is hard to conceive of any other gift so welcome as an automobile," Mr. Holler pointed out. "Its all-round utility is a constant reminder of the giver's thoughtfulness. Moreover, it lasts for a long, long time. It makes an ideal gift whether the car is new or used; in fact judiciously selected used cars are the choice of more and more people who put real thought into their giving."

"Several factors have contributed to the elevation of the used car as a commodity in trade," Mr. Holler stated. "In the first place, new cars get better each year," he said. "Designs, materials and production methods are constantly being improved, with the result that the car's useful life grows longer with each successful model year."

"In the second place, with the active cooperation of the dealers, there has been systematic effort on the part of such institutions as Chevrolet, to raise the standards of used car value by providing safe-guards for the buyer. The checking and reconditioning program carried out by our dealer organization gives the used car purchaser assurance of lasting satisfaction with his buy."

"Chevrolet's heavy sales volume since the 1940 models came out is proof that these cars embody a very strong popular appeal. That, plus the fact that business conditions are definitely better, is causing many motorists to trade in cars which would normally be driven much longer by their first owners."

"As a result our dealers used car stock include an unusually large proportion of late models. They cover a wide range of body styles, colors, and prices, and thus make possible a selection which meets any buyer's specific needs."

"In short, the thoughtful giver, in search of the type of gift—commencement birthday or otherwise, which will embody real utility, over a long period of time may find in this new trend toward used car giving the perfect solution to his problem."

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By IRVIN LANDE

Today the United States is preparing its army and navy as never before in peacetime. It is only natural that in these critical times as these there should be a great deal of fear among the people of a free democracy that is still at peace in a world at war. There is much worry among those of us who do not want to fight again in a war so destructive and terrible as this one is. But, nevertheless, we have to prepare and we are preparing. We are asked by President Roosevelt to act calmly and with premeditation—not to give way to mob rule or to become filled with panic and frenzy. We have not, however, complied with the wishes of our President. We have gone about our preparedness "like a chicken with its head cut off."

fore now. But we are now preparing, may I repeat, yet preparing without a definite plan for our national security. There are, I think, five tangible and essential points in our preparedness which we must do and which we can do to the greatest apex without either panic or frenzy. These are the points which our national leaders have stated in their addresses and in their interviews. The first of these five things is our re-equipping our army and our navy. We have already begun their re-equipping by appropriating billions of dollars to them. However, merely allotting money is not getting planes and ships. The real result will be in the number of ships and planes and guns that this money will produce. We have done very definite work along this line of supplying the national defenses of our country, and in the words of President Roosevelt, "I shall not fail to ask for more appropriations when I think our national defense warrants and demands it."

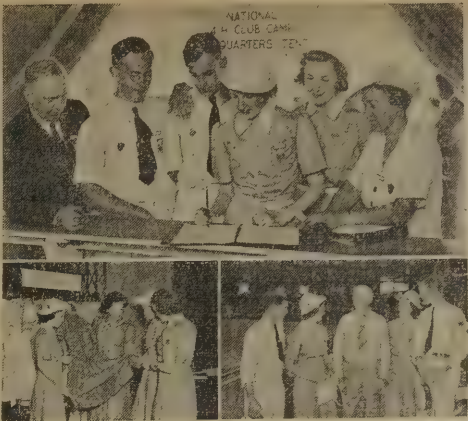

The second point is one that we are just now becoming cognizant of. It is the necessity of training our men. Great Britain and France did not begin conscription until the very last minute and today their battle forces are showing that lack. We here in America have a catholic distaste for military training, but we can and must begin training for our forces. Now this training will not be compulsory, but every patriotic person will readily join if the training is made available to him. The Civilian Conservation Corps is also an agency which will be included in this rigorous training program. The third and perhaps the hardest point to achieve is the ridding of subversive activities. The "Trojan Horse" and the "Fifth Column" will become the most outland organization in the entire United States. Under the two, the Communist party and Fritz Kuhn's German-American Bund will also be listed. The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Dies Committee for Un-American activities will play the leading role in condemning those who would open America to the totalitarian states merely for personal gain. Fourthly, we can not change horses in the middle of the stream. Those men who are experienced and trained must stay in office and must pledge to do for the country the best good. This also means that those who are unable to carry on their work or who have not done their job, must be removed from office before it is too late. It also implies that those in the presidency must stay in because we today know that there is no one in either party who is capable of carrying on the job of national defense as the man who today is in office, and who may go down in history as the greatest American president.

And the last point—a point for the individual. We must decide right now what we will fight for and what we are willing to defend. We must be willing to lower our standard of living so as to maintain that fight. We must be willing to endure hardships so that those things which American pioneers have fought for and achieved in a history of over a century and a half shall not have been won in vain. These are critical times for each and every one of us. We know not what sacrifices we will have to make, we can only hope that we will be able and strong enough to make them if we have to. If we Americans, acting as one united body can do, at least, these five tremendous points and carry out their fulfillment, we will be able to say to any enemy that we will resist. We will be able to say to te world those colossal words of Admiral Tausig, "We are now ready!"

CHECK YOUR MILK SUPPLY
With the summer months approaching, it is necessary that we watch our milk supply to guard against illness caused by bacteria. Milk furnishes ideal conditions and food material for bacterial growth. The higher the temperature of milk, the faster bacteria grow and multiply. The following points will insure clean milk.
1. Healthy milkers.
2. Clean cows.
3. Clean stables.
4. Pure water.
5. Control of flies.
6. Steaming utensils.
7. Cool the milk and keep it cool.
One good practice which always pays dividends in the pasture is mowing weeds.

"Build-Up" Relief Explained to Women
A simple method has saved many women a lot of suffering! It is based on the fact that headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain are often symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. Help for this condition so often follows the use of CARDUI, because it usually increases the appetite and the flow of gastric juice; thus aids digestion and helps build physical resistance. Usual result is less periodic distress. Many who take CARDUI a few days before and during "the time" have found this helps ease periodic discomfort. Women have used CARDUI for more than 50 years!

New $500,000 Bridge Plans For Black Warrior River O. K.'d.

Elimination of Alabama's last "weak" link on International Highway U. S. 11, was assured last week with the U. S. Public Road Administration's final approval of plans for the new $500,000 highway bridge over the Black Warrior River in Tuscaloosa County.

Formal requests will be made immediately for bids on the new reinforced concrete and steel structure, to be located at Foster's Ferry, 5 miles south of the city of Tuscaloosa, according to Bridge Engineer J. P. Trotter of the State Highway Department.

The present bridge, a light "horse and buggy" type steel structure, built by Tuscaloosa County more than 40 years ago will be dismantled with the completion of the new project.

The sub-structure of the new bridge will consist of 10 reinforced concrete piers and 2 abutments. Included in the super-structure will be 6 steel girder spans each 105 feet long, with a 3-span continuous type girder in the center, these three spans being 140 feet, 210 feet and 140 feet long, respectively.

With a total length of 1,330 feet, the new structure which will have a 24 foot wide roadway, will be of the latest approved "high bridge" type, making unnecessary a movable span in the center to permit the passage to and fro of craft using the boat channel. Over the channel the bridge floor will be 91 feet above low-water and 52 feet above high-water level; and at the river level there will be a 200 foot horizontal clearance beneath the main center span.

Besides the bridge proper, there will be approximately 2 miles of approaches in which will be installed two 391 foot long reinforced concrete "relief" bridges for the run-off of flood water in all such emergencies, so as to relieve pressure on the approach fills.

Present plans are to get the project started on or about July 1. The bridge is to be completed and put in use some time during the summer of 1941.

Parents And Teachers Alabama Congress

University Ala.—Parents and teachers of Alabama are invited to attend the eleventh annual institute of the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers to be held at the University of Alabama on June 17-20.

Dr. Robert G. Foster, director advisory service for college women and research in Women's education, Merrill-Palmer School, Detroit, Mich., will be the principal speaker.

This noted authority on women's education and problems will give a series of lectures on such subjects as: Are You Fit to Marry? What is Family Development? What is Education for Marriage and Family Life? The Importance of Women's Education. He will also take part in consultation periods being arranged by the P.-T. A. Congress officials.

Auto Quiz No. 2

Answers

1. b. leave the clutch in and apply the brakes carefully. When driving on slippery roads you should always drive at a speed which makes braking unnecessary. If you must stop or slow down, do so gradually, touching the brakes lightly and intermittently, and always keeping the car in gear.
2. b. in the direction you are skidding. Your object is to "straighten out" the car and this is the way to do it. Be careful, however, not to turn the steering wheel too far. As the car straightens out, you should again straighten out the front wheels.
3. b. slow down and cross at as wide an angle as possible. Trying to cross tracks or ruts from a parallel position is almost certain to cause a dangerous skid.

Motor boats of all descriptions will be prohibited and no boats will be maintained by the management. However, boat owners may use their own skiffs, providing they place them in the water at designated spots and do not leave them in the lake overnight. No boating or fishing will be allowed within the swimming area. Lake Margaret is a well-stocked lake and anglers are looking forward to the opening of the water.

AHA Asks Highway Dept. For "Life-Line"

The Alabama Motorists Association has called upon the State Highway Department to place a center or "life-line" on every State and Federal highway in Alabama.

Frank E. Spain, President of the Association, in making the request called attention to the fact that four lives have been lost on Alabama highways in head-on collisions in the last 10 days.

Spain pointed out that while Alabama could not afford four-lane highways that the inexpensive "life line" would "greatly reduce to danger of head-on collisions as well as prevent other types of highway accidents."

NATION'S POSITION IS CLEARLY DEFINED BY ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt Pledges Entire Resources Of The Nation To Aid European Democracies

Text of President Roosevelt's address at graduation exercises of the University of Virginia, Monday June 10th, as reported by Associated Press newspapers. CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., June 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt's address today at graduation exercises of the University of Virginia: Every generation of young men and women in America has questions to ask the world. Most of the time they are simple but nevertheless difficult questions of work to do, opportunities to be seized, and ambitions to satisfy. The history of the republic a different kind of question presents itself—a question which asks not about the future of an individual or even of a generation, but about the future of the country, the future of the American people.

Clanton May Get New Training Station

Up to now we have been able to say very little in regard to the new training school for young aviators that is so widely discussed for Clanton.

Following is a letter received by Mayor Jones Tuesday morning and in a way partly enlightens us as to what is taking place:

CIVILIAN PILOT TRAINING PROGRAM

The Alabama Aviation Commission has asked the Civil Aeronautics Authority to establish a Civilian Pilot Training unit in your town.

Attached herewith is a copy of the recommendations we have submitted to the Civil Aeronautics Authority. We wish to suggest that you immediately write Mr. Groves Webster, Chief, Private Flying Department Division, Civil Aeronautics Authority, Washington, D. C., and Mr. Ed Nilson, Senior Private Flying Specialist, Civil Aeronautics Authority, P. O. Box 4327, Atlanta, Ga., and make application for such a unit. Also write to your Congressman and ask him to assist the application. The appointment of a local Aviation Committee to push the application would be very helpful. If such a committee is appointed, won't you advise us of its members so that we can keep in touch with them and assist them.

I expect to go to Washington within the next two weeks to personally urge the acceptance of our recommendations. Copies of this letter and recommendations have been sent to all those listed above.

You may count on the Alabama Aviation Commission doing everything it can to secure a Civilian Pilot Training unit for your town.

Yours sincerely,
ASA ROUNTREE, Jr.
State Director of Airfield Development.

ARLIE C. BONE

Archie C. Boone, age 23, was instantly killed near Adger in Tuscaloosa County Monday about noon. Mr. Boone jumped from a log truck going down a hill that had gotten out of control when a universal joint broke. He was pinned between the truck and a clay bank and crushed to death. At the time of his death he was employed by Belcher Lumber Company. He was buried Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at Maplesville, his former home. Surviving are his wife, one son, father and mother Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bone of Maplesville and 5 brothers and 3 sisters.

Rev. W. L. Nix of Birmingham officiating. Martin and Sons in charge.

Mrs. O. H. McGraw was discharged Monday.
Mr. Otis Varden was discharged Monday.

Late Flashes From Europe's War

This week in Europe, war in its most hellish magnitude sweeps on in its destructiveness.

Monday the Allies withdrew all forces from Norway, and the whole of Norway surrendered to the Germans. King Haakon fled to England.

Italy entered the war on the side of Germany. The Paris Stock Market closed. All newspapers suspended publication. With the German juggernaut drawing ever nearer the populace of Paris began evacuating. The government was moved to the city of Tours.

Tuesday much of Paris was in flames. Italy bombed Gibraltar and Malta. A terrific naval battle is said to be taking place in the Mediterranean between the Allied and Italian fleets. Britain closed the Suez Canal.

Wednesday the Germans carried the fighting to within sight of Paris. Germans reported capture of the city of Reims. Slowly, the scourge draws ever closer to what now seems the encirclement of Paris. However, miracles have been performed in the past.

Man Found Injured On Highway Saturday

A man, later identified as Rudolph Scarbrough, was found unconscious on the Clanton-Montgomery Highway late Saturday night. Martin Ambulance picked him up and carried him to Central Alabama hospital where he is recovering from a fracture of the skull. Just the cause of his injury is unknown at this writing and he has been able to shed little light on the investigation.

WILLIAM SHELBY MOORE

William Shelby Moore, age 72, died Monday evening at 6:45 at his home at Jemison. Funeral services were held at the Jemison Methodist church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30.

Surviving in the immediate family are his wife, Mrs. Mollie Reynolds Moore; two sons, Reynolds Moore and Charles Moore, both of Tuscaloosa; four daughters, Mrs. Hal Dickinson, of Lincoln, Ala.; Mrs. E. M. Williams, of Coaling, Ala.; Mrs. Nannie Hayes, of Coaling, Ala.; Mrs. Lonnie Duffey, of Jemison; six grandchildren.

Mr. Moore was a member of a prominent and widely known family, a son of the late John Bennington Moore and Nancy Carolyn Garner Moore. He was born and reared on the family estate in the Dry Valley community a few miles south of Montevallo.

Four brothers are Dr. J. Alex Moore, of Montevallo; Dr. Carey Moore, of Talladega; Dr. Cliff Moore, of Lendale, Ga.; Samuel C. Moore, of Dry Valley, Ga.; there are also four sisters: Mrs. K. S. Sessions, of Birmingham; Miss Mary Sue Moore of Dry Valley; Mrs. Warner Randall, of Birmingham; Mrs. Joe W. Bailey of Birmingham.

Mr. G. C. Wendling was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Wendling is superintendent of the L. & N. Railroad.

TO MY FRIENDS IN CHILTON COUNTY

I am grateful indeed for the fine support with which the good people of the Sixth District so kindly favored me in both primaries and hasten to express to each of you my heartfelt appreciation.

When all the circumstances are considered our victory was a fine one indeed and every one who contributed toward it has reason to be very proud.

It is with pride, which I hope is pardonable, that I express the opinion that I have heretofore made you a good Congressman. Be assured of my continued best efforts to always remain worthy of the confidence of the thousands of my friends who have so graciously supported me. Toward that end I solicit the wholehearted cooperation of every citizen of the Sixth District.

When you read this I shall be on the job in Washington where I would have been constantly heretofore but for the campaign.

Be assured of my best efforts during these trying times and always.
Sincerely yours,
Pete Jarman

MRS. LULA COLLINS PASSED AWAY

Mrs. Lula Collins, age 78, passed away Thursday morning June 6 at her residence, Thorby, Rt. 1.

Funeral was held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at Cedar Grove cemetery, conducted by Rev. M. L. McClellin. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. R. N. Griffin and daughter are visiting their daughter in Edenton, N. C. They will be gone about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince and son Wilbur are visiting Miss Ruth Prince in Eatonton, Ga.

Strong Defense With Sound Plans For Lasting Peace Is U. S. Policy

President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull utilized the occasion of the observance of Foreign Trade Week to emphasize the necessity in a war-torn world of promoting a sound national defense plan on which a permanent peace can be built after hostilities have ended. The tragic events now taking place abroad show clearly, they both agreed, that only the establishment of fair and liberal relations among nations could prevent the recurrence of such disasters, and it was the obvious interest as well as the duty of this country to strive to bring this about.

In his message, President Roosevelt said: "The tragic events now transpiring bear eloquent testimony to the fundamental need for liberal economic policies in international relations if in the future frictions, conflicts and wars among nations are to be averted. They serve also to emphasize the inescapable fact that our nation cannot enjoy sustained and satisfactory prosperity unless adequate foreign markets exist for our exportable surpluses and unless our necessary imports are unhampered by adverse developments at home and abroad."

"The promotion of liberal economic policies has been and will continue to be a vital part and a dominant purpose of the foreign policy of the United States. In this way, and in this way alone, can the United States contribute to the economic reconstruction of the world when the destruction now going on shall have ceased."

The thought of President Roosevelt was supported by Secretary Hull. "What has happened in the last few months," he said, "has brought out strikingly—perhaps more strikingly than ever before—the effects of foreign trade on our national wellbeing. For the present the difficulties experienced by those of our surplus-producing branches of agriculture and industry which are being affected by the sudden war-time curtailment of foreign markets are being relieved to some extent by the general economic improvements in the country, resulting in part from the expansion of other exports. But it must be increasingly clear—to every one who would but open his eyes to what is going on today—that permanent and stable prosperity for our surplus-producing branches of both agriculture and industry—and therefore for the country as a whole—is possible only in a world which I sat peace and in which economic activity in all countries makes possible increasing employment and consumption, and rising standards of living everywhere."

"The principles underlying the trade agreements program offer the only possible basis on which the economic life of the world can be successfully rebuilt. Only if these principles prevail in economic relations among nations will it be possible to create a firm foundation for stable peace and for satisfactory economic progress. If the opposite tendencies—those of totalitarian autocracy and all that it means—so ominously spreading today, should come to be widely dominant, mankind will be plunged into a period of chaos and impoverishment, and, inevitably, into moral and spiritual decay."

"Our nation has an obvious and essential stake in the establishment and preservation of conditions of stable peace and of orderly international relations. It is our duty to ourselves to make every appropriate contribution toward that end. Our paramount task today is two-fold, and I cannot emphasize too strongly the vital importance of both of its phases. We must increase our national strength, redouble our national vigor and courage, create for ourselves adequate means of defending this country's safety and security against any armed challenge. And we must hold ever in readiness—for use when circumstances permit—the proven and tested instrument of constructive action for economic welfare, free enterprise, and stable peace provided by the trade-agreements program."

Sid Plier Passed Away

Marshall Sidney Plier, age 49, died at the home of his father, C. H. Plier, in Clanton Friday night at 9:30 o'clock. He had been in declining health for several weeks, but his death was unexpected. Burial was Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, following services at a Clanton Baptist church conducted by the Rev. J. M. Brody, Presbyterian minister of Birmingham. Mr. Plier became a member of Rev. Brody's church in Birmingham some months ago. Martin was in charge of burial.

Besides the wife, Mrs. Essie Plier, surviving are the father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie H. Plier; three brothers, Will, Ed and Johnnie Plier; four sisters—Mrs. Joe Franklin, Mrs. Leo Popwell, Mrs. Harve Mims and Mrs. Kate Marlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Plier have been in Washington state for the past two or three years, where Mr. Plier was working on Grand Coulee Dam. He had been following such construction work for several years, having been a carpenter foreman when Mitchell Dam was constructed. He was a most efficient worker of this type and commanded a very good salary.

Mayor May Reduce Insurance Cost

Mayor C. Fenn Jones has a representative of the South Eastern Underwriters Association coming to Clanton in the near future. While here the engineer will investigate the fire defenses of our city and it is possible that we may benefit by a further reduction in our insurance costs.

This is a fine thing that Mayor Jones is doing and will be highly approved by all Clanton citizens now burdened by our high insurance rate.

GEORGE W. SNIDER DIED

Mr. George T. Snider age 67, died at his residence Clanton, Rt. 5.

Funeral services were held at Langdale, Ala., June 7th. He is survived by his widow, 2 sons, W. B. and Ben Snider of Clanton; 5 daughters, Mrs. Ila Cole, Langdale, Ala.; Mrs. Ethel DeLoach, Rome, Ga.; Miss Mary Ruth Snider, 2 brothers, A. O. Snider of Clanton, S. D. Snider of Montgomery; 2 sisters, Mrs. Mattie Harris of Equality, Ala.; Mrs. Ada Mosley of Apple, Ala.

Mr. Snider's remains were shipped to Langdale, Ala. for burial by Spigener Funeral Home.

REV. HODGENS TO PREACH

Rev. Hodgens will preach Saturday evening at 7:30, at Collins Chapel. The time is Standard.

SACRED HARP SINGING

There will be a Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony singing at Mt. Zion church the Fifth Sunday in June. Everybody is invited and requested to bring well filled baskets.

LEGISLATURE DEBATING NEW CODE

Final Session Beginning June 25th Likely To See Lively Scrap

Alabama's lawmakers, in recess since last September, reassembled in sweltering capital halls Monday to discuss a proposed new state code.

It was considered likely they would delve also, into school finance problems and possible unemployment tax revisions.

No official action may be taken, however, on the code or any other matter until June 25 as all sessions prior to that date will be merely as "committees of the whole."

Such sessions, however, are considered likely to get a lot of debate out of the way, thus clearing the decks for swift action on many proposed laws when the first legislative day arrives two weeks hence.

Lively Scrap Seen

A lively scrap may develop around school affairs, with educational forces interested in submission of a school parity amendment in effort to prevent educational funds from continuing to bear the brunt when State revenues fall below appropriations.

A proposed revision of unemployment taxes dumped into the lawmakers' laps brings a disagreement between sponsors of the plan and organized labor, outspoken in opposition.

In addition to a controversy which may evolve around parity proposals, some legislators expressed the opinion the solons might see a capture for the schools a sizeable surplus they hear accumulating in the general fund.—Alabama Journal.

JARMAN TRACES LOSS OF CHILTON TO GOP VOTERS

Asserts Noojin And Pitts Lined Up Republicans For Partlow

(From Sunday's Montgomery Advertiser)

Congressman P. B. Jarman, who was renominated in Tuesday's Democratic runoff primary in the Sixth District, charged here yesterday that approximately 1,000 Republicans of Chilton County entered the primary and voted for his opponent, Billy Partlow, of Tuscaloosa. Mr. Jarman said he received a majority of the Chilton County votes in the May 7 primary over three opponents but lost Tuesday Partlow swept the county by about 700.

Lonnie Noojin of Gadsden, and Percy Pitts, Clanton attorney and member of the Legislature, were criticized sharply by Congressman Jarman as the chief Republican agents who induced so many of their party members to enter the primary. He said Noojin and Partlow have been warm personal friends for years.

"In view of the type of campaign against me, the election terminated about as I expected in Chilton County," said the Congressman in referring to the results of Tuesday's runoff. "For instance, my small County of Sumter, where 1,600 votes were polled, gave me a larger majority than Tuscaloosa gave my opponent out of 8,100."

Mr. Jarman said that he had been analyzing the Chilton County vote. "In the first primary I carried it by a majority over my three opponents. Although there was no local race to create interest this time, the vote was considerably larger. My investigation leads me to conclude positively that my opponent received only about 700 Democratic votes to my approximately 1,200, which was about what I expected."

"I find to my amazement," said Mr. Jarman, "that probably 1,000 Republicans entered Tuesday's primary, and voted for my opponent. In view of Republican national committee and life-long friend of the Partlow family, Lon Noojin's very apparent prostitution of the recent University of Alabama alumni banquet over which he presided to the political interest of my opponent, after which I warned two Republican friends in Chilton that such an attempt might occur, I was not surprised to find there that Republicans entered the primary and voted against me at his behest."

"Difficult though it be for me to believe, I am also told by numerous excellent people that my old friend school mate and fraternity brother Percy Pitts, one of the two Republicans I warned, who is the only Republican member of the Legislature and a delegate to the Republican national convention, was Lon's chief agent in getting the Republicans into the primary to vote for Mr. Partlow."

Mr. Jarman said that he had always entertained a high regard for the Republicans of Chilton County and respected their organization because he believed them to be actuated by political principle. "Numbers of them," he added, "I have counted as my personal friends for years. While I have always visited these friends, solicited their good will, patronized the Republican newspaper with the same advertisements which I placed in the Democratic papers, I never dreamed that such a considerable number of them would cross party lines in the Democratic primary despite Percy's suggestion several months ago that he would prevail on several hundred of them to do so and vote for me which I did not take seriously."

"It seems to be common knowledge in Chilton, among Democrats and Republicans alike, that Partlow, either directly or through an accredited agent, promised the Republicans to go into Chilton County and flip them defeat the Democratic ticket in November. I shall naturally be doing my duty to the Democratic party by assisting it in every way possible."

Mr. Jarman left yesterday for Tuscaloosa and will leave there today for Washington, D. C.

E. DUFFEY PULLS FAST ONE ON FRIENDS

E. Duffey, genial co-owner of Radio Electric Service Company, caused quite a stir down town Tuesday when he had himself arrested for refusing to accept Roosevelt broadcasting speech over a nation-wide network. Monday night and to the world in eight different languages.

Mr. Duffey, who has a record-making machine among his varied equipment had taken the address of the radio as the President and recorded it on a recording machine. When the populace recognized the Presidents voice all gathered around and was thoroughly enjoying same until they discovered that they were listening to the same address that they heard Monday night. The record to this tale is to be sure neither Mr. Duffey or Mr. Ramsey are around when you start to hear or you might hear it again on a loud speaker from the Radio Electric Service Company.

Mattress Project Well Under Way

The surplus cotton and ticking project is well under way in Chilton county. The following centers were open last week: Union, Smith School, Collins Chapel, Central Springs, Mt. Carmel, Cane Creek, Mt. Zion, Macedonia, Kaisar, Waldrop. A total of 300 mattresses were made at the Home Demonstration Agent. Total 497 have been made in the county in two weeks. Notices are being sent to those persons eligible to receive these materials telling them they are to report to their nearest center to receive instructions for making their mattress.

The following centers will be open 10-15 inclusive: Pletcher, Pines Rest, Alpine, Mulberry (near Fairview), Fairview, Culp, Pools Road, New Cedron, Mt. Creek, Shoultsville, Oakmulga, Central Springs, Temple, Oak Grove, Friendship. It is expected that 1000 mattresses will be made at the named centers during the week. Oak Grove leads with 92 ticks made one day followed by Collins Chapel with 79.

Don't Neglect The Garden

Even though this is a very busy time for all farmers it will be a wise plan not to neglect the garden. Now is the time to make plans for the fall garden. For strong plants tomatoes should be planted during the month of June. The following should also be planted for use later in the year: Collards, corn, lima beans, peas, field. If your lettuce, mustard or turnips are beginning to make seed it will be as well to clear off the row and plant in some vegetable that can be used at a later time. If the old plants are allowed to remain in the garden they are a place where insects may collect and harbor and thus cause injury to other plants in the garden. Even though this isn't January 1 let us all resolve to have a garden that will supply an adequate diet for all members of the family.

Timely Suggestions For Caring For The Poultry Flock

One of the worst enemies of the poultry raiser is worms. They cause an increase in the death rate of poultry in flesh and lowered resistance to dirty, decrease in egg production, loss of weight. Nearly all untreated birds have some intestinal worms. The poultryman should not wait until he starts losing his birds from worms before he starts treating them. To be able to prevent poultry from becoming wormy and to correctly treat birds for worms, the poultryman should know the kind of worms present, and also something about how they live and multiply.

Description of Worms and Mode of Life

Tapeworms. These worms have flat bodies and appear in segments or sections. They vary greatly in length. Some are so small they can hardly be seen with the naked eye. They range from this size to approximately ten inches in length. They are white in color.

Symptoms

The symptoms are not always characteristic, for similar symptoms may be produced by other causes. The fowl may or may not lose its appetite, usually does not. Sometimes a diarrhoea is present. There is an unthrifty appearance, dullness, and loss of color in the comb and wattles. The birds become very poor and lose weight. Infected birds occasionally become lame. Their wings may droop.

Prevention

The removal of intestinal worms from fowls by treatment gives only temporary relief unless reinfection is prevented. The buildings should be cleaned frequently in order to remove eggs before intermediate hosts get them. Frequent cleaning removes roundworm eggs before they "ripen" and become dangerous.

The yard and pens should be rotated annually to insure uncontaminated range for the fowls. Plow up and lime the yards the year they are idle. Feeding and drinking receptacles should be placed on platforms and cleaned frequently. They should be constructed so that birds cannot roost on them. After removing all droppings and litter the house should be swept. Haul litter to a distant field over which birds do not range. This will aid in getting rid of roundworm eggs and will also prevent the development of flies and dung beetles. Substituting powdered milk for liquid milk during the summer helps to control flies also.

The Flag

Our Flag has been waving in the breeze since June 14, 1776, when it was adopted by the Continental Congress. U. S. Marines display the Stars and Stripes along with their regimental standard. At right: Grand Union, rattlesnake and pine tree flags, prominent among early colonial banners.

Romance has trailed Old Glory since it became our national flag 163 years ago. Since that time it has symbolized the hopes, aspirations and spirit of a nation devoted to the cause of liberty.

Prominent among early American flags, forerunners of the Stars and Stripes were pine trees, rattlesnakes and other designs. The Grand Union flag, with a British jack appearing where forty-eight stars are now shown in a blue field, was the immediate ancestor of our national flag.

Pine tree flags were displayed by the cruisers of Washington's fleet which operated in New England waters, and such flags bore the words, "An appeal to Heaven."

Rattlesnake designs were frequently used by the southern colonies, and a flag of this type was carried by the U. S. Marines and bluejackets from the Continental Navy, who made a landing in the Bahamas in March 1776. The rattlesnake symbol, with its motto "Don't tread on me," also appeared on the drums of American Marines at that time.

The Grand Union flag was popular with naval men and it was sometimes called the "First Navy Ensign." There were scores of other colonial banners, each of which found special favor in the colony where it originated.

Even today there is a certain mystery about Old Glory. Historians fail to agree as to who designed it, although tradition points to Betsy Ross, a Quaker City seamstress, as the maker of the first Stars and Stripes adopted by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777.

With a deep appreciation of the benefits we enjoy as citizens, each of us should display the Star-Spangled Banner on Flag Day, and by so doing honor the birth of our flag. No flag in the world is more beautiful. No flag spreads its folds over a more highly favored land than ours.

Three Months Income Totals $22,712,000

Alabama farmers received a total cash income of $13,366,000 from crops $6,984,000, and from livestock and livestock products $6,382,000 — during the first three months this year, reports John Liles, economist of the state extension service.

Government payments to state farmers totaled $9,346,000 making a total of $22,712,000 received from marketings and Government payments he says.

Income from the sale of livestock and livestock products for the first three months was less than that for the same periods the past four years where crops have picked up over 1939.

Mattress Applications Must Be In By June 30

All applications for cotton and ticking to be used in the state-wide cotton mattress making program must be in the state AAA office not later than June 30, announces A. W. Jones, AAA administrative officer.

Chicken Gumbo Recipe

While we are all interested in eating fried chicken now let us not forget that we can have some next winter if we would can some for use then. Not only will it be good to serve at home but it is excellent to have on hand for use in school lunches and for picnics. Chicken may be canned in the following forms: Roast chicken using two year paste, or chicken gumbo.

Below is a recipe for Chicken Gumbo. 2 cups cooked chicken cut in small pieces

- 1 onion finely chopped
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1 quart chicken stock
- 1-2 green pepper, finely chopped
- 1 cup cooked or canned okra
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1-4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 to 2 cups tomatoes (either fresh or canned).

Cook onion in butter five minutes, stirring constantly. Add to stock with other containers and process at 15 pounds pressure in the steam pressure canner as follows: No 2 cans 65 minutes; No. 3 cans for 80 minutes, pint jars for 65 minutes and quart jars for 80 minutes.

ALABAMA CAN AFFORD CONCRETE ROADS

Modernize Crowded Highways

Citizens of this state have good reason to be enthusiastic motorists. They have an unusually fine highway system. Hundreds of thousands of vehicles keep the roads humming with traffic.

Some of these roads are required to carry more traffic than they can safely accommodate. These urgently need modernizing.

Steady-driving at prevailing speeds—with safety built into the roads—is what motorists need. State-wide planning surveys now under way will provide facts on which a rational plan of future highway development can be based. Widening, straightening, separation of grade crossings and other improvements based on these surveys will provide useful employment for thousands, greater safety for millions, better business and better living for all.

Treatment

Roundworms: The birds may be given individual or flock treatment. Individual treatment is more accurate and usually more satisfactory.

Individual Treatment: — Nicotine capsules or Iodine Vermicide, which may be procured through your local druggist or feed dealer. Follow the directions on the container.

Flock Treatment:—Either "Black Leaf 40" or tobacco dust is recommended. When using "Black Leaf 40" mix the drug with sufficient water to wet the mash it is to be fed with then mash and dissolve one half pound of Epson Salts in it. When this medicated mash is given, it must be fed in long troughs so all of the birds can get to the trough at the same time. When using tobacco dust mix two pounds of the tobacco dust (it should contain about 1 1/2 per cent nicotine) with each 100 pounds of mash. Be sure to mix thoroughly. Do not mix more than a week's supply at one time. Give this mixture over a period of three weeks.

The California Experiment Station found out that this would not cause a decrease in egg production nor would it injure the birds.

Tapeworms:—Individual Treatment—Your local druggist can procure Kamala tablets for you, or he can get powdered Kamala and put it in the size 000 capsules. Give each adult bird a capsule. Younger birds require correspondingly smaller doses. Smaller capsules may be used for them, or the tablets may be cut.

Roundworm and Tapeworm Treatment Combined—Individual Treatment. Your local druggist can procure Kamala and Nicotine tablets or capsules for your birds. Follow directions on the container.

Flock Treatment: For 100 birds, dissolve 100 grains of thymol and one-half pound Epson Salts in water. Add one ounce of "Black Leaf 40" to the above solution. Then wet the mash with this solution and feed in a trough long enough so that all the birds can get to it at the same time.

Conference will be held directly after church service to discuss church building plans. Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Ballou will preach on "Listen to God."

MRS. ELIZA WELDON

On last Monday night, June 3, God saw fit to call away the spirit of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Eliza Weldon.

Grandmother, was sick for seven long weeks, yet never one word of complaint did we hear her make. She prayed to God for strength to bear her sickness, and if it could be His will to take her out of her suffering. We who are left behind feel assured that she is at rest with her God whom she trusted and will never know any more pain nor death.

We miss her here at home very much, she leaves a vacant place that can never be filled, yet we are happy to know that she is happy and at rest.

We shall strive to follow the example that grandmother set for us, and some day when God is through with us here on this earth we shall meet again in that place where there comes no night.

—A granddaughter, Elaine Deason.

HARRY REYNOLDS WINS HONORABLE MENTION

In a contest recently conducted by Porter's Clothing Co., of Birmingham, of which all boys were eligible to compete for three prizes awarded for the best letters on why I think my dad is the best dad in the world. Harry Reynolds, the ten year old son of Mrs. L. C. Reynolds and the late L. C. Reynolds, of Clanton received the following letter from Porter Clothing Co. Master Harry Kendall Reynolds, 1900 11th Ave South, City.

Dear Harry: Thank you for your excellent letter entered in our Father's Day contest. While it did not win one of the first three prizes it certainly deserves an honorable mention, and we want you to come by our store and select a gift with our compliments.

We are sorry that you do not have a Dad to give it to next Sunday but you can wear it yourself and you will favor us by coming in and picking one out. Ask for our Mr. J. M. Horne and he will help you.

Thanks again for your letter.

Very truly yours,

JOE VAUGHN,

Advertising Dept. PORTERS.

Harry wrote a very appropriate letter on "Why I think my dad was the best dad in the world. Harry is a student of the Sixth Grade of South Highland School of Birmingham, and has recently been on a visit here with his grand parents, Judge and Mrs. L. H. Reynolds.

Maplesville News

Warm weather, followed by plenty of rain has transformed the gloomy look to a pleasant look on the farmers in this vicinity.

Mr. David, manager of the Yellow Front store here and Mr. Stanley Hays motored to Selma Sunday to see a ball game. They report a very pleasant trip.

Mr. Jim Boykin of Birmingham, Ala., spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Boykin.

Mrs. P. W. Boykin spent two days last week with her father at Alexander City, Ala.

Miss Geraldine Ratliff and Miss Henry Dell Ratliff left Saturday for Baltimore Md. They will spend part of the summer there visiting their sister.

Mr. R. C. McKee worked Friday and Saturday at Piper, Ala., relieving the Agent at that point for the Southern Railroad.

Mr. Hyman Atchison has moved his Hardware store to the building formerly occupied by Mr. J. P. Payne.

We are mighty glad to see work resumed on the Theatre started last year and for the past months nothing being done on it. Maplesville will be glad when this building is completed and we will have a show to go to.

Mr. Emmett Shanks made a business trip to Selma Monday.

Mr. Hershel Shanks and Miss Estell Davis joined a group who are going by bus to many points out west. Understand the trip will be for a duration of thirty days. Mr. C. E. Wagoner is assisting with the work at the Maplesville Drug Store in Mr. Shanks place while he is away on this trip.

Mrs. W. W. Kelley is spending this week with her husband at Wagar, Ala.

An Open Letter To Henry Ford!

Mr. Henry Ford Dearborn, Michigan.

Dear Mr. Ford:

You are the one man in America equipped to meet the nation's military emergency.

You are the one man in America with more iron mines, steel mills, boats, forests, rivers and machine shops than any other man.

You are the one man in America with research laboratories, scientists, chemists, metallurgists and other experts capable of turning almost overnight your gigantic industrial empire into a tank, anti-aircraft or airplane factory or all three.

Your soft voice speaks with quicker authority, brings speedier action than any other man in the land; no other man, including the president, who, at best, merely proposes action.

Your plan is Henry Ford. Your stockholders are Henry Ford. You can close it, leave it open, divert it to war-material or give it away.

THE NATION TODAY needs a Horatus to seize the bridge.

Everybody is willing to help; ready to turn all facilities into war needs; everybody waits for M-Day, when our entire resources would go to military production.

But, as we wait for signs of further danger, the enemy bores deeper and deeper into our first lines of defense.

You, Mr. Ford, could set America to work in a frenzy of preparedness to continue our peace, by suddenly turning your gigantic factories for the manufacture of vehicles and articles of peace until such a time that the danger can be assimilated by other agencies.

Your LIFE, MR. Ford, is a life of peace and contentment. You cherish the simple little things; the abundant prosperity that little with the good, old fashioned American way.

War disturbed you 25 years ago, when you were a much younger man. You tried boldly then, with your peace venture, sending emissaries into the neighborhood of the barking guns.

You failed to stop that war because the war lords would not listen to your prayers of peace any more than today's war lords will listen.

But they will hear your machines, Mr. Ford.

You can, if you so desire, speak the language all dictators everywhere understand.

Very sincerely yours,

MACON GA. EVENING NEWS

That is the language of steel fasted into airplanes, tanks, guns.

OF ALL THE MEN, in all the world, you, Mr. Ford, are perhaps the one man able to stop Adolf Hitler.

You can stop Hitler in his tracks in Europe by suddenly transforming your factories from producers of pleasure cars to producers of protective armor.

Hitler may go on and conquer the land, destroy it, along with France.

Hitler won't go much further if he has Ford, America's largest industrial begins the manufacture of half a million airplane motors half a million tanks, and a half million guns.

Next to the president, Mr. Ford, you're America's greatest hero.

You represent the wholesome tradition of American business. The man who made good by doing something for his fellow man.

Your name is linked with the news of an eight-hour work-day; a $5 pay-day when $3 was thought to be just about tops.

You picked up the little red schoolhouse, the blue-back speller and Little Lamb and preserved their place in our life.

Fortune Magazine this current month discovers the American working man believes you have done more for him than John L. Lewis, William Green and Senator Wagner.

Of all our industrial leaders, present, the people really love you. You are more than a manufacturer of an automobile. You are a part of America's modern tradition. You are the Ford.

YOU CAN SET off the spark plug will burn a torch of liberty so big it will be seen 'round the world.

All this country needs is a little inspiration.

You have the money, you have machinery, you have the heart and desire to do that kind of a job.

Rockefeller finally turned his wealth to medical research; Carnegie put in books and marble porticos bearing his name; Frick left beautiful pictures.

But none of these, books or pictures, medical cures in the face of an invasion who levels all these things before it.

You, Mr. Ford, have the answer. Hitler and the answer to liberty.

Yours is a greater heritage to America than all the books or pictures, medical science any of your industrial predecessors gave before you.

Very sincerely yours,

Congregational Church Notes

A fine congregation enjoyed the Children's Day program rendered last Sunday morning. Every department of the School was represented in the cast. The singing of the Junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Campbell, with Mr. Laurell at the organ was exceptionally delightful, and every part was well taken. Ten members were received into the church seven on confession of faith.

Again we are moved to write that every sincere Christian ought to have membership in some church in the community in which they live. By our attitude toward the church and its activities we are either for or against the gospel of our Lord.

Rev. and Mrs. Gonzales and the following young people will spend ten days at Pleasant Hill Training School, at Pleasant Hill, Tenn. Misses Gail Gletty, Ruth Higgins, Ouida Wright, Helen Merchant, Ruby Raybon and Messrs. Wellington Collins, Leonard Bosworth, Homer Sims, Richard Peterson. The delegation leaves Tuesday morning.

There will be no preaching services in the church on Sunday the 16th, Sunday School at 9:45 and C. E. at 6:45. All regular services on Sunday June 23.

Sunday June 16:

9:45 a. m. Sunday School.

11:00 a. m. Worship service.

Subject, "Characteristics of Christians."

7:00 p. m. Evening worship. Subject: "Selling our birthright."

Our vacation Bible school begins Monday morning June 17 at 8:00 o'clock. All those of primary, junior and intermediate ages are urged to attend. All children irrespective of denominational preference will find a cordial welcome.

Community Supper

There will be a community picnic supper. After supper we will complete Everyone come and bring a basket of food and your family for a nice supper. After supper we will complete plans for our fourth of July celebration. —Committee.

Misses Mary Sue and Hattie Porter spent the week end in Selma.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Garrett and children spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Altho Garrett.

Miss Doris Harding of Talladega is visiting at Edna Popwell this week. Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Blount, spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Burnette.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Howard and Miss Ella Howard returned last Friday from an extended trip to points north. They attended two family reunions, one near Sioux Falls, South Dakota, of Mrs. Howard's relatives and one near Amberg, Wis., of Mr. Howard's relatives. Mr. Howard renewed acquaintances with many of his childhood friends in his old home town of Manitowish, Wis. While going through cities they stopped and phoned or called on friends whom they found there. The weather was cool and they had a very fine vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dunn and family and George Hulsey of Bessemer spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. David Vines.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Johnson and family of Montgomery visited Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Nichols Sunday.

Miss Annie Wyatt had as her guest last Sunday, Mrs. J. C. Harris of Birmingham, Mr. M. C. Wyatt and Katherine, Mrs. W. B. Wyatt, Osmond and Addis Wyatt all of Clanton.

Mr. Sam O'Connor spent the week end at home.

Mrs. Fannie Powell of Montgomery is visiting her sister Mrs. W. J. Cargile of Thorsby.

Mr. Floyd Belter and Erlagene are visiting his parents in Newark, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Wales Carter of Prattville were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Williams.

Mrs. J. C. Trotter and sons visited in Thorsby Sunday afternoon.

Miss Fleeta Tapscott of Jemison spent last week here with Mrs. Grady Tapscott.

Misses Ann and Helen Gretschmann, of Birmingham were Sunday visitors of Miss Pauline Walker.

Mrs. Crawford Young, who has been visiting his parents in South Carolina is back home.

Miss Lila Hester and Mr. Lucien Hester of Enley were recent visitors of their sister Mrs. Jim Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Williams, Mrs. Andrew Davenport, Mrs. Jay Tippet and Mrs. Clarence Davenport of Clanton, Mrs. Charles Shelley and daughter of Miami, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Burgin Ray.

Mrs. G. F. Harper spent last Wednesday in Selma.

Mrs. L. C. Lowery entertained a group of folks last Tuesday night with a lawn party at her home in honor of Miss Emogene Lowery. The occasion being her Birthday. Games were enjoyed throughout the evening. Punch, sandwiches and cake were served.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Ross recently visited relatives in Magnolia.

Faye Zimmerman of Clanton has been visiting for the past few days with Billie Ann Parrish and Bennie Jean and Patsy Gamble.

Mrs. A. N. Laurell entertained the Suttie family for supper Monday night.

Mrs. N. Laurell continues ill at her home.

Thorsby Institute News

Mrs. Emily Harding, the Institute Librarian, has announced a new schedule of hours for the balance of the summer months. Beginning Friday June 14th, the Thorsby Institute Library will be open to the public from eight to eleven a. m. and from one to three thirty p. m., which is Central Standard time. This change in the library hours seems to be much more convenient for those who wish books or to take advantage of the reading room in the afternoons. Library days are, as previously announced, on Tuesdays and also on Fridays.

Mr. Campbell, who found it necessary to conduct the office business of the Institute from his residence for two days last week, is back in the office again.

Rev. T. F. Campbell of Burlington, Conn., left Thorsby on Monday of this week after a most enjoyable two weeks visit with the T. E. Campbell's.

Mr. C. M. Williams is conducting a special summer session for both make-up and advance credit in both Junior and Senior high school grades. These classes are meeting in room two of Thorsby Institute from eight to twelve only. The request for special tutoring has been rather persistent and as the class opened last Monday there were ten enrolled and there will, no doubt, be more before the week is through. Classes in English, Mathematics, Civics, Algebra and Spelling are being taught.

The new Catalog of Thorsby Institute is promised from the press during the next week and will be in the mail shortly thereafter.

The two new plate glass mirrors for the wash rooms, which are a part of the gifts of the Senior Class of 1940, have arrived and are being installed ready for use this fall.

Pates Chapel News

We are very thankful for the health in our community this week. It is much better than it has been. The mumps epidemic was most of our sickness in our community, but it seems to have quietened some and everybody is feeling fine.

Mrs. Evans Dawson is able to be up again and we hope her a speedy recovery. Also Mrs. Burnie Blow has returned home, too.

It seems that everybody is interested in their crops and have them in very good shape and they are looking fine. We were blessed with a large attendance at church Sunday morning and also Sunday night, too. We are especially blessed with B. Y. P. U. members who are interested in their B. Y. P. U. and put their best efforts to make it a good union. And by this we are having an extra good program every Sunday night.

I think that our members have found that a well prepared lesson makes a more enjoyable union and more attendance. We were also blessed Sunday and Sunday night with a wonderful message brought to us by our pastor, Rev. Nix.

We are planning on cleaning up the cemetery at Pates Chapel and also the one at Pleasant Hill near Mr. Bill Caton's place. Everyone who is interested in cleaning up these places please meet there with sufficient tools to work Saturday June 22. After one is cleaned up every one will go to the other and complete both places before going home.

All who have a part in our Father's day program please be at the church Saturday evening at about 1 or 1:30 o'clock so we can practice. We are also planning on having our annual singing July 14th as this is our regular yearly singing day. We especially invite all singers and quartets to come and be with us. Please take this as a personal invitation as it will be impossible for some of our committee to see all the singers so if we do not see you personally, you have a special invitation to attend.

New Salem

There will be no singing here next Sunday afternoon on account of the Sunday singing at Collins Chapel. The committee decided it best to change our singing afternoon to the first Sunday. So next first Sunday afternoon we invite every one out to sing or listen with us. All quartets and singers always welcome.

Isabella F.F.A. News

The Isabella Chapter of Future Farmers of America is glad to publish a few of its accomplishments for the school term of 1939-40. Five boys attended the State FFA Convention at Auburn last year and participated in the State softball tournament. One chapter member was awarded the degree of State Farmer at the Convention. The Chapter entered all contests sponsored by the district and state, including softball and basketball. 1200 baby chicks were bought by individual members and fed out for broilers; an additional 200 were raised by the chapter as a whole. The chapter cooperated with the FFA by holding three joint meetings with them and by taking part in a play. Members of the Chapter sold candy and garden seed—profit was placed in the treasury. A propagation bed was made; a community church landscaped and shrubbery around school building cared for. The Chapter made a rotary seed tester for testing the seed of community farmers. Plans were made for a tour this summer.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of thanking our many friends and neighbors who were so kind during the recent illness and death of our beloved mother and grandmother. Mrs. Eliza Weldon. We also wish to thank the good people who helped in our crop.

Especially do we thank Dr. Golden and Dr. Hayes, Mell Martin and Sons and Rev. W. P. Lowery for their faithful services. May God bless each and every one of you in our prayer.

—B. M. Deason and family.

Wake Lazy Insides All-Vegetable Way

Thousands turn to this way to get relief when they're lazy intestinally and it has them headachy, bilious, irritable, listless. A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of spicy, aromatic, all-vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight, a drink of water, and there you are! Thus, it usually allows time for a night's rest; acts gently, thoroughly next morning, so relieving constipation's headaches, biliousness, bad breath.

BLACK-DRAUGHT's main ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative," which helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. The millions of packages used prove its merit. Economical, too: 25 to 40 doses, 25c.

ROOSEVELT

They have seen the ascendancy of this philosophy of force in country after country where free institutions and individual liberties were once maintained.

It is natural and understandable, therefore that the younger generation should first ask itself what the extension of the philosophy of force to all the world would lead to ultimately. We see today in stark reality some of the consequences of the machine age.

Where control of machines has been retained in the hands of mankind as a whole, untold benefits have accrued to mankind. For mankind was then the master; the machine was the servant.

But, in this new system of force the mastery of the machines is not in the hands of mankind. It is in the control of infinitely small groups of individuals who rule without a single one of the democratic sanctions.

The machine in hands of irresponsible conquerors becomes the master; mankind is not only the servant but the victim. Such mastery abandons with deliberate contempt all of the moral values to which even this young continent for more than 300 years has been accustomed and dedicated.

Surely the new philosophy proves from month to month that it could have no concept of the way of life or the way of thought of a nation whose origins go back to Jamestown and Plymouth Rock.

Conversely, neither those who spring from the stock nor those who come higher in later years can be indifferent to the destruction of freedom in their ancestral lands across the sea.

Perception of danger to our institutions may come slowly or it may come with a rush and shock as it has to the people of the United States in the past few months. This perception of danger has come to us clearly and overwhelmingly; and we perceive the peril in a world-wide arena—an arena which may become so narrowed that only the Americas would retain the ancient faiths.

Some indeed still hold to the now obvious delusion that we of the United States can safely permit the United States to become a lone island in a world dominated by the philosophy of force.

Such an island may be the dream of those who still talk and vote as isolationists. Such an island represents to me and to the overwhelming majority of Americans today a helpless nightmare of a people without freedom, a people lodged in prison, handcuffed, hungry, and fed through the bars from day to day by the contemptuous, un pitying masters of other continents.

It is natural also that we should ask ourselves how now we can prevent the building of that prison and the placing of ourselves in the midst of it.

Let us not hesitate—all of us—to proclaim certain truths. Overwhelmingly we as a nation, and this applies to all the other American nations, are convinced that military and naval victory for the gods of force and hate would endanger the institutions of democracy in the Western World—and that equally, therefore, the whole of our sympathies lie with those nations which are giving their life blood in combat against those forces.

The people and government of the United States have seen with the utmost regret and with grave disquiet the decision of the Italian government to engage in the hostilities now raging in Europe.

Mussolini Sent Note

More than three months ago the chief of the Italian government sent me word that because if the determination of Italy to limit, so far as might be possible, the spread of the European conflict, more than 200,000,000 of people in the region of the Mediterranean had been enabled to escape the suffering and the devastation of war.

I informed the chief of the Italian government that this desire on the part of Italy to prevent the war from spreading met with sympathy and response on the part of the government and the people of the United States, and I expressed the earnest hope of this government that this policy on the part of Italy might be continued. I made it clear that in the opinion of the government of the United States any extension of the hostilities in the region of the Mediterranean might result in a still greater enlargement of the scene of the conflict in the Near East and in Africa and that if this came to pass no one could foretell how much greater the extension of the war might eventually become.

Again upon a subsequent occasion, recognizing that certain aspirations of Italy might form the basis of discussions between the powers most specifically concerned, I offered in a message addressed to the chief of the Italian government, to send to the governments of France and of Great Britain such specific indications of the desires of Italy to obtain readjustments with regard to her position as the chief of the Italian government might desire to transmit through me. While making it clear that the government of the United States in such event could not and would not assume responsibility for the nature of the proposals submitted nor for agreements which might thereafter be reached, I proposed that if Italy would refrain from entering the war I would be willing to ask assurances from the other powers concerned that they would faithfully execute any agreement so reached, and that Italy's voice in any future peace conference would have the same authority as if Italy had actually taken part in the war as a belligerent.

Unfortunately, the chief of the Italian government was unwilling to accept the procedure suggested.

Government's Efforts Cited
The efforts of this government have been directed to doing what it could to work for the preservation of peace in the Mediterranean area, and it likewise expressed its willingness to endeavor to cooperate with the government of Italy when the appropriate opportunity in the world's markets and in the securing of raw materials on equal terms.

I have likewise, of course, felt it necessary in my communications to Signor Mussolini to express the concern of the government of the United States because of the fact that any extension of the war in the region of the Mediterranean would inevitably result in great prejudice to the ways of life and government and to the trade and commerce of all the American republics.

The government of Italy has now chosen to preserve what it terms its "freedom of action" and to fulfill what it states are its promises to Germany. In so doing it has manifested disregard for the rights and security of other nations, for the lives of the peoples of those nations which are directly threatened by this spread of the war; and has evidenced its unwillingness to find the means through pacific negotiations for the satisfaction of what it believes are its legitimate aspirations.

On this tenth day of June, 1940, the hand that held the dagger has struck it in the back of its neighbor.

On this tenth day of June, 1940, in this university founded by the first great American teacher of democracy, we send forth our prayers and our hopes to those beyond the seas who are maintaining with magnificent valor their battle for freedom.

In our American unity, we will pursue two obvious and simultaneous courses: We will extend to the opponents of force the material resources of this nation and, at the same time we will harness and speed up the use of those resources in order that we ourselves in the Americas may have equipment training equal to the task of any emergency and every defense.

Full Speed Ahead
All roads leading to the accomplishment of these objectives must be kept clear of obstacles. We will not slow down or detour. Signs call for speed—full speed ahead.

Buy a Gift for Dad From Elmore's wonderful Selection occasion arose for the creation of a stable world order, through the reduction of armaments, and through the construction of a more liberal international economic system which would assure to all powers equality of opportunity.

It is right that each new generation should ask questions. But in recent months the principal questions have been greatly simplified. Once more the future of the nation and of the American people is at stake.

We need not and we will not, in any way, abandon our continuing effort to make democracy work within our own borders. We still insist on the need for vast improvements in our own social and economic life.

But that is a component part of national defense itself.

The program unfolds swiftly and into it will fit the responsibility and the opportunity of every man and woman to preserve our heritage in days of peril.

I call for effort, courage, sacrifice, devotion. Granting the love of freedom, all of these are possible.

And the love of freedom is still fierce and steady in the nation today.

Unite For Our District State And Nation

My friends, from the returns that have come in, it is indicated that the people of the Sixth District do not wish to change Congressmen at this time. We have endeavored to place the issues and problems of our District before you in this campaign, and I hope that we have accomplished some good in bringing these to your attention.

To the many friends in Chilton County and throughout the District who have supported me in this undertaking, I express my heartfelt thanks and gratitude. To those of you who have opposed me in this fight, I hold nothing but the most cordial feeling and a sincere desire to work with you in any endeavor for the upbuilding of our District.

I call upon my supporters to support our present Congressman during the next two years in the tremendous responsibilities that are now thrust upon our representatives by international conditions. I call upon you all to cooperate in every way in the upbuilding of a strong national defense for this, our nation, for the expulsion of all subversive movements and Fifth Column activities, and for a gracious God to give us a strong and unified nation during the trying days to come that we may present a strong and united front—one people, one nation, and one purpose.

U. S. 31 To Be Widened Through City, Keeping Same Route

“Definitely Leaves Highway As Is; Cost Will Not Be Great,” Says Mayor Jones

Many Property owners and business men on the highway through Clanton will be relieved to learn at last that the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway will be routed as is through the city when the engineers and workmen get going on this improvement in the near future.

There has been much controversy in regard to whether or not the Highway could be widened enough to take care of the traffic that will naturally pour through Clanton when work on U. S. 31 is completed. State Highway Engineers have finished and here is the program to date:

Beginning at a point north of the filtering plant at the Deason home and running to the Maplesville Highway intersection curb and gutters will be placed. This will necessitate widening the highway to approximately 40 feet over this distance. Then beginning at the Maplesville Highway intersection and running south, two feet on either side of the highway will be cut back. Incidentally a great good was accomplished a few months ago when the city fathers stopped all day parking on this thoroughfare and then later stopped all trucks from loading and unloading in the highway.

This widening will stop at the Southern Bell Telephone Company's Office, and pick up again where the old highway intersects the new in South Clanton. From there the curb and gutters will run to Terry Marcus'. The State Highway Department will furnish all engineers and labor for this paving and the only expense to the property owners will be the cost of the material. Mayor Fenn Jones will have the information as to approximate cost within a few days.

Property owners along this route and all citizens of Clanton should be deeply appreciative of the work and effort of the Mayor and Councilmen in their effort to accomplish the most good for the most people and at the lowest cost to the property owners.

In next weeks issue we hope to carry further details as to cost of materials etc., in regard to the widening of the highway.

IONS HAVE INTERESTING MEETING AHEAD

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Lions Club Friday night at the First Baptist church, if all indications are true, will be one of the most interesting in the history of the club.

Bucklew, Club Secretary is in charge of the program and has secured the State Department of Health motion pictures in regard to the work being done in Alabama.

One of the main objectives of any club is the aid to blind children. This of course, will prove all the more interesting to the members because of the 100 per cent attendance of all who are expected and don't forget to get daylight saving time.

CLANTON COUNTY W. M. U. EXECUTIVE BOARD TO MEET

Executive Board Meeting of the Clanton County W. M. U. Association will be held at the First Baptist church Saturday afternoon, June 21, 1940. All Association officers and W. M. U. Presidents are expected to be present.

Pilots Sponsor "Miss Southern America"

Sponsored by the local chapter of the Pilot's Club, outstanding civic organization, a "Miss Southern America" contest will be held next Wednesday night, June twenty-sixth, at the City Hall auditorium.

A group of twenty-five of the city's most attractive young ladies will compete for the coveted title of "Miss Individual for 1940 which entitles the winner to the opportunity to compete at the State Contest for the title of "Miss Alabama 1940" to be held in Birmingham, Ala., this summer, expenses to be paid while there.

This contest is not only a beauty pageant, but also a search for a local girl who has poise and grace, the attributes the accentuate personality and bring out that subtle charm always present in the pride of the Southland, "Miss Southern America." The winner of this title, to be awarded in the Southern Divisional Contest, receives a round trip to Hollywood, Calif., and a visit through the movie studios, all expenses paid by the Search for Talent and Beauty Productions, which company is making the contest possible.

In addition to the above there will be a local talent contest competing for the city title, expenses paid at the State Contest, competition at the Southern Divisional Contest, and radio audition. At the same time we will present the cutest little tots in the city a Tiny Tot Review, who will each be competing for entrance into the State Picture Contest, and whose local title will be "Little Miss Individual for 1940."

Names of those in the contest will appear later in this newspaper.

Find Weevil Hunting Very Expensive

Mr. J. R. Short, of Maplesville Route 2 writes an interesting letter to the editor this week in regard to the boll weevil. Says Mr. Short, "Please tell the farmers of Chilton County that the hard freeze did not kill all the boll weevils and to watch out for them." We believe the farmers are doing. Mr. Short goes on to say that he contracted with his grand children who were visiting him to hunt the weevils and they brought in 528.

Hysterical Slobbering

Just now much of the American press is filled with hysterical editorial slobbering over the present plight of world democracy.

The frenzied effort seems to be to try and convince all the world that capitalism and democracy are one and the same thing.

While everyone knows that capitalism is only one phase or function of democracy, as we here in America know and practice it. We recognize capitalism only as a means to an end through which the higher, nobler, better things—in short the abundant life—may be attained.

Placing our bag of gold on a shrine of worship then thumbing our nose at Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini and calling them names will not correct the evils with which the people of the earth are now beset.

It is going to take sound and sane thinking, followed by cool-headed preparation and determination to bring the world back to its senses.

Frenzied editorial slobbering will not do it.

"We call it Corn" in America; in other countries it is called Maize. The corn spoken of in the Bible was wheat or possibly rye. We got our corn from the American Indians.—The Phenix-Girard Journal.

Let's see: we acquired a bit of real estate from those same American Indians, too. Didn't we.—Alexander City Outlook.

Yes, I believe we did! And, in pretty much the same way that one Hitler is taking a few acres in Western Europe.

Are We Committing Suicide By Selling War Materials

Germany has practically no aluminum. Nearly all of the aluminum ore deposits of the world are owned by the Allies and by the United States; principal among these are the bauxite mines of France and United States (Arkansas). (The major part of the German supply is said to have come from France itself.)

Consequently, the leading material out of which the German bombers, now over France, was made, came from the very countries which now regard the Hitler war machine as the greatest. The Mellon interests and others who combine to control the world's aluminum supply, sold Germany this metal at a good round profit. The result, which could be definitely foreseen, did not matter to them.

Such a sad situation as a country committing suicide by selling the materials of war to its enemies can be corrected only when we have a thoroughly live democracy, where the representatives of the people really represent them, and when the oily promoters of big business are denied undue influence in the seats of government.—The Southern News Almanac.

A 10-Point Program Of Defense Against Lean Stomachs

The governor has proposed a ten-point program to push Alabama forward. Congress is proposing a national defense program. One group has proposed a ten-plant program for southern rural progress.

"Since it is the order of the day to propose a program we submit here a 10-point program for the seven or eight thousand families in Walker County who have either started a home garden or who cannot to not start one during the month of June. This program if carried out, is a defense against lean stomachs, high food prices and depleted pocketbooks:

- 1—Plant bush beans, butter beans, pole beans.
- 2—Plant beets.
- 3—Plant roasting ear corn.
- 4—Plant cucumbers.
- 5—Plant okra.
- 6—Plant squash.
- 7—Plant tomatoes.
- 8—Plant table peas, sweet peppers, salify or oyster plant.
- 9—Plant tomato, cabbage and collard seed in beds for setting during July.
- 10—When your fall garden comes in can and store in your cellar every surplus item of these vegetables suitable for canning. If you have more than you can use some of your neighbors will have failed to put away any surplus and you can sell them yours about January, 1944—Jasper Advertiser.

Republicans In Democratic Primaries

Congressman Jarman, who was re-nominated in the June 4, primary over Billy Partlow of Tuscaloosa, claims that a thousand Republicans entered the Democratic primary in Chilton County on June 4 and voted for his opponent. This is his explanation of the reason he lost Chilton County. Mr. Jarman's statement is printed elsewhere in this issue.

If Mr. Jarman is correct there are a thousand Chilton County Republicans who must now vote the Democratic ticket next November—that is if they have any regard for their pledged word, for by voting in the Democratic primary they definitely pledge themselves to support the nominees of the Democratic primary in which they participated.

This makes things look brighter for the Democrats in Chilton next November.—Wetumpka Herald.

"We're on the brink of war," says a headline. Now, if you ask me—I think right there is a mighty fine place to "halt and mark time."

Little things sometimes prevent boys and girls from becoming great leaders. Help the boy or girl who needs help while you can.

"Build-Up" for Women Helps Avoid Distress

Do you suffer periodically from headaches, nervousness, irritability, cramp-like pain?

If so, here's good news! These may be symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, often helped by CARDUI.

CARDUI usually increases appetite and the flow of gastric juices; so aids digestion and helps build up strength, energy, physical resistance. Result: many less periodic distresses. Or you may find this also helps ease your periodic discomfort. Take CARDUI a few days before and during "the time." 50 years of use and popularity invite your confidence in CARDUI.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

Often have we heard the admonition, "Don't carry home the worries of your work." On the other hand it is just as important that we do not carry our private battles into our work.

I knew a man who made it his business to relate all that happened at home during the afternoon and night before he had been on his job an hour. His wife had given him trouble. His children were extravagant and disobedient. The man did not seem to notice it, but the boss thought that he was too much loaded with excess baggage to make his work a success. This man wondered why he did not climb in business. Men and women will do well to learn that excess baggage is rather expensive to lug along, whether it be in business or in home life. If you want to travel well leave your business worries out of home, and leave your home worries out of business.

Has it ever occurred to you that thirty million youths will be reading the comic strips next Sunday morning in our nation? It is a fact that some of these comic strips, like Orphan Annie, create a constructive influence, but there are many of them, like Dick Tracy, that create an unwholesome influence. Bad moral influences go out from some of these comic strips. The most of them make an assault upon the English language that is not good. They say much things as this. "He ain't got no soap. Dirty rat, bloody skunk, bloom'n' screech owl, lousy dip" and the like. A little girl versed in comic language said to her grand mother, "You old dirty rat." A six year old boy who was educated in comic language said to a visitor, "You are an old stinkbomb." With the influence of the comic strips flowing into the language of today, slang is becoming the voice of society. We need a crusade on the question of correct speech.

One day I came in from town with a large red apple in my pocket. My little boy of four years came running down the sidewalk to meet me. As he neared me I took the apple from my pocket and handed it to him. His eyes sparkled with delight as he held the apple in his hand and walked with me to our parsonage home. The lad's mother was sitting on the porch and we sat down by her. I noticed that the lad became uncomfortable but I could not understand. A few moments later I did understand, for I saw him as he slipped up to his mother's side and said, "Mother, here is an apple for you." He sat there and said that he had an apple and his mother had none. When a person is unselfish, love will cause him to part with his greatest treasure. If you love, you will give.

When you go to the cabinet in the dining room and look over the empty dishes, do you not bow your head and give thanks. At the table you have before you dishes that are filled, and then you say, "Thank You" to God. You should refuse to let the empty cup be your teacher. Do not allow a hard place in your bed to prevent your slumber. That person grows his spirit habits by looking at empty dishes, will ever be a growler. I was seated at a dinner table and on the wall I saw this motto, "Try Thanksgiving." It is well for us to cultivate a joyous spirit and in all things give thanks and be happy.

Into a western village came an old umbrella mender. As he went from house to house he informed all his customers that he was now too busy to ever come that way again. One trip he did better work and was more careful to please than ever before. A good lady said to the old man after seeing that he was so anxious to give honest service, "Old man, why you not put in cheaper material make more for yourself, being that will never come back." The old man looked at her with astonishment and replied, "Dear lady, for two years I am doing my best work on my last. I want to improve over my other and then I want to make it my best to the last day, for you are coming this way again."

A couple of suits of brand new suits might help some bright boy started in school this fall. And might some day make Alabama a governor. Who knows. You will the Underprivileged Children on this page.

Hitler it seems hesitates to try to send any army across the English Channel. From Dunkirk, Dover is about 21 to 23 miles, thus hesitates to expose his army this distance how much more would he hesitate to send them 3000 miles to the Atlantic.—Phenix City Journal.

This is a Personal Letter to--

Everyone who is interested in helping the Underprivileged School Children of Chilton County—including all members of Parent-Teachers Units, Principals of all Schools, both White and Colored; all School Teachers and members of any other organization interested in this subject.

YOU SHOULD BE INTERESTED IN THIS PROPOSITION!

Effective this date, Chilton County News will give 50 cents of each dollar it receives on Subscriptions for the next three months—that is until September 16th—to the UNDERPRIVILEGED SCHOOL CHILDREN of Chilton County (School to be designated on Coupon to be found elsewhere, by the subscriber when remittance is made). The price will be ONE DOLLAR FOR ONE YEAR, anywhere. New Subscribers, Old Subscribers who are behind and those who are paid in advance. Those of you who have been getting the paper free should certainly be willing to help this cause this much.

That's all there is to it. Whatever money we get this way will be spent only under the direction of the proper authorities, in cooperation with the Principals and Teachers of the various Schools of Chilton County.

You can send in one name or as many names as you can get. Use the Coupon found elsewhere in this issue and be sure to designate the School to which the donation should go.

Why not get up a club of 10 subscribers or more in your community for the benefit of Underprivileged School children?

Sincerely,

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Relatives, neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Annie Oron Chism and family Sunday to a birthday party given in honor of her baby girl Frances and her youngest brother, Robert Hicks. Those who gathered around a well filled table and heard Mr. N. S. Hicks give thanks included: Mr. and Mrs. Willie Rush and little daughter, Norma Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Golson and baby, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Sansom, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mitchell and family of Sprotts, Mr. Fred Collins and family, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Hicks, Mr. J. W. Hicks, Mr. J. M. Hicks, Mr. Harmon Hicks and daughter Alma, Mr. R. J. Hicks, Miss Esther Hicks, Mr. David S. Hicks, Mr. Walter Atchison, Miss Flora Chism, Miss Violet Gentry, Mr. Otha and Emmitt Nichols and Miss Robbie Nichols, Mr. J. W. Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Royster and family.

The evening guest included Mr. Archie and J. R. McKinney, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Smitherman and little daughter Dorothy and Pauline Harrison.

Many regret that the oldest daughter of Mrs. Chism, Mrs. Jesse Smith, could not come. Her baby has been sick for sometime. We hope it will soon be better. Everybody had a good time and next year at the same time 3rd Sunday in June we all hope to meet again. The invitation welcomes everybody.

SARA E. HONEYCUTT

Sara E. Honeycutt, aged 40 years, wife of Mr. Vaughn C. Honeycutt, formerly of Jemison and Thorsby, a grandson of the late Rev. M. Honeycutt and nephew of Mr. Green S. Burnett, of Thorsby died at her home at 10125 Washington Ave., South Gate, California, suddenly Monday June 3, 1940 at 8:20 a. m. of heart attack following an apoplectic stroke on May 9, caused by excessive high blood pressure and cerebral hemorrhage. Burial was in Calvary cemetery, Los Angeles.

Calif. Vaughn Honeycutt met his wife in Cork Ireland during his war service with the United States Navy, bringing her to this country they were married in Chicago, March 1920, since his retirement from the Navy in 1934, they have made their home in California where he is now employed by Southern Pacific Railroad as Wire Chief in their General Telegraph offices in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Honeycutt is survived by her husband, Vaughn C., 2 daughters, Mary F. and F. Onzelle of South Gate, Calif.; a sister Mrs. Robert Neiswander of Lomita Calif., father and 3 sisters, one brother and two half brothers all residing in Ireland and England.

Mrs. Honeycutt died true to her trust in God and hope for a life everlasting never missing church services whenever her health permitted.

Your prayers are requested for the repose of her soul and may it rest in peace, and for strength for her husband that he may raise his children so they remain true to God so that they meet again in the sweet bye and bye.

Wouldn't it be great if those who make the wars could be the first ones to "bite the dust"?

Eliminate Pasture Weeds By Mowing

By eliminating weeds on pasture land farmers can develop a better sod to control erosion and provide better grazing for their livestock, according to County Agent, Mr. J. W. Fant and Mr. James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp area near Clanton, Alabama.

Weeds compete with pasture grasses for plant food, moisture, an space and shade out many of the more desirable plants. Mowing weeds before they have a chance to go to seed is one of the best ways of eliminating this unprofitable crop.

One mowing won't do the job, Mr. Wood points out. Weeds come in cycles and pastures must be mowed several times during the growing season to prevent reseeding. Each successive crop of weed seed must be destroyed before the seed mature.

Mr. Wood emphasizes that when mowing bitweed it is essential to set the cutter bar so as to clip only the flower. Bitweed develops flowers at the point at which the plant is clipped and mowing close to the ground the first time makes it difficult to reach the flowers thereafter. Being an annual it is necessary to mow bitweed often enough to keep them from producing seed.

Controlling weed growth in pastures has far reaching effects, Mr. Wood said. Grass is given a chance to grow, erosion is slowed down or eliminated, and the land is made valuable for producing feed for livestock.

Mr. and Mrs. Chick Fiquette and children, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Towns (nee Gerlie Fiquette) of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Ventress and Mrs. Marie Portie of Talladega, left Sunday for a vacation in Florida.

More than 200,000 chickens—enough to supply about one-third of the spring demands will be produced by hatcherymen in 44 states operating under the National Poultry Improvement plan, says John E. Ivey, Alabama extension poultryman.

When the housewife buys a nine-cent one-pound loaf of sliced bread wrapped in wax paper, she gets a little over one cent's worth of wheat and somewhat more than seven cents worth of transportation, labor, baking, paper and other materials and service.

G-Men To Handle "5th Column" Cases Roosevelt Says

Asks Sheriffs, Police, Other Officers to Promptly Relay Data to F.B.I.

Birmingham, Ala., June 18—President Roosevelt has requested all Federal agencies, police officers, sheriffs and other law enforcement agencies to transmit promptly any information relating to so-called "Fifth Column" activities to the nearest representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, George L. Davis, State Director of the Office of Government Reports announced today.

This procedure was evolved to permit the careful sifting out and correlation of all information and to avoid "confusion and irresponsibility." The Alabama Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is located at 320 Federal Building, Birmingham, and all Federal and local law enforcement officers should turn over to the FBI any information relating to espionage, counter-espionage, sabotage, subversive activities and violations of the neutrality laws, it was announced.

The President's instructions to all Federal agencies are as follows:

"The Attorney General has been requested by me to instruct the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice to take charge of the investigative work in matters relating to espionage, sabotage, and violations of the neutrality laws."

"This task must be conducted in a comprehensive and effective manner on a national basis, and all information must be carefully sifted out and correlated in order to avoid confusion and irresponsibility."

"To this end I request all police officers, sheriffs, and all other law enforcement officers in the United States promptly to turn over to the nearest representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation any information obtained by them relating to espionage, counter-espionage, sabotage, subversive activities, and violations of the neutrality laws."

World Traveler Sees Tibet as Gold Rush Site

Far-off Tibet, where the lowest altitude is higher than Pike's peak, will be the scene of the world's next major gold rush, in the opinion of Harrison Forman, 33-year-old world traveler.

"There is a great deal of gold in Tibet," according to the young explorer.

Then he added: "I have seen tons of it on the roofs of Tibetan monasteries and there is more in the ground and streams. However, it's of no value to anyone because it's impossible at present to get it to the outside world."

"The country has no railroads and no highways. There isn't a wheel in all of Tibet and the metal is too heavy to be hauled on the backs of animals."

Forman believed the development of an airplane motor powerful enough to fly heavy freight will be the ultimate solution.

Burglars Crack Open Safe BOUNTIFUL UTAH.—The burglars who tore the door off a safe in a Bountiful furniture store—there found the safe unlocked—must be coming back. Marshal Ercell Hepworth said the only loot of the night's work was a slip of paper containing the safe's combination.

Italy's Six Reasons For Entering The War

Italy has named the following six reasons why she is entering the war:

1. Italy has followed a peace policy for 18 years seeking to "balance positions, shorten distances and improve new, more humane political formulas.
2. France and England always have opposed Mussolini's policies.
3. When the "Italian people asked for land to work they were offered desert."
4. "Everything Italian, in domestic policy as well as in the international field has been ostentatiously undervalued by the French and English.
5. "Democratic Europe, which has depreciated the Italian people, can only be fought. The Italian people have reached the limit of their patience."
6. "This war must solve territorial questions for the Italian people which are Nice, Corsica, 'Trieste and Jibuti'."

The Italian people are subject to French and English control. Italy must insure her independence on the sea."

Triple-A checks—nearly 305,000 of them totaling $14,600,000—have gone to Alabama farmers for soil conserving and soil improving practices and for diverting land from soil depleting crops during 1939.

Cotton comes into its own this summer. It has received the coveted nod of those who dictate styles and will be the most popular fabric on the market.

Barbiturates Sold Only On Prescription

Montgomery.—Alabama is one of 26 states in which retail sales of the barbiturates may be made only on prescription by physicians, according to a report by the Bureau of Legal Medicine and Legislation of the American Medical Association. The report is published in the American Medical Association's Journal.

The states in addition to Alabama in which these products may be sold legally only upon prescription are Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and W. Virginia. Oklahoma has in effect a law providing that barbiturates may be sold to consumers either on prescription or without a prescription if the pharmacist records the sale in much the same manner as he is generally required to record sales of poisons.

Barbituric acid derivatives are habit forming and also produce a form of intoxication which may lead to serious consequences. Their use proved troublesome to the authorities of Kilby prison and other penal institutions about two months ago, causing Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, to issue a reminder of the existence of the State law prohibiting their sale except by prescription.

TVA Plants Ready To Make Munitions

WASHINGTON—TVA plants are ready to begin the manufacture of munitions and nitrates as soon as the word "go" is given. Director David Lilienthal announced today after a conference with President Roosevelt and Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., of the National Defense Council. Lilienthal pointed out the vast TVA set-up is a part of the National Defense Act of 1916. He said army engineers have declared the TVA District to be the number-one national defense area because of the protection of the mountains in that area.

Antioch News

Sunday afternoon was our regular singing afternoon. But due to the rainy weather the singers were late, and while we were waiting, Rev. Lonza Hayes made us a wonderful talk. And it was enjoyed by all, and the church was called to order by Miss Billie Ruth, Deacon. As our chairman Mr. Grady Davis was absent. Directors for the afternoon were: Miss Fannie Mae Owen, Pauline Hayes, Louise Sansom, Delene Hayes, Myrtice Owen, and Frances Sansom. Pianist for the afternoon were Misses Fannie Mae Owen and Gladys Sansom.

We ask all singers to come and help us out with this singing ever third Sunday afternoon.

Bro. Charlie Haggard will show the Life of Christ at this church next Friday night, June 21, 1940.

He was supposed to come last Friday night and due to the rain, he couldn't get here. So everybody is invited to come next Friday night.

There will be no charges any free-will offering taken.

New Plans For Beer Clean-Up

Montgomery, Ala. June 19.—(Special)—David E. Dunn, Director of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee returned to Alabama today with new plans for his "clean up or close up" campaign after attending the national conference of the United Brewers Industrial Foundation at Chicago and exchanging ideas with the directors of 12 other states. "I was gratified to learn that the Foundation's work in the other states, including our neighbors of Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee, meeting with the same public approval that Alabama has given our work," Dunn said.

"I was also proud to hear that the fact that the beer industry is contributing more than $1,000,000 daily in taxes as America ahead with its national defense program."

Director Dunn led the round-table discussion at the conference on subject of retailer meetings, and noted that he had talked personally with more than half of Alabama's 1,800 tail beer dealers since starting a wide educational tour in February for better law observance.

His slogan "the least violated law the one best understood" was adopted by directors from many of the states to keynote their educational campaigns.

Mr. Dunn, accompanied by Chas. W. Williams, Jr., Public Relations Director of the Alabama Commission, participated in discussions with representatives from Mississippi, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, West Virginia, Kansas, Nebraska, Kentucky and Maine.

Concrete Vs. Asphalt

Back into the limelight come the concrete roads as Alabama views the devastation to its blacktopped highways caused by the awful winter of 1939-40. Up to last winter, the advocates of blacktopping had made tremendous strides: there were few concrete roads being built in Alabama, and the blacktopping champions had convinced a great many of his that their system was the best, taking everything into consideration.

But the way that the cold spell laid waste to the bituminous surfacing, costing the state hundreds of thousands of dollars in repair bills, makes a great many of us wonder whether, after all, many of the concrete roads aren't far better and far more economical in the long run, in spite of our experience with such stretches as that from Tuscaloosa to Bessemer.

The Centerville Press is one newspaper in this part of the state which has raised a howl. "In Bibb County, the Blocton Highway, which is the last road constructed in Bibb County, is full of patches," says the Press. "This is one of the most heavily travelled highways in Alabama, and when completed all the way to Mobile, it will carry a lot more traffic than it does at the present time."

"Is it not false economy," asks the Press, "to spend our gasoline money for asphalt roads when concrete roads can be built for small additional cost, and the maintenance of concrete roads is much less than asphalt roads?"

"It was false economy," concludes the Press, "to use asphalt material on road No. 5, and when construction is started on road No. 6 from Montgomery to Tuscaloosa the state should use concrete because there will be an enormous amount of traffic on that road after it has been finished."

"The Greene County Democrat also has something to say about concrete roads. 'We believe,' says the Democrat, 'that Greene County has about the best system of roads of any county in the state. We have good roads running to all of the adjoining county seats. For many years, the probate judge and county commissioners have planned the system of county roads with care and foresight under competent engineers. We believe that Greene County gets good value for money spent.'

"But — and there is nearly always a but — we would like to see a plan developed for saving some of the money to begin a system of concrete roads. We have been told that if the county will put up $20,000, the state will match that with another $20,000, and then the federal government will match that with another $40,000, giving us a total of $80,000, which will build about four miles of concrete. The county gets approximately $100,000 per year in gasoline taxes. We believe that $80,000 would take care of the county roads as now built. That would leave $20,000 for the program. It is true that four or five miles per year would seem very little to build in concrete. But think of the saving. For every mile of concrete built, there would be a saving of some $400 per mile annually in upkeep. Black top costs more for repair and upkeep than gravel. There is no comparison in the life of the two types of road. Since we now have a good system of gravel roads, we believe Greene County could show the rest of the state an almost perfect road system by adopting a concrete system."

The Democrat neglects to say that Greene County, or rather Greene and Tuscaloosa together, have the perfect contrast between the concrete and the bituminous road. Built a number of years ago were the concrete stretches between Tuscaloosa and the Greene County line and then from Eutaw up this way about five or six miles. They stood the weather of last winter. Put down later, only about four years ago, was the stretch between the county line and the end of the pavement outside of Eutaw. This was blacktopped. Today it is shot through with holes. The Highway Department has been forced to rip up long stretches, hundreds of feet at a time. It has not been a very good advertisement for bituminous surfacing—Tuscaloosa News. There is perhaps no clearer illustration of the folly of using bituminous over concrete paving for heavy traffic highways than right here in Chilton County. On U. S. 31, where work has been going on for several months.

By the time a piece of paving is finished the "patching" crew have to get busy on the other end.

VIGILANCE SEEN IN BOARD ACTIVITIES

Further results of the unrelenting activity and vigilance of the field forces of the Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in assuring strict compliance with the law, were disclosed in action taken yesterday by the ABC Board.

Announcement was made by Col. E. Roy Albright, Chairman, that the Board had indefinitely suspended six beer licenses whose license were suspended and two liquor licenses on probation. The names and addresses of the beer licensees whose licenses were suspended — five in Jefferson County and one in Montgomery—follow:

Jefferson: W. Morel Brantley, Exchange Place, Route 5, Birmingham. Michael J. Mikronis, Star Barbecue, 1913 Fifth Ave., North Birmingham. Tony Sciro, The Red Top, 2614 Twenty-ninth Ave., North Birmingham. Mrs. V. E. Thompson, Tenth Ave., Grill, 4438 Tenth Ave., North Birmingham. E. J. Moore, Moore's Place, Mulga.

Montgomery County: Leo Duke, 10 North Lawrence St., Montgomery.

State's Bonded Debt Near $64,000,000

Montgomery, Ala.—Purchases by the State of Minnesota of $25,000 of Alabama bonds to, in future form a part of Minnesota's permanent school fund, was announced last week by Gov. Frank M. Dixon.

Inquiry at the office of State Treasurer Charles E. McCall brought the information that the bonds bought, which bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, are some of Alabama's old bonded debt bonds originally issued during the Reconstruction period following the War Between the States, and refunded in 1906 for 50 years. There are $7,137,000 of these bonds outstanding.

Assistant Treasurer W. W. Brooks said that the total bonded indebtedness of the State of Alabama has been reduced by approximately $10,000,000 in the past 7 years, and now totals about $64,000,000.

The Alabama bonds acquired by Minnesota, backed by the full faith and credit of the State of Alabama, have already been registered at the Treasurer's office in the name of the new owner.

State Convention of Chiropractic Association

Dr. J. L. Bennett of this city has just returned from Montgomery, where he had been attending the State Convention of the Alabama Chiropractic Association. Dr. Bennett, president of the Lincoln Chiropractic College, Inc., of Indianapolis, Ind., was the principal speaker.

"Chiropractic, although only 44 years old, has been officially recognized by the legislature of 42 states," says Dr. Bennett.

He added that recognition of his profession in public health service is one of the major items on its national program.

FIRST PHASE OF GERMANY'S BLITZKRIEG

Has Holland, Belgium and 10,000 Square Miles of Northern France

According to a resume by the Associated Press dailies, the first 28 days of Germany's blitzkrieg on the western front with the conclusion of the great battle of Flanders by the fall of Dunkirk left the Germans in complete possession of all Holland, Belgium and approximately 10,000 square miles of Northern France after 26 days of the bitterest fighting the world has known.

The price paid by the Germans for their lightning conquest and losses suffered by the allies are obscured by conflicting claims, but neutral military experts agree that the cost of men and materials has been enormous.

This is how the rival claims stack up:

Casualties—The Germans estimate Allied dead and wounded at between 600,000 and 700,000 men and place their own casualties at only 10,252 killed, 8,643 missing and 42,523 wounded. Allied estimates of German losses range from 500,000 to 1,000,000 dead and wounded, against which the British admit losses of 30,000. The French have not estimated their casualties. Belgium losses also are unreported. The foreign minister of The Netherlands on May 15 said 100,000 men of the Dutch Army had been killed. Nine days later, DNB, German official news agency, said Dutch Army losses actually were fewer than 2,000 dead and wounded.

Naval losses—The British have acknowledged the loss of six destroyers and 23 minor naval vessels in the withdrawal from Dunkerque and the French have admitted loss of seven destroyers. The Germans, denying any naval losses themselves, claim to have sunk five enemy cruisers, 13 destroyers, five submarines, one auxiliary cruiser, 67 commercial vessels or transports and 10 lesser naval ships. In addition the Germans say they destroyed 10 cruisers, 24 destroyers, three torpedo boats, 22 other war vessels and 117 merchant ships.

Planes—German losses in planes have been put by Allied sources at more than 2,500, against which the British have officially admitted the loss of 302 craft; the French have not announced their own losses. The Germans put their own losses at 432 planes and say they shot down 1,841 Allied craft and destroyed between 1,600 and 1,700 more on the ground.

Losses in war material—Prime Minister Churchill yesterday admitted that British losses in material in the retreat from Dunkerque were enormous—including almost 1000 cannon and all the armored units and motor vehicles belonging to the army in Flanders. The Germans say the British lost weapons and equipment for 70 or 80 divisions including guns of all calibers, armored cars and other motor vehicles.

Prisoners—The Germans report the capture of 120,000 prisoners, including about 300,000 French and British and the entire Dutch and Belgian Armies, numbering, respectively 400,000 and 500,000 men. The Allies have not announced figures on the number of Germans captured.

State To Enlist 3,867 In CCC During July

Montgomery—Welfare Commissioner Loula Dunn announced Saturday 3,867 Alabama youths would be enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps during July to fill vacancies caused by a like number leaving the corps.

Of the group enrolled, 2,250 will be sent to camps in the West Coast area, the remainder to be stationed in Alabama and surrounding states. Approximately 7,600 Alabama youths are enrolled in CCC camps now.

Miss Dunn announced the following enrollments schedule: July 1-3 Wilson Dam, Huntsville, Hamilton, Birmingham, Anniston, Clanton, Mobile, Evergreen, Montgomery, Auburn, Dothan and Demopolis.

July 8-10, Athens, Hamilton, Montgomery, Demopolis, Mobile, Evergreen, Anniston, Birmingham and Dothan.

State FHA Meeting At Alabama College

The State F. H. A. meeting was enjoyed by many girls and their advisors through out the state of Alabama. The meeting was held at Alabama College. At one o'clock Thursday June 6 registration began. Interesting meetings and speeches along with social activities were enjoyed by every one until Saturday, June 8 at eleven o'clock. Those girls attending the meeting from Clanton were: Mrs. Joe Rummel, our advisor, Sybil Littlejohn and Ruth Vinson officers for next year, Lanell Eubanks, Elizabeth Newell, and Annie Pearl Hunnycutt, State Degree Members, and Frances Bean the only girl from Clanton who acquired the State Degree this year. If you ever have an opportunity to attend a State F. H. A. let me urge you to do so. All those who attended report "We had the time of our life."

Employees Eligible For Service Listed

Montgomery, Ala.—Names of all State employees who are members of military organizations and subject to call for active military duty, are being listed by State Personnel Director I. J. Browder so that temporary workers may be trained to replace them if such a call should come.

It is made clear by the Director that any State worker called into active military service may be certain of getting back his same job when the period of duty ends and he returns to civil life. A bill specifically providing for such restoration of jobs is now on the Senate calendar in the Legislature and its sponsorship by Gov. Dixon is expected.

In a letter to the heads of all departments of the State Government, Director Browder has explained that completion of the "military membership" list should cause no undue alarm; but is being done only for the purpose of training "understudies" for men who because of their affiliation with Alabama National Guard, naval military organizations, Officers Reserve Corps or Naval Reserve, are liable to calls for periods of training.

"Personnel problems," said Mr. Browder, "are greatly magnified in time of crisis. Persons not likely to enter actively into the defense program of the nation should be acquiring additional qualifications—for jobs occupied by persons more likely to leave the State Service."

"It will undoubtedly be the personnel policy of the State to hold positions for any person who leaves to engage in military programs, and to fill the jobs only temporarily until the return of incumbents. A bill making such action mandatory is in the State Legislature."

M. & O. R. R. Plan To Use Trucks

Several days ago, Mr. Brady Belcher, J. W. Mason, O. P. Dailey, Jr., and Jim Oakley went to Montgomery in the interest of the M. & O. R. R., owners of the Mobile & Ohio R. R., who are planning to operate a truck line from Tuscaloosa to Montgomery, and who are very anxious to obtain permission from the Alabama Public Service Commission to start this truck operation at an early date.

This company proposes to use up-to-date trucks, and to make local delivery of freight, and it is their contention that they can insure delivery of local freight at least 24 hours faster than the present method.

Mr. Belcher has agreed to sell his truck line operating between Centerville and Tuscaloosa, to the G. M. & N.—Centerville Press.

WATER LOW IN WELLS

Water is reported as low in wells in North Alabama as it usually is during the Fall of the year. Farmers are seeking the reason for this.

Several hundred county officials will gather in Birmingham June 19-21 for the annual meeting of County Commissioners and Probate Judges.

Will Rogers, Of Alabama

(Birmingham News)

Perhaps not many Alabamians know that Will Rogers, America's great humorist-philosopher, was a descendant of Alabama residents. They may get the complete facts, however, in the May issue of The Southern Literary Messenger, which contains an article, "The Indian in That Irish-Cherokee," by Will Rogers, written by Mittie Owen McDavid, of Birmingham.

On both sides of his family, Will Rogers could boast of the blood of the Cherokees, one of the most advanced and civilized of Indian tribes. It was on his mother's side, however, that Rogers was most closely linked with Alabama. And the link is interesting and important.

In the latter part of the eighteenth century these came from Tennessee to Alabama a prosperous powder-maker, John Gunter. He settled in the Cherokee country of Alabama, became a man of prominence, and for him the town of Guntersville was named. John Gunter was the maternal great-grandfather of Will Rogers. Gunter married a full-blooded Cherokee maiden. Among their children was a daughter, Elizabeth, born at Creek Path, near Guntersville. She married Martin Matthews Schrimsher, who was born in Tennessee but who settled in Alabama. Two of the Schrimsher children were born in Alabama. The third, Mary America Schrimsher, was born in Indian Territory following the removal of the Cherokees to the West, and later married Capt. Clement Van Rogers. Will Rogers was their fifth child. The Rogers family was also part Cherokee, but came from Georgia.

John Gunter and his Katie are buried near Guntersville. A city perpetuates their name. Their great-grandson, Will Rogers, lies buried in the West. Atop a peak in the Rockies an eternal flame seeks to perpetuate his memory. That memory finds one of its roots along the pleasant Tennessee Valley in Alabama.

Alabama farmers are showing increased interest in the timber crop and are learning to measure and appraise timber prior to selling. Rufus Page, J., Extension forester says.

Chevrolet Builds Its 900,000th 1940 Car

Here is the 900,000th car of Chevrolet's 1940 model production, as it left the assembly line at Flint, Mich., June 12, less than one month after No. 300,000 was completed. Beside the car are M. E. Coyle, general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Division (left), C. E. Weidner, general manufacturing manager (right), and Arnold Lenz, assistant manufacturing manager, who were present in the plant when the car was produced.

"Chevrolet has built 300,000 cars in less than three months," Mr. Coyle pointed out. "The 600,000th of these models was built on March 21, the 700,000th on April 16, the 800,000th on May 13, and the 900,000th on June 12. This production rate closely parallels the consistently heavy sales volume since the introduction of the 1940 models last October, sales during March, April and May alone totaling 307,345."

Advice to House Wives Now Is the Time

By Mattie Jo Barber

Now is the time many housewives are concerned with the problem of removing lettering and color from sacks. There are several methods by which the coloring may be removed, the method used to be determined by the material used in printing the sacks. Paint, dye, or ink is generally used for printing sacks. Cold water loosens most dyes, and it is always advisable, unless the water is of very high mineral content, to soak the sacks in cold water.

Where lye is used to remove the color or two tablespoons of vinegar to one gallon of water in the first rinse water after boiling or soaking should be used to neutralize the lye and retard the action of lye on the material. If "bleaches" are several methods by which coloring may be removed.

Method 1—

Rinse sacks in cold water. Rub on the printed part of the sack any kind of good laundry soap, saturate the same part with kerosene, roll up, and leave overnight. The next morning, place in tub of warm water and wash. When washing sacks rub briskly on the rub board, removing as much color as possible before placing them in boiling water.

Soap the sacks again. To each gallon of water add one teaspoon of lye that has been dissolved and strained.

Place sacks in boiler and boil 30 minutes. Do not crowd the sacks. Use plenty of water in a large boiler.

Rinse in one vinegar bath and two rinse waters.

Method 2—

Dissolve two teaspoonsful of lye in hot water, strain and add one gallon of water. Soak sacks in this overnight. Wash out next morning. Make another solution of lye water using same directions. Place sacks in this and boil for two hours. Rinse through three waters using vinegar in the first rinse. Hang out to dry.

Removing Printers Ink

Unravel sacks and wash out in cold water. Place the end of sack stamped with black letters in large pan. Pour enough buttermilk to cover letters, rub well, and soak overnight. The next morning cover black letters with salt and place in sunshine. Keep moist with butter milk during day. It may be necessary to soak the letters the second night in buttermilk.

The above method may be used with sweet milk or home made vinegar and salt.

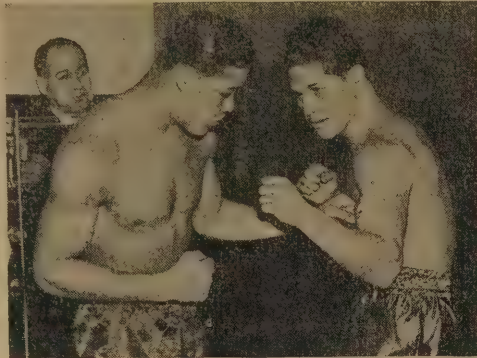

Accuracy plays an important part in the success of any job undertaken by the housewife. This is especially true in regard to the success of persons wishing to conserve a supply of food for use during a season when foods are not easily available. To insure accuracy as well as safety in the canning of foods in a steam pressure cooker it is a good idea to test the gauge on the cooker to determine whether or not it is safe for use. The testing of a gauge is a simple matter with proper equipment for testing. Any person who desires to have a gauge tested may bring or send the gauge to the Home Demonstration Agent. The gauge may be removed from the cooker by the use of a small wrench. It is not necessary for the whole cooker to be sent. See that your gauge is accurate to eliminate possible loss of foods and to insure less danger of painful burns or scalds.

Where it is possible, a storage pantry should be provided with adequate space for storing canned, dried and brined products and also the canning equipment. Where it is impossible to have a regular storage pantry as is the case with families who rent their homes, a portable cabinet or shelves can be used for storage space.

If a narrow hallway is the only place available, a row of shelves may be built just wide enough to hold one row of jars or cans. Wherever the storage place is built it is important that it be cool, dry, and dark. If dried products are to be kept in the pantry, it is necessary to store them in such a way that they will not be exposed to rats or insects.

It will save time to group the products properly on shelves. The prod-

United States Army Offers Educational Opportunities

The United States Army Recruiting Station, Room 29, Federal Bldg., Birmingham, Alabama is receiving enlistments for the Regular Army and the Regular Army Reserves. The station is open to have information available for those who would give serious consideration to the matter of enlisting.

Some matters which may be taken into consideration when the Army career is contemplated.

Pay in the Army varies from $21 to $157.50 per month. Most men start at the lowest rate of pay. Any raise in pay that they may receive is determined by their worth to the Government.

Good men can expect to receive promotion and increased pay. Many privates and privates first class are appointed specialists on account of their knowledge and practice of special trades, and received increased pay.

Among the many benefits which go with an enlistment in the Army are free board, living quarters, clothing, medical and dental care, recreational facilities, and a system of professional training which makes for orderly thinking as well as living.

The opportunities for physical and mental development, which will be of material value both in the Army and in civil life, are limited only by the soldier's ability to take advantage of them.

In case of permanent illness or injury, incurred in line of duty while in the Army, which incapacitates a soldier for active service, he is given maximum hospitalization and discharged from the Army with instructions to apply for a pension. After 30 years in the Army, soldiers will be retired upon their application, on three-quarters of the pay they were drawing at the date of their retirement, plus specified allowances for the rest of their lives.

There are usually vacancies in the Army for qualified men who possess musical talent.

In addition to the excellent schools of the various arms and services and practical working shops maintained by the Army at certain posts, there are post schools where soldiers may enroll for specialized military subjects. Athletics form a great part of the soldier's life.

Attendance at religious service is not compulsory in the Army. Every individual is offered the soldiers to attend church, services, however.

To be accepted for Army service the following must be met: Able-bodied, strong, active, and free from disease; unmarried; of good reputation; a citizen of the United States; between the ages of 18 and 35; be able to read and write the English language. Height and weight should be proportional. Those under 21 years of age must present written consent of parents.

ALABAMA CAN AFFORD CONCRETE ROADS

Concrete pavements, built to the standards developed by highway engineers of this state, are the last word in safety. Yet they actually cost the public less than so-called "cheap" pavements.

Concrete is safe because it provides a better "track" for vehicles. From your own experience you know that its even, gritty surface reduces skidding, wet weather or dry. Its freedom from bumps, ruts and chuckholes gives you better control at the wheel. Concrete's light gray color and high reflection factor help you see better at night.

Yet, with all these advantages, concrete is actually the cheapest road to have. First, because it costs less to build than other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity. Second, because concrete costs less to maintain—saves hundreds of dollars per mile, every year, compared with less enduring surfaces.

Urge public officials to build your roads with safe and saving concrete.

The Housewife says:

"RAILROADS help the home"

"I CAN picture the domestic life of my family if we were deprived of the help of the railroads—and I shrink from it."

"I can see a table that would no longer hold fresh fruits, berries and vegetables the year round; for if they could be procured, only the well-to-do could afford them. Even our clothes and household necessities would likely become luxuries because, without the railroads' facilities for mass transportation, we'd need plenty of money to buy the things we now take for granted."

"And we wouldn't have plenty of money—in fact we'd be fortunate to have enough for the bare necessities. My husband, like millions of other husbands, is employed in one of the thousands of industries that depend to a large extent upon the purchases of the railroads and their employees. If these were stopped or reduced he'd probably have no job."

"Then, where would we get the money to take over our share of the support of schools and government, towards which the railroads now contribute many millions of dollars a year in taxes? How would we be able to take those occasional vacation trips that mean so much to us? What would become of our modest investments in insurance and securities that are based to a large extent upon railroad prosperity?"

"Yes, indeed, we housewives appreciate what the railroads have done, and are doing, to make life pleasant for us."

Probably few housewives stop to consider just how much the railroad industry influences their lives. In 1939 the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, alone, employed 25,000 persons to whom it paid $40,000,000 in wages. It purchased from other industries supplies costing $16,000,000 and it paid $8,100,000 in taxes, much of which went to the support of schools. Last year the L. & N. transported more than 42 million tons of freight at an average cost to the public of less than a cent per ton per mile, and it carried over 3,000,000 passengers on trips totaling 350,200,000 miles at an average fare of 1.7 cents per mile.

Health Department Service Explained

Since Mr. Average Taxpayer may frequently ask himself the question: How does the County Health Department benefit me individually, the County Health Officer has outlined the various clinics and field services available to the people of the County. The main function of the Health Department, it was pointed out, is the promotion of the betterment of the public health through the prevention of sickness and diseases. While it is physically impossible for the services of the four people employed in the Health Department to reach every person in Chilton County, indirectly the health of the whole community is influenced by the work of the local Health unit.

The following services are within the reach of every citizen upon his request:

1. Immunization against typhoid, diphtheria, and smallpox. (It is felt, however, that persons who are able should consult their family physician for these services. The Health Department was not created to take the place of the family doctor even in the prevention of disease.)

2. Instruction concerning the proper methods of the prevention of the spread of disease in the home. This is done through conferences in the Health Office and in the home.

3. Advice concerning the proper methods of excreta disposal, screening, protection of water supplies in the individual home. WPA labor is furnished free for every building.

4. Advice on birth and death registration; assistance in obtaining copies of birth and death certificates.

5. Free medical examinations of school and pre-school children to discover the presence of physical defects. The following clinic services are available to the underprivileged and low income groups in the County:

1. The V. D. Clinic: Diagnosis and treatment of venereal diseases. Any patient declared needy by a doctor is admitted to the clinic.

2. The Well Baby Clinic: Supervision of well babies from birth through the first year. Advice on feeding, preparation of formulas, free cod liver oil, etc., are services to be had in the well baby clinic. Any baby whose birth was attended by a midwife or any referred by a doctor can be brought in to the clinic.

3. The prenatal clinic: Medical examination and supervision of expectant mothers in the prenatal clinic. Any mother to be delivered by a midwife or any referred by a doctor is eligible for this service.

4. The Tuberculosis Clinic: Any person referred by a doctor can receive a free chest x-ray to determine the presence of tuberculosis at the chest clinics held twice annually. Needy cases of early tuberculosis can receive through the County six weeks of treatment in the Montgomery County Sanatorium and a continuance of treatment under a local doctor paid by the County Tuberculosis Association.

5. The Crippled Children Clinic: Any crippled child (under 21 years of age) referred by the family doctor can receive free transportation to the dis-

Archer's Chapel

The fourth Sunday in July, July 28, will be Homecoming Day at Archer's Chapel. Rev. J. D. Ellison will preach at the morning service and Rev. Luther Ballou at the afternoon service. It will be an all day meeting. On the morning of the third Friday, July 19, all interested in the church will meet there to clean up the cemetery and put the church in good shape.

Rev. Luther Ballou will conduct Sunday School at Archer's Chapel next Sunday afternoon, June 23rd, at 2:15 p. m. Standard time. He will conduct church services at 3 p. m. A large welcome. In spite of sleet and miry roads, and an abundance of rain, there was a good attendance last Sunday afternoon for both Sunday School and church.

No longer is it necessary to endure sweltering "bake oven" bedrooms! With an ATTIC VENTILATING FAN in your home, cool night breezes flow through every room, assuring you and your family restful sleep—even during the hottest weather.

The attic ventilator cools the entire house by exhausting torrid, superheated air from the rooms and by drawing in cool, fresh night air through every window. This compact home-conditioner is easy to install—and amazingly economical to operate. Equally effective in one- or two-story houses.

ATTIC VENTILATING FANS are installed readily in one- or two-story homes, and are supplied with automatic ceiling shutters that open when the fan is started and close completely when the fan is stopped.

Mt. Springs

Out of consideration of a few in Mt. Springs Congregational church who have been members there for from a quarter to a half of a century or more, the church voted at conference June 16th to give up its plan to build a new church, and instead to repair the old one. The plans unanimously adopted more than four months ago, and unanimously revised a month ago to tear down the old church and build a new one, were given up out of consideration of these old members who cherish the sacred memories in connection with the original construction of the old building.

At his own urgent request, Jim Ruth-erford, one of the oldest members, a former trustee, and one who has taken an active interest in the work of the church since its earliest times, was given sole responsibility for raising the funds and supervising the necessary repairs.

The Ladies Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. George Kilgore at 2:00 p. m. Standard time. All ladies interested in the work of the church are invited to attend.

It is hoped that a good delegation of the ladies will attend a joint meeting of Mt. Springs, Mt. Creek and Eastview Ladies' Aid at the Mt. Creek Congregational church the last Thursday in this month, June 27th.

Fairfield Masonic Club Barbecue

The Fairfield Masonic Club is sponsoring a barbecue to be held at Fairfield City Park June 22, the net profit is to go to the equipping of the kitchen at the Masonic Orphans Home at Montgomery. Each of the Masonic Lodges in Chilton County have been furnished with twenty tickets to be disposed of by the members. The equipment will cost in the neighborhood of $3,500.

Every Chilton County Mason who can should attend, as there is no worthier cause than helping the widows and orphans.

Auto Quiz No. 3

1. If you remember your high school physics you know that a moving body tends to continue in uniform motion in a straight line. Some drivers forget this rule, only to be reminded of it most painfully when they try to take a curve too fast. There is an art to negotiating a curve safely without losing too much time, an art which requires applying the brakes (a) before you reach the curve (b) as you enter the curve (c) while you are in the curve. 2. If you want to qualify as an expert you will always drive at a speed which will allow you to stop, under any conditions — (a) within 500 feet, (b) within three car lengths, (c) within the assured safe distance which you can see, (d) within one car length.

3. Approximately three times as many persons are killed in automobile accidents as in airplane accidents. True (—) or False (—).

JOE HALL JOHNSON HONORED

Mr. Joe Hall Johnson, who graduated from Vanderbilt at Nashville last week, was awarded membership to the honorary fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, which is a distinct honor. In order to get into this fraternity one must have made grades of 85 and above all four years of college. Joe Hall has one of seventeen out of a class of 77 to make the fraternity, which speaks well for him.

They Help Revive Mountain Traditions

Age-old traditions were maintained Sunday June 9 when the tenth annual American Folk Song festival commemorated the traditional "Singin' Gatherin'" of the Kentucky mountains. The festival, sponsored by Jean Thomas held at "Traipsin' Woman" cabin on the Mayo trail, 18 miles south of Ashland. The program included Elizabethan ballads, Kentucky mountain ballads and hymns, and music from homemade dulcimers, banjos and guitars. Pictured here is a Kentucky family typical of those who took part in the music festival.

Football Men For Aviators

Col. Bibb Graves, now in Washington, has an original idea for expanding the nation's air corps personnel which he explained to President Roosevelt in the course of a recent audience. The Advertiser is informed.

Col. Graves is understood to have told President Roosevelt of his conviction that the nation's high school and college varsity football players still under 30 years of age constituted a great field for selection.

This belief rests on the assumption that a man who has gone through the training requisite to making the varsity was a man of the physical endowment and one accustomed to submission to discipline.

It is understood that there are more than 700,000 Americans yet under 30 who have played on varsity high school and college varsity squads.—Montgomery Advertiser.

CONGRESSMAN JARMAN DECIDES ITS' GOP'ERS

Sixth District's likeable 48-year-old Congressman Pete Jarman was kept on the hop, skip and jump in the state's Democratic runoff primary, had little time to ponder the whys and wherefores of anything.

But last week, having outpaced Tuscaloosa's youthful political newcomer Billy Partlow, Jr., Sixth District's Jarman was able to catch up on his sleep, cast about for answers to how and why challenger Partlow came to make it so hot for him.

Not long did it take Pete Jarman to get around to Chilton County, one of the handful in Alabama with heavy Republican strength. Soon he came up with the conclusion that Chilton's GOPers swept across the party line by the hundreds in June's Democratic runoff, either directly or through an accredited agent, promised the Republicans to go into Chilton County and help them defeat the Democratic ticket in November.

Named by Pete Jarman as reputedly chief bush-beaters for GOP help for Tuscaloosa's Partlow were Gadsden's B. Lonnie Noojin, Republican national committeeman, and Clanton's Percy Pitts, Republican member of the Alabama House from Chilton.

Satisfied that he had uncovered one reason for challenger Partlow's rip-roaring race, Congressman Jarman caught a train for Washington.—Alabama, The News Magazine of the Deep South.

Answers

1. a. before you reach the curve. A car is steadier on a curve when the engine is pulling. A driver should enter the curve slowly enough to enable him to accelerate slightly when actually rounding it. If you have to use your brakes on a curve you label yourself an inept driver.
2. c. within the assured safe distance which you can see. Road light, weather and traffic conditions vary greatly, making 50 miles an hour safe at times an 420 miles an hour dangerous at others. No matter how straight the road, how good the car or how dry the pavement, if headlights carry only 200 feet you must drive in the dark at a speed which will allow you to stop in an emergency, within 200 feet. Likewise, in daylight, you must drive at a speed which will allow you to stop suddenly, should another car emerge suddenly from a side road, or should a child dart suddenly into the road ahead of you.
3. False. 115 times as many persons are killed in automobile accidents as are killed in airplane accidents.

Clanton's Population Doubles In Last 10 Years

Census Shows 3,972 For Clanton; Probably Largest Increase Of Any City or Town In South

Summary returns of the 1940 census just completed show a startling gain for the town of Clanton. Jumping from 1,847 in 1930 when the last census was taken Clanton now boasts a gain of 2,125 or one hundred and thirteen per cent increase. Probably no other city, town or village in the South can boast so great an increase.

On page four. The News has through its files and gathered pictures of the public buildings and scenes of ten years ago.

Clanton County shows a net gain of over the same period, having counted 19,190 in 1930 and 28,263 in the census completed. These figures are preliminary and are subject to correction when the last official figures are given from Washington. It will be noted that the change will be large and to take away the honor that has been in the remarkable gain that we have made.

Only has Clanton grown in population but ours has been a steady improvement in the town.

Cross War Relief Primary and Appeal

There are now more than 350,000 volunteers in Red Cross Chaplains in producing war-relief work and dressings. About 35 of them are working in Clanton under the leadership of Mrs. L. Jones as chairman and it is estimated that by the end of this summer 100,000 surgical dressings and 100,000 garments will have been made. Out of our first quota of $600.00 and sent in, but since the country is daily growing worse in western country we are urged to our quota.

Of our people have responded nobly, some not so well. Won't please, please respond to the call of the suffering in our town. Not one dollar can be used unless more than war relief.

Cross Mercy Ship is now en France with $1,000,000 worth of supplies will be distributed by British Red Cross.

Clanton County MUST NOT fall. Don't wait for the workers to call them. And may I appeal to the workers to redouble their efforts to place the Clanton County banner high.

Don't hold the banner for contributions. Prime's $5, 10c and $1.00 store after for business firms, and to give the individual prize.

CLANTON SETS NEW RECORD

No other Alabama city has even approached Clanton in its remarkable record of growth in population during the past ten years. The increase for the decade was at the rate of 114 per cent, from 1,847 to 3,972.

Such gains as that are usually possible only because of enlarged city boundaries which take in outlying populations. It is not stated whether this has happened in Clanton, but anyone familiar with the city could not fail to realize the appreciable growth that has been under way there in recent years.

Thorsby in Clanton County also made a unique record. It had 771 people in 1930 and 771 in 1940. Jimson had a net loss of three—Alabama Journal.

LEGISLATURE PASSES DEFENSE RESOLUTIONS

The Alabama Legislature Tuesday Passed The Following Resolutions

"Be it resolved, by the Senate of Alabama the House of Representatives concurring:

"1. That the Legislature of Alabama deplors the return of the world to a condition where it is necessary to defend right by force; it recognizes, however, that such is the present situation.

"2. It calls upon the President and the Congress of the United States to take immediate, vigorous, and effective steps to prepare the United States to defend the interests of the United States and its nationals, and its institutions and form of government against any nation, or probable combination of nations capable of being brought together against it.

"3. That the State of Alabama recognize that this necessary step constitutes a radical change from our past national economy and will entail great and trying sacrifices on the part of the citizens of this and every state. It pledges itself and the people of Alabama to a full participation in these sacrifices.

"4. That copies hereof be sent to the President, the senators and congressmen representing Alabama in Congress and the Secretaries of State, War and Navy."

Last Continental Power Capitulates!

France Gives In To The Teutonic Conqueror

At 6:35 p. m. Clanton time, Monday, the German high command in France gave the order to "cease firing," a bugle in front of a microphone sounded, "Das Ganz Halt." And the blitzkrieg in Continental Europe had come to an end—lebensraum, demand of the Allies before the beginning of the war, had become an accomplished fact.

This leaves Britain to continue the fight alone. Prime Minister Churchill says this Britain will do.

The French say the peace terms are most severe—but "honorable." With bowed heads and hopeful hearts they declared a day of mourning after laying down their arms. The government under Marshal Petain will now begin building a new France—Under German domination.

Following is supposed to be the full text of the terms.

Here, according to the British Ministry of Information, are the major points of the German armistice terms which the Petain government of France has accepted:

1—Immediate cessation of hostilities; French troops in occupied territory to lay down their arms.

2—Germany to occupy designated territory, including about half the country and all the Atlantic Coast.

3—French naval, military and air forces to be demobilized and disarmed except for a force to preserve order.

4—Germany may demand the surrender of artillery, tanks, anti-tank weapons, service aircraft, infantry armaments, tractors and munitions in unoccupied territory; other war materials in unoccupied territory to be stored under German or Italian control; manufacture of war materials in unoccupied territory to stop at once.

5—Land and coast defenses in occupied territory to be dismantled.

Thorsby To Celebrate 4th With Celebration

Thorsby it seems is going to celebrate the 4th of July in exactly the right manner. To begin the day there will be a big parade after which there will be barbecue with all the trimmings, including free coffee. However, everyone is requested to bring their own cup for free coffee at lunch. During the evening there will be baseball, in fact a double header will be played, Thursday night there will be boxing matches to entertain the crowd. Summing this all up Thorsby won't be a bad bet for a grand day the 4th and all who care to come are invited and promised a full day.

CLANTON LADIES VIE FOR TITLE

Attractive Clanton Young Ladies Compete For Title "Miss Individual 1940"

Last night about twenty of the city's most attractive young ladies competing for the title "Miss Individual 1940," a group of the cutest little girls in town competing for the title "Little Miss Individual 1940" and entrance in the State Picture contest, and a selected group of local talent numbers and several guest artists, combined to make one of the biggest shows ever put on in the city of Clanton.

The show was sponsored by the local chapter of the Pilot Club and produced by the Search for Talent and Beauty Productions, selecting "Miss Southern America."

The winner of the "Miss Individual" title goes to the State Contest with all her expenses paid while there and has the opportunity to compete for the state title and a trip to Hollywood. The state talent winner goes to the State Talent Contest and competes for the state talent title. There are radio auditions there if the talent is adaptable to radio.

The young ladies competing in the contest and the sponsoring firms are Nell Rockett, Alfred Drug Co.; Lois Foshee, V. J. RESIDENTS OF VERBENA PRAY FOR PEACE

Angelus Bells Call Faithful To Moment Silent Prayer

During the last two years of the last world war, when the American soldiers were giving their lives in order that they might make this world safe for democracy and put an end to all wars, Verbena started a custom of pausing a few moments each afternoon to pray for peace. Promptly at five o'clock residents of this little town and for miles around stopped for a moment, with uncovered heads and offered a prayer for peace. This was kept up until the Armistice was signed. At that time it was published in the London Times, London England, about the neighborhood that practiced this custom.

Monday June 24th, 1940 just twenty-two years later, again the Angelus Bells rings from the tower of the First Methodist church and again as before the citizenry pauses, and with bowed heads offer a silent prayer to the Great General of the Universe for peace in America and all other nations. Verbena residents believe it would be a wonderful thing if every city, town and hamlet in America would take up this plan for peace.

Resolutions By Public Affairs Committee Clanton Kiwanis

Resolved, that the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, Ala., in regular meeting assembled on this the 13th day of June, 1940; hereby express their appreciation of the efforts of Hon. Asa Rountree, Jr., State Airfield Director, in placing a federal air-school in Clanton County.

Be it further resolved that we heartily endorse the efforts of the Commissioners Court of Clanton County to secure additional land sufficient to meet the demands or requirements of governmental agencies for such training field.

Be it further resolved that our United States Senators and Congressmen be informed of our willingness to cooperate with our government in the fullest measure in this matter, and that they are hereby requested to aid us in this undertaking.

And be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the parties herein mentioned.

Dr. V. J. GRAGG, Chmn. Public Affairs Committee.

The above resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Clanton Kiwanis Club held June 13, 1940.

O. M. Webb, President Clanton Kiwanis Club.

George E. Parr, Secretary Clanton Kiwanis Club.

Preparedness And Defense

There are two major elements which we here in America must take into consideration and act upon at once, if our preparedness and defense program is to become a well-rounded out success. One is an abundant food supply, and the other is adequate military roads throughout the nation.

The first essential in any military program, whether for offensive or defensive operations, is FOOD.

Little is being said in official Washington on this subject in connection with the billions of dollars which have been appropriated for warships and warplanes. Warships and warplanes would be as helpless without food in time of war as they would be without gasoline and coal.

For the past few years official Washington has been urging our farmers to reduce surpluses by cutting down on production. In fact, they are being paid a subsidy to do that very thing right now.

To spend billions of dollars for building warships and warplanes and pay the farmers to reduce the food supply would be neither preparedness or defense. Practically the whole world outside of America is short of food, with consumption increasing and starvation staring millions of people in the face.

In one of its splendid editorials, the Montgomery Advertiser in "An appeal to Alabama," says:

"Let Alabama farmers and farm wives take special care to conserve every ounce of edible staple food and store it away against the probable evil day that is NOW facing the human race!"

Let us conserve our meats and staple vegetables as well as our fruits. We know how to process and store foodstuffs, if need be we even know how to stink and save, notwithstanding the legend that we Americans are wastrels.

"This is a dreadful crisis for our world. We face a turning point in human history. This is not rhetoric, it is fact."

INFERIOR roads seem cheap and easy to build. They stretch a paving fund so that it covers a lot of territory. But after a year or two, the trouble begins! Maintenance costs go up and up.

That's why it's wise—and eco-

Project On Coosa Given Support Of Anniston Group

Anniston's Chamber of Commerce Thursday adopted a resolution pledging whole-hearted cooperation with federal government efforts to develop the Alabama-Coosa River system.

L. Lassen, of Mobile, representing the U. S. Board of Engineers, spoke to a special meeting of business men Thursday morning, describing plans for power dams, locks for navigation and flood control.

Mr. Lassen discussed minimum costs of terminal facilities, anticipated tonnage of the area, and called upon local business men for support of the project.

Colonel Harry M. Ayers, Howard Jemison, Howard Cater and Charles F. Varn were selected on a committee to draft a resolution to be sent federal authorities.—Anniston Times.

Mark Remarks:

There is no good reason why Congress should adjourn at a critical time like this. If we really believe in democracy then senators and congressmen are no better than other men who have to work for a living. They get good pay, and should be made to stay on the job when necessary.

Edwar dR. Stettinius, former chairman of the U. S. Steel Corp., Board says: "Democracy is based on a belief in God." However, he will continue to call the millions he expects his company to make out of the war appropriations, "Securities."

You can't frighten a mad dog by snapping and biting at everything, and frothing at the mouth, like he does.

We're beginning to think, after what has happened since, that maybe our president drank the bottle of beer and ate the hot dog with the wrong Britisher.

We Chilton Countians have got in such a habit of diversifying our crops that we have extended it to our political activities.

Wouldn't this be a wonderful world, if the peoples of all nations were as happy, peaceful and prosperous as we Chilton Countians are? Blessed as few of God's children in the Earth are blessed at this time, we should be exceedingly humble and thankful.

Preaching hatred brings strife—never peace. And injures the hearer far more than the hated.

Most of the speeches made by the President have been safe and sane, but he was talking when he should have been listening when he made that speech at Charlottesville.

Make this one of your garden musts for the remainder of the crop year: Sell all you can, and what you cannot sell—can.

Letters To The Editor

ENLARGE OUR DEFENSE

Editor Chilton County News:

In 1933 when Germany began to proclaim their leader, Adolph Hitler, as the strongest ruler in history, the United States, England and France laughed and called it propaganda. Naturally the allied powers felt themselves stronger than any dictatorship that could rise in such a short time. Had they not won the so-called world war?

We could not believe Hitler's phrases which he made so plain in Mein Kampf. The people of all democracies knew that Hitler was shrewd and possessed the talent of a great orator. We read in Mein Kampf, Hitler's own writing, that people felt harder for lies than for the truth. But we, the most civilized and the most intelligent people on earth, did not believe him. He has recently told us that he had no interest in the Western Hemisphere. Can we believe him? No! He has arranged his clever phrases into too many lies. He has lied to every country in Europe, just as he now lies to us but those poor innocent and helpless people have been dragged into what may result in the real world war.

In 1937 Hitler said that 33 million Germans lived outside the Reich, persecuted as minorities under other governments. He swore to the German people who had already been filled with his propaganda, that the 33 million people should come under his control. Of this 33 million, 1-2 million live in Canada, thousands and thousands in South America, and right here in our own United States 8 million comfortably dwell. Hitler told the German people that these German-Americans had been the fertilizer for the culture in the new world, that they had not played politics and were therefore being persecuted.

Hitler told the German-Americans that if they would cooperate with the government back home, he would give them what they were entitled to demand in the new world. He told the people of Germany that with the organized German-Americans, Jewry could be destroyed in the Western Hemisphere, and that America would be reconstructed.

In view of the above facts would it not behoove Americans, young and old, who are praying that we may stay clear of the war to do all they can to enlarge our defense so that we may stop the "isms" from spreading into our free country? Our nation cannot and must not escape the responsibility that belongs to her. We must help France and England, but while we help them we must fortify our democracy against attacks from within and without.

It is generally believed that dictatorships cannot replace a democracy that stands in a healthy economic environment. If this be true, the possibility lies not only in the hands of our government officials, but in the hands of each individual citizen and stretches from the Atlantic Pacific, but our greatest lies in the courage to fight against and thirty million Americans.

SAFE!

THE crowd roars as the runner slides home with the winning run! Baseball—like picnics, swim parties, fishing, golf, the beach—means that good old summertime is here again.

This Summer throughout Alabama you'll appreciate pleasant retail beer outlets. Your 1940 beer retailer operates a clean, inviting place in an orderly manner. He cooperates with the beer industry's "clean up or close up" campaign by observing the ABC laws and the laws of public decency.

Thus he helps preserve for the State and nation an industry which pays $1,000,000 a day in taxes — a revenue source of vital importance as America drives ahead with its national defense program.

You, the public, can cooperate by refraining from asking the retailer to violate ABC laws, and by reporting to our Committee any outlet not being operated in an orderly manner.

CAMP FOR TRAINING PROFESSIONAL AND BUSINESS MEN

Mr. J. B. Atkinson, County Chairman of Chilton County is now taking applications for a special camp, just authorized by the War Department, for training 300 business and professional men in the Fourth Corps Area. This is being held in connection with the Citizens Military Training Camps, the first time such a course has ever been offered in this corps area.

This camp for patriotic civic leaders between the ages of 25 and 50 will be for thirty days, from July 8 to August 6, at Fort McPherson, Georgia. Applicants who are accepted will provide transportation at their own expense and will pay for their own meals at the Regular Army ration rate for the camp. Regular Army uniforms and equipment will be used. All training and administration will be conducted by Regular Army and Reserve personnel, who will organize the camp and train the 300 trainees. No obligation rests upon these trainees for military service in the Army, and no commissions will be granted on completion of camp.

The Military Training Camps Association is sponsoring this plan of training which will be nationwide in every corps area. The object of these camps is to bring together business and professional men from all sections under the most favorable conditions of outdoor life, to stimulate and promote citizenship, patriotism and Americanism. Men in these camps will receive expert physical direction and training of individual benefits. Selection of men for this training will be based primarily on leadership in the local community. A educational qualifications and civic special course will be given the trainees applicable to men of more advanced age and experience.

If you are interested in the welfare of our community and in your own welfare you ought to be supporting one of the other of our churches—not merely by an occasional attendance and a silver offering, but by regular attendance and support. "He that is not for Me is against Me," said Jesus—and folks judge us by our actions rather than our creedal professions. Are you FOR Him?
HIGHWAY DEPT. APPROVES LEE COUNTY ROADS
Montgomery, Ala.—In conformance with his policy of complete cooperation with the counties, Director Chirs J. Sherlock of the State Highway Department has approved the request of members of the governing body of Lee county that they be permitted to employ Roy Bell, Assistant Division Engineer of the Department's fifth division, as all-time county engineer and has granted Mr. Bell a leave of absence so that he may accept appointment to the Lee county post. Mr. Sherlock has appointed Louie A. Redding, veteran Department staff engineer, to succeed Mr. Bell as assistant division engineer. Both appointments are effective as of July 1.
A native of Henry county, Mr. Redding has been with the State Highway Department of Alabama for 20 years, beginning his service in 1920 when he was only 18 years old. He had strived in various capacities, including those of timekeeper, rodman, inspector, and resident engineer, winning promotion steadily and consistently, always on merit. His latest important assignment was that of resident engineer in charge of the construction of the Edmund Pettus bridge over the Alabama River on U. S. Highway 80 at Selma, which was recently opened to traffic with an impressive ceremony. He is a licensed professional engineer and land surveyor, holding official licenses from the Alabama Board of Professional Engineers.
Announcing the appointment and granting of leave of absence to Mr. Bell, the naming of Mr. Redding to succeed him, Director Sherlock said, "Mr. Redding's promotion was in line with an important principle in which I am a firm believer; one that is strictly adhered to in all branches of this Department and its work—promoting those who have earned it. In view of his long service with the Department and his many years of experience during that time in various capacities and positions, Mr. Redding is exceptionally well qualified for his new assignment."
Expressing regret that Mr. Bell, who has been with the Department for approximately 15 years, and also worked his way up from the ranks on merit, is about to sever that connection to enter another field, Mr. Sherlock stated, "I don't know where Lee county could have gotten a better man. The county is exceedingly fortunate in being able to obtain the services of such a competent engineer, which the Department is lending with reluctance, but at the same time with the highest recommendation."
Employment of Mr. Bell by Lee county and granting of a leave of absence by the Highway Director so that he may accept the place marks another instance of such an arrangement under authority of the so-called Henderson act of the present Legislature, which permits the Highway Department to aid the counties to avail themselves of the services of a competent highway engineer by the selection of such engineers and by financial assistance in paying them for their services.
Mr. Earnest Littleton of Thorsby, R. 1, returned home Sunday in Spigener's ambulance from West End Baptist Hospital, Birmingham after an appendicitis operation. He is doing nicely.
Selma has been designated a training center for pursuit pilots as a part of the National defense.
Howard Bookholdt, teacher at Stanton, is now attending the Summer Session at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He is a member of the senior class.
Mr. and Mrs. Hermon L. Harris are spending this week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Harris.

Country's Largest

Largest Ocean liner ever built in the United States, the America, will be delivered to its owners the United States Lines, on Friday, June 28. The America, which cost $17,000,000 to build, is virtually non-sinkable. Lifeboats, which accommodate 135 persons each, are the biggest ever built in the country.

WHAT SHALL WE DO

tween it and Germany, which proved of no service since Hitler did not choose to invade that way.
But even more—if and when, he subjugates England, which is now alone, and already has internal troubles, he will then be in possession of a navy—that of England, France, and all other vanquished foes combined—which will be far superior to that of the remaining world. He could then land in Mexico or Canada, and cross an imaginary line into this country. But, why trouble to do that? He would have the world's most powerful navy. Our army and navy is wholly inadequate. We have floated one battleship in nineteen years and it will require still another year to finish and equip it before it can be used. That means that if we fight in the next twelve months that we will not have a battleship under twenty years old. Would you like to ride in (for safety's sake) let alone fight in an airplane twenty years old? Just how fast and serviceable would be an automobile that was more than 20 years old? Just how would it compare with the fastest and most modern machine finished yesterday? Well, that gives you a faint idea what our navy is and our army is just as poorly equipped. If I had space I could point out its weakness just as I have that of the navy.
Let's stay out of war as long as we reasonably can. And for our sake, our wives sake, our sons and our daughters sake, our friends sake our country's sake.
Apple for an Actor
A phrase in the Barrymore family which has become a tradition is "Speak your piece and you will get a big red apple." When Ethel Barrymore was to play her first leading part in New York, John Drew sent her an apple. Throughout his lifetime he observed the custom on first nights. When Ethel Barrymore left made her debut, her Uncle Lionel sent an apple from Hollywood.
Another Space Ship
Designs for the construction of a "space ship" in which scientists hope one day to be able to travel to the moon, are published in a recent issue of the Journal of the British Interplanetary Society. That a lunar voyage will be possible in the not-distant future is the belief of a group of men who are working steadily and unobtrusively toward their goal, states an accompanying article which gives some idea of their progress. The pioneers point out the necessity for extensive ground experiments before the construction of a space ship could be undertaken.
Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jones announces the marriage of their daughter, Mary Nell, to Mr. James Walton Avery, of Gashen, Va., on June 7th.

sake, democratic principles sake, freedom's sake and God's sake, let us prepare now—begin today—to get ready for the greatest battle of all time. If it comes soon—mark what I say—it will be too bad for us. We should begin today and devote ourselves to rushing a vast program of defense at top speed. Let us not fool ourselves into thinking we are secure or that we have ample time to make ourselves secure. We need millions of trained men. It takes months and years to train them. We need a great navy such as is now being provided for by the congress, but it takes years to build this—from three to five years to build a battleship—so if we put forth every effort to speed up things it will take five years, at least, to build the ships and equip them, and train the men to use them.
What are we doing all over our land? Someone who sometime ago visited the principle countries of Europe said that he found England and France "taking it easy" going to games, theatres, and various places of amusements and living on doles—just as America is "frollicking," getting drunk, leaving debts unpaid, making all the new and unnecessary debts they can, and existing off relief. But he said it was very different in Germany. Every man, woman and child that was old enough, had a job and was working with all his might. Let us take a lesson. By this plan Germany has risen in twenty short years from the very deepest depths of hunger, misery, defeat, and deepest despair—in twenty years I say—to what appears to be the conqueror of the entire world. And victor over its foes who were frolicking and bragging, as we are doing, about what they could and would do, in case they took the notion to stop playing and go to work and do it.

That is what we are doing abroad our land. What are we doing here in Chilton County and Clanton, Ala.? Some three weeks ago, we had a chance of getting a Federal Flynt school here, they said seventy or eighty students. This would have turned loose in Clanton a quarter of million dollars annually. We agreed. Our officials assured them of their cooperation. But the government is doing things by leaps and bounds—in three days they wanted to increase the number of students to about 160 to 200. We hesitated a little, that is, we all didn't whoop for it—The next news we hear, they say Dothan had it. A little later it comes to the surface that Selma gets the school and it has been increased to eleven hundred students instead of seventy or eighty. The government is spending around two million dollars on the field to begin with.

According to the figures given us for 70 or 80 students, these eleven hundred will bring Selma between three and four millions annually, and that will last on and on as long as the United States lasts. What if three or four millions was being dropped in the lap of Clanton every year? Gosh! this little berg would have more money than it could spend.
Now, it may be too late; but I would like to suggest that we back up our officials and get behind our leaders, and still do our bit to prepare for what is coming and at the same time get a few millions for the home folk. If you think we should still try for an air school tell your officials and do it, today, not tomorrow.

Highways Needed For National Defense

Birmingham, Ala.—"Highways are going to form one of the primary necessities in our new drive toward an adequate national defense," said State Highway Director Chris J. Sherlock, addressing Thursday morning, the annual meeting of the Alabama Association of County Commissioners, which convened at the Thomas Jefferson hotel here Wednesday for a three-day session.

"You, as county roadbuilders, will be glad to know," the Director said, "that Federal officials are becoming more interested in country and secondary roads. In addition to the "secondary-highways aid" already provided for by the Federal Government, there is a possibility that 20 per cent more mileage will be added to that first 10 per cent figure.

As you know, this 10 per cent figure means that, in addition to the Federal aid, the Government is giving states on main and through highways, Washington recently decided to extend financial aid toward the construction and improving of 10 per cent of the nation's secondary or "farm-to-market" connecting roads.

"In this now-adopted 10 per cent plan Alabama's share of Federal-aid secondary roads number a total mileage of approximately 6,000. But if the extra 20 per cent plan is adopted, the connecting-road mileage will rise to 23,600. Since Washington is furnishing only $400,000 a year toward this work now, and the State Highway Department is matching the sum—you can easily perceive that $800,000 a year will go only a limited distance in making first-class highways from 6,000 miles of secondary roads.

"You can also readily understand that completion of this work would ordinarily require a long period of time. But—it is absolutely necessary that plans be formulated for the completion of the system quickly."

Then, after explaining the situation as it stands now and reminding his listeners of the job that must be done, the Director of the State Highway Department offered a solution to the problem.

"First," he said, "we must build our roads where there is a definite traffic need. Overbuilding roads in some sections to the detriment of other sections is not only unfair, unjust and uneconomical—but that method would also react against all principles of our efforts toward defense of our homes.

"Then, of course, it is obvious that with such a large amount of construction and with such a small amount of money and time we must—in the administering, financing, planning and engineering of this huge project—do our utmost to see that every penny and every hour of labor is expended where it will count most.

"Now, you county roadbuilders, in ironing out some of your difficulties as to where you shall locate your new construction: I sincerely hope and believe the State Highway Department can be of help. Our State Highway Planning Survey is now at work gathering data on traffic movements on practically all roads and sections of roads in Alabama. As soon as their project is finished, you can make available to yourselves and to your counties scientific data showing you just exactly which roads in your vicinity should be improved first."

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

Motherhood. How darling, how courageous, how devoted. There is a woman living today, unknown to the world, who once, caught in a fire of the tenement house where she lived, took her two babies and tied them in two pillowcases. She then tied the two ends of the cases together slung them around her neck, and went hand over hand, clinging to a rope that connected two brick houses many stories above the street. She landed in another tenement apartment in safety, while her own home was being gutted with the fire. A mother will give her life for her children, and yet today, there are boys and girls who have no regard for mother's wishes and mother's ideals.

One day Commodore Vanderbilt was pestered by a young man who wanted to sell him a new invention by which trains could be stopped with air. The man of much business snorted to his Secretary, "Tell the young man I am not in" and then added with disgust, "I have no time to lose with fools." The young men in the waiting room was none other than George Westinghouse who had come to the Commodore to sell him the patent of the airbrake that is now used on every railroad in the world. Vanderbilt had the opportunity to buy for one thousand dollars a patent that would have made him millions, but he had no time to waste on fools. Do not be so sure of yourself, you may be the fool.

I had a friend who was generous and kind toward me. One day she came to the parsonage and brought a much needed gift and my gratitude was great. I said to the fine old saint, "Aunt Julie, you are too good to me! How can I ever repay you?" It was then that she put into words the Philosophy that governed her life. "I do not want you to pay me back. Just pass it on." Friends what ever comes to you, "Pass it on." This has been the motive of my life. This little text has been the key to happiness with me. There is no better philosophy of life than to "pass it on." God gives to you your daily supply. God has given you your silver and gold. "Pass it on." Friends are mindful of you. They speak kindly and they love you tenderly. "Pass it on." For personal satisfaction, for worldwide happiness, pass it on.

A friend of mine told me that he had a grudge against his boss and one morning he discovered that this grudge was transforming him into a contemptible grouch. He knew that he had to get away from that feeling or he would be in the store. This man said that he made him a punch bag about the size of his boss and painted a face on it as much like the face of his boss as possible. Then he hung it up in the basement of his house and every afternoon when his work was over he would go home and down into the basement and he would beat that bag in the name of his boss. After beating the tar out of the bag for a week or two he found that he was feeling better on the inside. Soon he found that beating the bag was fun and he forgot his boss and the grudge left him and his exercise brought him health and happiness. If you are not man enough to get an old grudge out of your heart, suppose that you make you a punch bag and beat it until you are relieved on the inside.

Remember it takes two to make a marriage a success. I have had wives and husbands to come to me with their married troubles. To me they say something like this, "I would be willing to make any effort, any sacrifice if my husband, my wife would meet me half way." One will claim that the other is just a passenger on the married train, while he or she, is both the engineer and the conductor. They tell me that "I pull the train and carry all the load." May be that is so. We all know husbands, wives, also, who are just passengers on the married train. When a husband or wife sits down and lets the other member of the family relation "pull the train" there is sure to be trouble in Denmark.

Sleeping Sickness Warning Is Issued

Arrival of the season for mosquitoes and other blood-sucking insects creates a sleeping sickness threat to all horses and mules, warns Dr. I. S. McAdory, State Veterinarian. "It is believed that the disease is carried by these insects, and every possible step should be taken to protect against them."

"The greatest factor in controlling sleeping sickness last year was immunization by means of the new chick embryo vaccine. Approximately 3,000,000 horses and mules were vaccinated by this method in 1939, and among vaccinated animals incidence of the disease was only 0.37 per 1,000.

"Since immunity is generally effective for the duration of the sleeping sickness season, early vaccination is desirable, so that stock may be fully protected before the disease begins to strike a locality."

On July 25 and 26, farm leaders and scientists from Alabama and adjoining states will get together at Tifton, Ga., to consider plans and problems in establishing new pasture grasses and clovers in the Southeastern states.

Once Social Lion Turns Out To Be Clever Trickster

Australian Society's Prince Charming Sentenced to English Prison.

LONDON.—Seated at the back of the court of London sessions the other day was a fashionable Australian woman now approaching middle age who was there to hear a prison sentence imposed upon the man who, 10 years ago in Sydney, was Prince Charming. He is Gerald ("Gerry") Riviere, 46 years old, calling himself a salesman, alumnus of toughest prisons in Great Britain and the Continent, known to police as the Prince of Tricksters.

Riviere was accused of obtaining by false pretenses handbag, a pair of binoculars and two cigarette cases. The value of the articles was $250 but Riviere pleaded guilty and asked that the court take into consideration no fewer than 27 other cases involving $1,350.

Detective Sergeant William Skardon told the court of some of Gerry's previous convictions and the judge sentenced him to nine months' imprisonment. Already he has spent a quarter of his life behind the bars.

Australia at His Feet.

And his woman admirer of 20 years ago had the mortification of watching him walk once more down the steps to his cells.

"Gerry had all fashionable Australia at his feet," she said to a reporter after the hearing. "He was very young and tremendously good looking, with blond hair and the most winning smile.

"His manners were perfect. He gave me the chinking dinner parties in the hotel. People were proud to accept his invitation.

"One young actress—she is now famous on the London stage—fell in love with him. But Gerry proposed to the daughter of Sydney's wealthiest bookmaker and was accepted."

But the woman from Australia did not know that even then Riviere had been twice convicted in English courts.

He was born at Southend-on-Sea of respectable parents, and was given a good education. He first fell into the hands of the police when he was 18 years of age. He was bound over for stealing five £10 ($50) bills. In the following year he was given 12 months' Borstal treatment for obtaining $2,500 worth of jewelry by fraud.

Relatives Red Up.

On his release his relatives washed their hands of him and packed him off to Australia.

It was then that he learned the mechanics of the confidence trickster's trade. He became friendly in secret with "Capt. Bigger and 'Blunder' Bill, two notorious international crooks.

Even at the time of his engagement and when the women of Sydney were falling in love with him Riviere was working in secret with his acquaintances of the underworld. It was not until long after their marriage that his wife discovered him to be a trickster.

He has robbed people of thousands of pounds. He has practiced his famous trick in every corner of the globe. Scotland Yard regards him as one of the slickest "con" men who ever passed through their hands.

Of All Vacation Spots, He Picks the City Dump!

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—There are hundreds of pretty places Harry Converse of Pipestone, Minn., could have gone on his winter vacation. But he picked Oklahoma City's dump.

The 64-year-old sportsman kills crows as a hobby. The black pests are plentiful at the dump.

"I hate crows," he explained before his shots. "Statistics prove that 64 per cent of our wild duck eggs are destroyed yearly by crows. I guess my two weeks' stay will cost me $250, but it's worth it."

Warm Greeting Coils; He's Pal of Old Bill

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—A friendly gleam came into the eyes of Police Captain Murray when the prisoner he was questioning said he was from Waynoka, Okla.

"Well, well," said Captain Murray. "So you're from Waynoka. Do you know old Bill So-and-so?"

"Do I know old Bill?" said the prisoner. "I should say I do know old Bill."

"Lock him up," said Murray. "Anyone who knows Bill ought to be in jail for life."

Vagrant Goes to Jail; Trapped by Own Diary

MAUCH, CHUNK, PA.—Joseph Wisneski, a vagrant, has given up keeping a diary.

Wisneski was arrested for disorderly conduct and sentenced to 30 days in jail. A diary he was carrying contained a note for the previous month which read:

"I beat up a cop in Easton."

An investigation revealed that the note was correct, and he faces new charges after serving his sentence here.

By RUTH KELLY

(McClure Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

LOLA MEEHAN shook her shiny black head sadly but firmly. "There's no talking, Tommy. To him I'm just a secretary. All he ever says to me is 'Take a letter.' What I need is glamor!"

"Gee, Lola—" Tommy looked down at her importantly over his basket of mail—"if you want that guy, you're pretty enough to do something about it."

They were talking about the boss, T. Wallington Bradford. Wallie to his friends. Dear Wallie to some of them, including Lola, who never really said it though she thought it pretty consistently. Tommy the office boy, of the people, understood. Right now there was something in his young blue eyes.

"Say, how do those passes to the circus? Do I get 'em?"

"Didn't I promise?"

"Sure, Well, then—" he moved toward the door.

When Lola came out of the boss's office an hour later with about ten letters to get out before five o'clock, she found a long white box on her desk. Flowers. She stared in a daze at the card. "Thanks in advance for the passes," it said. She was still staring at it when T. Wallington Bradford approached a minute later.

"Birthday?" he inquired politely. "No—that is, yes—" Lola jammed the cover down somehow. "Almost, anyway. It's—its next month."

He thrust his hands into his pockets. There was amusement in his "Oh." Lola blushed, for he was actually looking at her, curiously, for the first time.

"Sa—ay—" and Lola thrilled to the name in his soft voice. "You wouldn't run out on me, would you? Get married, I mean."

It was something to tell Tommy when he stopped at her desk the next day. "But you shouldn't have spent the money, Tommy," she said.

"It was worth it. Anyway, that was my circus dollar and now you've given me the passes I don't need it."

What do you mean, Tommy Lin-ton?

"I mean a dollar ain't much to gamble. Course it's up to you." Tommy stared hard at Cross and Bradford's prettiest stenographer. "Maybe you've changed your mind. Maybe you feel he ain't worth it."

Lola reached into her bag, drew out a cash green, and said, "Tommy, it's not 'ain't," she said reprovingly as she thrust the money into his outstretched hand.

This time the flowers came while the boss was out. When he came in Lola was afraid he didn't see them. He hardly glanced at her way. But he called to her a minute later.

"Well, whose birthday is it this time? His?" He grinned. It was a determined attempt, but nevertheless, a grin. Lola felt suddenly foolish, receiving flowers at the office.

"Hasn't he raised your salary so you wouldn't leave him?" Tommy pointed out to her several days later.

"Yes, but—"

"Hasn't he had your desk moved so you can't get at it?"

"That wasn't his reason. This is more convenient."

"Says you!" Tommy moved away disgustedly. "The trouble with you is, you're ungrateful. He was back a minute later with a long white box. In fact, they just glared at him."

"Tommy, how dare you!"

"I didn't, Lola, honestly. This box was out in the reception room and Helen told me to bring it in to you."

"Lola!" T. Wallington Bradford's voice cut the air like a knife. Lola jumped. This was the end, she knew.

"Lola, about the flowers—" T. Wallington Bradford got up from his desk, moved with long firm steps to the door, closed it on the curious eyes in the outer glass place.

He was standing over her now, almost commanding her to look at him. Lola lifted flushed cheeks.

"Honestly, Mr. Bradford, I don't even know who sent them—"

She broke off in surprise. The boss' eyes weren't the least bit angry. In fact, they were searching hers, almost frantically.

"Lola—what I mean is—well—I hope you like them!"

Queen's Portrait

The portrait of Queen Victoria as a young woman no longer hangs in Dublin's mayoral mansion because the new woman mayor, Mrs. Tom Clarke, has taken it down. The queen, she explained, "hated Ireland with a deep hatred. . . . But it is a beautiful painting and have put it away in a safe place."

Mrs. Clarke also refused to wear her robes of office because they were "red rags from the British period."

Record Fractures

A woman now in a Melbourne, Australia, hospital is believed to have established a new world medical marathon record for fractures as a result of an automobile accident. She acquired 15, including fractures of both thighs, two main bones in each leg, two bones of one hand, two heel bones, one forearm, the other arm and three ribs. She is recovering.

MAN SLAYS FRIEND AFTER HAVING PARTY

Geo. W. Littlefield was killed by Robert Cleckler early Sunday morning at the home of Cleckler in the Macedonia Beat 11 community. Littlefield who lived in the Mineral Springs community, had gone home with Cleckler when it is said that an argument started over who would pay for some whiskey that they had bought. One thing led to another it is said, Littlefield followed Cleckler to his front steps when Cleckler fired from his porch with a shot gun killing him instantly.

Self defense was claimed by Cleckler, and an old fashioned "Lemon Squeezer" was found on the ground under Littlefield where he fell.

Cleckler is now in the Chilton County jail awaiting a preliminary hearing.

Mr. Littlefield's remains were buried Monday morning at 11 o'clock in Blaw's graveyard, Rev. J. R. Cost officiating. He is survived by his widow, five children, three sisters, and one brother Tom Littlefield.

Palbearers were Bonnie Little Laverne Littlefield, Wallace Littlefield, Frank Smith, Stanley Smith, and Geo. Franklin. J. Mell Martin and Sons were in charge of burial.

Pilots Observe Ladies Night

The Clanton Pilot Club held its bi-monthly meeting last Thursday night by observing their annual Ladies Night. Guests of the Club were: Mesdames J. P. Hayes, Mark L. Tucker, J. E. Gorman, Joe Mullins, Ruth Moon, Thea Clanton, Reid Mullins, A. B. Foshee, Earl Ellis and Misses Sara Hollis, Billie Johnson, Sara Nell Sessions, Helen Parrish and Jane Billingsley.

The Club was happy to welcome a new member, Miss Martha Massey. Mrs. Glennie Parrish had charge of the program. Mrs. Reid Mullins gave a poem on Friends.

Mrs. Earl Ellis sang a song accompanied by Helen Parrish. A reading, "Home," by Edgar A. Guest was beautifully given by Miss Ruth Sessions. Helen Parrish rendered a piano selection. A most interesting musical contest was thoroughly enjoyed.

The Club was adjourned after singing their International Club song.

NO SINGING AT NEW SALEM NEXT SUNDAY

On account of all day singing at Oak Grove Sunday there will not be any singing at New Salem. We will announce the singing at New Salem when we decide to have it again.

Signed Doc Harris, Chrm.

Miss Peggy Page, who is a student at Auburn, visited home last week.

HE WHO LAUGHTS LAST

Donald Blacketter, popular manager of the local Yellow Front Store has a new Ice Cream Freezer.

Now that it itself is not anything out of the ordinary around Clanton, but—According to Mr. Blacketter on Sunday morning just as everything seemed alright with the whole world, and he lounged at home reading of the Sunday papers the Better Half would invariably call and inform him that Ice Cream was to be frozen. It seems that this got so regular that, says Mr. Blacketter, "Every time I walked across the back porch that Ice Cream freezer would smile, squirt a little salt water at me and chuckle." Well, to make a long story longer, our hero has a new ice cream freezer an electric freezer, and he vows that he is going home and set this new one down on the back porch beside the old one turn on the "juice" and get a good laugh.

So gallantly streaming

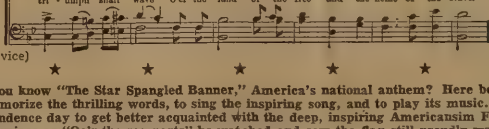

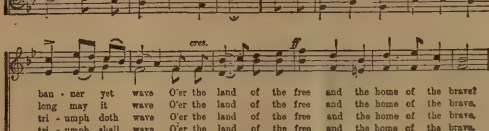

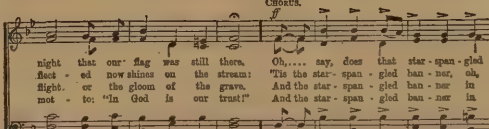

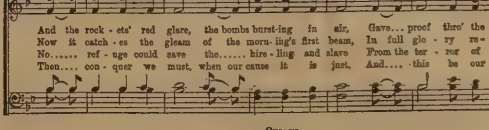

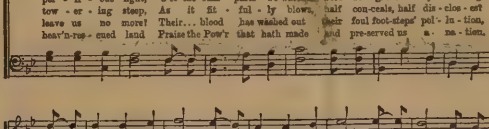

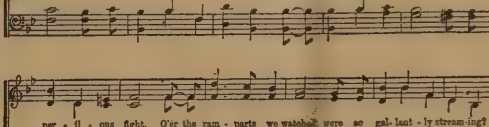

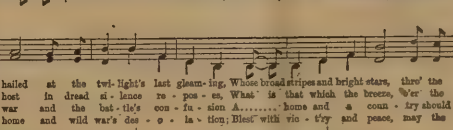

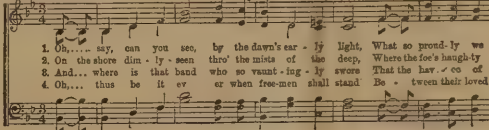

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

Words by Francis Scott Key.

Music by John Stafford Smith.

Solo or Quartet.

(WNU Service)

How well do you know "The Star Spangled Banner," America's national anthem? Here before you is your opportunity to memorize the thrilling words, to sing the inspiring song, and to play its music. What day more fit than on Independence day to get better acquainted with the deep, inspiring Americans Francis Scott Key put into his masterpiece as "O'er the ramparts" he watched and saw the flag still proudly waving.

TODAY, as from the very foundation of our nation, Liberty is the American ideal, come down to us these many years purified by the blood of martyrs:

It is this great doctrine of Liberty which distinguishes Americans from any who have not had our long tradition of political and human freedom. And were it preached by tongue most eloquent, the philosophy of repression and oppression, of class against class, of creed against creed, and of human thralldom to a dictatorship, shall ever remain alien under the Stars and Stripes.

Never shall Americans exchange Liberty and Democracy for the slavery of authoritarian ideology.

"O'er the ramparts we watch," wrote Francis Scott Key.

"O'er the ramparts we watch" today, too. And as long as we hold to the American ideals of freedom, we shall continue to see our flag "so gallantly streaming."

MRS. JEWEL SMITHERMAN

Mrs. Jewel Smitherman, age 36, of Clanton Rte 1, died about 8 p. m. Friday after an illness of about 2 years. Funeral was held at 11 a. m. Sunday at Grove Side, conducted by the Rev. M. Lockhart. Interment was made in Collins cemetery. She is survived by her husband, Charlie Smitherman, and a half sister. The following served as pallbearers: Obie Smitherman, Bill Smitherman, Jack Smitherman, Luther Smitherman, Curtis Smitherman and Earnest Vines. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge.

David F. Goff Drowns Accidentally

David F. Goff, formerly of Clanton, accidentally drowned at Passagonie, Miss. Sunday. He was 55 years old. The exact details of the accident had not been disclosed at this writing. The body was brought to Clanton and buried at Sardis cemetery Tuesday morning at 10:30. His wife Minnie Broadhead Goff died in 1934. He is survived by one son David, of Clanton and two brothers, Reynolds Goff and John Goff, one sister, Mrs. Jimmie Bean, and a number of other relatives in Chilton County. Mr. Goff was a steel construction worker and had been employed in the past 20 years on some of the largest building and bridge jobs in the United States. For the past several months he had been employed on a project at Moss Point, Miss. Martin and Sons were in charge.

Clanton Kiwanis To Sponsor Cemetery Cleaning

Clanton Kiwanis, with the aid of those interested in keeping our cemetery clean, will go to work Wednesday July 10th, and give our cemetery a much needed cleaning. This project was undertaken last year by the Clanton Lions Club and much favorable comment was received from the citizens for the effort. A concerted effort in keeping our cemetery clean is something in which Clanton is surely lacking and something in which all are, or should be, vitally interested. The Kiwanis Club should be highly commended in this effort this year and all that you can do to aid in this undertaking will not be enough. Mr. Mell Martin who is in charge of this work this year asks all who are willing to help either be down at the cemetery Wednesday evening or to please send someone in their place.

BARBECUE AT JEMISON FOURTH OF JULY

There will be a barbecue at Jemison baseball park on July 4. Entertainment provided will be three baseball games. Plates, hot dogs, sandwiches and cold drinks are on the menu. Everyone is invited.

FIRST COTTON BLOOM

C. D. Elders, of Jemison Route 2, brought in the first cotton bloom of 1940, last Thursday Morning. The cotton is on the place of T. J. Norwood. Thursday afternoon 2 blooms were brought in by Earl O'Neil, of Stanton. One of which was a red bloom.

LIONS TO HAVE GUEST SPEAKER FRIDAY NIGHT

Clanton Lions are looking forward to Friday nights meeting with enthusiasm when Mr. Joe Speed, of Birmingham, Safety Director of The Alabama Power Company speaks at the regular bi-monthly meeting. Lion H. L. Thompson, Assistant Superintendent at Lay Dam and who is in charge of the program, promises a fine time and urges all members to be present for this meeting.

At the last meeting the nominating committee motioned that all present officers be reelected for another year and the Club voted unanimously with the committee. Officers who were reelected for another term were: Grady Hefflin, president; Fred Bucklew, secretary; Julian Evans, Treasurer; Ed Mullins, 1st vice president; Reese Mullins, 2nd vice president and Earl Parrish 3rd vice president. These officers have served well for the past six months and the entire Lions Club are solidly behind them and expect a bigger and better Club for the coming year, under their leadership.

Dr. and Mrs. Stough and Mrs. Slack of Montgomery were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Tucker.

See Alabama This Year

The Alabama State Junior Chamber of Commerce has adopted as its most important work for the summer of 1940 a program designed to make Alabamians conscious of the facts and data about their State and to make them proud of being Alabamians. This will be an annual program of the State Junior Chamber.

This year the State Junior Chamber is concentrating on the State parks and historical sites. Their slogan is "See Alabama This Year".

Keep America Out Of War

There are many good reasons why the United States of America should stay out of Europe's war. We know of not one sufficient reason for America to enter the war. Certainly the overwhelming sentiment of the people in the United States is opposed to our entrance into the war.

That there is considerable propaganda aimed at arousing the public in sympathy with the allies we are well aware. That some unwise statements have been made by those in places of high authority, and that such utterances are likely to provoke strained relations between our government and some of the European powers we believe to be true. It is well known that the American people are committed in their whole-hearted sympathy toward the democracies and in strong opposition to the totalitarian nations. In this matter we have convictions, not mere sentiment.

The American people also believe that our nation should be well prepared for the defense of our liberties and for the maintenance of our democratic form of government. Steps taken toward thorough preparedness meet with hearty public approval. But we are not now prepared for war, and there is no real cause for war.

If we really desire to preserve our democratic form of government; if we believe that America can and should be a vital factor in procuring and maintaining a just and lasting peace; if we are willing to meet our responsibility toward the rest of the world in helping to relieve suffering through our contributions; if we would give a demonstration to all the world that a great nation can be righteous, vigorous, progressive, and at the same time friendly toward all races and nationalities; if we would save our young manhood from death and our homes from anguish; then Let Us Keep America Out of War.

—Alabama Christian Advocate

Mark Remarks:

PRAYER FOR THE WEEK: O Lord, we beseech Thee to grant unto Thy children in all lands of the Earth, the uncountable blessings that Thou hast bestowed upon we, Thy children in Chilton County, Alabama. Amen.

EVERYDAY MENU IN CHILTON: Yaller-legged fried chicken and chicken pie... black bass and crappie... blackberry cobbler... Cabbages, squash and cucumbers... beans, potatoes, and tomatoes... smoked ham, red gravy and hot biscuits... home-made ice cream, butter and fresh buttermilk... real honey from wild flowers... wine from luscious grapes, tender steaks from fat cattle... watermelons, canteloupes, apples, peaches and pears. In deed it is a goodly land. Aren't you glad you do not live in Europe or Asia?

God has already blessed America.

Anyway, England thinks she has the U. S. presidency sewed up i nthe bag

We won't know whether that is going to be a coalition or a collision Cabinet until after the Big Show at Chicago.

No John, there is no defense against the defense tax.

Now is the time to start that blitzkrieg against Bill Boll Weevil.

Something else gone with the wind. The Alabama Legislature adjourned sine die Tuesday night.

Sure, its an offense to be against defense.

Alabama liquor went up Monday, but

WILL YOU BE ALIVE ON THE FIFTH?

Year after year, on the Fourth of July, people in America, people in Alabama and yes, people in Chilton County continue to count their dead and injured on the celebration of the Declaration of Independence. Drownings, automobile accidents, fireworks, guns and in short down right carelessness takes its toll of hundreds and hundreds of lives in these United States each Fourth of July. Now is the time to think; are you going to be one of those numbered among the dead this fifth of July. Only you, and you alone are responsible to this question. And only you and you alone can supply the answer. The answer is think twice before you take that chance that might be fatal—and if you think twice, then you won't take that chance. Ninety-nine per cent of the deaths that occur on the Fourth are caused by "Not thinking." Let's THINK this year and at least keep Chilton County's death rate clean...let's not be sorry that we didn't stop a minute and THINK.

An Ideal System Of Highways

A system of highway transportation adequate for the needs of Alabama people and fitted to their financial means cannot be built out of fine sounding words or wishful thinking. If it could be, Alabama would indeed have the "splendid system of highways," the "ideal system of highways" which the State Highway Department talks about in its latest annual report.

Realistic Chilton County people who know that some of the main traveled roads in this section of the state are neither splendid nor ideal should be interested in a few paragraphs from this optimistic document. As they continue to pay gasoline taxes for the privileges of driving over the state highways, motorist might think over a few of the glowing assertions of the state highway officials.

"A splendid system of highways is a valuable asset to any state, and is so recognized by the public," the Highway Department report says.

"An ideal system of highways necessarily means careful and continuous thought and work, not only in the building and maintenance, but in the preliminary planning.

"Engineers spend long and arduous hours in surveys for construction of roads, in order that highways may prove expeditions, and safe for travel under all conditions. They work to prevent all hazards to life and property."

Motorist in Chilton County may be a bit puzzled as to whether State Road 22 from Clanton to Plantersville or U.S. Highway 31 from Thorsby to Jemison are included in the "splendid system" referred to.

Could State Road 22 be called either "splendid" or "ideal" by any stretch of the imagination? Are folks to believe that the state highway officials spent "long and arduous hours" in planning this patched up highway? Perhaps the constant work of maintenance crews on this road is done so that it may "prove expeditions and safe for travel under all conditions," as the highway department report suggests.

On U.S. Highway 31 from Thorsby to Jemison maintenance began before the section was completed. The surface treatment came up in numerous places after it had been subjected to traffic for only a short time.

Fine words do not make fine highways. The people of Chilton County who pay for roads through gasoline taxes would much prefer that their roads be built of some durable material like concrete, which does not require constant patching and resurfacing to keep it safe for traffic. If that were done the highway engineers really would be working to save time and money for the public.

Alabama can afford modern concrete highways, the type of roads which on the most heavily traveled routes in Ala-

Letters To The Editor

Mr. Mark L. Tucker, Editor
Chilton County News

Clanton, Alabama

Dear Mr. Tucker;

I have just read in the Chilton County News that Clanton's population increased from 1847 in 1930 to 3972 in 1940, or an increase in population of approximately 114 percent, thereby leading the entire state in percentage gained in population.

I know the people of Clanton and Chilton County are proud of this gain, as it bespeaks the progressiveness of the county as well as the town.

Clanton is now leading every other town in the state, and I know its local papers will let the people of Alabama know it.

Very truly yours,

Karl C. Harrison.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

A news item from the war sections of Finland tells of the appearance of many wolves near the cities. There is heavy fighting all through the interior and this fighting brings out the wolves into the open and they become a menace to the city population. If I am not mistaken, fighting, whether it be in battle, or in individual, will bring the wolves into the open. Military dictators are the big bad wolves of the world. They are the leaders of the pack. They bark and the wolves follow. The big bad wolves pounce upon small nations and the rest of the pack devour the bleeding victim. While in a zoo I saw this sign, "Do not feed the wolves". They were caged behind big iron bars and it was dangerous to go near them. For nations or individuals to fight, brings out the wolves. Beware of them.

I was supervising the construction of a building and had ten men on the job. Hammers and saws had been echoing all day and now it was near quitting time. I noticed that one man was ripping a short plank and when the whistle blew, this man pulled his saw from the wood and his days work was over. With just a few more strokes he could have ripped the board into two parts, but he did not do that. The half sawed board remained in position until the next morning. I had occasion to reduce my force and this man was the first to go. He was of that type of workman who works by the clock. Another man with less pay completed what he was doing and then gathered up his tools. He remained on the job until all was done. Verily, verily I say unto you, it pays to give full measure in everything.

The general called a brave soldier to his side and pointing out a battery two miles away said, "Sir, I commission you to lead these men straight to that battery. In the fighting that followed this man fell and was brought to the rear mortally wounded. His general rushed to him and the dying man looked up into his face and said, "General, did I lead them straight?" God has commissioned each of us to Him and He has commissioned us to lead on and up the straight and narrow path. Happy and Christian guide who in death can look up into the face of God and say, "Father, I led them straight." It is far more important that we walk straight, than it is that we live.

Did you ever read this verse in Proverbs, "There is a lion without; I shall be slain in the street". We see this story back of that verse. There was a lazy man in the house and he did not want to work and so he pretended that there was a lion in the yard, ready to devour him. Under this deception he excused himself from toil. Many a person in recent years speak this language of the old time lazy man. We see that type of human being in every community. Fifth fills the house, rubbish covers the yard, the grass chokes every row in the field and working tools are without hands. Ask the lazy individual why these things and the reply is an alibi for work. The lazy man's lion is in the yard.

I worshipped in a church recently and the leader announced that good old hymn, "One more days work for Jesus". The piano started and the congregation joined in. The song seemed to run out in strings fifty yards long. For a few moments I thought that they had a new kind of notes, but on glancing at the book I saw that the notes were normal. When the song was over I was out of breath. I thought to myself, "If you dear people work for Jesus like you sing that song, you are not worth the salt that goes in your bread in God's kingdom". It is almost unpardonable for people to drag a song in worship. There is a way to sing, "One more days work for Jesus" that will make it ring out with energy and life. I just imagine that Jesus smiled as he listened in on that song. It was like people singing in their sleep.

We cannot demand honesty in others while we practice dishonesty ourselves.

War is Hell, and Europe has its full share of it just now.

"Build-Up" Good News For Suffering Women

Much of women's periodic distress may be unnecessary! Many who suffer from headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain, other symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by CARDUI.

Main way it helps relieve periodic distress is by increasing appetite and flow of gastric juice. Thus it often aids digestion; helps build strength, energy, resistance to periodic disturbances.

Others find help for periodic discomfort this way: Start a few days before and take CARDUI until "the time" has passed. Women have used CARDUI more than 50 years.

EXECUTIVE AND BUYING OFFICES

P. O. Box 618

Clanton, Alabama

To Our Friends and Patrons:

I settled in Clanton twenty-four years ago. After operating a Dry Goods store for about ten years, I opened the first five and ten cent store in Clanton. I opened this store with the plan of gradually expanding throughout the small towns of Alabama. Operating an increasing number of stores throughout the State with Clanton as headquarters, after about ten years it became practical to establish a central warehouse. This warehouse was started in Clanton on a small scale and was expanded as our business continued to grow. About three-fourths of the merchandise sold in the thirty-three stores now located throughout Alabama is distributed from the central warehouse.

More than a year ago we started a survey for the purpose of analyzing the facilities necessary to the efficient distribution from our central warehouse as well as the facilities necessary for the next several years. It has become evident that more facilities in the way of rail and motor truck services as well as closer contact with sources of supply are vital to the continued growth of our warehouse. The result of this survey indicates that a point with greater freight facilities—rail, motor and water—becomes absolutely essential.

A site has been selected and purchased in the City of Birmingham and plans are now under way for a warehouse and office building which will be erected during the next six or eight months. Removal of the warehouse and executive offices to the new location will be completed about February or March of next year.

Knowing full well that our friends and patrons of Clanton and Chilton County have always stood for progress, I believe that you will understand that this change is being made for the purpose of improving the services we are attempting to render patrons of all our stores, including Clanton. The store in Clanton will remain our Store Number One. The Clanton store will continue to be one of our largest, most modern and up-to-date stores. Through the medium of this store we hope to continue our contact with our friends and patrons and we expect to continue doing our part in every way possible for the betterment of Clanton.

Assuring you of our everlasting gratitude and appreciation, we are, Sincerely your friends.

Divide 361
 by 1874

YOU may not have pencil and paper handy, so we'll give you the answer
 —it's 20 per cent in round numbers.

What do these figures represent?

1,874 is the total number of manufacturing establishments in Alabama.

361 is the number of new industries which Alabama Power Company Industrial Division has located, or has helped to locate, in Alabama.

So, you see, one-fifth of the total number of manufacturing establishments in Alabama are reflected in the industrial development program of Alabama Power Company.

These industries contribute to the economic progress of the state—they provide employment; they provide a further market for the products of the farm; they pay taxes which help to operate the schools, police and fire departments, pave roads and support the other essential functions of state and local governments.

An industrial review of Alabama, interestingly written in layman's language, entitled "Forward March," will be off the presses within a short time. If you would like to have a copy, write Dept. 1202, Alabama Power Company, Birmingham.

HARD RAINS THURS. CAUSE MUCH DAMAGE

The hard rains Wednesday night and Thursday morning overflowed the roads around Clanton and caused thousands of dollars worth of damage to the City and County in road repairs. The completely covered the Higgins Ferry Road for about two blocks, took the bridge north of Clanton on the Birmingham Highway between down the section and the Mill Village, and around Gragg Field and in general wrought havoc in many places with county roads. The rains caused no loss of life that we have heard of at this writing, and no property damage suffered but the City and County received the brunt of the cost in maintenance of the roads here.

It Can't Happen Here

Thursday afternoon, the Fourth day of July, when every man is celebrating his independence, we saw a horseman (we say a horseman because he was on a horse), riding up and down sidewalks of Clanton narrowly missing women and children. Showing no regard whatever for the rights of citizens disregarding every law of courtesy and civility. Clanton long ago ceased to be a law-abiding town. Clanton is an upstart, coming little city. Things like this just can't happen here. Shortly thereafter Chief of Police Hugh Simpson, it is reported, picked the inebriated horseman up and carried him to city jail, charged with public drunkenness. It is gratifying to know that a police force who will watch over and protect our citizens against law violators. We are proud the progress that Clanton has made the past ten years, we are proud our little city and things like this "Can't happen here"—not happen to the perpetrators get away with it.

COUNTERFEIT AT KILBY

Robin Richardson, a Kilby Prison inmate, was caught Monday afternoon by Montgomery police shortly after trying to pass counterfeit half dollars at a store. Richardson said another inmate convinced the prison furnish the coins.

ELMORE 5 & 10 CENT STORE WILL MOVE OFFICES TO BIRMINGHAM

Announcement reached the News this week that the V. J. Elmore 5c and 10c Store Warehouse and offices will be moved to Birmingham. This, as Mr. Elmore, president of the Company, says is to get the advantage of the better rail and motor truck shipping facilities.

Birmingham's advantages as a distribution center were cited as being responsible for the announcement, that the V. J. Elmore 5c, 10c and $1 Stores Inc., will build a central warehouse and executive offices here at a cost of $100,000, says The Birmingham Post.

Construction will start Aug. 1, with the company occupying its new quarters about Feb. 1. The company employs 40 persons at its present headquarters in Clanton.

Operator of 33 retail stores in Alabama, the company has purchased a site for the new development. The purchase culminates a year's negotiations between the company and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Elmore company purchased three-quarters of a block between Railroad and First avenue and between 13th and 14th streets. Jemison & Co. handled the deal.

The building will be of pressed brick, trimmed with brown sandstone. Offices will be provided with year-round air conditioning and natural light from glass brick panels. Artificial light will be from fluorescent tubing.

Executives of the company are: V. J. Elmore, president, and treasurer; O. M. Webb, vice-president and personnel director; G. F. Parr, secretary; John W. Powers, Jr., manager of real estate; W. A. Willis, Jr., comptroller; E. N. Hester, superintendent; R. H. Levison, architect; C. O. Hester, buyer; O. H. Nix, warehouse manager.

The company operates stores in Clanton, Jasper, Wetumpka, Hartselle, Russellville, Alexander City, Hartsville, Athens, Andalusia, Tuskegee, Marion, Demopolis, Greenville, Union Springs, Samson, Prattville, Troy, Etowah, Layton, Bay Minette, Brundidge, Clanton, Evergreen, Brewton, Albertville, Okemuncie, Greensboro, Boaz, Opp, Fort Payne, Alabama City, Talladega and Monroeville.

Motorcycle Accident Fatal To Matron

A fatal accident in the heart of Calera Thursday afternoon took the life of Mrs. Dwight McDonald, of Bessemer. According to witnesses the motorcycle on which the McDonalds were riding hit a truck when the truck came out on the highway. Martin's ambulance rushed Mrs. McDonald to the Bessemer General Hospital where it is understood that his condition is not critical.

CEMETERY CLEANING TO START EARLY

The Cemetery Cleaning, sponsored by the Clanton Kiwanis Club is to take place next Wednesday will begin early Wednesday morning. The article in the News Tuesday night has caused some to believe that the work was going to start at noon but Mell Martin asks those who possibly can to please come early Wednesday, and those who can't come early, to please come at noon.

This work is of much importance to Clanton and deserves the support of every citizen.

Baldwin Is Building Soil With Crotalaria

Crotalaria undoubtedly is the most practical and best soil building legume for Baldwin county. In the first place seed are available at very low cost. Crotalaria can be planted now and will make its growth after crop is matured and can be turned under at the convenience of the farmer. Crotalaria fits in best now at the last cultivation of corn. If the cultivation is shallow it may be sown ahead of the plow or immediately following it in freshly plowed soil. In either instance the seed usually comes up and makes a satisfactory growth.

The spectableness variety is most desirable and the late strain will make the best growth, however in cases where farmers are getting too much growth, which interferes with the harvesting of the corn the early strain of spectableness might be more suitable but for the average farmer the late strain of spectableness crotalaria gives best results. According to several years of experimental results at the Gulf Coast Experiment Station at Fairhope corn yields have averaged from 30 to 50 bushels per acre planted following crotalaria without commercial nitrogen applied at all. The only fertilizer used in making this good yield of corn were 400 pounds of superphosphate and 25 pounds of potash or 600 pounds of Basic Slag. One traveling over the county now cannot help but observe the excellent fields of corn growing where crops of crotalaria was turned under the past year. One good example is the tobacco farm on the Shibley Holmes highway between Robertdale and Summedale. (This is the farm purchased a year or so ago by Hon. C. B. Cox, former Chilton County Representative in the Legislature. Mr. Cox tells us that in addition to enriching the soil—already rich—two crops of crotalaria has completely rid the land of cockle burr and other weeds.)

Crotalaria will not only produce a abundant nitrogen for corn crops but will also choke out undesirable weeds and grasses.

Crotalaria decays very rapidly when plowed under and it is easily handled. With the large supply of local seeds available and great need for increasing corn yields Baldwin County farmers should immediately obtain seed and plant in their corn middles at last cultivation.—Foley Onlooker

ROPER URGES EARLY MARKET FOR PEACHES

Mr. R. M. Roper, widely known in this section of the state for his work in the Fruit Growers Association and a Fruit Grower in his own right, talked at length Thursday on the necessity of the Fruit Growers of Chilton County planting trees that would bear an earlier fruit to compete with the south Georgia markets that have been getting the better price because of the earlier shipments.

Never in the memory of Mr. Roper has the County had so complete a failure on its peach crop and to offset this year's loss more trees and trees that will produce an earlier crop must be planted. "South Georgia has planted thousands and thousands of Early Hilley peaches and the farmers of that section have prospered from them," says Mr. Roper. "The Early Hilley is the earliest freestone peach and has a wonderful flavor that makes it attractive to the eastern markets."

Mr. L. S. Conger, who raises this variety and covers eleven states in his territory says that in no other section does the fruit grow with the fine flavor as it does in this section of the State, nor does any other section of the south come as nearly producing a complete crop regularly as does Chilton County.

Geo. Bryant Shoots Son After Argument

George Bryant shot and seriously wounded his son, Lucian Bryant Thursday morning at their home. It is said that after coming home late George got a gun, and his son and Alex Bryant, his father, were trying to take it away from him, when the shooting occurred. Lucien was brought to the Central Alabama Hospital where his condition is reported as being satisfactory. George Bryant was shot at larger Friday but the Sheriff's office expected him to come in and give himself up today.

Kiwanians Want Poles And Wires Removed

Hon. Mayor and City Council, City of Clanton, Ala. Gentlemen:

Be it resolved that the Clanton Kiwanis Club in regular session assembled Thursday, June 27, 1940, ask and urge the Honorable Mayor, C. Fenn Jones and the City Council of the City of Clanton, Alabama to petition the Alabama Power Company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Postal Telegraph Company, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company and others to remove poles and wires from Highway Number 31, Seventh Street through the City of Clanton and place said lines under ground or in the alleys of said City.

Further that a copy of this resolution be mailed to all parties named herein.

This resolution is offered with the understanding that Highway Number 31 will remain unchanged but that the City of Clanton is giving two feet of the sidewalk on each side of the Highway in order to widen same.

By removing poles from Seventh Street to reduce sidewalk, will in effect, result in very little actual loss of sidewalk space.

The above resolution was unanimously passed at a regular meeting of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, June 27, 1940. July signed this the 29th day of June, 1940.

Geo. F. Parr, Secretary Clanton Kiwanis Club.
Approved by: O. M. Webb, President Clanton Kiwanis Club.

PEDIGREED PEACH TREES FOR SALE

L. S. Conger owner of the Conger's True-To-Name Nursery of Smithville, Tenn., has been in our section showing our peach growers and farmers a new peach, "THE EARLY HILEY."

This peach has been very profitable to the growers in south Georgia and it is predicted here by our growers that it will be the best peach for this section.

Mr. Conger SPECIALIZES ON PEACH TREES OF A BUILT UP STRAIN OF ALL THE LEADING VARIETIES THAT ARE GROWN FOR COMMERCIAL PURPOSES.

He only has a limited number of these early Hiley trees and all orders for these trees should be placed at once.

Arrangement has been made so that you can place your order for peach trees at either of the associations, located at Clanton, Thorsby or Jemison and the prices of his trees are very reasonable.

Health Department

DIARRHEA MENACE CITED

Describing diarrhea and enteritis, commonly called "colitis" as one of the greatest menaces to the safety of infants, Dr. Sturkie, County Health Officer, today urged the mothers of infants and toddlers to take every possible precaution against the disease during the summer months. The disease is frequently caused by a germ, the dysentery bacillus, and may strike down whole families simultaneously. Frequent passage of loose stools in which blood and mucus are visible, fever, and abdominal cramping are typical symptoms of an attack. Not all diarrheas of infancy are of this type, the Health Officer said, others being caused by indigestible food and infections outside of the bowel.

Whenever this disease makes its appearance in a home, the same precautions should be taken the Health Officer states, as in typhoid, as the two diseases are spread in the same manner, i. e. by flies, through food, milk and water, etc. The stool and urine of the patient should be covered with a disinfectant solution and allowed to stand one hour before being discarded. The patient should be kept in a fly-proof room. All linens (baby diapers) used by the patient should be carried from the sick room in a tub and either soaked in disinfectant or boiled immediately.

The following precautions are advised by the Health Officer in the prevention of "colitis" in infants:

1. Boil all cows milk for three minutes with constant stirring (or home pasteurize) before being given to children under 2 years of age.
2. Boil drinking water unless from a protected water supply such as city water or a well protected with pump and water tight casing and curb.
3. Do not feed indigestible food.
4. Be sure that infants food is protected from exposure to flies.
5. If baby is on the "bottle" be sure that the bottles, nipples, and utensils used in the preparation of the formula be sterilized by boiling for 15 minutes and protected from exposure to flies.
6. Protect the home by screening, installation of a sanitary pit toilet, and a protected water supply.
7. If a member of the family develops diarrhea, use the same precautions as in typhoid fever. This may mean the saving of an infant life.
8. If baby develops diarrhea, give nothing by mouth for 24 hours except

Livestock Lure, Lore and Logic

War! War! War! The whole Eastern hemisphere is either infested or becoming infested with the cancer of War. So far, we, on this side of the Atlantic and the Pacific are at Peace but are being daily attacked with war jitters.

Every one whom one meets asks how the wars will affect livestock prices. Some of the wise men will say that the market will go higher while others, just as wise, predict that we will lose the market that we have enjoyed for the past five years. It is anybody's guess.

There is one thing sure and certain. Germany has already taken Norway and Denmark and those countries were great dairy producing sections. It has been reported that many of the great dairy herds of these countries have already been slaughtered for beef. The Islands of Jersey, Guernsey and Sark are all Channel Islands and by the time hostilities cease these islands will be like plowed fields regardless of who comes out on top. (I don't say "who wins the war" because there has never been a war won)

Much destruction is going to take place on the British Isles. The Short-horn and Angus cattle of Scotland will suffer great punishment and the production of beef will come to an end as the grain will be needed to feed women and children and armed forces at the front.

Taking all these things into consideration one can hardly forecast anything but a good demand for meat and dairy products. America and the Argentine must accept the responsibility of furnishing these things for the World. Elsewhere men who are normally farming at this season of the year are fighting either for the Glory of a doubtful kind or to protect their families and freedom. It is our responsibility to feed the latter and we accept it.

Three meetings of persons connected with the administration of cotton marketing quotas for the 1940-41 marketing year have been called by A. W. Jones, state AAA administrator. The meetings are to be held in Auburn July 8-9, Montgomery 10-11 and Birmingham July 12-13.

YOUNG BRIDE IS DROWNED IN MOOSA RIVER

Body Found After 3 Hours Of Drugging; Only 17 Years Old

Beatrice Cleckler, bride of two months, died Monday morning at 11 o'clock in the Moosa river at Mims Camp, near Dam. She was the wife of Mr. Cleckler and the daughter of Mr. Mrs. Sam Littleton, all of Beatrice.

Mrs. Cleckler had gone out to the river to work a trot-line when she and her husband pulled in and capsized the boat. Mrs. Cleckler could not swim so her husband had to hold to his shoulders and she could carry her to the shore. After about half an hour she became strangled and her husband was unable to turn her loose necessitating his taking her by the hair and trying to pull her to the bank in that manner. Finally his grip broke and his wife went down for the last time.

After three hours of dragging the body was found by the victim's father, J. M. Cleckler, and turned over to J. M. and Sons Undertaking parlors.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning and interment was in Mount Zion cemetery, Elder J. T. Danforth officiating.

She is survived by her husband, mother and father and two sisters.

Nine Saves Child From Drowning

Jack Culver, nine, son of Mr. Mrs. Jackson Culver, of Clanton, is a hero but not many people know it.

He was playing around a bridge on Montgomery Highway last week when a crowd of other people were there watching the swift water flow under the bridge.

At a sudden something happened. A child had fallen over the bridge rail the swift current. Like a flash Jack jumped over the rail and the baby just as it went under the bridge. The swollen stream carried the child and it was anxious that awaited them to appear on the other side of the bridge. Finally, Jack appeared above the water and mother. Jack had fought his way to the top and was headed for the bank. When he seemed hours by an anxious mother, the small boy caught hold of the bank and was pulled out of the current, safe with the little child tight in his grasp.

This is not a fairy story. This real happened last Friday, south of Clanton. Palakto and little Jack Culver won a hero medal and a lot of praise for the bravery shown in jumping over the bridge and saving the child's life.

American Legion Post No. 6 Meets

Calloway, adjutant of Chilton County Post No. 6, American Legion, called a meeting to be held Friday night at 8:00 o'clock at Chilton County House.

The meeting is of grave importance to the members who can be requested to be present. Many business matters will come before the meeting and those who are interested in keeping the Clanton Post should be there.

Alabama Birth Rate Lower In Last Decade

Alabama's birth rate has fallen from 10th place among the states in the past 10 years.

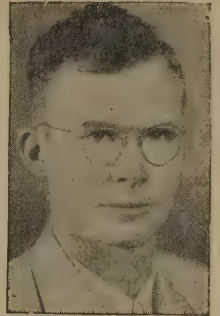

Only three states in the United States Registration Area had higher birth rates than Alabama. Last year the provisional birth rate of nine and the District of Columbia higher than the provisional Alabama rate.

New County Agent

P. H. Smith Named New County Agent

On July 22 P. H. Smith will become county agent of Chilton County succeeding J. W. Fant, who resigned recently.

Mr. Smith hails from Slocumb, Alabama, where he was born in 1914, the son of farmer parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Arthur Smith. When not attending school at Slocumb, he worked on his parents' farm. He joined the Boy Scouts, and after several years membership served as assistant scoutmaster. He was also a member of the 4-H Club, studied vocational agriculture and was active in the FFA.

In the spring of 1933, he worked under J. C. Lowery of the Alabama Extension Service in Geneva County in the cotton "plow-up" program.

In the latter part of 1933 he worked as county supervisor in the Typhus Fever Control Project in Geneva County.

In 1934 he handled AAA duties under M. M. Woodham, county agent of Geneva County.

During September of 1934, he enrolled in the School of Agriculture at Alabama Polytechnic Institute. In the spare time he worked in the AAA office and with Dr. R. E. Yoder of the agricultural engineering department.

The crowning events of his college career were the presentation of a loving cup by Gamma Delta, honor society in agriculture, which selected him as the best all-around junior in agriculture, and the election to Gamma Sigma Delta and Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honor societies.

Until his recent appointment to the County Agent's position in Chilton County he has been assistant county agent in Henry County.

FARMERS WILL NOT GAIN BY EUROPE'S WAR

So Says Edward A. O'Neal President American Farm Bureau

CHICAGO—Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said that agriculture "stands to lose, rather than gain as a result of the European war."

"Cutting off of our foreign trade with Italy, Belgium, Norway and other countries is bound to have serious consequences for the American farmer," the 64-year-old spokesman for approximately 400,000 farm families, said in an interview.

"The result can hardly be otherwise when we normally sell abroad 52 per cent of our cotton, 35 per cent of our tobacco, 21 per cent of our lard and 11 per cent of our wheat and wheat products. The entire economy of the South is based on cotton. Therefore, if half of the normal outlets are seriously curtailed, the South is bound to suffer."

"We often forget that we devote approximately 24,000,000 acres of land a year to produce crops for export while we import only the production of less than 10,000,000 acres."

"Agriculture is ready to meet war conditions," O'Neal said, "and since we have a national farm program there is no need for creation of a food administration, such as we had in the last war. The AAA can do that job."

Pointing out that American reserves of food and fiber were ample to meet any possible emergency, O'Neal said: (Continued to back page)

CLANTON PARTY HOME AFTER EXTENDED TRIP

Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer, Mrs. Sadye Lande, Mr. Alex Margolis, and Irvin Lande have just returned from a trip to Washington and New York. On the trip they stopped at Jamestown, Virginia, the home of the first colonists in North America, and at Williamsburg, Virginia, where an entire town has been restored to its colonial quaintness. Returning home they traveled via the Shenandoah National Park.

Mrs. Diefenderfer had the pleasure of visiting some old friends in Washington. Mrs. Lande announced that she had made some special purchases for The Leader for the coming season.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at Enterprise Friday night, July 12 for the benefit of Enterprise P. T. A. Music and other entertainment. Everybody urged to come.

ROAD SIGNS WILL WARN AUTO DRIVERS AGAINST PASSING SCHOOL BUSES ON HIGHWAYS

Motorist Must Stop When Passing Vehicles Taking On Or Discharging School Children

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama's highways soon will be lined by a new sort of sign, warning motorists at frequent intervals that it is an offense to pass school buses from either direction while buses are stopped to take on or discharge passengers.

Complying with a request made recently by the Alabama Education Association, State Highway Director Chris J. Sherlock has issued orders for installation of the signs and L. M. Dinsmore, Highway Department's safety division head, is preparing designs for Sherlock's final okay.

Production is expected to hit a high pace long before September's school bells toll the beginning of a new year.

Signs will be installed at frequent intervals along highways entering Alabama, according to plans outlined by state authorities, to notify out-of-state motorists of the law and to urge cooperation.

Along all main and secondary highways the signs will be installed as quickly as possible, it was said here, and at close intervals along routes traveled by school buses.

State authorities believe that while most Alabama drivers know it is against the law to pass a halted bus from the rear, relatively few know it is just as much a law violation to pass a halted bus approaching from the opposite direction.

Highway patrolmen have been active in enforcing the compulsory stop law this year and in more recent years. During the first six months of 1940 arrests totaled 90. Last year 99 were arrested and in 1938 arrests amounted to 70.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

There are those of us, who, in this hour of American destiny and indecision, are trying to instill in the youth of today a love of America and all that it stands for. There are those of us who are trying to do this through the various mediums of the radio, the motion picture, and the newspaper. But outshining all these means is one which seems to me to be the greatest standard bearer of the greatness of our American history and independence. And that means is by visiting the scenes where our heritage was made, where our forefathers fought and died to make this country what it is today.

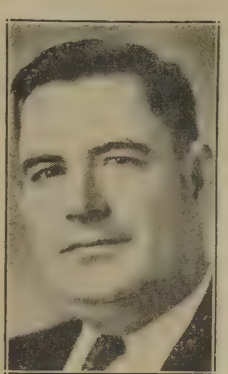

I have just returned from a trip to the North. While on this trip, I have visited Jamestown, and Williamsburg, Virginia, where one is filled with a new understanding of what democracy means. Jamestown is the site of the landing of the first colonists to America. Here, in all its venerable splendor, is the home of a new inspiration. There is nothing modern about Jamestown because it has been restored to its original state. From the old church where the colonists fought to stand off the Indians to the graveyards where the honored dead rest in peace, the visitor is reminded that there were those who believed that the right to be free is worth more than to be alive. He is reminded that other men have given up their lives to make the United States what it is today, and no matter what the American today does, he still has not done as much as he could do.

Williamsburg, the entire town reconstructed to colonial architecture mainly through gifts of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gives a new note of colonial beauty to an America filled with dread of modern war abroad. It repeats the glory of a fine American heritage. Every building in the town is rebuilt to conform to the general plan.

From there, Washington, the capital, was our next stop. Washington immediately destroys that feeling of colonial quietness, but nevertheless, adds to the thought that it's great to be an American. Washington has all the majesty, either through the new Supreme Court building or through George Washington's home at Mt. Vernon, to impress the onlooker with a feeling of being a part in a great nation. Impressive enough, too, are the Washington monument, towering over five hundred feet from the ground, and the Capitol, seen (Continued to page 5).

NATIONAL FARM LOAN MEMBERS TO MEET JULY 19

The members of the Chilton County National Farm Loan Association from all parts of Chilton County, their wives and guests, will attend the association's annual shareholders' meeting which will be held in the Courthouse at Clanton on July 19, 1940, according to announcement made this week by D. W. Waite, Secretary-Treasurer of the association.

Members and their guests will hear complete reports of operation which will include the financial statement of assets and liabilities, and the operating statement of income and expense. The present condition of loans outstanding will be discussed. Members will also vote for two directors to fill three-year terms on the board of directors. This board, which is composed of five members, is responsible for the management of the association. From among the members of the board are elected, by the directors, the president and vice-president. Particular emphasis is placed upon the importance of member-farmers bringing their wives and families to the meeting.

"Because farming is a business in which every member of the family should have a vital and active interest, it is our hope that all of the members of the Chilton County Association will bring their families to this meeting and give them up opportunity to learn more about this cooperative credit system which has made possible long-term, low-cost, farm mortgage loans."

CITY CHURCHES RETURN TO STANDARD TIME SUN.

The Baptist and Methodist churches of Clanton will return to the Central Standard time Sunday morning. The old time go back into effect on this day. Don't forget to change your clocks and be on time for Sunday School and church.

Mrs. Leon Pierce and daughters of Montgomery, are visiting Mrs. Pierce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Griffin.

CITY AGAIN RETURNS TO STANDARD TIME

Daylight Saving Time To Be Abandoned Here On July 14th

The general dissatisfaction by citizens and business men of Clanton at the so-called "Daylight Saving Time," caused a petition to be circulated praying that the Mayor of Clanton make a proclamation returning Clanton to Central Standard Time, effective Sunday morning July 14th.

The Mayor's letter follows: Editor Chilton County News:

As Mayor of the City of Clanton I have been requested by thirty of the merchants and business people to declare that we discontinue using "Daylight Saving Time."

For this reason, and on account of the general dissatisfaction with the new time, I suggest that on Sunday morning July 14th, we all adjust our time to Central Standard Time.

It is understood that all grocery stores will continue to close at six o'clock in the evening except on Saturday, the closing hour will be eight o'clock, closing by Central Standard Time.

Respectfully, C. FENN JONES, Mayor

REVIVAL AT JEMISON

A revival meeting will begin at Jemison Baptist church next Sunday morning, July 14th, and continue through the following week. Rev. T. L. Jenkins, pastor of Fairfield Highland Baptist church, will do the preaching. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Tuberculosis Exhibit Here Saturday

The Alabama State Tuberculosis Association will bring its traveling exhibit here Saturday July 13, according to an announcement by the president of the County T. B. Association, Dr. S. D. Sturkie. Arrangements have been made for the exhibit to be displayed in the vacant lot adjoining the Thomason Hotel. It is expected that it will be completely set up by Saturday noon and ready for display early in the afternoon.

The exhibit will consist of a series of posters depicting the essential facts regarding tuberculosis. A motion picture is to be shown at intervals as part of the program for the afternoon. No admission is to be charged. The public is cordially invited and urged to see the exhibit.

Masonic Officers Are Installed Here

At a regular communication of Clanton Lodge Number 423, A. F. & A. M., held on Saturday night July 6, 1940 the following officers were duly installed for the ensuing Masonic year: Russell R. Sutley, Worshipful Master. James D. Bell, Senior Warden. W. Louis Smith, Junior Warden. J. Renfro Mullins, Treasurer. Grover C. Harris, Secretary. Horsley White, Senior Deacon. Warner W. Wingard, Junior Deacon. Reese G. Mullins, Tippler. Benjamin J. Sessions, Chaplain. Louis E. Diefenderfer, Senior Steward. Grady F. Harris, Junior Steward.

Business Men Of Clanton Hie To Gulf Coast Sunday

The Gulf has called Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Bell, and children, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parrish and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Taylor and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Parke Taylor answered the call and left early Sunday morning to spend a week doing nothing but fishing and loafing. They expect to return next Sunday's sun burn and all.

Late flash from Jimmie Bell: No fishing but come on down and loaf with us.

A Correction

Chilton County News printed in its last week's issue along with a list of other marriage announcements that of "John Wesley Caton, Jr., and Miss Mildred Wayne Adams." This was an error which we are glad to correct. The license was purchased, but was subsequently returned to the Probate office and cancelled.

Mark Remarks:

Herr Wilkie packed the galleries, stationed "fifth columnists" among the Republican Convention, then started a blitzkrieg against the delegates who promptly surrendered unconditionally.

The issue is clear, distinct and unmistakable. It's Democracy against dollars.

According to the planetary aspects right now is the time most likely that Hitler will make his onslaught against England.

We remarked at the time King Edward was forced to renounce his crown (not because he wanted to marry an American woman, but because his sympathies were with the working people rather than the drones of the empire) would one day return as dictator of the British. Recent developments indicate that this is entirely possible.

No man with hatred in his heart, has the right to express that hatred, either in speech or in the press, whether he is a citizen in a democracy or any other kind of government.

Go to Sunday School Sunday and learn something about Job's troubles and you will come away glad that you are healthy, happy and living in the sunlight of God's love. You will also learn something about being loyal and steadfast.

No kindness has not perished from the Earth, notwithstanding the greed, grabbing ghoul, and petty satraps who lust for more power. God is still on his throne, and righteousness will prevail.

Yes, we have those right here in our country whose lust for self and power, bring misery and want to many people.

Judging from the tone of most of the Alabama daily press... they seem to prefer Wilkie to Roosevelt, the New Dealer. And of course, there's a reason.

Why all the hullabaloo about a few republicans voting in a democratic primary in Chilton County? Hasn't the president of the United States just placed two of the biggest republicans in the Nation in his cabinet, and hasn't the Republican Party just named a democrat to lead their ticket in the coming November election?

The Alabama Co-Operative Corporation announced that hog production in Alabama has dropped 23 per cent from 1939 output. Looks like propaganda giving the packing companies an excuse to raise the price of bacon, if you ask us.

Americanism: Sending ship loads of war materials to foreign lands with which to make orphans. Soliciting funds in America to bring ship loads of orphans to be cared for in this country.

Three Vital Questions

Three vital questions which delegates to the National Democratic Convention in Chicago next week, should keep constantly before them, and the outcome of which will shape the destinies of America's millions perhaps for centuries, are these:

DEMOCRACY: "Government by the people; a form of government in which the supreme power is retained by the people and exercised either directly, or indirectly through a system of representation and delegated authority periodically renewed, as in a constitutional representative government, or republic."—Webster.

PLUTOCRACY: "Government by the wealthy; the rule or dominion of wealth or of the rich; also a controlling or influential class of rich men; a body of plutocrats."—Webster.

ALTCRACY: "Independent or self-derived power; absolute supremacy."—Webster.

Great Is Chambers Co.

Did you know that the heavy-weight boxing champion of the world was born in Chambers County? Did you know that Florida's Senator Claude Pepper hails from Chambers County? Did you know that the man who was given the credit for winning the World War No. One was born in Chambers County? Did you know that the Turkish Towel Capital of the world is in Chambers County? And, of course, you know that a man who served our state for many years as senator makes his home in LaFayette, and is beloved by all. Yes, sir, Mark L. Tucker of the Chilton County News at Clanton in Chilton County can rave about living in the garden spot of Alabama all he wants to but we in Chambers County can point to many things. We're able to boast of the finest citizenship, too, and we can give the world a man who can lick any man who says it ain't so—LaFayette Sun. And did you know that the Chilton County News furnished Chambers County with all the great newspaper men of which that great county boasts. It is a fact: Bonnie Hand, Verne Teel and Victor Norris.

Handy Ellis of Shelby

"Ability of Representative L. Handy Ellis, the astute Shelby County lawyer-politician, as a legislator long ago was recognized, as evidenced by the fact he was former Gov. Graves' House floor leader and because of his expert service in other legislative capacities. And that is not the reason for reference to Ellis here.

"When he went to the Legislature at the beginning of the Dixon administration, Ellis was an anti-administrationist and he remained anti-Dixon throughout. But in doing so, he won and maintained the respect and admiration of the chief executive and his legislative leaders, because of his consummate fairness in combating administration proposals.

"Even though he was not in agreement with Dixon's policies, there were times when Ellis supported the governor because the problem at hand necessitated legislative backing of gubernatorial action. An instance of this was a floor speech by the Shelby solon supporting Gov. Dixon's last-minute request of a conditional emergency appropriation for $350,000 additional yearly for the Convict Department. And when Ellis endorsed the new code, which he helped write as a member of the committee, he disarmed all House opposition to it.

"This was it that the chief executive and other higherups paid their respects to the expert Handy in glowing terms as the session drew to a close.—Fred Taylor in News-Age-Herald.

Record of Service by the Farm Security Administration

The record of service by the Farm Security Administration to the farmers of this county, in the five years since it was established was reviewed by Marvin Durbin, County rehabilitation supervisor. The order setting up this agency was signed by the President April 30, 1935.

Since the commencement of this work in Chilton County more than 1521 farm families have received some form of benefit from it, either in the form of a supervised loan, help in adjusting farm debts, or in some cases, outright grants.

Standard loans made to families without credit facilities for necessary feed, seed, livestock, farming equipment, and capital goods necessary to place their farms on a productive basis, are assisting these farm families in regaining economic security.

The 1940 program in this County so far has loaned $724,000.00 to 317 families. "We had a fine record last year," said Mr. Durbin, and this year we expect to better this record. The present outlook for rehabilitation families is very bright and I am confident that when the harvest is made these families will have repaid their government loans and will have advanced a step or two up the rehabilitation ladder."

Supplementing the loan program the County Supervisor's office cooperate in establishing community and cooperative services for low-income families and in farm debt adjustment work being carried on by the local County Committees.

During the past year, with the help of the County and Assistant County Supervisors, 31 farmers have been assisted in reducing their debts in a total amount of $1,200,000. With this help these farmers have been able to reduce their debts within their ability to pay. This is the first step taken to assist farmers to become rehabilitated.

Congress has authorized the Farm Security Administration to make a limited number of loans each year to help tenants, sharecroppers, and farm laborers to buy land of their own. In Chilton County 36 loans have been made to enable tenants and sharecroppers to become land owners. The loans total approximately $118,000. Under this program loans are made large enough to enable the selected tenants to buy a farm and if necessary to repair the buildings or put up new ones. They are repayable over a period of forty years at 3 per cent.

Any farmer who obtains a Rehabilitation or Tenant Purchase Loan is required to submit and carry out a balanced farm plan. This is a live-at-home program. The farmers under this plan produce food for the family, feed for the livestock, and enough cash from the crops, livestock, and livestock products to repay their loan. The families in Chilton County who are receiving loans from the Farm Security Administration have been very cooperative with the supervisors in developing and tation facilities. V. J. Elmore, Clanton's biggest business man, has announced that it will be necessary for his firm to build a new warehouse and office building in Birmingham to serve the great network of retail stores which Mr. Elmore operates throughout the state.

He is a Clanton man, his No. 1 store is there, his 33 other stores have heretofore been serviced from the Clanton office and warehouse of the company. Three-fourths of all the goods sold by the 33 stores over the state pass through the Clanton warehouse. In a statement issued at Clanton Mr. Elmore says:

"More than a year ago we started a survey for the purpose of analyzing the facilities necessary to the efficient distribution from our central warehouse as well as the facilities necessary for the next several years. It has become evident that more facilities in the way of rail and motor truck services as well as closer contact with sources of supply are vital to the continued growth of our warehouse. The result of this survey indicates that a point with greater freight facilities—rail motor and water—becomes absolutely essential." Site has been purchased in Birmingham and the new warehouse and office building will be occupied by the firm sometime next spring.—Montgomery Journal

Alabama Banks Make 240,000 Loans

Twenty per cent of Alabama's commercial banks made more than 240,000 loans totaling over $240,000,000 to business firms and individuals throughout the state during the year 1935, according to the second semi-annual survey of bank lending activity of the American Bankers Association.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

Today when you drive your car into a filling station, you receive prompt and courteous attention. I remember the day when I would drive into a filling station and would have to apologize if I needed water in the radiator. In an uninterested way the manager would show me the bucket and the well and I had to wait on myself. Later on some smart progressive boss instructed his help to do this for the public and now I can drive in and the entire force of the station stands in readiness to give any service needed. Filling station operators found out that there was trade to be won by giving a little more than was bought of them. When we drive in now they inflate our tires, wash our windshields, brush out the body of the car, examine our oil, clean off the lights and see to it that we can go on in safety. All business can go to the filling station operators and learn a method of success. It pays to be kind, thoughtful, helpful, courteous and accommodating. Try it and see.

A Bus Line was going to build a station in a Florida city. They advertised for local help. They wanted carpenters, brick men, plumbers and labor of all kind. On a given day the men were employed and the job started. More men were present for each job than was needed. After a day or two only a few of the men employed on the first day, were on the job. The contractor saw at once that he had much unskilled labor and to save himself he was forced to let the men go. He had to seek for men who knew how to do what he wanted done. We are amazed sometimes to see how little carpenters, brick masons, plumbers, painters, farmers, preachers, doctors, lawyers, printers, all of us, know about what we are trying to do. Ignorance may be bliss, but it is also destructive. Whatever you choose to do put into that thing your best and know your job. Many a man is "Laid Off" not because he is not needed, but because he is doing a poor job in his place.

What are you doing with your spare time? One clerk spends all his gadding over the counter and gassing about sports, and politics and he remains a poorly paid clerk. Another young man is employed in a store and he uses his spare time in arranging the store, studying the trade magazines and becomes the head of the business. Your future is largely determined the way you spend your spare time. If you waste your time when you are young you will go begging for a job when you are old. Many a man will be little and die little, just because he is not willing to make every minute count. One of the most attractive little homes I ever saw belonged to W.P.A. Worker. When he was the job, he was making his home attractive.

On a hillside in Africa, more than four hundred years ago, a rooster observed that his goats would become very active and frisky after the leaves and berries on a bush. He decided to try himself these berries and to his astonishment he found that he never felt better after eating these berries. Rumor of this magic tree spread far and wide and soon people everywhere were going to chew the berries. This was other than the coffee tree that is abundantly everywhere. Coffee, not known to the ancient people, it is one of the most common of today. It was introduced to us by a goat, I am still wishing that I heard a farmer say to his man: "Get up and git." That is all I need.

A legend out of Mexico says one day Luke plowed his garden and would not leave his plowing. He sent messengers with all kinds of threats but Luke said that he was afraid and he plowed on. Finally the owner of the land sent Luke said that if he did not come the he would give him a bad name. Luke threw down his plow and saying, "I can stand anything, but I can't stand neighbor." Verily I say unto you a bad neighbor is one of the greatest curses of life up to you to avoid being that neighbor.

She Built Fires For 20 Years

FOR 20 years she built fires morning, noon and night—yes, even on hot summer days like this! A fire to build for every meal... a fire to kindle when warm water was needed to launder lingerie.

And then she began to think there might be something to the saying "Electricity is Cheap in Alabama," and asked about electric water heating.

Yes, she bought an electric water heater (an electric range, too). Today, she has all the hot water she needs—whenever she turns the hot water faucet—and her days of bothersome fire building are over. The electricity used for heating water costs only one a kilowatt hour (slightly higher on some rural lines). So you see, electricity really is cheap in Alabama!

INSTALL AN ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

Fully automatic, never requires any attention, seldom gets out of order—once installed you can forget it. Thousands of users consider their electric water heater their most satisfactory electrical appliance. May be installed in basement or in a corner of the kitchen, where it helps give to the kitchen that modern electrified appearance.

Costs less than a hundred dollars, installed. Cash or terms. Low operating cost—electricity to heat water comes to you at the lowest rate—1c a kilowatt hour (slightly more on rural lines).

MAC TAVISH and usually godown and visit the firehouse a couple of times a week, but I guess we won't be going there any more for a while. We stopped in and looked around today, and by golly if the firemen didn't have a new tom cat for a mascot. He was a big, gray mouse trap with only one eye and looked like a cross between a timber wolf and a whisk broom. He was so tough that he wouldn't even drink milk. The firemen had to get him two bottles of beer every day instead. I thought we ought to scam home, but Mac thought different. He took off after that cat and darned near wrecked the firehouse. He chased him over the captain's desk and upstairs into the sleeping quarters. They wrestled on the beds and tore up the sheets and pillows. They started for the kitchen, but enough was enough so Pat Duffy grabbed a fire extinguisher and squirted all three of us out of the joint.

Federal Grand Jury Indicts American Pulpwood Association

WASHINGTON—The Department of Justice has announced that a Federal Grand Jury in New York had indicted the American Pulpwood Association and 12 large corporations on charges of conspiracy to violate the wage-hour act in fixing the earnings of 70,000 employees.

The indictment, the department said, was the first under the fair labor standards act on an industry-wide scale, although single companies have been indicted previously.

The department listed these defendants in addition to the association: Brunswick Pulp and Paper Company, Brunswick, Ga.; the Champion Paper and Fiber Company, Hamilton, Ohio; Gulf States Paper Corporation, Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Johns-Manville Products Corporation of Virginia, New York City; the Mead Corporation, Chillicothe, Ohio; National Container Corporation (Delaware), Long Island City, N. Y.; North Carolina Pulp Company, Plymouth, N. C.; Southern Advance Bag and Paper Company, Inc., Boston; Southern Kraft Corporation, New York City; St. Joe Paper Company, Port St. Joe, Ind.; Union Bag and Paper Corporation, New York City, and West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, New York City.

Mt. Springs

Revival at Mt. Springs will begin Monday, July 15th and end Sunday July 21st. Services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Standard Time, every day except Saturday. Rev. Luther Ballou will conduct the services. All are welcome.

Mt. Nebo

The third Sunday in July is homecoming day at Mt. Nebo church, we cordially invite everyone to come and bring lunch and enjoy the day of preaching, singing and meeting with old friends. The revival also begins that day at this church. A special invitation goes to our adjoining communities.

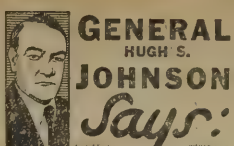

Chilton Students In Jacksonville Normal

Jacksonville, Ala.—Fourteen Chilton County students are listed in the large enrollment at the Jacksonville State Teachers' College Summer School, in which forty eight counties and seven states are represented, according to Dr. C. W. Dugette, president.

They are as follows: Ruby Alexander, Mary Belle Bean, Elree Calfee, Cuba Conway, Alma LeCroy, Clara Mae LeCroy, Clanton.

Earl Clenner, Winifred LeCroy, Lew McGe, Loraine Porch, Maudine Roebuck, Maplesville.

Clara Maddox, S. E. Maddox, Melba Patton, Jemison.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

Washington, D. C.

RUBBER, TIN 'HOKUM'

It would be worth a good many billions, not to mention a great re-employment, strengthening of our defense and reduction of our danger, to debunk the hokum about our being so dependent on the British and Dutch East Indies for rubber and tin.

That bulk plus gross exaggeration of our commercial state in China, projects the sphere of our naval strength far west of any line of defensive necessity in the Pacific. On every occasion we build Japanese enmity. That, in turn, requires even greater naval strength in the Pacific.

Whole feet equipped for this great distance, which is a far greater radius of action than Western hemisphere defense requires.

We are truly told that we have not nearly the naval strength we need for that defense. Yet, here we are frittering away much of that strength chiefly on this rubber and tin argument.

Every time somebody mentions the fact that Bolivia is a prolific potential source of tin, we get a dose of clever propaganda—that the ore has been sent to England to be smelted—that Bolivian reserves of ore aren't great enough and that they require a mixture of other tin ores.

We have no tin smelters. But why haven't we? Because a British cartel controls tin. It doesn't want us to smelt tin or buy in Bolivia. That isn't good enough now. There is no mystery about the tin smelter. To build the necessary smelters and use Bolivian tin at once fits with every sound American policy, and not to do so collides with all. It employs American rather than British labor. It builds up Western hemisphere trade and ties us closer to South America. It strengthens our defense and reduces our danger and dependence on distant sources. Why isn't such a move number one in our new national defense effort?

I can't say on the basis of known facts and recent surveys that Bolivian tin would be enough. But neither has it been demonstrated by any such means that it wouldn't be enough. German policy has taken any steps to make it enough. I am told by metallurgists that they can easily lick the few bugs in the use of Bolivian tin.

There is a very wide field for the conservation of tin. It is largely used for attractiveness when black sheets would serve as well. There is a vast field for substitutes—particularly glass. Finally, tin can be reclaimed after original use. We throw it on the garbage dump. Any truly alert defense policy would act immediately here.

The case of rubber is similar. It may be true—although it seems incredible—that we can't now rely on getting rubber from its native home in South America, but it is no longer true that we have to go half way round the world to get it. We have no less than six all-American rubber substitutes. Two of them are far better than rubber.

Yes, they cost more, but if we relied on them entirely and so went into mass production, they would cost very little more—maybe not as much—as the process is perfected in use. As matters stand at this moment, due to their longer life and better quality, the true cost would be no more. If you consider this great new field for employment of American labor to replace Asiatic coolie labor, our economic advantage would be much greater. If to that advantage we add, as in the case of tin, the avoided cost and danger of maintaining an American naval threat in Asia then all considerations of both economics and defense simply shriek for immediate action here. What is a council of national defense for anyway?

Temptations.

Now that the course and leadership of the Republican party is settled, there are only two major uncertainties to fertilize with worry more gray hairs—the war in its relation to us and the November elections.

Superficially there is a temptation to write a third—the convention course and leadership of the Democratic party. But, we know that there is no uncertainty. Roosevelt will be nominated by acclamation. He will write his own platform.

There is no more reason for a Democratic convention than there would be of a meeting of the Reichstag to decide whether Mr. Hitler shall continue.

In the proposal for a western hemisphere cartel, we see a colossal attempt to imitate Hitler. It is assumed that if he is victorious, all European industries will be operated as one, their products pooled and bartered to Latin America at a swarted price so low we can't compete. Therefore, we shall buy all the products of Latin America. Our high cost industrial products are also to be subsidized and pooled for sale south to under-price low-cost European industrial production—at a loss to our whole people of perhaps a billion a year.

CEMETERY CLEANING

The members of Bethany church have set the day of Wednesday, July 17, as the time for cleaning and repairing the Bethany cemetery, therefore all parties who have interest in the cemetery through immediate friends or kindred are asked to bring your tools and assist in the work. If you can't be there all day you may come either in the morning or afternoon which ever shall meet your own convenience.

ALABAMA CAN AFFORD CONCRETE ROADS

TODAY'S BIG JOB—

Modernize Crowded Highways

Citizens of this state have good reason to be enthusiastic motorists. They have an unusually fine highway system. Hundreds of thousands of vehicles keep the roads humming with traffic.

Some of these roads are required to carry more traffic than they can safely accommodate. These urgently need modernizing.

Steady driving at prevailing speeds—with safety built into the roads—is what motorists need. State-wide planning surveys now under way will provide facts on which a rational plan of future highway development can be based.

Widening, straightening, separation of grade crossings and other improvements based on these surveys will provide useful employment for thousands, greater safety for millions, better business and better living for all.

New Discovery May

Aid in Ageing Liquor

Discovery of a "chemical dice game" may lead to improvements in the ageing of wines and liquors, the American Chemical society was told recently.

Dr. George Calingaert, of Detroit, chemical research director of the Ethyl Gasoline corporation, also reported that other new fields in organic chemistry would be opened by his findings which show that, contrary to past experience, organic compounds of the same class will react with one another through use of proper catalysts.

Quantities of the products formed, he said, are determined by the same mathematical laws of chance which enable gamblers to foretell odds in a dice game. He explained that when a pair of dice is thrown many times, the number seven will appear twice as often as the number ten, and three times as often as eleven or three.

Dr. Calingaert reported that the atoms "fall" into position in the same random way and that the discovery "all but shakes the foundations of our concepts of the behavior of atoms in molecules."

Such a reaction may hold the key to some processes known to take place, but for which no satisfactory explanation has been advanced, he said.

"It is well known that some chemical process occurs after barreling or bottling (of liquor), the result of which is readily detected by taste."

The action occurs through the materials present are chemically inert to one another and Calingaert predicted that a better understanding of this ageing process will lead to improvement in wines and liquors.

Scientists Find Locusts

Are of Two Distinct Kinds

There are two races of the periodical cicada—the seventeen-year race and another that appears every 13 years. Scientists have found differences in the two except that one remains underground in the larva and pupa stages four years longer than the other.

Every year is locust year in some part of the country. There are 17 different broods of the 17 year race and thirteen broods of the 13-year race, writes a writer in the Chicago Tribune. The broods have been catalogued by Roman numbers. Broods Nos. 1 to 17 compose the 17-year race. The 13-year race is numbered from 18 to 30.

There is overlapping of the territories occupied by the two races and also by the different broods. In some sections, however, the locusts only appear at 13 or 17-year intervals, indicating the presence of only one brood.

The periodical cicadas are not found in the western part of the United States. They live mainly in the wooded regions from the Atlantic coast westward to central Kansas.

Tom Thumb's Life

Tom Thumb (Charles Sherwood Stratton) was born at Bridgeport, Conn., on January 4, 1838. His parents were of normal size and he showed no peculiarity until he reached the age of seven months, when he ceased to grow. In 1842 his mother took him to P. T. Barnum. At that time he was 28 inches in height and weighed a little more than 15 pounds, though he later increased in size. He was perfectly proportioned, active, and intelligent. His exhibitions proved a great success and in 1854 he was taken to England by Barnum and presented to the queen and royal family. In 1863 Tom Thumb married Lavinia Warren, a dwarf, and together they traveled widely and gave exhibitions. He died at Middleborough, Mass., on July 15, 1883.

Ability to Learn

Walter B. Pitkin, in "The Art of Learning," says: "Between the ages of 22 and 40, the ability to learn a systematically organized subject, such as a foreign language, mathematics, or any natural science, declines no more than 1 per cent year. A man aged 42 lags only 20 per cent behind a 20-year-old. To this conclusion Thorndike and his associates came as a result of their prolonged experiments in teaching adults Esperanto. But they also find that the older people make up for this slowing down by more mature backgrounds which aid them in thorough comprehension."

Sealed Tomb

The parishioners of Christ church at Cambridge, Mass., were surprised to learn that there is a sealed tomb in the basement of the church. The WPA historical records survey reports that the tomb was built soon after the completion of the church in 1759. Ten bodies were placed there, including that of one of the builders, Henry Vassall, before the city ordered the tomb closed in 1865.

Flag Protection Law

There is but one federal statute which protects the flag from desecration throughout the country. This law, 33 Stat. L. p. 725, February 20, 1905, provides that a trademark cannot be registered which consists of, or comprises, among other things, "the flag, coat of arms, or other insignia of the United States, or any simulation thereof."

First Household Lights

The first electric light for household use was probably used by Prof. Moses Gerrish Farmer at 11 Pearl street, Salem, Mass. In 1859 he arranged a series of lamps in his parlor, the current for which was supplied by a wet cell battery. Electricity used successfully to light a residence was generated by an independent plant installed in the home of J. Hood Wright at Fort Washington, N. Y., before December of 1881.

My Symphony

To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury; and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable; and wealthy, not rich; to study hard; think quietly, talk frankly; to listen to stars and birds, to babes and to sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasion, hurry never; in a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common. This is to be my symphony.—William Henry Channing.

Raising Thoroughbreds

Costly, Horseman Finds

The word thoroughbred is often, even in well informed circles, erroneously used in referring to a full-blooded breed of horses, when the correct descriptive word is purebred. Thoroughbred, rightly used, means a definite breed of horse which is commonly known as the racehorse. The history of the thoroughbred is well known. The breed descends from the Arab, the product of 200 years of breeding for speed and size. The breeding still goes on.

Not generally known is the fact that it costs much more to raise an offspring from a large, fast horse than from a small, inferior one, writes Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening in the Chicago Tribune. Thoroughbreds have a general range in size of from 14.2 to 17.2 hands (the hand being four inches) and 900 to 1,300 pounds in weight. Color varies greatly.

The chief uses to which a thoroughbred is put are in the field of sports—racing, polo, and hunting. Usually it is much higher strung than a common horse and therefore more easily spoiled.

Because of the long struggle to improve the Arab for speed, faults in conformation are frequently found in thoroughbreds. The commonest of these are small bones and not enough heart girth. Like their Arab ancestors, thoroughbreds exert little effort in motion, giving a comfortable ride. They have great strength, and their greatest asset—endurance—gives rise to the expression "A clean thoroughbred never quits."

Maternity Death Rate Could Be Cut in Half

The lives of 6,000 mothers could be saved every year by prompt and proper medical care, Dr. Philip R. Williams, of Philadelphia, said recently at the first American Congress of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

The maternal death rate in the United States is lower than ever before in history, but it is still "disgracefully high" in view of the present knowledge of medical men, Dr. Williams said.

The death rate of mothers declined from 57 out of every 10,000 during 1936 to 49 out of every 10,000 in 1937. Dr. Williams pointed out, however, that this might be cut in half if physicians made use of all available knowledge and if prospective mothers asked for medical attention early.

In addition, the lives of about half of the babies who die in childbirth or soon after might be saved by application of medical methods which are not now generally applied. During 1937, the last year for which statistics are available, 119,931 babies died.

In 1859 he arranged a series of lamps in his parlor, the current for which was supplied by a wet cell battery. Drinkers to Church

As Vicar Wins Gamers

BRADFORD, ENGLAND.—A party of patrons of a saloon near a church in St. Mary's church were told that they were church members. Some of them had not been in church for years. They were told that because the vicar had been on them at dominoes. The saloon were beer all round if the vicar lost and attendance at church service for the drinkers if he won.

Rich Gold Mine Is Found in Arizona

Many Believe It Might Be Famous 'Lost Dutchman'

FLORENCE, ARIZ.—Prospectors here heard reports that an abandoned Spanish gold mine of "unbelievable wealth" had been found in the heart of the Superstition mountains.

There were some reports that a newly located mine, apparently worked by early Spanish adventurers, was the fabulously rich "Lost Dutchman." Giving some credence to this belief was a claim filed with the county recorder by Mark Walker, a prospector, for five parcels of land in the Superstition which he classified as "Lost Dutchman No. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5."

Discovery of the mine was verified by Barry Storm, writer and adventurer who has spent more than 20 years in the Superstitions, and Walter Upson, a mining engineer who recently returned from a visit to the newly found workings.

"It isn't certain that this mine is the 'Lost Dutchman,'" Mr. Upson said. "There's a bit of doubt in my mind about that. The Dutchman was a comparatively shallow, old like excavation, but this one is yards of tunnels."

But the low passageways of workings, the rude timbering the oxcart trails are proof that mine was developed by early Spaniards, Mr. Upson said.

The engineer said he had crawled into some of the tunnels and found evidence to show the mine was "believably wealthy."

The wealthiest of the mine worked by the Spaniards reportedly was discovered in the late 1800s. Jacob Walz, a German immigrant who died without disclosing information, since then the mine has been dubbed the "Lost Dutchman."

Life of 2-Year-Old Girl

Saved by Clothes

BOSTON.—Her life saved by clothes pin, two-year-old Carol B. of Belmont was recovering at a hospital today after almost choking death on the spring from an Easter rabbit.

Dr. Joseph Factor of Belmont reported the child in an ambulance to a Cambridge hospital after placing the clothes pin in her jaw to keep her mouth open. Later while Carol was being transferred to a hospital here, she again nearly choked to death, but Dr. Factor's police sergeant applied artificial respiration.

The spring, which Carol had swallowed after biting a leg from a "bunny," was removed at the hospital.

'Censorship' on Weather

Makes Hazards in U. S.

BOSTON.—A wartime precaution of belligerent nations have "increased" the storm hazards of the United States and have caused the accuracy of frost warnings, according to Radio Meteorologist E. B. Rideout.

"A hurricane could actually the Florida coast without any warning now," Rideout said.

"Storm warnings for the territory hitherto have depended on reports from British possessions in the Caribbean and from ships at sea. These reports have been discontinued on orders of the British government with the only explanation: 'Owing to war conditions.'"

Civilization in America

Gets 25,000 Year Old

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Civilization in North America is 25,000 years old—not a mere 5,000 as previously supposed—two geology professors, Kirk Bryan and L. L. Ray, report.

Stone implements were found in the fossiliferous limestone of the Lindenmeier valley of Colorado and the Harvard professors were called in to set the age of the men who used them.

According to Bryan, the "culture layer in which the relics were found" was related to a definite geologic event which occurred 25,000 years ago and thus "dates" the implements.

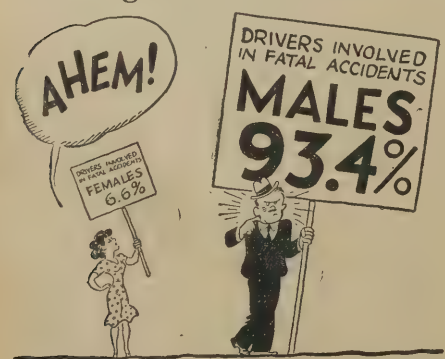

Wealthy Town Discovers

Its Past Was Threatened

BROOKLINE, MASS.—Now considered the nation's wealthiest town, Brookline asked to be excused from sending a representative to the state legislature because of insufficient funds.

Records found by the WPA historical survey show that the town made the request "upon the account of their building a Meeting House and the great charges thereof, such a Poor Little Town."

Male of Species More Dangerous Than Female

Women have the reputation of being worse drivers than men but where accidents are concerned, statisticians can find no figures to substantiate this popular belief.

These facts are revealed in a new booklet "Smash Hits of the Year" just issued by The Travelers Insurance Company as the tenth in its annual series of bulletins dedicated to street and highway safety.

Despite the fact that a Gallup Poll showed a large majority of persons feel safer riding with a man at the steering wheel, the company's statisticians found that more than 90 per cent of all fatal and non-fatal accidents in 1939 involved male drivers. Where fatal accidents alone are considered, the female of the species has an even better record, being charged with the responsibility for less than seven per cent.

The answer undoubtedly rests in the fact that a greater number of men drive more miles each year and under more hazardous conditions, the article concludes. No method has yet been found to determine the relative risks faced by males and females and until such data are available no one can say with accuracy which sex is safer at the wheel.

Wet Artificial Logs

Swell, Burst House

Bad Men of Today
Are Not So ToughFormer Two-Gun Sheriffs
Sneer at Gangsters.

CONCUNULY, WASH.—To a pair of chip-jawed sheriffs of the day of the "hot-air-trigger" today's gangsters and bad men wouldn't rate a second glance.

"Bad Bills? Humph, they're Sweet Williams," say these two men in whose day the usual historian of a gun duel between the law and the outlaw was the man who was fastest with the gun.

Both ex-Sheriff George Tindall and his successor, Fred Thorp, rate as historians.

Tindall, a native of Oregon, began his career as an officer in 1887 when he was a deputy sheriff and U. S. marshal. In 1902 he became sheriff here and that year was the beginning of the end of horse thieves and cattle rustlers in this territory.

Fred Thorp was his successor and he is the man known all over the Northwest as the sheriff that brought in his man, dead or alive.

When Tindall assumed office the average population of this region was one person per square mile—a situation that made cattle rustling a profitable affair.

A conviction of a charge of cattle thievery was hard to obtain, some old pioneers even alleging that many juries had members that were mixed up in the rustlings.

But 10 months after election, Tindall had changed the complexion somewhat. Teaching the law to the prosecutor, Tindall brought about conviction and prison terms for 22 men in that time—a record never equalled.

Probably the high point of the career was the cattlemen and sheepmen wars. It began when Tindall aided in the arrest of one "Wild Bill" Hughes, a reported murderer.

A deputy sheriff was shot the next night, supposedly by a friend of Hughes, and the war was on.

When the war had quieted down, Tindall left office and Thorp became sheriff. He was quiet but of firmer clay than the hardest criminal in the West.

A peace-loving man on the surface, Thorp was known as a man who could—and did—fight it out if he needed.

While his career lacked some of the color that filled the term in office of his predecessor, Thorp joins with Tindall in contempt for present day criminals.

Offer to Give Away Sons

Brings Father City Job
COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Fred McNeil, a WPA worker who offered to give away two of his five sons because he was not making enough money to feed and clothe them properly, will go to work for the city of Columbus, starting next Tuesday.

The new job, given McNeil after Mayor Floyd F. Green learned of the family's plight, will enable the McNeil family to stay together.

McNeil's new job in the city engineering department will pay him from $80 to $100 a month and will offer him a chance for advancement.

Passengers Say Boulder

Saved Train in Canyon

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C.—The story of how a huge boulder prevented a derailed train from crashing 300 feet to rocky canyon bottom was told here by passengers of the train who were being brought by boat from Vancouver.

When the train was traveling the White Pass and Yukon route railway, a passenger and baggage car was derailed in the Skagway river canyon, seven miles from Skagway, Alaska. The rock, lying beside the tracks, miraculously held the entire train on the edge of the cliff.

Stocking Saves Her $80

But Men's Pants Rifled

NEW YORK.—A backstage thief ditched the weekly wages of every male player in "The Wee Wee" Broadway drama about bank robbers.

But he didn't find the wages of the only woman in the cast, Peggy Freen, 18 years old.

"I always keep my money, while acting, in the First City bank," she explained.

She pointed at her stocking, with $80 in bills inside.

COWPEAS MAY BE PICKED

Cowpeas will not be classed as a truck, vegetable or soil-depleting crop under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program even though the green pods are harvested and sold as a commercial vegetable, the state AAA office has explained in a clarification of program provisions.

'Possum Scratch' News

I am very happy to say that our B. Y. P. U. is improving rapidly. We elected new officers last Sunday night which are as follows: Lucy Walker, director; Carlos Lee Smith, president; Hudson Smith, vice-president; Secretary and Treasurer, Ruby Lee Latham; Group Captain No. 1, Cora Smith; No. 2 Dorothy Mae Smith; Social committee: Bessie Mae Moore, Raynard Hall; choir director, Ruby Lee Latham. The boys seem to be taking more interest in the B. Y. P. U. since they have gotten into trouble by killing up a well near the club houses, although we hope their interest will hold out. Two of our members, J. C. Latham and Philip Hicks have left us and joined the Navy.

Alvis McAfee is home for his summer vacation.

Ruby Lee Latham is spending the summer with her aunt in Birmingham. Ruby Lee Latham has just returned from a short vacation with her brother in Marion Junction. We hope that she will get to attend the South-west convention to be held at Ridgecrest, North Carolina this month which we all are planning to.

Everyone is invited to attend the monthly social to be held at the Shoults Club House Saturday night July 13th.

Martha June and Joe Latham have also left the community. Martha June took a short business course at Massey's College and is now working at the C. I. T. Corporation.

REUNION

On July the Seventh the children of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Wells, gathered at their home to celebrate the 74th birthday of their mother. Chevrolet Reports
Increased Sales

DETROIT, June 25.—The greatest June second-10 day sales period since 1936 was reported by Chevrolet dealers today, it was announced here by William E. Holler, general sales manager, who reported the sale of 34,328 new passenger cars and trucks in the past 10 days, a gain of 11,880 units over the same period last year. This represents an increase of 52.9 per cent, he said.

At the same time, new sales continued the steady advance that has characterized the Chevrolet sales graph in 1940, the second 10 days of June topping the first 10 days by 23.3 per cent. The June 20 total of 34,328 new cars and trucks compares with 22,448 in the same period last year and 27,843 in the first 10 days of June this year.

Concurrently, used car sales showed a distinct upward trend, a total of 63,152 units being retailed. This represents a 39 per cent increase over the comparable period last year and an 18.5 per cent gain over the first 10 days of this month.

For the month-to-date, Mr. Holler said, new car sales are 34.9 per cent in advance of the first 20 days of June, 1939, while used car deliveries are 27.7 per cent ahead over the same period.

SCHOOL OF CITIZENSHIP

A number of women from Chilton County are expected to attend the School of Citizenship for all Alabama women which will be held on the campus of Alabama College, the State College for Women, at Montevallo, July 11-12, under the auspices of the Joint Legislative Council.

Evidence Reveals Dog

Trained to Steal Sheep

GRAHAMSTOWN, SOUTH AFRICA.—A specially trained dog was described as the key member of a band of native sheep stealers, when Kalele Gxowa, the leader of the gang and owner of the dog, was sentenced here to six years' imprisonment and eight lashes for stock thefts.

Gxowa's brother-in-law told the court how the sheep stealer had trained a dog to go out at night and catch sheep. Gxowa used a whistle to direct the dog, and also to signal the natives of Grahamstown that he had meat to sell.

Among the witnesses was the eight-year-old daughter of the accused man. She said that her father took her out on his bicycle at times to help catch sheep.

Handcars Used to Steal

Railway Station Safes

MONTREAL.—Not content with stealing the safes from two local stations of the Canadian National Railway, thieves "borrowed" the railway's handcars to transport their loot from the scene of the crime.

Breaking into the station at St. Eustache and Crabtree Mills, the thieves trundled out the strong boxes and transported them down the track aboard handcars to be opened at their leisure. Using hammers and other tools to open the safes, the thieves got $125 from St. Eustache and $11 from Crabtree Mills. Both the handcars and the empty vaults were found beside the tracks.

World's Earliest Records

Convicts have fenced in a site near Klerksdorp, South Africa, where in the opinion of Professor Van Riet Lowe, archeologist, his- tory began to write its records 250,000 years ago. On this site are rock engravings of a rhinoceros, an elephant, a zebra, giraffe, geese in flight, and other animals done by a primitive race. The ridge of red boulders has been declared a national monument.

"The engravings are the finest in South Africa," the archeologist says. "They belong essentially to the Stone Age."

A curious find is a grooved stone evidently used as an arrow sharpener.

REVIEWS & PREVIEWS

from almost any place in Washington. Today, as hardly ever before, our nation's capital is a busy city, and there are men there determined to prepare this nation against any eventuality.

It barely seems necessary to state that while there we met Congressman Jarman and Mrs. Jarman who were very nice to us, as usual. I also had the privilege of meeting Mr. Walter Lippman, the American political writer.

From Jamestown and its unique peacefulness, to Washington and its political disputations, I have at last managed to spend the better part of a week at New York and the World's Fair. Naturally, that is not enough time to see either New York or the Fair, but it is certainly enough time to comprehend its definite trends and underlying ideas.

The officials of the Fair have adopted two slogans for their exposition. They are: "The World of Tomorrow" and "For Peace and Freedom." However, the Fair exceeds both these slogans. The Fair, besides being a forecast in architectural style of what to-morrows homes, buildings, and highways may be like, is also a recording of all the knowledge that man has accumulated in his upward fight. From Democracy, in the huge two hundred foot in diameter ball called the Perisphere, where the city of tomorrow is shown, to the General Motor's Futurama where the entire highways of tomorrow are rebuilt to fit into the modern scheme of things, the underlying principles that tomorrow's world will be built with the tools of today, is manifested. In other words, we have already achieved enough perfection in those things with which we can build a greater, more beautiful America, but we have yet to put those things to a better use.

The entire Fair is one artistic masterpiece, especially so in its use of color. From the exhibitions of the old masters' paintings to American art today, and from the masterful murals on the interiors and exteriors of the buildings, one need not doubt that tomorrow's world, if the Fair is any measuring rod, will be fully beautiful.

The exhibits at the Fair give full proof that American industry and research, through private initiative, is working full blast to improve our living today. The Du Pont Company exhibits its new history, Nylon, made of coal, and an entirely new transparent chemical substance, Lucite, which may replace glass. The Goodrich Company proudly presents a new synthetic rubber, and the Chrysler Corporation shows its research into the field of rocket ship development. And those are but a few of the presentations through which private companies hope to show that they are not standing still in the forward progress of America.

The foreign and American state exhibits have essentially the same purpose which is to show the contributions of each to world trade, and the advantages of each to world trade, and the advantages of each as a vacation center. But they all express how much they need each other, and how much better it would be for all if they were at peace with one another.

Returning on our trip, we viewed the beautiful Shenandoah Valley from the Skyline Drive and, all in all, the important thing to remember is that we have here the greatest country on earth—a country whose destiny is to become a citadel of peace and liberty so strong that no tyrant, be he American or foreign, can dare to challenge it.

Home-Mixed Dog Feeds Developed

Interesting and valuable facts for dog owners and lovers have been discovered by the Alabama Experiment Station.

These rations have been found to be complete for the growth and maintenance of dogs.

1. 58 pounds of ground yellow corn, 20 pounds of wheat shorts, 29 pounds of meat scraps, 1 pound of salt and 1 pound of cod liver oil, or

2. 46 pounds of ground yellow corn, 20 pounds of wheat shorts, 29 pounds of peanut meal, 25 pounds of bone meal, 1 pound of salt, 1-2 pound of limestone and 1 pound of cod liver oil, or

3. 55 pounds of ground yellow corn, 20 pounds of wheat shorts, 10 pounds of meat scraps, 12 pounds of peanut meal, 1 pound of salt 1 pound of limestone and 1 pound of cod liver oil.

The cod liver oil may be omitted from these rations when feeding mature dogs.

These dry mixed rations may be moistened and fed raw or they may be baked in the form of bread. The food is more palatable when baked and is utilized more efficiently than when fed raw.

Vegetable Laxative With Proved Feature

The punctual, satisfying relief from constipation and its headaches, biliousness, bad breath, so often experienced by users of this laxative, is mainly due to its combination of purely vegetable ingredients.

BLACK-DRAUGHT'S principal ingredient has high medical recognition as an "intestinal tonic-laxative"; helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles.

A little of this spicy, aromatic product by simple directions at bedtime, generally allows time for a good night's rest; acts gently and thoroughly next morning.

Next time, take time-tested, economical BLACK-DRAUGHT.

Gasoline Tax Fund Reaches New High

State gasoline and lubricating oil tax collections reached a record high in June, $1,330,765, Gasoline Tax Chief, A. B. Tucker, reported to Revenue Commissioner John C. Curry.

Collections exceeded the previous June by $122,496, and June 1939, by $218,607. Each county will get a $98,821 share within the next few days.

Tucker said collection of $1,228,861 for the first nine months of this fiscal year represented an increase of $626,700 over the corresponding period of the previous year, and was $1,061,033 more than the same period of the year before that.

Each county he added, has received over $4,000 more this year from this source than received last year. The gasoline tax is earmarked for road and bridge construction and maintenance.

PURE BRED BULLS

Distribution of pure-bred bulls on Alabama farms was carried one step farther last week, when the State held a "bargain" sale of "blue-blood" guernsey animals at the Kilby dairy farm.

French Break Diplomatic Ties

Of Fleet in Naval Encounter

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"Take a tip from me," or "How to be a vice president?" might well be captions of this picture showing Vice President John N. Garner congratulating his colleague, Sen. Charles L. McNary of Oregon, upon his returning to senate duty following his selection as the G. O. P. nominee for Mr. Garner's post. Garner, never without a cigar, reportedly told McNary at the time of his congratulations that "Charlie, the first thing you must learn for this job, is the proper way to hold a cigar."

are paying their share of this defense bill every time they go to a movie, buy a package of cigarettes, drink a glass of beer or order a pint of liquor.

For the first of the new defense taxes has been placed in effect on the following commodities and at the increased rates listed:

Half cent on a gallon on liquor; $1 a barrel on beer; and movie ticket taxes will start at one cent of every 10 cent admission fee at 21 cents instead of 41 cents.

Taxes on toilet preparations increased from 10 to 11 per cent; automobiles 3 to 3 1/2 per cent; mechanical refrigerators 5 to 5 1/2 per cent; matches 5 cents to 5 1/2 cents per thousand; electrical energy, 3 to 3 1/2 per cent; gasoline 1 to 1 1/2 cents per gallon; lubricating oil 4 to 4 1/2 cents per gallon; playing cards 10 to 11 cents a pack; club dues and initiation fees 10 to 11 per cent.

All these "nuisance taxes" are expected to produce about $475,000,000 of the billion dollars to be obtained annually from the defense financing program. Major portion of the remaining sum will come from increased income taxes.

Value Received

One big reason why these new taxes are so necessary is the expansion of the U. S. fleet, now estimated to be the largest in the world—and this estimate includes the hitherto first-ranking British fleet.

Naval experts put the present strength of the United States fleet at 395 completed combat ships of 1,327,320 tons. This does not include $500,000,000 worth of new warships just ordered by the navy or nearly 100 other vessels now under construction. Latest available figures on Britain's 339 put it at 318 ships of 1,277,189 tons. While these figures are admittedly inexact they are best obtainable in Europe.

Army Expansion

Not to be outdone by the navy, the army department is moving along with its program of expansion and streamlining at an increasing tempo. Taxes that consumers were paying were being used by this branch of the service for new equipment, for intensive specialized training and for long-deferred modernization of the ranks of army officers. A recruiting drive of an additional 38,000 men is under way and is expected to bring the ranks of the regulars up to 280,000 by September.

TRUST BUSTING:

Birthday

Many laws at 50 years of age are outmoded and more often are forgotten and discarded. This is not true of the Sherman anti-trust act which passed its fiftieth birthday with the federal government having 83 anti-trust cases involving 1,580 defendants pending in U. S. courts. Instituted by Senator John Sherman of Ohio as the nation's answer to the rising fear of monopoly in those days, the same law is being vigorously used today in battling restraint of trade by big corporations.

EDUCATION:

Saving Democracy

When more than 11,000 teachers throughout the nation gathered for the seventy-eighth annual convention of the National Education association in Milwaukee, Wis., "saving democracy" and making the "schools the first line of defense" were the keynotes of the meeting. Through the major speeches and committee reports of the convention ran this same theme—U. S. schools shall continue aid in meeting "the challenge of dictators."

'Praying Colonel'

Col. Frank Knox, testifying before the Senate Naval Affairs committee as it was considering his nomination as Secretary of Navy, strikes this "praying pose" while presenting a portion of his testimony. The committee approved his nomination by a 9 to 5 vote and the military affairs committee approved the nomination of Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War by a 13-4 vote.

POLITICS:

'People's Movement'

While old guard Republicans were pondering the strange political phenomenon that boosted Wendell Willkie to be their standard bearer in the 1940 campaign, that gentleman was busy outlining plans which he hopes will aid in carrying him to victory in November.

First step was his resignation as president of Commonwealth & Southern corporation.

Then he announced the appointment of a permanent political advisory committee of 12 members to help in the campaign. This group, headed by Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, will replace no other party organization but appears to be an attempt to solidify all elements of the G. O. P. and at the same time make a bid for the nation's all-important independent vote.

First step was Willkie declared that he wanted no campaign contributions of more than $5,000, no individual cash gifts of more than $10, and attempting to limit the "big business cause" as much as possible, he stated that he wanted "no corporate contributions in any guise whether they be advertising in campaign books, programs, or anything else."

The more $1 contributions he receives, the happier he'll be, he says, for "in my judgment this is a people's movement and I want to keep it so."

Apparently the G. O. P. "oomph" man realizes that his biggest job is to keep the good graces of the grassroots public opinion that was such a vital factor in his nomination.

FAR EAST:

To Be Continued

Biggest problem facing Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek as his Chinese forces have been steadily retreating before the advance of the invading Japanese army has been the obtaining of adequate supplies—war goods and foodstuffs.

Thus when the Japanese announced that they had sealed the Chinese border with French Indo-China and that this source of supply for Kai-shek's government was definitely cut off it looked like a grave blow indeed had been struck at China's cause.

But from Chungking, provisional capital of the Chinese government, authoritative sources have announced that despite this loss, the war will be continued, for accumulated reserves will allow military operations to continue at their present pace for at least a year.

MISCELLANY:

Three Years

When Moses L. Annenberg pleaded guilty to indictment charging him with evasion of $1,217,296 in income taxes due the federal government, the "boys in the back room" were betting plenty that the wealthy Philadelphia publisher and former operator of racing news information services on a huge profitable nationwide scale, would get off with a few sharp words and a much sharper fine. But the "railbirds" failed to reckon with U. S. District Judge James H. Wilcox of Chicago, who, after hearing the testimony of the government and after listening to Moe's plea for "justice" sentenced him to serve three years in federal prison.

Southwest Texas battled cloud-burst-swollen streams in a damaging flood that took at least four lives, left hundreds homeless and caused property damage estimated at least a million dollars.

A new federal prison for correctional care of 600 male prisoners has been opened by the justice department in Denver, Colo.

Extraordinary precautions have been put into effect at the port of New Orleans because of the danger of fifth columnists and possible saboteurs, according to the port commission of that city.

Democratic Convention

Women's Program

The majority of the women delegates are expected to arrive at the Convention a couple of days before the opening session on Monday, July 15.

The first big event for women delegates is a dinner at The Palmer House on Saturday, July 13, for National Committeewomen, state vice chairmen women delegates and alternates and distinguished visitors.

The next day Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, National Committeewoman from Illinois and Chicago's official convention hostess, will give a lunch in the Crystal Room of The Palmer House for all National Committeewomen. On the second morning of the Convention the Illinois Women's Democratic Clubs are sponsoring a breakfast for women delegates and alternates and national committeewomen.

Women's Division headquarters will be at the Hotel Stevens, in Chicago, with the Democratic National Committee.

State delegations are establishing headquarters in various hotels.

WOODEN CHECKS ARE OK

Manhattan, Kan.—When a plasterer completed a job at C. W. Mullen's home he figured his bill on a small board and handed it to Mullen.

Mullen simply turned it over, and then wrote out a check on the other side. The plasterer took the board to the bank, shoved it through the teller's window and the teller paid without lifting an eyebrow.

ANG To Participate In August Maneuvers

Approximately 95 per cent of Alabama's national guardsmen will participate in the August maneuvers of the Fourth Corps Area along the Sabine River in Louisiana, according to Adj. Gen. Ben Smith.

"This is high," Smith said, "but I am confident it will prove an accurate prediction."

There are 3,826 officers and enlisted men in the Alabama guard, and Smith said this was only two officers and two enlisted men under Alabama's quota.

Seventy thousand troops will participate in the Louisiana war games.

Henry G. DeRamus Passes At Selma

SELMA—The funeral for Henry Grady DeRamus, 45, World War veteran and member of the Selma police force for the past five years, who died at 7:10 p. m. Sunday in a local hospital, less than three hours after he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, was held at 5 p. m. Tuesday from the family home here. Burial was in New Live Oak Cemetery, with Breslin-Service in charge.

Reporting off duty at 1 p. m. Sunday, Offices DeRamus attended the Selma-Gadsden baseball game at Rowell Field, and had returned to the downtown section after the game driving his own automobile. He collapsed at the wheel of his car which figured in a minor accident with another car, as the officer endeavored to park at the curb near a local theatre. Calling for aid J. P. Wright was the first person to reach the officer's side.

Officer DeRamus, who served on the morning shift on the third beat, was well known and liked by his fellow officers and the public. Prior to his connection with the city, Mr. DeRamus was employed by the Southern Railway. He was a war veteran, having served in France in 1918. He was also a Mason.

A native of Verbena, Chilton County.

ty, Mr. DeRamus is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Fisher DeRamus, Selma; one son, Raymond DeRamus, who reached the city Monday night from the Marine Training School at Quantico, Va.; his father, T. J. DeRamus, of Billingsley; three sisters Mrs. Will Ledbetter and Mrs. J. F. Williams, both of Billingsley; and Mrs. Ernest McLean, of Stanton; three brothers, J. L. DeRamus, Selma; C. P. DeRamus, Washington, and T. J. DeRamus, Jr., of Billingsley.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson

Contributing a Column of Comment Each Week for Our Columns

With booming voice, jutting jaw, military figure, General Hugh Samuel Johnson is a striking personage. Today his nickname is "Old Iron Pants." In his West Point days and later in the army, he was called "Tuffy."

Tough he is—But he is not devoid of sentiment or of learning. Who's Who lists General Johnson as soldier, lawyer and manufacturer. But while he was still a young man doing army service in the Philippines, he was writing books of fiction for boys. He has a native gift for words, and he writes as he speaks, with bluntness, yet with picturesqueness, and often with humor and apt allusions from the classics and the Bible.

The general was born August 5, 1882, of old pioneer stock on an American frontier amid Indians and buffaloes at Fort Scott, Kansas. As a boy he lived in Oklahoma among Cherokees, Choctaws, and Comanches. He ran away to enlist with the Rough Riders in 1898, but his father caught up with him and brought him home. Then came West Point, service at Fort Clark, Texas, at San Francisco during the earthquake, in the Philippines, and back in the U. S. under General Enoch Crowder, Crowder advised him to study law for the legal department of the army and made it possible for him to do so at the University of California. In 1916, Johnson was with Pershing in the chase after Villa.

Now came the World War. Recalled to Washington by General Crowder, Captain Johnson wrote the first drafts of what was to become the draft law. He also sat in as a member of the War Industries Board, aiding its chairman, Bernard Baruch, in organizing American industry under the war codes. It was this training that brought him years afterward the appointment as NRA administrator.

After the war, Johnson engaged for 15 years in private business, first in the manufacture of plows and other farm implements as chairman of the board of the Moline Plow Co. and later as head of the research staff of Bernard Baruch.

It is from a background of experience in war strategy, business, industry, law and governmental work that the general today writes his column. Added to this background of experience in his absolute independence of party and of faction, and his talent to coin phrases that capture the nation's imagination. A blunt, colorful person, General Hugh S. Johnson writes a blunt, colorful column. His opinions are, of course, his own.

President Says Freedom Essential To Peace

President Roosevelt says that the billions now being poured into war machines must be scrapped, if a lasting peace is to be secured to the world.

He offers the following four points of freedom as essentials to peace when the time comes to propose it:

1. Freedom of information. He said that meant not only freedom of the press but also all of channels through which information moves. America must receive news of what is happening in all parts of the country and the rest of the world, he said.

2. Freedom from want, brought about by tearing down cultural and commercial barriers between nations.

3. Freedom of religion, which Mr. Roosevelt said had been preserved fairly well by democracies but not by other forms of government.

4. Freedom of expression, with any individual permitted to state his opinions unless he advocated overthrow of his government.

Farmers Will Not Gain

"We have greater surpluses than ever before in all our history. We have 12,000,000 bales of cotton, a full year's supply; 675,000,000 bushels of corn; 350,000,000 bushels of wheat and tremendous supplies of meat. We have the average to produce additional supplies of enormous size next year if there is a demand. With our increased efficiency of production, we don't know our own strength when it comes to the production of food and fiber."

O'Neal, who has been president of the Farm Bureau since 1931, warned, however, against a "repetition of the deflation which agriculture experienced after the World War."

Auto Quiz No. 5

1. d. no apparent defects. Many drivers, after an accident, insist that the gas pedal stuck, or that the brakes suddenly failed or that something else went wrong. Actually, from 93 to 95 per cent of all vehicles involved in accidents are found to be in apparently good condition with no major defects noted in steering, braking, lighting, etc.

2. b. 18 to 24 years. Recent figures indicate that the most dangerous ages are 18 and 19; that drivers under 20 on a driver 60 have the highest accident rates.

3. False. You should move him only enough to prevent his being run over again, then make him comfortable and call an ambulance. Hundreds of deaths are caused by the bungling of well-meaning but ill-advised bystanders whose first thought is to put the injured person in an automobile and rush him to the hospital. This often results in compound fractures, concussions, punctured lungs.

Alabama's One Crop System Keeps Farm Income At Low Level

Alabama, one of the richest states in the union in natural resources, stands next to the bottom in per capita income, because her farmers, as a rule, are on the one-crop basis and buy living necessities from other sections.

MacIn Smith, vice-president of the Birmingham Trust & Savings Company and president of the Alabama Bankers Association, speaking at the weekly luncheon of the Birmingham Real Estate Board yesterday, stressed the facts and urged the realtors to do their part in improving farming conditions in the state. They can do this, he said, by helping to secure markets for farm crops and in soil conservation and soil rebuilding.

Mr. Smith told the realtors that Alabama annually imports foods costing $5,000,000, of which $15,000,000 is pork products, while her cotton crop yields an average of only about $70,000,000. This condition must change, he said, before Alabama industry will have a market in Alabama and the farmers be able to increase their income and buy other things than absolute necessities.

Chairman Floyd White, announced that the board's annual picnic will be Wednesday, July 24, instead of July 25 as previously planned, at Robuck County Club.—Birmingham News.

Three New Alabama Laws The Outgrowth Of Europe's War

Three new Alabama laws are a direct outgrowth of the situation resulting from Europe's war, were signed by Gov. Frank M. Dixon last week.

The laws provide that:

1. It is a violation of the law, in Alabama to wear the uniform or give the salute of a foreign government.

2. Any State employee called into military service can be sure of getting his State job back on his return.

3. The Governor may use surplus military department funds for any new National Guard organization that may be allotted to Alabama.

The first bill, which early in the session was labeled by legislators, the "anti-bund" bill, was introduced by Senator Charles A. Stakely of Montgomery and passed both houses with only three opposing votes. Violators of the law will be subject to a fine of up to $1,000 and to prison terms of not exceeding one year. Veterans of Foreign Wars sponsored enactment of the measure. It mentions "storm troopers" specifically and includes uniforms and salutes of any and all foreign governments indiscriminately.

The bill concerning State workers on military leave was passed unanimously by the Legislature. Gov. Dixon had, several weeks ago when Personnel Director I. J. Browder's Department was compiling a list of all State employees who now hold affiliation with any military organization, promised signing of the measure when it reached his desk.

The second military bill was born of Washington reports that Alabama would receive additional Guard units. The legislature passed identical bills providing for distribution of the new State Code—except that a clerical error was found in the House measure.

Quail And Chukkers

The State Department of Conservation started distribution of 8,000 quail in Alabama Tuesday, Ben Morgan, chief of the game and fisheries department, announced.

Morgan said that 200 quail were allotted to each county and those counties who have already filed application for quail were taken care of first. The department acknowledged around 12 applications from Montgomery County.

According to Morgan the quail farms operated by the State have 8,000 quail and 600 chukkers for distribution, and that approximately 2,800 eggs a week are being gathered and at present 14,000 eggs are being hatched in incubators.

The 1940 edition of the American Medical Directory shows there are now 2,075 physicians in Alabama—494 fewer than in 1916.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

MANPOWER PROBLEM

A group of 240 distinguished educators, clergymen, writers and business leaders, have just declared against any "peace-time" conscription. They say it is un-American, totalitarian, un-democratic and that it would disrupt business and industry.

They say that highly skilled men needed for any new mechanized, modernized war can be had by voluntary enlistment "under pay schedules sufficiently attractive." This protest springs from incomplete understanding of the principle of selective service.

There are three steps in the selective process—registration, classification and induction. Only the last is in any sense conscription. Registration is universal enrollment of the manpower of the nation. Classification is an examination of them all to see what are the special education, skills and aptitudes of each man, and which can be classified for military or other service with the least possible inconvenience to himself, the greatest consideration for his own wishes, the slightest disturbance to our economic system—industry, commerce, agriculture education—and, above all, domestic relations and the dependency of others.

Class I-A, at the beginning at least, should comprise all men who could serve with none or the very slightest impairment of any of these standards. When that class is determined, the order of their going or "induction," is determined by a national lottery or "drawing" already conducted in Washington covering all men registered. At this point, and especially during peace, or before the drain of war has created any real manpower problem, a provision used during the latter part of the 1917-18 draft preserves all the virtues of the volunteer system, with none of its disruptive and sometimes hateful consequences. We called it "volunteering within call A-1."

Class A-1, in our present situation would contain many times the number we need. It would be made up of the most available men of this nation—men who are best fitted for service and who, in the balance of responsibilities between national and private obligations have the least of the latter. Regardless of the ultimate compulsion of their "order number," those who want to go first should be permitted to volunteer.

The inducement of topping high current civilian competitive rates of pay for voluntary enlistment, won't work. It carries a hint of the stigma of the old mercenary armies—which is worse than that of the old "press-gang" conscript armies—and it would make defensive costs prohibitive. Major Eliot's recent suggestion of a few extra dollars added to $21 monthly base pay, wouldn't induce the kind of men we need to quit their jobs.

A principal deterrent to voluntary enlistment is that the term is long and rigid. It should be one year or for duration of the emergency.

Few men want to mortgage away three years of their lives in this rapidly changing world on any ground except patriotism.

We seem to be galloping in all directions on this manpower problem. Under the federal bureau of education and WPA we have begun training men as mechanics who have assumed no obligation to serve. Under the volunteer plan, we are enlisting men regardless of their mechanical training. The whole effort is hit-or-miss and haphazard. If the true principles of selective service could be expertly applied on the basis of experience, we would have the most fair, flexible, efficient manpower system in the world.

RUBBER AND TIN

Some of its esteemed contemporaries do not agree with this column's rebuttal of the constant claims that we are dependent on the British and Dutch East Indies for rubber and tin and that it was only the concurrence of England that has enabled us to maintain the Monroe Doctrine.

Nobody has contested the facts that we could make better rubber than we buy or, that by using conservation, substitution and Bolivian tin, we could get by without East Indian tin. But it is said that it would be inconvenient, take a long time and cost too much.

I challenge all of this. As to rubber, the fact is that if we, who use 55 per cent of all the world's rubber, turned to mass production on that vast tonnage, it would cost no more than the present price—which is low.

Quite apart from all this, long ago it was reported by the President's own national resources committee that for less than the price of two battleships, we could lay in enough tin independent of foreign sources for the reasonably expected duration of any war. This administration didn't do it. It seems to have some strange reluctance to take Uncle Sam's whiskers out of that revolving wringer in the Far East. Instead of buying vital tin and rubber, it bought billions of dollars worth of useless silver and unnecessary gold.

Europe's War Creating American Industries

Although the war in Europe is only a few months old, it already is beginning to create new industries in the United States, according to data compiled by Harold C. Rushmore, secretary and purchasing agent for the International Textbook Company and International Correspondence Schools.

"The war-time development of industry in the United States is by no means confined to the production of munitions, planes and other war supplies," Mr. Rushmore said. "Those things are temporary. But the shutting off of supplies from abroad has brought about the development of industries for the production of many things we formerly imported. The production of these things in the United States might well continue after the war is over."

Imports of drawing instruments, formerly received in large quantities from Germany and Switzerland, have been virtually stopped, he said. As a result a company has been organized in New Jersey to manufacture them.

Diamonds, essential to the operation of many industries, were cut for the most part in Holland and Belgium. Since the invasion of those countries there has been a marked increase in the cutting of diamonds in New York.

Recalling the development of the dye industry and progress in petroleum refining during the first World War, Mr. Rushmore said he believes American industry will solve the problems presented by shortages of raw materials such as rubber, silk, tin, and many manufactured articles such as precision instruments which heretofore have been imported from Europe.

Montgomery Municipal Airport Leased For U. S. Training Center

War Department and City of Montgomery officials have agreed on details concerning leasing the Montgomery Municipal Airport to the Army Air Corps for use as part of the huge Southeastern Air Training Center, Senator Lister Hill has announced in Washington.

A rental fee of one dollar a year was agreed on at a Washington conference last week, in which the Senator represented the Montgomery interest. Eastern Airlines transport planes will continue to use the field for scheduled passenger and mail stops.

The municipal port will be used as the basic training field for the Montgomery flying center, and Maxwell Field, now the Air Corp Tactical School here will be converted into a secondary training school.

Representing the Army in the conference with Senator Hill were Major Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of the Air Corps; Brig. Gen. Jacob E. Fickel, Assistant to the Air Corps Chief; Lieut.

Co. Arthur B. McDaniel, Senator said.

Gov. Dixon has appointed Brasell of Phenix City to fill the expired term of Judge W. J. Bird ceased.

NECK AND KNEE WASHING ISN'T SO BAD

WE kind of like being clean now that we have an electric water heater at our house—there's always plenty of hot water!

Pop likes it too, for shaving and a hot shower to cool him off when he gets in a sweat from something Mother's gotten him to do around the house. He can jump into the tub without having to build a fire and wait for the water to heat.

Mom's crazy about our electric water heater—all the hot water she wants whenever she turns the faucet—without any mess or waiting.

INSTALL AN ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

ROUND MODEL
For installation in basement or other locations.

FULLY automatic, never requires any attention, seldom gets out of order—once installed you can forget it. Thousands of users consider their electric water heater their most satisfactory electrical appliance. May be installed in basement or in a corner of the kitchen, where it helps give to the kitchen that modern electrified appearance.

Costs less than a hundred dollars, installed. Cash or terms. Low operating cost—electricity to heat water comes to you at the lowest rate—1c a kilowatt hour (slightly more on rural lines).

TAILORED SQUARE MODEL

Conducted By Miss MATTIE JO BARBER

World conditions are such that farm products should put much attention on the making and preserving of food products. Mrs. J. B. Hicks of the Shoults community believes that the first objective in living is to have the best of living to have an adequate supply of canned products in her pantry. The importance of the preservation of products she has recently made an inventory of the number of products on hand. Finding her supply inadequate for her family needs has had five dozen quart containers and six to add another six dozen.

With the reduction of our exports of food to European markets and the uncertainty of the amount that may be received it is more important than ever that the farms of our country be self-sufficient by producing enough food for our families. Relief food can be reduced when farms are made self-sustaining units.

The Annual Farm and Home Week program will be held for farm men and women starting at 8:00 p. m., Monday, August 5th and continuing through the morning, August 9th. All county and home agents in Alabama will attend this meeting along with four men and four farm women from Chilton county.

Mrs. R. R. Suttley of Clanton, president of the Chilton County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs is expected to attend this meeting. She will be the official delegate from this county. Mrs. Belle Dorminey of Union Grove Club will represent the county in the State All-Purpose Dress Review. Mrs. Dorminey was awarded first place in the county-wide contest sponsored by all Home Demonstration Clubs in the county. Mrs. Annie V. Moore of Alpine Community and one other person who has not yet been selected is expected to attend along with four men who have not yet been named.

The program for Farm and Home week is arranged primarily for leadership training and is similar to programs in former years.

Of the vegetables to be planted this month, rutabagas should surely not be overlooked. Most every family enjoys eating this vegetable, but so few take advantage of our opportunity to grow them. Rutabagas should be planted during July. Select a low piece of ground for this vegetable and plant at a time when there is plenty of moisture in the ground, if possible. Plant in rows just as you would ordinary turnips to facilitate spraying or dusting for the control of insects that might appear. Plant lice are usually the only serious enemies of the rutabaga, and they can be controlled by dusting with nicotine or spraying with nicotine sulphate at the rate of two teaspoonsful to one gallon of water.

If you have not already planted to make seed for your late crop, it is suggested that you use cuttings instead of planting the seed this late. Many prefer to use cuttings for the late crop instead of setting plants. Sizes being equal, the cuttings will produce fruit earlier. For rooting these cuttings, a bed of sand four or five inches deep is preferred. This should be so located that it will be partially shaded and convenient for watering in case of very dry weather. Cuttings should be taken from the tenderest shoots, cut into pieces about four or five inches long, and placed in the bed as prepared. These cuttings will begin to put out roots almost at once and should be transplanted to the field about ten days after placing in the bed. If the plot of ground set aside for this crop of tomatoes contains sufficient moisture, or if there is much rainfall at this time, the cuttings may be rooted directly where they are to grow. Moisture is the limiting factor in the growth of all young plants at this season, and this is true with the cabbage and collards as well as the tomatoes.

In many sections of the State the Mexican Bean Beetle is causing quite a bit of damage. This pest can be controlled by dusting with one pound of calcium arsenate and nine pounds of hydrated lime, thoroughly mixed and applied while the dew is on. This material must be dusted on the under side of the leaves, since this pest feeds on the underside. As a precaution in keeping down the number of beetles, all bean vines should be destroyed as soon as they stop bearing.

Mattie Jo Barber, County Agent.

SARDIS NEWS

In spite of the rainy weather we had one of the best revivals that has been at old Sardis in many years. We are thankful that there are still some who have the old time religion. Our pastor, Bro. Weaver, delivered a wonderful message at each service. The Lord was there in a great way and you missed a blessing if you didn't come and take a part in the services. There were twenty-four additions to the church.

Miss Leola Grooms spent the week with Miss Willie Dean Ratliff and attended the revival.

Miss Elsie Margaret Roebuck from Mobile is spending some time with her father Mr. Kent Roebuck.

Everybody remember Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. Sunday night at 7:30, every Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock. We invite everybody out to be with us and help carry on the work of the Lord.

Remember Bro. Weaver will be back next First Saturday night and Sunday and Sunday night which is August 3, and 4. The Baptizing will also be on Sunday. Everybody come.

REVIEWS and PREVIEW

By Irvin Lande

The German government through their censored papers have informed the United States not to meddle in European affairs. We have been warned by Herr Hitler to "bury our heads in the sand" and to wait until he is ready to decide our fate before we do anything to protect our interests in this Hemisphere.

Undoubtedly, the totalitarian era in Europe which calls itself the Third Reich has forgotten, or does not care to remember, that over one hundred and fifty years ago on this continent, an aggregation of thirteen states waged a terrific war against immense odds and won. That was the first war America waged for independence. But still Europe was not satisfied and in 1812, these United States waged a second war for independence—the war of 1812—which was a war for freedom from European commercial bondage. That was the beginning of the history of a new nation, a nation conceived in liberty with the belief that all men have the right to make their own living in their own way so long as they do not interfere with the rights of others.

Undoubtedly, Hitler and his cohorts have forgotten that the American people are not willing to capitulate those rights which our forefathers fought and died for. Der Fuehrer seems to have forgotten that and also the fact that America stands today united against foreign aggression.

Recently too, the German government has warned us against any treaties with South American countries that would benefit Britain and injure Germany. With the coming of the Pan American conference at Havana, Cuba, this month, the German government has tried to instill into all the twenty-one American republics a fear of Germany so that we will not take steps toward preventing an inevitable Nazi menace from lurking on these shores.

In other words, the time has again come when we shall either fight, economically or physically, to protect our rights and interests, or our right conceded to Hitler a victory. Our future foreign policy is so unmistakably obvious and absolutely foolish none of us can dare to miscomprehend it.

And with the state of affairs between these United States and Europe at this point, this week in Chicago, the Democratic National Convention will choose its candidate for the Presidency, and all indications point to the fact that President Roosevelt will be drafted for a third term.

If Mr. Roosevelt would refuse a third term, he would be acclaimed by the American people as having done a very noble thing, indeed, in not trying to break the third term tradition. And if he accepts a third term nomination, he will be acclaimed by all the people of the United States, excepting, of course, the most prejudiced and ignorant, as having put aside all his personal pleasures to take the helm of the ship of state to guide the United States through, without a doubt, the most perilous time in its history, and to lead these United States away from another involvement in an European war. Therefore, whatever President Roosevelt does, we can be assured that the plans have been well laid.

Obviously then, we must consider the chances of Mr. Wendell L. Wilkie, who is the Republicans' choice, against Mr. Roosevelt. At the outset, we must first say that Mr. Wilkie has never before been in politics, that he has no experience in foreign affairs. Nevertheless, Mr. Wilkie is a very brilliant man, and in normal, peaceful times, he would be a very good man to have as chief executive for he is an economist and knows how to run a government. But these are not normal, peaceful times, and therefore we need today, as never before, an expert in foreign affairs as our president. Therefore if Mr. Roosevelt opposes Mr. Wilkie in the election this Fall, then the logical and only choice is Mr. Roosevelt. The election should be a landslide like never before in American political history.

And that's the news up to now.

Girls Are Advised To Build-Up For Relief

Lack of knowledge causes many a weak, unenriched girl a lot of suffering!

Many others, however, know how the headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by the proper use of CARDUI.

Some take it a few days before and during "the time," to help ease periodic distress. But CARDUI's principal use is to help increase appetite; stimulate the flow of gastric juice; so aid digestion, assist in building up physical resistance and thus help reduce periodic distress. Women have used CARDUI for over 50 years.

MISSION STUDY INSTITUTE

The Mission Study Institute closed its three days session at the First Baptist church July 11.

Many interesting speakers were present to address the large congregations that assembled at the church to hear the inspirational messages given by these workers in the field of Christianity.

It was the privilege of those who attended the Institute to hear Dr. J. F. Plainfield of Tampa, Fla., missionary to the Italians relate in his simple and beautiful manner, stories concerning his life and telling of the great joy his work with the Italian people has given him.

Miss Mollie Cohen gave a very touching story of her life and gave many facts that made us realize the necessity of the Plan of Salvation being brought to the Jewish people.

"The Future of Our Work in the Orient" was brought to us by Rev. (Cliff) Cunningham a returned missionary from Japan. It is interesting to note that even though Japan has been engaged in warfare with China for months the gospel as reached the hearts of many Japanese people who have been converted from their idol worship into true service for the Master.

On Wednesday Miss Betha Wallis of the Good Will center in Birmingham gave an interesting account of her work among the colony of Italians to whom she is seeking to teach more of the Word of God and the love of Jesus.

interesting as it is the land where Jesus walked and talked when he was here upon the earth. Mrs. Cody is the vice-president of Alabama's W. M. U. Convention.

The devotionals were given each morning by Mrs. E. P. Jones, Young People's leader of Birmingham Association, and were greatly enjoyed by all who were present.

Dr. F. M. Barnes executive mission secretary of Alabama Baptists, delivered the closing address of the Institute.

Adding greatly to each day's program was the lovely music so ably rendered by Mrs. Raymond Mims, director of singing and Mrs. John B. DeRamus, organist.

Others taking responsible parts in the Institute were: Mr. Iveloy Bishop, Robert Lankford, Miss Sidney Cunningham, Miss Betty Rose Dillon, Miss Margaret Speake and Mrs. R. S. Marshall Executive W. M. U. Secretary of Alabama.

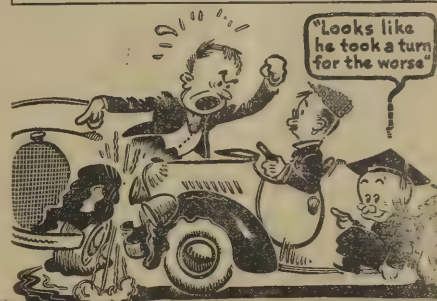

During the three days we enjoyed pleasant associations with representatives from the various churches in Unity-Chilton Association.

THORSBY INSTITUTE NEWS

On Friday last several of the members of the Ladies Guild were called from their daily household tasks to help with the canning program at Thorsby Institute dining hall. After a late start, the ladies put a total of fifty-four qts. in glass. The most of which came from the Institute garden. Mesdames Gonzales, J. O. Johnson, Phelan and Campbell were present.

The next regular meeting of the Guild will be a night meeting and set aside especially as Men's Night. The weather permitting it will be held on the lawn of the residence of T. E. Campbell. This get-together will be in the form of old fashioned ice cream supper, with lots of home made ice cream, and home made entertainment. It will be open to the public and proceeds will be used for the Guild. This meeting is planned by the men of the Guild, a sort of male auxiliary, and gives promise of a fine evening, weather permitting.

The Institute Library is open on Tuesdays and Fridays from eight until eleven and a number of people patronize it regularly. The public is cordially invited.

Neighbors "South Of The Border" Want Us To Visit Them

According to advice received from Lucas de Palacio, general manager of the Mexican Tourist Association, Mexico offers the tourist and traveler a real bargain for his or her travel dollars, and that organization is doing its utmost this year to encourage Americans to pay their country a visit and thus become better acquainted with their neighbors "south of the border."

Mr. Palacio states that the Government of Mexico, in cooperation with its railways, the Tourist Association, and other bodies has arranged itineraries for visitors which will insure them a maximum of sight-seeing within a minimum period of time. These programs have been arranged with the average two-weeks' vacation in mind and include the operation of special trains between the border and Mexico City, by the National Railways of Mexico with leg-stretching stops at all points of interest.

The Tourist Association states that their country is especially interested in having teachers visit Mexico, to being felt that they are especially qualified to better international understanding and good will. It is stated that the World Federation of Education Associations, which include such bodies as the American Parent-Teachers' Association, has perfected, through Mexico's cooperation, a comprehensive sight-seeing program through the medium of low cost all-expense tours, which will in effect for a period of eight weeks this summer.

Detailed information about the best way to visit and see Mexico can be secured from any railroad ticket office.

By order of high officials of the Federal Power Company Commission, all visiting at the hydro-electric plants on the Coosa and other rivers is strictly forbidden. The name becomes effective this week. This is not merely a ruling from Alabama Power Co. officials, but it comes from authorities high in the Federal commission.

This word is published for the purpose of saving many visitors the trouble of probably driving several miles and then not be permitted to visit the plants. The public will please take notice.

L. & N. Railroad Business Barometer

Total cars handled by the L. & N. Railroad in June 1940 registered 83.5 per cent of normal on the company's Business Barometer, according to the July 1940 issue of the L. & N. Employees' Magazine. This was a gain of 8.2 points over the same month last year, but a decrease of 4.2 points under the May 1940 level.

Total cars handled in the first half of 1940 (January-June, inclusive) registered 82.9 per cent of normal—a gain of 14.7 points over the same period in 1939 (68.2 per cent).

CLANTON SCOUTS OFF TO CAMP

Troop 57 Boy Scouts of America, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Joe Earl Gowan will leave Sunday July 21 for Camp Arrowhead, on the Coosa river. Approximately 15 of the local boys will take advantage of this summer outing and at the same time get the advantage of attending Arrowhead while ten councilors from Birmingham Troopers are there. This will be a great help to the members of Troop 57 in their study of Scoutcraft.

Scoutmaster Gowan says that they expect to return to Clanton about Wednesday.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

F. D.'s Personality Dominates 1940 Democratic Convention; No U. S. Troops for Europe

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Right up to convention time, Franklin D. Roosevelt kept the country guessing on third term plans. The Democratic National Convention, meeting in Chicago, however, felt at all times the weight of the President's personality. The sketch herewith is by the famous artist, Helge Sahlin.

YE CAMPAIGN: Fur Flies High

Wendell Willkie appointed Congressman Joe Martin of Massachusetts as his campaign manager, and then flew for Colorado on a vacation. En route, the Willkie airplane stopped in Nebraska. Willkie wisely cracked to the crowd like this: "When I was out here three or four weeks ago, they said I brought rain. If you folks vote for me in November, we'll have the rain and the sunshine of economic progress."

The folks thought that was just fine. John Hamilton remained executive director of the Republican national committee, though he was retiring as national chairman. Russell Davenport was Willkie's personal representative, and Oren Root kept busy co-ordinating volunteer groups and independent organizations. Ten newspaper men, three photographers, and two telegraphists stuck to Willkie, and to the airplane: a 21-passenger DC-3.

At this point the Democrats had become more and more chaotic, due to lack of information about III term plans. Farley had been to Hyde Park, had learned the "truth," but came back to New York saying that it was all a secret. McNutt had indicated that he knew about it, too, but Mrs. Roosevelt had said she didn't know a thing. Speculation was rife up to the time the national Democratic convention opened. Willkie, of course, had been praying for the III term (or so he said), in order to beat it down. But he still had not said anything extended, at that point, about foreign affairs.

ARMY NOTE: New York

Squadron A is the crack high-society national guard cavalry outfit in New York city. It used to wear snappy gray European hussar uniforms. It plays polo, and likes to talk horses, and has a fine 50-year record. It turns out good riders, amid plenty of conviviality. Then—a third of it got mechanized, and received 19 armored cars, instead of 97 horses.

The Seventh regiment is the crack high-society national guard infantry outfit in New York city. It used to wear fancy gray "1812" uniforms, with red stripes. It still does, on parade. It is more than 130 years old. Then—it turned into an anti-aircraft outfit, attached to the coast artillery, hardly the most aristocratic branch of the service.

WINGS 11 UP: Soaring Aloft

The United States aviation corps may soon get planes capable of soaring 11 miles aloft. Thus, we can bomb from 36,000 to 40,000 feet up in the air, while effective anti-aircraft fire is only good for 30,000 feet. These flying fortresses are good for 300 miles per hour in the really high altitudes, and it takes 40,000 parts to put one together. The U. S. government, it was reported, may order 1,000 of the super-ships.

WHAT A JOB: Re-employed

The luckless duke of Windsor, who used to be King Edward VIII, got another job, at last. They made him governor of the Bahama islands, 20 of them inhabited, off the southeast coast of Florida. It was a $12,000 annual job, whose main function was to reign over ex-slaves and tourists from the United States. Capital of the Bahamas is Nassau, on New Providence island, where they have a nice beach, and a saloon of merit called "Dirty Dick's." Windsor used to have 500,000,000 people to reign over. Now he has 68,000, plus 6 officers and 124 policemen. Critics said the basic idea was to get him out of Europe, in case the Germans took over England. Hitler, they thought, might cut brother George, and reinstate brother Edward, who is better liked all round. (On the other hand, Queen Elizabeth is much better liked than Duchess Warfield.)

M. PETAIN: Approved

While the British and American newspapers were hammering old Marshal Petain, the saviour of Verdun, who doesn't like Winston Churchill, the Vatican came out and declared that Petain was the best possible man to lead France. The Vatican said that the Marshal inspired French youth, and added that he represented the "best French tradition."

Petaim is a good Catholic, and a close friend of the Catholic dictator of Spain, his former pupil, Generalissimo Franco. French General Weygand, who aids Petain in the new Italo-type French government, is also devoutly religious, although Pierre Laval, third member of the Gallic triumvirate, has a non-clerical background. Laval is father-in-law of the official heir of Lafayette. While the Vatican approved, the "new" France got under way. The senate was to be appointed for life, while the chamber was to represent trades, jobs, and occupations, as in the corporative state of Mussolini. Both senate and chamber were to be largely advisory, and trade unions were to be abolished, on the Italic plan.

The professional trade groups, in the chamber, were to take the place of unions, and of political parties as well. The slogan of liberty-equality-fraternity (dating from 1789) was to be supplanted by another trio: labor-family-nation. This, again, was based on the fascist system of Rome. One wit put it like this: "When in Paris, do as the Romans do."

RACIAL: Interesting

One of our foreign commentators raised an interesting point. It was this. He said that although Germans are currently unpopular, for excellent reasons, the American system was still functioning splendidly. To prove his statement, he pointed out that Wendell Willkie was of Germanic family origin. But this did not stop Mr. Willkie, able and magnetic and thoroughly likeable, from becoming the Republican candidate for President of the United States at a hectic time.

Hitler himself, said the commentator, was born in Austria, with only one Germanic parent, and one Czech parent (his mother). But Willkie was born in America, he continued, of German parents. He concluded that Willkie was a better type of the Germanic stock than the rampant Fuehrer. It was interesting to note, in addition, that our General Pershing's family name was Ploersching, in the "correct" spelling.

Also, the Roosevelts have a Dutch origin, which sometimes is mistaken for German.

III REICH: Complexities

The Hitlerian domain was sorted out into the following, to make its sway less confusing, for it covered a lot of ground in several main categories:

1. Hitler himself, plus the Nazi party itself.
2. Germany, including Austria, the Sudeten, Danzig, Posen, etc.
3. Protectorates of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Denmark, Luxembourg, Holland, Belgium, of which Denmark is the pet, with the Slovaks, Norse and Dutch next.
4. Fascist France—half victim, half neutral, a wee bit of an ally.
5. Italy, an ally, active.
6. Japan, an ally, passive. Also Spain and Hungary.
7. Russia, a treaty partner, uncertain. (Russia wants Constantinople.)
8. Client States of Sweden, Rumania. (Through Sweden and Hungary Germany has army transit rights. Spain and Rumania might come into the war on the German side.)

There was much talk about a single currency for Hitler-Europe, to promote "continental" free trade. The U. S. A. now has 80 per cent of the world's gold, $20,000,000,000 of it, and if it was loaned to Hitler-Europe, it would have to open wide its doors to Hitler-European goods. Hitler's "continental" currency, it was suggested, might not be based on gold at all, which would leave Yankee Kentucky out on a limb. Said a foreign statesman: "An axis victory means the end of gold slavery."

Pates Chapel News

We are glad to say that the health is good in our community at the present except a few cases of whooping cough which is just about well. But we are sorry and the family of Mr. Robinson have all of our greatest sympathy for the loss of their little baby which was buried here last week. Its death was caused by the whooping cough.

As Sunday was our annual singing day our singing was a great success. Everyone seemed to enjoy it and made themselves at home. Folks that is the way to enjoy singing.

Opening song by the chairman, Mr. Cobb, followed by prayer by Mr. Roper and other directors which were: Mr. Northcutt, Mr. Littlejohn, Mr. Culp, Mr. Cobb, Miss Bernice Cobb, Mr. Jones, Mr. Glascock, Mr. Grant, Mr. Childress, Mr. Chester Gibson, Mrs. Line Oats, Mr. Buckhalter, Mr. Jones, Mr. Grooms, Benson Scott, Crew Burkhalter. The Pianist were Mrs.

Roper, Mrs. Lowery, Miss Lowery, Mr. Maddox. Quartettes, Friendly Four, Liberty Four, Jones Four.

Singing was dismissed at noon by Rev. Nix. Afternoon singing was opened by the chairman, Mr. Cobb, followed by prayer by Bro. Nix. The singing was closed by prayer by Bro. Lowery.

Attend our services, Sunday School each Sunday at 10:00 o'clock. Every Second and 4th Sunday and preaching.

Our revival begins the fourth Sunday in this month, Bro. Morris Hudgens and Bro. Jinkins will be with us.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A delightful affair was the informal birthday party given in honor of Master William Irvin at his home in Verbena. He and his little friends were assisted in entertaining by his cousin, Nell Frances Scott, Miss Agnes Kelley and Mrs. Renzy Mitchell of Verbena. Party colors were white and pink.

and appeared in the favors and refreshments. The table in the dining room was lace covered and covered with birthday cake and its bouquet was of dahlias. The prizes were won in two contests by Master Ocie Franklin Brooks and Master Hollis Messer. Those present were Evey Lee Mitchell, Hollis Messer, Lillian Mitchell, Ocie Franklin Brooks, Hazel Messer, William Irvin, Edna Carr, Leon Irvin, Gean Brooks, Donald Mitchell and Betty Gean Scott.

NAMES ... in the news

Gen. Juan Almazan, Mexican presidential candidate, praised the "success" of the Mexican election, and lauded its small loss of life. There were 50 killed.

John Dewey, philosopher and educationalist, returned to teach at Columbia university for the first time in 10 years. He is 80 years old, but addressed 1,000 students with all his old steam.

Col. Brehon Somervell, WPA administrator in New York, ripped out four airport murals at Floyd Bennett field in Brooklyn. It had taken four years to paint the four. Obviously, said the rippers, they were red communist propaganda, and so indeed they appeared to be. A pioneer parachute jumper looked suspiciously like Stalin, although the jumper really was Franz Reichelt, an Austrian tailor. (He had been killed, jumping from the French Eiffel tower, back in 1912.) Soviet red stars and Spanish loyalist flyers also appeared in the funniest places.

DEATH CLAIMS AUTHORIZED

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt has signed a bill for the payment of claims filed following the death of two Alabamians killed in a collision involving a CCC truck near Andalusia June 4, 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Black were awarded $3,500 and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Rabren $3,000 for the death of their son and daughter, respectively, both of Andalusia.

Alabama 4-H Members Endorse Pea Planting

Alabama 4-H club leaders representing each of Alabama's 67 counties, unanimously endorsed the production of peas and other food and feed crops for distribution to a possibly famine stricken Europe this winter.

The pea planting and food production project was brought to the attention of the 4-H club members by T. A. Sims, 4-H club leader of the State Extension Service, reading a letter from James Price, member of the Jefferson County 4-H club, proposing the project. Price was unable to attend the meeting.

"Price," stated Mr. Sims, "has already planned a gallon of peas and is planning to plant more." The local seed dealers are furnishing the peas.

Russell Terry, Hartselle, spoke in behalf of the project and a motion that the plan be adopted. Howard Johnson, Talladega 4-H club member, stated that other food and feed crops should be planted besides peas. Doris Jackson, Cullman County, spoke in behalf of the project and pledged her full cooperation.

The plan is expected to be carried out immediately by Alabama's 112,000 4-H club members.

Farmers Urged Plant Food And Feed Crops

Extension service workers here believe there will be a food famine in Europe this winter if the war continues and are advising Alabama farmers to produce and save all the food and feed crops possible.

J. C. Frink, assistant extension agronomist, has just written all county agents suggesting that farmers may still plant corn, soybeans, cowpeas, sorghum, sudan grass, grain sorghum, millet, and should get their land ready for small grain this fall.

Corn may be planted, especially on bottom land, he says. "Plant Oatootan or Laredo soybeans on good land at rate of 2 pecks per acre in rows about 2 1-2 feet apart.

"Cowpeas may be planted for hay, seed or temporary grazing. Plant 20 to 30 pounds of seed in 3-foot rows, or broadcast 60 to 90 pounds per acre.

"Another valuable crop for hay is sorghum. Broadcast about one-half a bushel per acre, or sow a mixture of one peck sorghum and 1 bushel of cowpeas.

On fertile soil, sudan grass, sown at the rate of 25 pounds or more of seed per acre, will furnish valuable hay or grazing.

Broadcast a peck or more of millet seed per acre on well-prepared land. Cut for hay just after blooming. If the hay is to be fed to mules or horses it must be cut before seed have formed.

TAX COLLECTOR NAMED

Y. V. Hughes of Courtland, has been appointed tax collector of Lawrence county by Gov. Dixon to succeed Isaac Johnson, Jr., resigned.

MAC TAVISH and I were sitting on the front porch this afternoon, not doing much of anything. Mac Tavish was dozing in the shade, and I was watching an angleworm with a racoon climb up the railing. That was the first collegiate angleworm I ever saw. So I woke up Mac, but he said it wasn't a worm at all, but a caterpillar, and went back to sleep again. Mac isn't much company on a hot day. I left him sleeping on the porch and I chased a few ants around the sidewalk.

I was having a pretty good time until a big white bug that looked like Field Marshal Goering crawled out from under a rock and scared me silly. I beat it down the block and saw an old football in one of Snider's lilac bushes. I made one jump at it and 8,000,000 hornets came out of that ball and chased me down the alley. I ran in Old Man Murphy's front door and out the back and all the hornets stayed in Murphy's house. He came over and told Clara about it, too, and boy, his face is blumper than a Hubbard squash.

Navy Reserve Com. Open to 5,000 Men

Birmingham, Ala., July 17 — Five thousand unmarried young men in the United States, between 19 and 26 years with two years of college, will have a chance this summer to cruise 30 days on a Navy warship, expenses free, and qualify for commissions as reserve Ensigns, according to advice received by George L. Davis, State Director of Government Reports, from the Navy Department.

Applications are being taken at Naval District and Naval Reserve Headquarters and inquiry regarding location of these headquarters should be made at the local postoffice. As part of the Navy expansion program, the Government will pay travel expenses and stand the cost of food, lodging, uniforms and other equipment.

Candidates who successfully complete the 30-day cruise are eligible for appointment as Naval Reserve Midshipmen and enrollment in a 90-day courses on shore to qualify them for appointment as Ensigns in the Volunteer Reserve.

The first cruise began about July 16, on the USS Wyoming and additional cruises will begin periodically until January 15, 1941. Gunner navigation, engineering, communications, and other technical skills will be taught.

During the three-months shore course candidates will receive the same pay and allowances as Midshipmen of the regular Navy. This course, however, may be postponed in order not to interfere with college course or other civilian activities.

Bergdoll's Wife Paid $307,289 By U. S.

WASHINGTON. —The government paid over $307,289 Saturday to Mrs. Berta Bergdoll, wife of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the World War draft dodger who is now in a military prison.

The payment represented 80 per cent of the residue of property seized by the alien properties custodian after Bergdoll fled this country, the remaining 20 per cent will be deposited in the German special deposit account by the secretary of the treasury for use in meeting awards in favor of American citizens by the United States-Germany mixed claims commission.

The Justice Department, announcing payment of the money to Mrs. Bergdoll, said that $37,355 was conveyed by a check drawn on the treasury and $249,934 was in real estate and securities.

Bergdoll sued for recovery of the full amount, which had been administered by the attorney general since abolition of custodian office in 1934. A final ruling against him was handed down in District Court here Friday.

Plant Vegetables Now For Sale During Fall

The sure way to make higher profits with vegetables is to raise and to sell them at a time when competing growers do not have them for sale, says Lyle Brown, extension horticulturist at Auburn.

The best time, says Mr. Brown, to market these vegetables is in the fall months: September, October, November. At this period of the year the rainfall is lowest and therefore crops are less likely to be succulent and plentiful.

Farmers who foresee this rainfall shortage may, by locating their truck crops close to a water supply, maintain market vegetables through these hazardous months.

By damming small streams and then plowing furrows leading from the water reservoir to the crop patches nearby, the grower can at very little cost supply water by this irrigation system. However, in this case, Nature must provide a supply of water above the dam before these drought months come.

The farm pond, located on level land, is another means of supplying water.

For good results an inch of water a week is required for most crops grown during this season.

Birmingham's Alabama State Fair is to be held this year September 30th to October 5th.

President's Defense Recommendations

President Roosevelt's new defense recommendations asked $1,662,265,417 in cash and $2,249,730,000 in contract authorizations for the army, and $499,176,540 in cash and $437,000,000 in contract authorizations for the navy.

Here are some individual items: $93,000,000 to start work on 1,534,000 tons of combat ships and 175,000 tons of auxiliary vessels. $85,000,000 for their armor, guns and ammunition. $75,000,000 for alterations to naval vessels. $500,000,000 for naval airplanes. $1,533,402,304 for the Army Air Corps. (The estimates did not show how many planes the fund would provide.) $325,000,000 for expediting production of supplies and equipment for the army and for the training of civilian personnel in connection with the production of the equipment and material, its use and operation.

$35,633,491 for seacoast defenses. $27,428,641 for the chemical warfare service. $106,246,752 for the signal corps. $82,001,915 for construction at unspecified military posts.

A large part of the navy's funds will go for public works projects at widely scattered navy yards, naval stations and fleet bases. For instance, $1,250,000 was sought for rehabilitation of the submarine base at Key West Fla., and $277,000 for officers quarters at the naval station on the Pacific island of Guam.

Special Farmers' Union Committee Makes A Statement

Editor Chilton County News:
Please publish the following open letter:

To the Farmers and general public of Chilton County.

We take this means of letting it be known why we opposed the administration of the former County Agent and worked for his removal as County Agent.

Two years ago the Farmers Union elected a legislative committee to have certain local laws repealed so the county agent would be placed back under our Commissioners Court and thereby more responsive to the will of the people. Under those laws the Hon. Probate Judge and the Commissioners Court did not have any control over the County Agent, their privilege was just to pay the bills.

By our efforts we had these laws repealed and now the County Agent is back under our Commissioners Court before whom we appeared from time to time with petitions and other facts to substantiate our claim that some of our farmers were being discriminated against and persuaded them that our County would benefit by having a new County Agent, which we will have beginning July 22, 1940. We hope to cooperate to the fullest extent with the new agent, as we offered to do with Mr. Fant, and to see that every farmer in the County gets justice and his fair share of any benefits under the AAA program.

The first thing we intend to take up with our new Agent is the following resolutions adopted by the convention of delegates meeting on December 20, 1939 for electing the County Committee to administer the AAA program. We had one member on this committee and by his efforts this resolution was passed:

That the County Committee be increased to seven instead of three and these committees be elected by the people in community meetings.

As the County is divided into seven districts the purpose of the resolution was to give each district a representative on the County board in order that each district would be represented and their interests would be fully protected and someone they could transact any business or complaint through. We feel like farmers will save many trips to the main office.

From time to time we intend to discuss our aims and purpose through our County newspapers and we invite constructive criticisms and friendly suggestions how we might better serve the best interest of our people.

Special Committee of the Farmers Union.

Auto Quiz No. 6 ANSWERS

1. c. getting as close as possible to the right curb or edge of the road. This allows drivers coming behind you to know what you intend to do, and lets them pass on your left if they intend to go straight ahead. Of course, you should give a hand signal, too.

2. b. low beam. Fog consists of tiny drops of water which act like tiny mirrors. They cannot be pierced with a beam of light; instead they throw the light right back at the driver. Therefore, the low beam which points downward should be used.

3. False. Carbon monoxide gas is odorless. You can't see it, smell it or taste it; so beware.

Clanton Vocalist To Sing At Worlds Fair

Mrs. Lois Thompson Mims of Clanton has been invited by the School of Music at Alabama College to sing with the Glee Club at the New York World Fair August 2.

With an idea to taking some of that well-known Southern harmony to the East, a bus-load of Alabama College Glee Club members are leaving Montevallo July 21 for New York where they will sing—by special request—at the Worlds Fair's Temple of Religion.

The invitation to sing at the Fair came last Spring to the director of the Glee Club, H. D. LeBaron, after the girls had sung from Birmingham over the entire network facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

In a trip lasting three weeks the Glee Club will sing at Lookout Mountain, Tennessee; Williamsport, Maryland; with two concerts in Washington, D. C. and another in White Plains, N. Y.

Their concert in the Temple of Religion at the World's Fair will be on Friday, August 2.

On a leisurely return trip the girls will visit of interest and scenic attractions in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky, reaching home again August 12.

Those making the trip are: Sue Tucker, Dixiana; Cathelene Waddell, Rogersville; Adele Holder, Mt. Vernon; Minnie Priester, Selma; Mary Helen Moore, Dosier; Louise Wallace, Hope Hull; Eva Love Wyatt, Decatur; Ruth Hodo, Millport; Olive Barnes, Montevallo; Estrid England, Mobile; Marion Florey, Perdus Hill; Fay Prater, Millport; Flidera Tapia, Mobile; Lois Anne Smith, Talladega; Mary Stewart Howell Anniston; Annie Laura Sigler, Monroeville; Francis Lee, Hartselle; Louise Mims, Lafayette; Frances Worley, Urbana, Illinois; Lois Thompson Mims, Clanton; Josephine May, Montevallo; Louise Bowman, Goodwater; Corinne Locklin, Monroeville; Helen Warren, Hanceville.

Methodist Church

The hours for services at Clanton Methodist church are Standard Time as follows: Church School, 9:45; Morning Worship Service, 11:00; Young People's Meeting and Junior League, 7:00 p. m.; Evening Worship Service, 7:30. Several of our Young People attended the Assembly at Huntington College last week end.

Let's swell the crowds at all our church services next Sunday.

Acts Are Not Always What They Seem

An elderly man, lets say about 65 years old, sloven and abit soiled, came out of the downtown cafe. His cap was dirty and jammed carelessly upon unkempt hair. Slowly he shuffled across the sidewalk to a large Packard Sedan parked at the curb, bearing an Illinois license plate. He caught hold of the door shook it and then walked around the car and tried the other door. No good, both doors were locked.

Two Clanton citizens, standing near took notice of the stranger and decided to keep an eye on him. One was heard to say, "That old cuss couldn't pay a nickel for a cup of coffee." They were sure that mischief was about to be done. Both agreed that here was an automobile thief taking place right under their nose. Surely this man was trying to steal this fine car, owned probably by wealthy Chicago residents. The old man was about to give up and had turned away when out of the Cafe walked a well dressed lady, whose appearance indicated that she was educated and well to do. "What's the matter papa? can you get in your car?" So saying she unlocked the door for him and handed him the key. The "bum" got in his Packard and drove off south to Florida and that vacation.

Associational Wide Meetings Planned

At a recent meeting of some of the pastors of the Chilton County Baptist Association we decided it would be a fine thing to have services in every church in the association the Fifth Sunday in September. The pastors will be asked to exchange pulpits on that day and some of our laymen and good women will be secured to speak in the churches that cannot be supplied by the pastors. It is earnestly hoped that every church in the association will cooperate in this plan.

All pastors and the members of the Executive Committee of the association are requested to meet at the First Baptist church, Clanton at two o'clock Saturday afternoon. Request twenty-four to work out the details of this plan.

Will the pastors and churches who would like to have these meetings please write me at Thorsby, at your earliest convenience. If you have a preference as to the speaker for your church please let me know your choice. M. I. McLeod, Chrm., Exec. Com., Chilton County Baptist Association.

BAPTIST W. M. S.

The Baptist W. M. S. met at the church Monday afternoon 3:30 o'clock for the Royal Service program, Mrs. Grady Hefflin co-chairman of Circle one presiding.

The meeting was opened by singing our Hymn for the year "How Firm a Foundation." Prayer by Mrs. J. P. Hayes.

After several passages of scripture read by Mrs. Hefflin, Mrs. Raymond Mims sang "In The Garden of Prayer" and "Upon the cross of Jesus," accompanied by Mrs. Hefflin on the piano.

The topic cementing bonds of friendship with neighbors was given by Miss Mary Frances Duke.

Miss Hazel Gray, President of the Y. W. A. gave an interesting report of her visit to Ridgecrest.

Meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. W. J. Billingsley.

CIRCLES TO MEET

Circles will meet, Monday, July 22, 3:30 as follows:

No. 1, Mrs. Jim Roberts.
No. 2, Mrs. Dick Hayes.
No. 3, Mrs. J. B. Atkinson.
No. 4, Mrs. Julius Smith.
No. 5, Mrs. J. P. Hayes.
No. 6, Announced later.

CAR WRECK IS FATAL TO GIRL

Miss Ollis Mills Is Victim Auto Accident Near Here

Miss Ollis Mills, 18, of Montevallo, died as a result of injuries sustained in a car accident near here Sunday night when the automobile turned over two miles this side of Mitchell Dam where the Mitchell Dam road leaves State Highway 22. The driver tried to make the left turn while going at a fast rate of speed.

The 1940 Chevrolet Sedan was completely demolished. John Dickey, who was driving the car in Central Alabama Hospital here but is expected to die in a few days. Carson Eiland, one of the trio in the car was killed and is at his home suffering only shock and slight bruising.

Miss Mills died at Central Alabama Hospital a short while after Martin and his ambulance picked her up from the scene of the accident.

The remains were prepared for burial by Spigener Funeral Home, Sunday, and shipped to Clanton, Alabama, for interment.

She is survived by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Martin O. Mills, one sister, Mrs. Erlene Smith, of the Hill, Miss.

REMEMBER THAT DEEP SNOW LAST JANUARY

Clanton is at last experiencing some summer weather. The first half of the week old Sol kept the mercury in the middle nineties and minds turned back to that deep snow and wonder why it couldn't snow in the summer when we need it and get hot in the winter when it would be appreciated. And incidentally inclusions are that more of the same weather is on the menu for the remainder of this week.

REVIVAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Rev. Carmel (Adams). The meeting begins this week with Rev. G. Williams bringing the messages. Day after day—Beginning the 4th Sunday by the pastor doing the preaching. To begin the 3rd Sunday in August with Rev. A. Bentley doing the preaching. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Bridge On 6th Street To Be Completed Soon

The new bridge on Sixth Street now under construction by the City is scheduled to be completed by August fifteenth barring accident or more of the wet weather that we have been experiencing during the past few weeks.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones stated Tuesday that when completed the City would widen and chert Sixth Street through to the Montgomery Highway in South Clanton. This gives another outlet south and will relieve some of the traffic across the low narrow creek bottom to South Clanton.

The bridge at this point was destroyed by the disastrous cloud burst in the Spring of 1938.

FLOUR SPECIALS AT HILL THIS WEEK END

Hill Grocery Company's Clanton store is noted for its fine flour. But this week-end, according to Manager L. J. Stewart, will see in black and white something really out of the ordinary in Flour. A big, fresh, new shipment has just arrived, and the price is even more attractive than heretofore. The only possible way for you to know just what there is to this flour and the bargains at which it is going is to visit Hill's and see for yourself. You cannot afford to pass up this golden opportunity, says Mr. Stewart, and he really knows flour.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

S. L. Knight brings to the News office this week an oddity that few if any of our readers have seen—Irish potatoes growing on the potato vine instead of beneath the ground. Seven small potatoes in a cluster about eight inches above the ground were found Monday in the garden of J. N. Dennis, in South Clanton. The freak is in the window of the News office.

Dairy Cows Help

G. C. West, Route 1, Haleyville, has adopted a program which is yielding good returns. He started several years ago to supplement his cotton cash income with dairy cows.

Last year he kept six to seven milk cows and after supplying the home table sold between $140 and $160 worth of milk and butter each month. His feed, other than that produced at home, cost him an average of $41 a month which left him a balance above feed cost of $1,240 at the end of the year. He believes that, even if market prices were charged for his home-grown feed his net income for the year from his cattle would be $720, all of which came in regularly throughout the year.

87 ARMY ENLISTMENTS

The United States Army Recruiting Office, Room 20, Federal Building, Birmingham, announces the enlistment of eighty-seven men in the regular army for period June 10 to July 10, through the local army recruiting station. Young men desiring enlistment are urged to apply at the U. S. Army Recruiting Office.

COTTON CLASSING

Chilton County Fox Hunters Association Have Third Annual Hunt Friday Evening

The third annual meeting of the Chilton County Fox Hunters Association met Friday evening, the place being in the pasture of Mr. John Bean near Mineral Springs. People began gathering by mid-afternoon and by 6 o'clock there were about 200 present. About 50 ladies were there. A total of fifty dogs were entered for the races.

At the business meeting the same officers were re-elected for the ensuing year, namely: President, Buddie Ellison; Secretary, C. E. Stapp. It was voted that another annual meeting be held about one year from the time of this meeting—about the middle of July, 1941.

The contests were called and the dogs entered for judging. Named as judges were Jim Reynolds of Birmingham, George Murrah, deputy sheriff of Clanton, and Allie Trice of Prattville. Declared as the best derby dog was "Clara," owned by Alpheus Edwards of Clanton Route 5. Second place in this contest went to a dog belonging to Penon Glenn of Mt. Creek, and third place to one belonging to John Bolton of Clanton Route 5.

In the all-age class, "Rip," belonging to Buddie Ellison took first place; second and third respectively went to dogs of Ira Hambrick of Maplesville and Dock Baker of near Clanton. The Doc Baker dog is named "Lord." Best all-age bitch, first and second places went to two females belonging to John Gaylor of Montgomery; third place to the dog of Dock Perry of Maplesville.

One of the most interesting features of the evening's program was the horn blowing contest. The result was a close decision from the judges between W. U. McFarland of Birmingham and B. B. Martin of Jemison, the judges however, awarded the prize to McFarland—one blowing horn donated by Jimmie Bell of the Bell Hardware Company, of Clanton.

The next thing on the program was the supper. On a long table built in a grass-covered meadow, choice food was piled high. About 165 people took an active part on this particular phase of the program. It was thoroughly enjoyed by each and every participant.

The hounds were cast about 7:15 o'clock about 50 in number. Soon the dogs were in the woods, over the mountains and through the wooded valleys. Some half a dozen good races were enjoyed from that time until after daylight Saturday morning. The dogs treed several times, and the experienced hunters figured that one fox was caught by the dogs. About fifty people remained in the vicinity of the races all night and until the sun rose next morning; one enthusiastic lady hunter stayed with the procession all night. The dogs were said to have run as far as Macedonia church, some five miles distance in several of the races.

"Steamer," slender female belonging to Clara Littlefield, was the reputation to give the fastest race, and she was the last dog to leave the running at sunup Saturday morning. Also "Lord," owned by Dock Baker, deserves special mention for persistent trailing.

Attending this the most successful meeting and fox hunt of the history of the association were hunters from Birmingham, Montgomery, Prattville and from practically every section of Chilton county.

A broadside invitation is extended those who like fox-hunting to attend the meeting and hunt one year from now, and the officials will appreciate any financial aid that enthusiasts feel disposed to lend them.

"Only by the constant effort will the best of Christian character come to be ours."

Now, next Sunday, let's attend all church services and bring visitors and new members.

MT. SPRINGS

Last Sunday concluded a week's revival at Mt. Springs. We feel that we were greatly blessed in this opportunity to share with each other the spiritual joys which God brought to us.

Local Truck Driver Robbed Of Receipts

Held Up At Point Of Gun And $77.00 Taken After Days Sales

Marvin Minor, truck driver for Parker Taylor reports that he was held up and robbed of $77.00 late Thursday night just this side of Birmingham.

Vester Causey, it is reported who had gone to Florida with Minor for a load of Melons put a gun in Minor's side after selling their load of melons in Birmingham and commanded him to hand over his moneybook. After complying, Causey handed the empty purse back to Minor and disappeared into the woods at Jimmie's Place about 20 miles this side of Birmingham, scene of the hold-up.

After receiving a call from his driver, Parker Taylor left early Friday morning for Birmingham and identified a man held there as Causey, the alleged robber. Causey still had $63.00 in his pockets when picked up on the Florida Short Route.

Archie M. DeVaughn Dies Tuesday Morning

An end to the physical and mortal suffering of Archie Mack DeVaughn came Tuesday morning of this week at 6:40 o'clock, following an illness of some four or five months. The young man, with the constant encouragement from his hundreds of friends, fought bravely, patiently and courageously but it was the will of his God that he claim his reward in the Great Beyond. It is one of those cases where friends and relatives deplore the going, but there is an unmistakable feeling of relief that the suffering has ended and that pain and suspense are no more. He was 37 years old.

Funeral services are to be held at Chestnut Creek, Coopers, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery, assisted by Rev. G. G. Williams and Rev. Burrell Martin and Sons are in charge of arrangements.

Surviving are the wife, Mrs. Irene Traywick DeVaughn, and four small daughters—Lois Irene, 8, Clara Ann, 6, Euba Joyce, 4, and Clarice Mae, six months old; father, Prof. W. M. DeVaughn; one brother, Floy DeVaughn; two sisters, Misses Lena Mae and Anne Laurie DeVaughn, both of Sylacauga. Archie Mack DeVaughn was born in Coosa County May 26, 1903; the family moved to this county some twenty-five years ago. He married about nine years ago. He had been prominently connected with the teaching, singing and writing of sacred music for the past ten or twelve years, having taught in Clanton and adjoining counties. He has contributed several songs to the modern books of the past five or six years. His love for music was unsurpassed, and he was a fair master of it so far as the field in which he worked was concerned.

It has been most fittingly and appropriately arranged for more singing to be had at the funeral than is customary for such occasions, owing to the fact that the family has been so prominently identified with the work in past years.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

J. L. Daniels, Pastor.
Church School, 9:45 a. m. each Sunday. L. J. Stewart general superintendent.

Morning Worship Service, 11:00. Sermon by the pastor.
Young Peoples Meeting and Junior League 6:45 each Sunday afternoon.
Evening worship service 7:30. Sermon by the pastor.

Do you know one thing about our Young People?? If you were at the Evening worship service last Sunday night, you know they are fine. Those talks by Percy Pitts Jr., Willard Stewart and James Daniel were extremely ably and effectively given, imparting to their audience inspiration, causing us to aim for a better and higher plane of living.

"Only by the constant effort will the best of Christian character come to be ours."

Now, next Sunday, let's attend all church services and bring visitors and new members.

CAR REBATES OUT

Gov. Frank M. Dixon last week signed into effect a new law prohibiting rebates, discounts and premiums on retail sales of gas and oil in Alabama. The bill, passed by the legislature during its recent session, had been endorsed by the Alabama Independent Service Station Association, Inc.

NEWSPAPER MEN TOURING THE STATE

Moulders Of Public Opinion Seeing Alabama As Others See It

A large number of Alabama newspaper fraternity are touring Alabama this week. They have already visited many of the most interesting places and beauty spots in the North end of the State and are now in Central Alabama's cattle raising belt.

Today they are guests of The Selma of Commerce at a luncheon at Selma's Times-Journal and the Selma Chamber famous Country Club. From Selma they continue their tour—visiting points of interest in Southwest Alabama, and will arrive this afternoon at Fairhope, the State's one and only Single-tax colony where each editor may judge for him or herself as to the success of the undertaking.

Here, as only Baldwin countians know how to entertain, the newshoys and girls will relax from their thousand miles of sight-seeing and enjoy that entertainment.

Tomorrow they go to Mobile for more sight-seeing—as guests of Bellingrath Gardens. They will be entertained at the State Parks at a luncheon by the Mobile Chamber of Commerce. This will be followed by trips on Mobile Bay. Saturday is to be spent as each individual or group sees fit.

CLANTON LIONS HAVE DONKEY BASEBALL GAME

Clanton Lions are sponsoring one of the funniest and most unique forms of entertainment at the newshoys and girls will relax from their thousand miles of sight-seeing and enjoy that entertainment.

Tomorrow they go to Mobile for more sight-seeing—as guests of Bellingrath Gardens. They will be entertained at the State Parks at a luncheon by the Mobile Chamber of Commerce. This will be followed by trips on Mobile Bay. Saturday is to be spent as each individual or group sees fit.

LENA MAE DAVIS WEDS HORACE KENDRICK

The wedding of Miss Lena Mae Davis of Plymouth N. C., to Mr. Horace Kendrick of Birmingham and Thorbury, was quietly solemnized at the Baptist parsonage in Thorbury at nine o'clock on Wednesday evening with only members of the immediate family present for the reading of the vows by Rev. M. J. McLeod.

The attractive bride wore a costume of navy sheer with harmonizing accessories.

The bride and groom are making a trip to North Carolina, after which they will make their home in Birmingham where Mr. Kendrick plans to complete his course at Howard College.

This fine couple have the good wishes of their many friends on their way through a happy wedded life.

A Good Soldier Always Obeys the Command to Go Forward

Roosevelt Reluctantly Accepts Third Term Democratic Nomination

Following is the text of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's acceptance radio address to the National Democratic Convention:

Members of the convention—my friends:

It is with a very full heart that I speak tonight. I must confess that I do so with mixed feelings—because I find myself as almost everyone does sooner or later in his lifetime, in a conflict between deep personal desire for retirement on the one hand, and that quiet, invisible thing called "conscience" on the other.

Because there are self appointed commentators and interpreters who will seek to misinterpret or question motives, I speak in a somewhat personal vein; and I must trust to the good faith and common sense of the American people to accept my own good faith—and do their own interpreting.

Entitled To Retire

When, in 1936, I was chosen by the voters for a second term as President, it was my firm intention to turn over the responsibilities of government to other hands at the end of my term. That conviction remained with me. Eight years in the presidency, followed a period of bleak depression and covering one world crisis after another, would normally entitle any man to the relaxation which comes from honorable retirement.

During the spring of 1939 world events made it clear to all, but the blind or the partisan that a great war in Europe had become not merely a possibility, but a probability, and that such a war would of necessity deeply affect the future of this nation.

When the conflict first broke out last September, it was still my intention to announce clearly and simply, at an early date, that under no conditions would I accept reelection. This fact was understood by many citizens.

It soon became evident, however, that such a public statement on my part would be unwise from the point of view of sheer public interest. As President of the United States, it was my duty, with the aid of Congress, to preserve our neutrality, to shape our program of defense to meet rapid changes, to keep our domestic affairs adjusted to shifting world conditions, and to sustain the policy of the good neighbor.

Personal Plans Delayed

It was also my obvious duty to maintain to the utmost the influence of this mighty nation in our effort to prevent the spread of war, and to sustain by all legal means, those governments which had been rejected by other governments. Swiftly moving foreign events made necessary swift action at home and beyond the seas. Plans for national defense had to be expanded and adjusted to meet new forms of warfare. American citizens and their welfare had to be safeguarded in many foreign zones of danger. National unity in the United States became a crying essential in the face of the development of unbelievable types of espionage and international treachery.

Every day that passed called for the postponement of personal plans and a more arduous debate until the latest possible moment. The normal conditions under which I would have made public declaration of my personal desires were not there.

Thinking solely of the national good and of the international scene, I came to the reluctant conclusion that such declaration should not be made before the national convention. It was accordingly made to you within an hour after the permanent organization of the convention.

Like any other man, I am complimented by the honor you have done me. But I know you will understand the spirit in which I say that no call of party alone would prevail upon me to accept reelection to the presidency.

The real decision to be made in these circumstances is not the acceptance of a nomination, but rather an ultimate willingness to serve if chosen by the electorate. Many considerations enter into this decision.

Steps Toward Defense

During the past few months, with due congressional approval, we have been taking steps to implement the total defense of America. I cannot forget that in carrying out this program I have drafted into the service of the nation many men and women, taking them away from important private occupations, calling them suddenly from their homes and their business. I have asked them to leave their own work, and to contribute their skill and experience to the cause of their nation.

I, as head of their government, have asked them to do this. Regardless of party, regardless of personal conveniences, they came—they answered the call. Every single one of them, with one exception, has come to Washington to serve.

These people who have placed patriotism above all else, represent those who have made their way to the top of their professions and industry through proven skill and experience.

But they alone could not be enough to meet the needs of the times.

Just as a system of national defense based on manpower alone, without the mechanized equipment of modern warfare is totally inefficient for adequate defense, so also planes and guns and tanks are wholly insufficient unless they are implemented by the power of men trained to use them.

Selection By Draft

Because of the millions of citizens involved in the conduct of defense, most right thinking persons are agreed that some form of selection by draft is as necessary and as fair today as it was in 1917 and 1918.

Nearly every American is willing to do his share or her share to defend the U. S. It is neither just nor efficient to permit the task to fall upon any section or any one group for every section and every group depend for their existence upon the survival of the nation as a whole.

Lying awake, as I have, on many nights, I have asked myself whether I have the right, as commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy, to call on men and women to serve their country or to train themselves to serve and, at the same time, decline to serve my country in my own personal capacity, if I am called upon to do so by the people of my country.

In times like these—in times of great tension, of great crisis—the compass of the world narrows to a single fact. The fact which dominates our world is the fact of armed aggression, the fact of successful armed aggression, aimed at the form of government, the kind of society we in the United States have chosen and established for ourselves. It is a fact which no one any longer doubts—which no one is any longer able to ignore.

'It Is A Revolution'

It is not an ordinary war. It is a revolution imposed by force of arms, which threatens all men everywhere. It is a revolution which proposes not to set men free but to reduce them to slavery—to reduce them to slavery in the interest of a dictatorship which has already shown the nature and the extent of the advantage which it hopes to obtain.

This is the fact which dominates our world and which dominates the lives of all of us. In the face of the danger which confronts our time, no individual retains or can hope to retain, the right of personal choice which free men enjoy to serve in the defense of our country in times of peace. He has a first obligation to serve his country in whatever capacity his country finds him useful.

Like most men my age, I had made plans for myself, plans for a private life of my own choice and for my own satisfaction to begin in January, 1941. These plans, like so many other plans, had been made in a world which now seems as distant as another planet. Today all private plans, all private lives have been repealed by an over-riding public danger. In the face of that public danger all those who can be of service to the republic have no choice but to offer themselves for service in those capacities for which they may be fitted.

Call To Service

Those are the reasons why I have had to admit to myself, and now to you, that my conscience will not let me turn my back upon a call to service.

The right to make that call rests with the people through the American method of a free election. Only the people themselves can draft a President. If such a draft should be made upon me, I say, in the utmost simplicity, I will, with God's help, continue to serve with the best of my strength.

In some respects the next few months will be different from the usual national campaigns of recent years.

Most of you know how important it is that the President in these days remain close to the seat of government. Since last Summer I have been compelled to abandon proposed journeys to inspect many of our national projects from the Alleghenies to the Pacific Coast.

Events move so fast in other parts of the world that it has become my duty to remain either in the White House or at some nearby point where I can reach. Washington and even Europe and Asia by direct phone—where if need be, I can be back at my desk in the space of every few hours. In addition, the splendid work of the new defense planters will require me to spend a great deal more time in conference with the responsible administrative heads under me. Finally, the added task which the present crisis has imposed upon Congress, compelling them to forego their usual adjournment, calls for constant co-operation between the executive and legislative branches, to the efficiency of which I am glad now to pay tribute.

I do not expect, of course, during the coming months to make my usual periodic reports to the country through the media of press conferences and radio talks. I shall not have the time or the inclination to engage in purely political debate. But I shall never be loathe to call the attention of the nation to deliberate or unwitting falsifications of fact, which are sometimes made by political candidates.

Reports To Nation

I have spoken to you in a very informal and personal way. The exigencies of the day require, however, that I also talk with you about things which transcend any personality and go deeply to the roots of American civilization.

Our lives have been based on those fundamental freedoms and liberties which we have cherished for a century and a half. The establishment of them and the preservation of them in each succeeding generation have been accomplished through the process of free elective government—the Democratic-Republican form, based on the representative system and the co-ordination of the executive, the legislative and the judicial branches.

The task of safeguarding our institutions is twofold. One must be accomplished, if it becomes necessary by the armed defense forces of the nation. The other by the united effort of the men and women of the country, to make our Federal and state and local governments responsive to the growing requirements of modern democracy.

There have been occasions when reactions in the march of democracy have seemed to stop.

But such periods have been followed by liberal and progressive times which have enabled the nation to catch up with new developments in fulfilling new human needs. Such a time has been the past seven years. Because we had seemed to lag in previous years, we have had to develop, speedily and efficiently, the answers to aspirations which had come from every state and every family in the land.

Social Legislation

We have sometimes called it social legislation; we have sometimes called it legislation to end abuses of the past; we have sometimes called it legislation for human security and we have sometimes called it legislation to better the conditions of life of the many millions of our fellow citizens, who could not have the essentials of life and hope for an American standard of living.

Some have labeled it a wider and more equitable distribution of wealth in our land. It has included among its aims, to liberalize and broaden the control of vast industries—lodged today in the hands of a relatively small group of individuals of very great financial power.

All of these definitions and labels are essentially the expression of one consistent thought. They represent a constantly growing sense of human decency throughout our nation.

Much Yet To Be Done

This sense of human decency is happily confined to no group or class. You find it in the humblest home. You find it among those who toil and among the shoo keepers and the farmers of the nation. You find it to growing degree, even among those who are listed in that group which has so much control over the industrial and financial structure of the nation. Therefore, this urge of humanity can by no means be labeled a war of class against class. It is rather a war against poverty and suffering and ill-health and insecurity in which all classes are joining in the interest of a sound and enduring democracy.

I do not believe for a moment that we have fully answered all of the needs of human security. But we have covered much of the road. I need not catalog the milestones of seven years.

For every individual and every family in the whole land knows that the average of their personal lives has been made safer and sounder and happier than it has ever been before. I do not think they want the gains in these directions to be repealed or even to be placed in charge of those who would give them mere lip-service with no heart service.

Very much more remains to be done, and I think the voters want the task entrusted to those who believe that the worlds "human betterment" apply to poor and rich alike.

And I have a sneaking suspicion too that voters will smile at charges of inefficiency against a Government which has boldly met the enormous problems of banking, finance and industry which the great efficient bankers and indus-

Vegetable Laxative Makes Happy Friends

Here's a laxative that usually acts thoroughly as harsher ones but is a gentle persuader for intestines when used this way: A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of policy, aromatic BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight; a drink of water. There's usually time for a good night's rest, with a gentle, thorough action next morning relieving constipation's headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath.

BLACK-DRAUGHT is a splendid combination of vegetable ingredients, chief of which is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" that helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. It's economical. 25 to 40 doses; 25c.

trialists of the Republican Party left in such hopeless chaos in 1933.

Program Endangered

But we all know that our progress at home and in the other American nations toward this realization of a better human decency—progress along free lines—is gravely endangered by what is happening to other continents. In Europe, many nations, through dictatorships or invasions, have been compelled to adopt forms of government which some call "new and efficient."

They are not new; they are only a relapse—a relapse into ancient history. The omnipotent rulers of the greater part of modern Europe have guaranteed efficiency, and work, and a type of security.

But the slaves who built the pyramids for the glory of the Pharaohs of Egypt had that kind of security, that kind of efficiency, that kind of corporate state.

So did the inhabitants of that world which extended from Britain to Persia under the undisputed rule of the pharaohs sent from Rome.

So did the henchmen, the tradesmen, the mercenaries and the slaves of the feudal system which dominated Europe a thousand years ago.

So did the people of those nations of Europe who received their kings and their government at the whim of the conquering Napoleon.

Whatever its new trappings and new slogans, tyranny is the oldest and most discredited rule known to history. And whenever tyranny has replaced a more human form of government it has been due more to internal causes than external.

Democracy can thrive only when it enlists the devotion of those whom Lincoln called the common people. It can hold that devotion only when it adequately respects their dignity by so ordering society as to assure to masses of men and women reasonable security and hope for themselves and for their children.

Our Creed Unshakable

In our democracy, and those who live in still unconquered democracies will never willingly descend to any form of this so-called security of efficiency which calls for the abandonment of other securities more vital to the dignity of man. It is our credo—unshakable to the end—that we must live under the liberties that were first heralded by Magna Charter and placed into glorious operation through the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights.

The Government of the United States for the past seven years has had its courage open to oppose by every peaceful means the spread of the dictator form of government. If our own government passes to other hands next January—untried hands, inexperienced hands—we can merely hope and pray that they will not substitute appeasement and compromise with those who seek to destroy all democracies everywhere.

I would not undo, if I could, the efforts I made to prevent war from the moment it was threatened and to restrict the area of carnage, down to the last minute. I do not now soften the condemnation expressed by Secretary Hull and myself from time to time for the acts of aggression that have wiped out ancient liberty-loving peace-loving countries which had scrupulously maintained neutrality. I do not regret the sentiments of sympathy with all free people resisting such aggression, or begrudge the material aid given to them. I do not regret my consistent endeavor to awaken this country to the menace for us and for all we hold dear.

Our Foreign Policy

I have pursued these efforts in the face of appeaser "fifth columnists" who charged me with hysteria and warmongering. But I felt it my duty to arouse my countrymen to the danger of the new forces loose in the world.

So long as I am President, I will do all I can to insure that foreign policy remain our foreign policy.

All that I have done to maintain the peace of this country and to prepare it morally as well as physically may be in store, I submit to the judgment of my countrymen.

We face one of the great choices of history.

It is not alone a choice of government by the people versus dictatorship. It is not alone a choice of freedom versus slavery.

It is not alone a choice between moving forward or falling back.

It is all of these rolled into one. It is the continuance of civilization as we know it versus the ultimate destruction of all we have held dear—masses of men and women reasonable security and hope for themselves and for their children.

Chilton Co. Teachers Take Intensive Study

Three teachers of vocational agriculture in Chilton County are now at Auburn for three weeks of intensive study and preparation for next year's program in vocational agriculture. The summer conference at Auburn ended August 3.

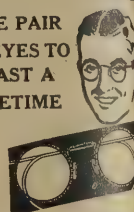

They are H. H. Denson, Jemison, H. Camp, Isabella; J. H. Jackson, Clanton.

Among the courses being studied by the teachers are management of poultry and livestock, landscape and production problems, organization management of farm shop, method teaching land use planning, and related subjects.

In addition to three courses studied by each teacher they attend state conferences where plans are made for the coming year's program. They also confer with supervisors on their problems and plans for the coming year.

Auburn, Ala.—Everything is in readiness for Farm and Home Week, Auburn, Aug. 5-8, announces P. O. DeLoach, Alabama Extension Service, who will be in charge of the program.

FDR-Wallace Ticket Choice Of Democrats

Third Term Tradition Is Broken by Delegates At Convention.

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

A TRADITION of 152 years standing was shattered when President Franklin Delano Roosevelt was nominated for a third term by the Democratic convention in Chicago. It was the first time in history that such an event has occurred.

From start to finish at the convention it was evident he would be nominated. Even when speakers proposed the names of other candidates, it was apparent that the delegates would finally take the nomination of Roosevelt. A surprise to many convention attendants was the fact that when the nominations started, Alabama did not yield to New York, but gave the junior senator, Lister Hill, the honor of nominating the President.

Greatest speculation centered around the nomination of a vice president. It became known on the final day that President Roosevelt's choice was Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture. As in the case of the renominations of the President, the delegates knew for whom they were to vote before entering the hall. But it was only after a neck-and-neck race with Speaker William B. Bankhead and a noisy demonstration by groups of delegates and spectators who showed their devotion when Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, asked withdrawal of his own name, that Mr. Wallace was nominated. This selection is expected to appeal to agriculture and to act as an offset to the same against the Sen. Charles McNary, Republican vice-presidential nominee.

Acceptance Speech.

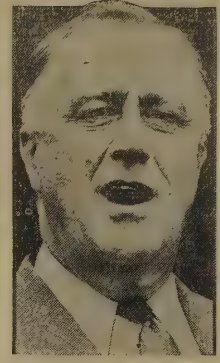

In accepting the nomination for a third term, Mr. Roosevelt showed himself once more a tradition breaker.

In a radio address broadcast from the White House to the delegates he said that he accepted the nomination only after deep conflict between his personal desire to retire and the urgings of his conscience. But now, he said, the European war had created a public danger in the United States.

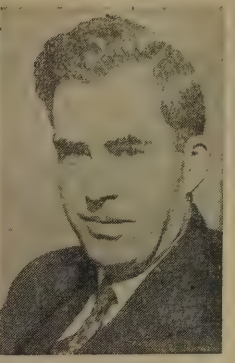

"In the face of that danger," he told the delegates, "all those who can be of service to the republic have no other choice but to offer themselves for service in those capacities for which they are best fitted."

It was an apparently united party that made the unanimous choice for Roosevelt after the vote of the state delegations had given the President 46 13/30 of the 1,100 votes in the convention and the other candidates combined total of 149 2/30. These candidates included Postmaster General Farley, Vice President Garner and Senator Millard Tydings, secretary of State Hull, although not a candidate, had received 5 1/2 votes. After another the names were withdrawn and finally Mr. Farley, spearhead of the opposition to the third term, moved the nomination of the President by acclamation.

Aside from the balloting and the reading of the planks in the platform, three things stood out in sharp relief in an otherwise unemotional and unexciting convention. One was the candidacy of James A. Farley and the speculation over his future role in the party. The other was the reading by Permanent Chairman Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky of a statement summarizing President Roosevelt's views on the nomination the night before the balloting in which he said he had no desire or purpose to continue in office and released all delegates pledged to him. The third was the dramatic appearance of 82-year-old Senator Carter Glass of Virginia from a sick bed to inveigh against breaking the third term tradition as he nominated Mr. Farley.

Roosevelt vs. Farley.

The approaching dissolution of the partnership between Mr. Farley and President Roosevelt was evident as the chairman of the Democratic National convention raised his gavel on Monday noon, calling the convention to order. Those who remembered the situation in 1932 and 1936 when Farley was the organizing genius felt the contrast. No longer was Jim Farley the general-in-chief directing the strategy that would nominate his chief. He was in another role—that of a candidate for the presidency himself and an avowed opponent of the third-term idea.

For months it had been apparent to political observers that President and Mr. Farley no longer saw eye-to-eye. The President's silence on the third-term question and Farley's known opposition to it increased the difficulties. Their historic confirmation of the long-standing rumor that Mr. Farley would resign his national committee and cabinet posts after the convention to take over the majority stock of the New York Yankees ball club. Complimentary references to Jim Farley by President Roosevelt in his radio acceptance speech and by Mrs. Roosevelt who appeared personally to speak on the closing night were interpreted as a gesture of friendship to Mr. Farley.

Democratic Women Gain Voice In Party's Platform Council

By HOWARD JARVIS

ANOTHER tradition was broken by the Democratic party when it gave women delegates an equal vote with men on the party platform committee for the first time in American political history.

This action was taken at the fourth session of the convention. More than 1,000 women delegates had decided to put up a united front to demand equality.

The women didn't hesitate to use their new-found power. They introduced several amendments to the party platform, and those amendments were passed. Foreign policy and women's rights received particular attention.

At the insistence of Mrs. Arthur Hays Sulzberger of Washington, D. C., the plank on foreign policy which had already been accepted by the committee was changed to provide a warning to foreign dictators. The words, "except in case of attack" were added to the pledge not to send troops to fight in foreign lands.

The new committeewomen put through a plank which had been rejected by the all-men members of the Republican platform committee. This was a statement which provided that a woman's marital status should not interfere with her right to hold a job. The plank was desired because 26 states at different times have had bills proposed to discriminate against married women. Another victory for the women resulted when the Democratic party was pledged to promote equal opportunity for women through the efforts of Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey. It pledged the Democrats to work for "equality of opportunity for men and women without impairing the social legislation which promotes true equality by safeguarding the health and economic welfare of women workers."

Women delegates concerned themselves primarily with the business of the convention and forgot their social activities, according to Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, national committeewoman from Illinois. As convention hostess, she pointed out that most of the social activities had been concluded before the convention got down to its serious work.

Random Notes of the Convention

More women delegates cast their votes in the various state delegations than ever before in the history of the party. One state delegation—Utah—had more women than men. The ladies outnumbering the gentlemen nine to seven. In the California delegation the representation of the sexes was equal. The New Jersey delegation had Rep. Mary Norton as its chairman.

One-eyed Connolly, perennial gate-crasher, failed to crash but attended the convention wearing the badge of an assistant sergeant of arms. He assisted Andy Frain, in charge of ushers.

Hollywood was represented by screen star Melvyn Douglas and his wife, Helen Gahagan. He was a California delegate, she his alternate.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

On Sunday July 21, at an early hour friends and relatives gathered at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Trice for a joint birthday celebration. The honored guests were Misses Kerria and Emelia Trice and Mr. G. W. Sansom.

Those enjoying the occasion were Rev. and Mrs. Trice and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Adams, Mr. G. W. Sansom and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Trammel and children, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith and children, Mr. C. E. Sansom and son, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith and children, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Kendrick and children, Mr. Sol Sansom, Mrs. John Scott, Miss Pauline Collins, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Varner and children, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Headley, Mr. Carous Ratliff, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sansom and daughter, Miss Annie Klinner, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Trice, Mrs. Seferonica Trice, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Trice and sons, Misses Murrell and Margaret Deavers, Misses Tommie Lee and Jessie Lee Sanson.

In the morning friends met with plenty of laughs. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread in the oak grove and all enjoyed it. In the afternoon a part of the group attended the singing at Antioch.

In the —Gan,aramua Afternoon visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Otis Scott and son, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Best.

At a late hour every one departed for their homes wishing the honored guests many more happy birthdays.

Mosquito Army Kills 2 Mules On Linden Farm

LINDEN, Ala.—Death from the sky—not by warring airplanes, but by thousands of mosquitoes, claimed two mules belonging to R. J. Smyly, farmer of this district, who said his animal would have died if its plight had not been discovered in time.

Smyly said that shortly after a second mule had died mysteriously, he found a mule acting strangely, and a close examination revealed the animal was covered with thousands of huge black mosquitoes. He said he brushed them off with his hands, mashed them with his feet, sprayed the swollen and maddened animal with kerosene and removed it to another farm.

He said the insects were so blood-filled they could not fly. Recent floodwaters, which caused a slough of backwater to come within 50 yards of his unscreened stalls were thought to have been responsible for the mosquitoes.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

The two national conventions are over and we have seen that the Democrats have nominated Franklin Roosevelt for President and Henry A. Wallace for Vice-President, while the Republicans have nominated Wendell L. Willkie for President and Charles McNary for Vice-President. Moreover, we have already seen the definite lines the campaign will take this Fall. We now know that the drives for election will not be full of speeches on foreign policy, trade, and internal relief, but rather will be based on the third term tradition. The Republicans knowing that the Democrats have a better knowledge of world affairs, will not desire to come into the open on that debate. Likewise, the Democrats know that they have made mistakes, and will not desire to have them aired before the voting public. The campaign will be on a subject as yet fully untried in American politics. The campaign will be between the personalities of two men; namely, Roosevelt and Willkie.

If the campaign is to be waged largely on the third term tradition, and the iconoclasts will surely choose that subject, then perhaps we had best look for a moment at that subject. We, perhaps, had best see if it is best for the United States to break that tradition or leave it unbroken.

We today are in the greatest crisis in our history. We are to be, if Great Britain loses, face-to-face with an enemy that has already served warning on us. And, therefore, we know that we need today to have the most capable men in our public offices.

The New Deal and its officials have been in office during all the current crisis and before, and have the most experience on what is going on. They have already, under President Roosevelt, formulated a foreign policy which, undoubtedly, will continue even if a new President is elected. President Roosevelt has the more experience of the two candidates and we already know that his policy in foreign affairs is one, that at the same time preparing for and resisting invasion, would try to prevent a second American involvement in a World War. Only the most deleterious demagogue would dare to say that the New Deal's foreign policy is one that desires war.

Likewise, we cannot afford to attempt many internal changes in these President in 1941 to reduce very considerably the relief rolls and the WPA checks would produce, if not civil strife itself, something very short of revolution.

But there are those, who, granting, the fact I have presented, would still say that to break the third-term tradition would be to destroy democracy here in the United States by awarding to one man more power than any other human being has ever held in the United States. They will hold that, even if Franklin Roosevelt has no dictatorial ambitions himself, there might be tomorrow a President who would hold office continually and destroy our democracy merely for his own personal gains. In other words, they would say that once a man broke the idea of not holding office over eight years, there could never be a limit established that would prevent a person from holding the Presidency indefinitely.

There seems to be something very strange, wrong with those who argue in that manner. For, I think, there is no law or tradition which can keep the American people free. If ever the majority of the people decided that they wanted a dictatorship, there would be nothing in any set of legal books that could keep them from doing it. Only by instilling a love of democracy in people can we stay free, and those who care to keep our democracy must recognize that the most potent means of keeping it is by voting, and voting intelligently.

And surely, it is not against the principles of democracy to call upon our very best men to serve in these times when we need the most capable and efficient public servants.

And if ever, through some accident, did a demagogue attain power in the United States, he could be easily impeached by Congress on the demand of the people.

Therefore, if the third term tradition is to be the basis of the Presidential campaign, and since we know that we will stay free only by master statesmanship and not by antiquated ideals, we know that Mr. Roosevelt will be re-elected by the unanimous consent of the American people.

REVIVAL SERVICES, MULBERRY

During the week beginning on the fourth Sunday of this month, July 28, we will have our regular series of meetings at Mulberry. It is our earnest desire that this may be a real spiritual revival. The visiting minister will be Dr. W. P. Wilks Baptist pastor of Centerville Ala. All members of the church are urged to attend as many of these services as possible. We extend a cordial invitation to visitors.

Willkiecrats are plutocrats, and plutocrats are not democrats.

The State Department of Conservation is distributing 8000 quail and 60 chukars to be shot at this Fall and Winter. Wonder how the army that is being raised is to be distributed to be shot at?

If God ever intends to help Old Erin, now's the time.

Now there's that fellow "Firecracker" Willkie—after the big noise subsides there isn't much left.

There are tricks in all trades—and here in America we use entirely too many tricks in our trades.

It is estimated that we now have three-fourths of all the gold in the world. When we get it all what are we going to do with it?

Candidate Willkie says: "The Democratic party left me." Sure! He's all heard the story of how the whole regiment was cut of step "except my boy Willkie."

Everybody is saying that everything is going to be changed after this war is over, and we have just been thinking how wonderful that will be if it includes stiff collars and neckties.

It is claimed that the United States turns out more college graduates and more criminals than any other nation on earth. You figure it out.

We country folks don't like this cliffed time, and we don't give a hang who knows it.

It is our opinion that it is far more important that Franklin D. Roosevelt be elected for a third term than it is for him to have been elected for the second term.

"Made In Wall Street"

Of all the varieties of hokum that came out of the Republican national convention at Philadelphia the most egregious was the pretension that it was an un-biased gathering and that the nominee for President was chosen because of an urgent demand of the "pee-pul" which had "spontaneously arisen." It is probably true that the so-called political bosses were in some cases unable to deliver their delegations entire in the way they desired. But this type of boss in the Republican party has always been of secondary rank, a mere subaltern who took and executed orders of the real party bosses who gathered in the directors' rooms of great banking houses and industrial corporations.

Usually in the past these bosses who pulled the strings which made the Republican puppets dance remained in the background and allowed it to seem as if the convention was carrying out the will of the rank and file. This year, however, the big boys appear to have distrusted the ability of the nominal party bosses to deliver and so they moved in and took direct charge of the campaign to put over their man. Representatives of J. P. Morgan & Co. came boldly onto the scene to give aid and council and it was noteworthy that when the New York delegation was polled on the demand of a delegate the names of those who voted for Willkie read off like a passage from a banking and corporation directory. For once the owners and controllers of the Republican party acted directly and without the disguise of intermediaries.

Dissimulation was reserved for another feature of the campaign. No less phony than the sedulously propagated claim of an "unbiased convention" was the carefully and skillfully planned build-up of the "spontaneous" concept. Not only were all the methods of high pressure advertising brought into play as in the case of a new tooth paste or cigarette, but the "Elmer" telegraphic technique of expressing the popular will was widely used through the medium of amenable clubs and associations and power trust representatives. Big and little columnists and feverish feminine evangelists contributed their mite to the creation of the make-believe, white-labor-hating reactionary newspaper puffery with all their lung power to inflate the Willkie boom. Finally by means of spurious tickets to the convention the galleries were packed with energetic Willkiecraters.

Thus, by the intensive use for weeks and months of all the arts and paraphernalia of ballyhoo, was created the "spontaneous demand" for an article which the Pure Food and Drug Act is complied with, will bear the label, "Made in Wall Street."

At Last Agriculture Gets Recognition

The Democratic Convention at Chicago chose Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace as its nominee for the Vice-Presidency of the United States.

We have said many times, and it will bear repeating, that "No nation has ever prospered and continued to progress longer than the time when Commerce and Industry were permitted to dominate Agriculture and Husbandry."

That is the greatest weakness of the Democracies of the World today. It was the greatest weakness of the Democracies when Europe's War broke out last fall.

The Democratic Party no doubt sensed this danger when it named Henry A. Wallace to be the running mate of New Deal Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Here in America, the two great political parties of the greatest Democracy still functioning, are right now going to the people with proposed plans for a more equitable readjustment of economic and social conditions, in order that a fair and just distribution of the good and worthwhile things of life may be accorded all our people. And no fair minded man or woman will deny that those who produce those good and worthwhile things of life are entitled to enjoy them equally with all others.

No longer may Commerce and Industry hope to take the lion's share of the fruits of the producers, leaving them well nigh penniless and well nigh economic serfs.

We would not try to minimize the part that Commerce and Industry has to play in the Nation's defense against the great danger which now confronts us, nor do we overlook the fact that without the aid of Agriculture and Husbandry it would be impossible for Commerce and Industry to function efficiently. Therefore, the time is now here when all activities regardless of what they are, so long as they are operating for the common good, must cooperate one with the other, in order to keep and preserve this freedom that we cherish so highly.

Today, Agriculture, Industry, Husbandry, Commerce, meet on common ground to do battle in a common cause—the preservation of American freedom.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

We have all heard it said that bull's cannot be driven without profanity. A clergyman came to the logging camp and urged the men to stop using profane language, claiming that he could drive oxen without using profanity. The men challenged him to a test and he being a good sport agreed to try it out. He picked up his rawhide whip, cleared his throat and roared at the team, "You rapturous archangels, you sublimated cherubims, you sanctified innocents, get up and let's go." Then he cracked his whip over their backs and every ox threw himself against the yoke and the wheels turned. The bullocks may not have been able to distinguish the parson's language from profanity, but anyway they moved on. When you feel like blaspheming taking the name of God in vain, just try saying something better.

A Tennessee paper published an editorial the day before Thanksgiving which was rather suggestive. It read something like this, "The editorial staff of this paper would greatly appreciate it if all the citizens who expect to take a few drinks of beer or whiskey before getting in your car tomorrow to attend the ball game, if you will call by our office and give us a few notes on your obituary today. This courtesy will save us the trouble of having to chase up and down the highway to get information about the wreck. It will help us in writing up your obituary after the accident." When we have nationed into days, we expect them to be turned into days of national butchery. It is horrible to read what takes place when Americans go out to celebrate. Fifty per cent of these holiday accidents can be traced back to the whiskey, directly or indirectly.

A Yale professor tested out three rats in his effort to learn the ways of their social life. He arranged a cage and put a rat in it so that if he got food he would have to pass a small pellet of food. The rat soon learned to do this. Two other rats learned to do this, and then the professor put all three of the rats into the cage together and watched them. The first day in the cage the rats huddled close to the feed place, but not one ventured to press the lever. The next day one of the rats pressed the lever but the other two rats grabbed the pellets and the working rat got nothing. The third day they again crowded near the food slot and being very hungry they tried to chew the steel slot to pieces. The fourth day the steel slot grew wise and in rapid succession, then he seized one of the pellets. He kept this up until all of them had food enough. While one rat worked, the other two sat at the food slot and waited for

ALABAMA'S PREPAREDNESS

Samples of the equipment of the State Department of Public Safety, shown in above photograph, constitute one of the two reasons why Director T. Weller Smith (inset) is confident the Department can meet and successfully dispose of any emergency that may arise anywhere in Alabama.

The other reason is that the entire force of Highway Patrol Officers (all picked men) under his command, has been thoroughly trained in the use of these weapons by Federal Bureau of Investigation instructors, and can go into action with any one or all of them at a moment's notice.

The equipment shown in the photo reading from left to right, follows:

Top shelf—12 gauge, 7-shot, sawed-off pump shotgun.

12 gauge 7-shot, automatic, sawed-off shotgun.

Thompson sub-machine gun, (Tommy Gun)—.45 calibre, which can be fired at the rate of 400 shots a minute. Tracer bullets are mixed with the usual steel-jacketed bullets in loading the magazine. It is customary to fire several tracers first, for the purpose of getting the correct range. After that an average of about one bullet in every three is a tracer. The tracers are especially useful in night operation.

Another "Tommy-Gun."

.351 calibre automatic rifle. A high-speed, long range weapon. Loads with a clip, eight cartridges to the clip.

Another sawed-off, 12 gauge pump shotgun.

George to do it. Is that not a picture of human society? Too many people today are like the two rats; they are waiting for George to make them a living.

Two young people lived near a flying field. Each had been up in a plane with their parents, but they had never been up together, with the young man at the wheel. It was thrilling to sail the ship and it was thrilling to be in the air together. Sad to relate, but the young man knew too little about flying and the ship came down in a crash. That is a picture of all too many marriages. They have seen their parents sailing this ship, but they have not tried it themselves. Off they go in their ignorance of varied relations and to do bad to relate, they come down to a divorce. Our young people should be wisely instructed in the art of flying the matrimonial ship.

Do you hear that voice over the radio that rasps like a saw? We do not have to see that man to know his personality and the state of his mind. In like manner when you speak you are broadcasting to those who hear you a history of your life. You show the state of your mind, the condition of your health, your breeding and culture. Train your voice not to be harsh, not to cut like a saw, but to be mellow like music. Make your voice attractive and beautiful as you would have your face to be.

shotguns and sub-machine guns to the left and right center, are two special Smith and Wesson service six-shooter revolvers. These are .38 calibre revolvers mounted on .44 calibre frames. The long wooden truncheon with raw-hide thong attached is a "riot stick." "Dropped up on the handle of this stick is a "black jack", known also as a persuader.

Back of and between the two revolvers the gun with the regulation stock and huge, short barrel is a .37 m.m. barbed gas-gun. This special gun fires both tear and nausea gas shells at short, medium and long ranges with the accuracy of a rifle. The accuracy of fire is assured by the design of the shell, which explodes on contact. The shell, on leaving the gun, releases at its rear end four metal vanes, similar to those attached to aerial bombs, guiding it in its flight in the same manner that an arrow is guided by its feathered shaft. The same gun is used for launching starshells for purposes of illumination in night operations. The bursting shell releases a parachute with a suspended calcium flare which is impervious to rain and burns with a brilliant blue-white light for from three to five minutes.

In the center is the Pistol Marksmanship Trophy awarded by the Alabama Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association, which was won at the annual matches in Mobile last year by a pistol team composed of the Highway Patrol's crack shots. They won it again this year at Huntsville, with a score of 1436 out of a possible 1500. One more straight win will make it theirs for keeps.

Center Shelf—Five-shot gas pistol. Two small tear-gas hand grenades. Large tear-gas hand grenade. Nausea-gas hand grenade. Short-range tear-gas shell. Long-range, barbed, nausea shell. Right to left on same shelf, articles same as enumerated above.

Lower Shelf—12-shot .37 m.m. automatic gas machine-gun. Sixteen-shot 10 gauge, automatic gas machine-gun. "This equipment is thoroughly adequate to deal with any emergency that may arise in Alabama," Director Smith said. "Should an emergency of even major proportions occur, it is adequate to deal with the situation until any needed reinforcements can be brought up."

The Director stated that both firearms and gas equipment are available at "strategic points" throughout Alabama. "How much of this equipment and how big a supply of ammunition do you have on hand now?" he was asked. "Plenty," was the terse and prompt reply.

What To Do 'Til Hitler Comes

Everyone is getting tired of the title about Hitler invading the United States.

It is so much bunk.

Nevertheless, the United States should be armed sufficiently to repel any invasion of the Western World. It is in Greenland or the Falkland Islands at the far tip of South America. "What To Do 'Til Hitler Comes" is the title of an editorial in the Commercial, and it is right the what ought to be the ally of true American.

Here are the eight things the Commercial says do:

1—Don't try to understand what's going on in Europe. Even the people over there don't know what it is all about.

2—Listen to your radio and read newspapers, but keep in mind that only press releases that you hear, read, are the ones approved by the government.

3—Have faith in the American government and make up your mind to give your whole hearted support to a program designed for our national defense.

4—Don't worry about when Hitler is coming over here. You will be notified several hours before he arrives.

5—Don't worry about what effect war is going to have on cotton. The government has been keeping enough of cotton up for the past several years and will no doubt continue to do so.

6—Get down your song book. Learn at least one verse of the "Spangled Banner, and America, My America, and America."

7—Take your American flag to the footballs and look it over so you will be able to recognize it when you see it.

8—When you get down on your knees every night, thank God for permitting you to live in a country that permits you to thank God.—Commercial (Miss) Commercial Dispatch.

For Stars and Stripes

Here are primary rules of respect to be accorded the flag of the United States:

1. The flag should never touch the ground.
2. It should be on the right of crossed or carried in parades with other countries.
3. Stand when the flag goes by.
4. Hang a flag; never drag it.
5. It should be raised at sunrise and lowered at sunset.

The church needs YOU and you need the church. Would you want to live in a community where there were no churches or church people? If not why not undertake to assist the church to thrive and increase in usefulness. He that is not for me is against me, said Jesus.

A CORRECTION

Editor the Chilton County News: Will you please correct an error that occurred in the article I sent you last week relative to our fifth Sunday meetings. The second paragraph should read as follows:

All pastors and members of the Executive Committee of the Chilton County Baptist Association are requested to meet at the First Baptist Church, Clanton at two o'clock Saturday afternoon, August 24th to work out the details of this plan.

Thanking you for this correction and for the generous publicity you so graciously give our churches, I am

Yours sincerely,

THORSBY INSTITUTE

The Ladies Guild have been busy during the past week in the kitchen of the dining hall at Thorsby Institute. Two days were spent in canning foodstuffs for use this winter. The weeks total was over one hundred jars in a wide variety of vegetables. They have had one day so far this week and expect to can at least one more before the week is over.

The Guild has planned a unique meeting for the month of July. By drafting the services of the men, an evening meeting will be held on the lawn, weather permitting, of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Campbell. An old-fashioned ice cream Supper, accompanied by lots of new-fashioned entertainment, will complete the program. The public is invited and the proceeds will go to the Ladies Guild to be used by them for the Institute.

Miss Rith Ford, of the Institute faculty, will leave her home in Dalton, Mass. on August 1st for a trans-continent motor trip with her sister Miss Myrtle Ford. They plan to spend some time in California, and then by the southern route eastward to Thorsby. Probably arriving just before the opening of school on September 11th. A friend of Miss Myrtle Ford will come to Thorsby to accompany her on the home trip from Thorsby back to Dalton.

A picture post card from Miss Leach, mailed from Yellowstone Park, is good indication that she is having a pleasant vacation. Miss Leach and her sister are traveling through the west during the summer.

All reservations have been made for the boys dormitory, which is filled to capacity and with reservations being made by the girls every day, the boarding department of the Institute will be filled and every indication points to a large attendance for the coming school year.

The local sewerage project, which is passing the campus, has routed traffic through the Institute grounds and back to the old highway. It is expected that a portion passing the front of the Campus will be completed and the street back to normal before the opening of school.

Ben Franklin Issued

Swimming Instruction

The Franklin Institute of Philadelphia points out that Benjamin Franklin, printer, patriot, statesman and scientist, once considered, throwing it all over to open a swimming school in London.

According to one of his letters, he was a great believer in the benefits of swimming and had a method of teaching others the sport.

Franklin wrote to a friend who wanted to know how to swim and told him that confidence was the first essential passing the confidence, Franklin advised, the friend should walk into the water where it deepens gradually, and turn and face the shore when the level reached the chest. Then drop an egg in the water between the hand and the shore, Franklin said.

"Then plunge under it (the water) with your eyes open, throwing yourself toward the egg," he wrote, "and endeavoring by the action of your hands and feet against the water to get forward till within reach of it."

"In this attempt you will find that the water buoys you up against your inclination; that it is not so easy a thing to sink as you imagined; that you cannot but by active force get down to the egg."

"In this manner you will feel the power of the water to support you."

Indian Milkshake

The milkshake had its origin with the American Indian, Dr. Forrest E. Clements, anthropologist professor at the University of Oklahoma who has made a study of Indian culture, has disclosed. The Indian not only contributed chocolate to the white man, but he made a milk chocolate drink flavored with vanilla, a plant product native to Mexico, Dr. Clements said. "We owe many vitamins in our diet to the Indian," said the professor.

Whites Work for Indians

The island of Annette, of which Metlakatla is the principal town is believed to be the only territory in the United States where white men work for Indians. The island is occupied by Indians with the exception of 11 white persons employed by them. The latter include a policeman, a doctor, a half dozen teachers, a cannery superintendent and two ministers.

Costs Man Liberty

CLEVELAND.—When James Wellwebber, 22, was picked up by police for violating his parole he asked to be placed in police lineups "so I can limber up a bit."

As a result he was identified by a restaurant employee as the robber who held him up for $145 two weeks before.

Once Bashful Man On Hunger Strike

Persistent Swain in Long Siege to Win Blonde.

CLAYTON, MO.—Melvin F. Miller, 30 years old, a scissors grinder and self-ordained preacher, was on a hunger strike in the village lockup recently, his latest antic in a 12-day campaign to win the love of Edith Perkins, 31, a blonde stenographer.

He wasted the first six years of his courtship because of bashfulness. He said it took him that long to obtain courage to ask for a date. She went to church with him and refused to see him again. During the last six years he has been more courageous in his pursuit.

He was arrested last October and jailed for disturbing the peace, again recently for having chained himself to a tree for three days two blocks from Miss Perkins' home and as neighbors complained, "barking like a dog."

"I haven't eaten in five days," he said, "and I won't eat a bite until she comes to see me and brings me food with her own hands," he said.

Miss Perkins, who can cook, learned at the home of her parents of Miller's strike. She was unsympathetic.

"Nuts," she said.

Miller weighs 210 pounds and is six feet tall. He described himself as "sort of a minister" for the Good Samaritan army.

When he chained himself to the tree Miss Perkins, notified by neighbors, summoned Constable Charles Adams, who found Miller in a pup tent beside the tree. One end of the chain was padlocked to his neck, the other to the tree. The keyhole of the padlocks were filled with cement.

Adams filed the chains, took Miller to jail, and asked Miss Perkins what charges she wanted to file. She said she didn't know and didn't care.

"But," she added, "if you don't keep him away from me, I'll take matters into my own hands. All I want is to be left alone. He's been bothering me for 12 years."

Miller said he would never give up his attempts to win Miss Perkins. "She said she wouldn't go out with me if I were the last man on earth," he said. "Well, I'm not, so I figure that gives me a chance."

Miner in Quiver Seeks

Ghost and Finds Bear

NORANDA, QUE.—A superstitious miner looked for a ghost and found a bear.

Abie Wile, employed by Colcoanda Mines in Duparquet township, heard strange noises emanating nightly from a spot close to the kitchen door where a pile of empty cans had accumulated. So one night he stayed up to investigate.

Eventually, the rattling and shuffling began, broken at intervals by the sound of a can striking a rock.

The ghost-laying Wile elevated himself from his hiding place and saw not Hamlet's ghost outlined against the eerie green of the northern lights, but a Canadian bear eagerly licking the interior of a tomato can.

Deaf for Over a Year,

Girl's Hearing Restored

GRAFTON, W. VA.—Totally deaf for 13 months, 18-year-old Eloise Lockard fainted with joy when her hearing suddenly and unaccountably returned.

Miss Lockard's father, Police Captain A. E. Lockard, told how the family was spending a quiet evening at home with Eloise keeping abreast of the conversation by lip reading. Suddenly she asked a brother:

"What did you say? I believe I heard you."

He repeated the statement and Eloise collapsed.

Key in Other Trouvers,

Firemen Save the Day

BUTTE, MONT.—The versatility of the Butte fire department was demonstrated again, when a local resident advised them that in changing trousers he had left the key to the house "in the other trousers" inside and that the door locked itself automatically as he went out.

The fire department placed a ladder for the man, and he did his own "second story work" of entering the house and getting the key.

These statistics are obtained from the records of the County Health Department and are published for the purpose of promoting better registration of births and deaths. Filing of a certificate for births and deaths with local registrars is made compulsory by the State Vital Statistics law. Responsibility for filing birth certificates within five days after the birth rests on the physician or midwife in attendance; undertakers or persons in charge of burials are required by law to obtain a burial permit before the body is interred. Such permits are obtainable only on the presentation of a completed death certificate to the registrar in the beat in which the death occurred.

Anyone having knowledge of births or deaths occurring during June and not included in the above list should report this matter to the County Health Office immediately.

Beer Industry Backs ABC Board

OPELIKA, Ala. July 24—(Special)—Strict adherence to Alabama's ABC laws was urged today by David E. Dunn, director of Alabama's $6,000,000 beer industry, in an address to Lee County's retail beer dealers.

Speaking to the assembled dealers at the Clement Hotel, Mr. Dunn outlined the beer industry's "clean up or close up" program and declared "It is not only observance but good business to operate a clean, inviting place."

Mr. Dunn, director of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee, came here in his statewide tour dedicated to the belief that "the least violated law is the one best understood."

"You are fortunate in having one of the best ABC Board in the nation," Mr. Dunn said. "It is a board of business men, administering the law from a business man's viewpoint."

"If you think their rules sometimes are hard and unfair, remember they are administering not their own views but the views of the people as written by their representatives in our state Legislature."

"Abide by their rules, keep order in your places, and keep your places clean and wholesome so that you bring no criticism to an industry which is giving jobs to more than 7,000 Alabamians."

LEGAL NOTICES

LEGAL NOTICE
THE STATE OF ALABAMA
CHILTON COUNTY.
CIRCUIT COURT IN EQUITY,
No. 1725

E. L. Stroud, Plaintiff, vs. J. E. Dominey, et als, Defendants.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Grady Reynolds, one of the Solicitors of Record for the Complainant in this cause that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring, the said J. E. Dominey and J. E. Dominey, Trading as the Butane Gas Company of Alabama, and J. E. Dominey, Trading as Butane Gas Corporation of Alabama, to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 11th day of Aug., 1940, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against them.

Done at office in Clanton, this 28th day of June, 1940.

Chester the Pup
By GEORGE O'HALLORAN

MAC TAVISH and I are behind the eight ball again. We found an old moth eaten flour bag hanging on the line in Murphy's yard. Mac and I pulled it down and kicked it around a bit, but it didn't last very long. When we got through with it, that bag looked like the stuffing out of a dime store teddy bear. Old Man Murphy must have heard us, because he bounced out the back door like a rubber ball and chased us down the alley. We scrambled through Snider's yard, and old Murphy tore his pants going over the fence. That was bad enough, but when he let go and fell on his head that's what really chilled him stiffer than an icicle. He hobbled over tonight and told Clara that Mac and I had chewed up his Sunday shirt. If that flour bag was a shirt, then I'm a tap dancer. Clara gave him two bucks for a new one, and now I have to stay in the back yard.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

Washington, D. C.

MUST WIN MARKETS

It is all right by Pan-American conferences and unions, to create as much good-will as possible, but let's not kid ourselves into any reliance on them or into heavy commitments on our side.

The plain lesson of this war is that dependence on any kind of collective security among nations is madness. Each nation will follow the path of its individual interest and its former friends must take care of themselves—regardless of treaties or alliances.

There is nothing new about this. George Washington said it almost a century and a half ago.

It had been proved many times then.

Never has it been so clearly proved as in the past seven years.

The fall of the little central European nations of the cordon sanitaire, which vainly relied on France, as she vainly relied on them, proved it no less clearly than the fall of France and the deadly peril of Britain—among the strongest nations on earth.

In a military, economic and racial sense, the strength and the ties that bound England, Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium were many times greater than any Pan-American union could possibly be.

The recorded stability and responsibility of those nations were far better than those of any Latin-American country. Yet that community of interest proved a rope of sand.

Of course, the principle of our policy is to ally actual jealousy and ill-feeling to the south of us, to procure naval and air bases absolutely necessary to our defense and to make it harder for any sudden Nazi-engineered eruption in a South American country to surprise us with an air-attack on this hemisphere. O. K., but let's not deceive ourselves on its value or give away our body, soul and breeches in the process.

When this war is over, the business of the world is not to proceed. If we are not going back to the Glacial age, international commerce must continue. While England has a sporting chance to defend herself and her empire, there is going to be a new industrial situation in Europe. It may not be the dream of Napoleon (by force) or Briand (by agreement)—a United States of Europe on our model. But it will be a great industrial grouping no longer frozen into a honeycomb of water-tight trade compartments by tariff barriers.

It needs markets and it needs raw materials—especially such foodstuffs as South America and this country produces in vast surplus. Is it our policy to prevent this exchange of merchandise—either by some vast cartel through which we buy the mountainous surplus of South American meat and grain and add to our own unmanageable abundance, or by diplomatic or naval quarantine? Something that points in that direction has been suggested for the Havana conference. We must not rely on any military promises of that conference. We must not there engage to underwrite the exports of this hemisphere.

Our job on the military and naval side is to get too strong for anybody to dare to intimidate us on the economic side. The economic side is not to intimidate or subsidize others. It is to win and hold markets in the only way it can be done permanently and soundly—by producing better goods and services at lower prices.

The outlines of this proposed $2,000,000,000 cartel system are not yet clear but they seem to be a new boondoggling futility so vast as to make all the other magnificent squandering put together look like a poor picker's penny ante.

TWO-WAY DOCTRINE

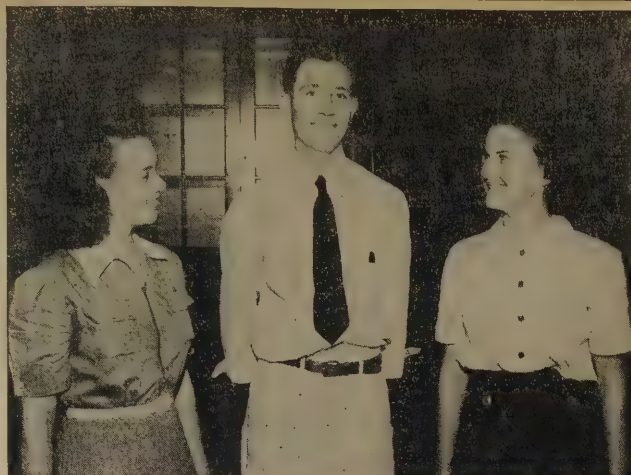

An editorial in the Washington Post emphasized that the Monroe Doctrine is a two-way street.

The forgotten part is: "In wars of European powers relating to themselves we have never taken any part nor does it comport with our policy to do so . . . our policy in regard to Europe . . . remains the same, which is not to interfere in the internal concerns of any of its powers; to consider the government de facto as the legitimate government to us."

This is much too often forgotten. The "military expert" Major Elliot has now joined our "military expert" secretary of war in insisting that we make our harbors bases for the British fleet.

Of course, this would be war. To excuse it as "undeclared war" or "undercover war" is to adopt the very poisonous deceit we so lately condemned in Spain and China and other unfortunate lands.

Why should we rush to war with many of the controlling strategic developments still unknown? The tide of battle may turn eastward. Russia may collide with either Japan or Germany. The British navy is still so superior that it doesn't need our—we have no army or equipment to send.

With T. A. Sims, Elizabeth DeLony, and T. W. Lumpkin, State 4-H Club leaders of the State Extension Service, these three youths will direct the affairs of the Alabama 4-H Club Council during 1940-41.

These new officers, left to right, are Gloria Dickinson, Etowah County, vice-president, Fred Summers, Elmore County, president, and Evelyn Martin, Dallas County, secretary.

They are the officers in charge of the 67 county councils in the State in which there are over 112,000 4-H club members.

Health Department

Because of poor attendance at Health Department immunization clinics conducted during June and July, no clinics are to be held in the County for the purpose of giving typhoid and diphtheria inoculations by the Health Department during August it was announced by the Health Department this week. Any communities, however, in which there are as many as twenty persons desiring to have the immunization can obtain this service from the Health Department by presenting a petition with the designated number of names. It is the Department's policy to hold the clinics at schools, churches, stores which are centrally located, the Health Officer pointed out.

Communities which have already requested a typhoid clinic for August are Baker School and Big Springs (colored). These clinics are scheduled as follows: Baker on Tuesdays, August 6, 13, 20, 27 from 9:15 a. m. to 10:14 a. m. Big Springs on Tuesdays, August 6, 13, 20, 27 from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

The showing of health education films is being planned for several of the larger centrally located schools which have electric current available.

The object of this program, the Health Officer states, is the dissemination of health facts and the promotion of public interest in the Health Department's program. A Mickey Mouse reel is included in each program for the entertainment of children. Films are to be shown according to the following schedule:

At Isabella School Thursday afternoon, August 15, from 3 to 4 p. m.

Dates for moving pictures at other schools will be announced at a later date.

EX-T. B. PATIENTS

If the person with arrested tuberculosis was not engaged in too strenuous work prior to developing the disease, it is advisable for him to return to that work, or to work of a similar nature, after recovering his health, according to Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, who has characterized tuberculosis as one of Alabama's and the nation's most serious health problems.

England Reverses Ethiopian Policy

Great Britain has decided to recognize the government of Emperor Haile Selassie "as the lawful government of Ethiopia," R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, informed the house of commons today.

This is a direct reversal of Britain's action on Nov. 16, 1938, in formally recognizing Italian sovereignty over conquered Ethiopia.

The deposed emperor has lived in England as a private citizen ever since.

City Motor Vehicle Deaths Compared

Following is a comparative list of motor vehicles fatalities occurring in Alabama's three largest cities during the first 27 weeks of 1940:

Montgomery leads with 14 in 27 weeks, as compared with only 4 for the same period last year.

Birmingham record 16, the same number as reported for the same period last year.

Mobile shows a reduction with 6 for the first 27 weeks, against 8 for the same period last year.

Law Enforcement Conference Called

A conference of Federal, State and local officials to promote cooperation and understanding of law enforcement problems arising from national defense has been called by the Department of Justice, August 5, 6, at Washington, D. C. It was announced today by George L. Davis, State Director of the Office of Government Reports, 220 Federal Building Birmingham.

More than 800 invitations have been sent to members of the Governor's Conference, the Council of State Governments, the National Association of Attorneys General and the Interstate Commission on Crime, which are sponsoring the meeting. Representatives of the U. S. Conferences of Mayors and the American Municipal Association have also been asked to attend.

The Conference is designed to work out plans for cooperation on such matters as espionage, mob violence, aliens and general interference with the operation of the law enforcement and national defense program. Participants, however, will not be committed to particular courses of action.

Picturizing Alabama's Recreation Possibilities

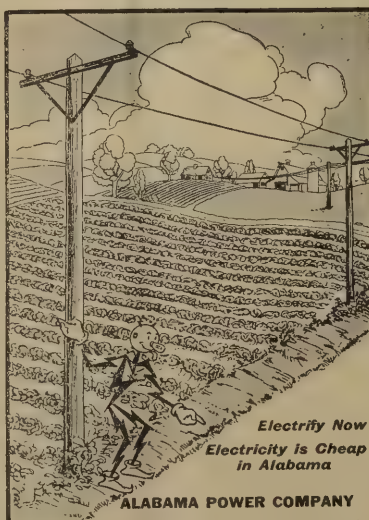

Picturing Alabama's historical, agricultural, industrial and recreation possibilities, an attractive, eight-page magazine section will be contained in next week's issue of Chilton County News. Entitled "Know Your Alabama," the section will be profusely illustrated with pictures representing every section of the state. The articles have been designed to present in graphic form the things Alabamians should know about their state.

The publication has been prepared by the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce with the cooperation of the State Planning Commission and is designed to follow up the state-wide tour of the Alabama Press Association. Places visited on the Press tour are included in the various articles, along with many other places the newsmen were unable to visit.

The cover of the section bears a letter from Gov. Frank M. Dixon inset in an outline map of the state and an elaborate photomontage including a number of striking pictures.

The State Chamber is publishing the magazine section as part of its program of educating Alabamians concerning the possibilities of their own state. Throughout the section stress has been laid on new developments that are improving the economic status of Alabama.

What It Takes for Dependable Electric Service In the Country

WHAT is needed first is a dependable source of power. Such a source of power is that of Alabama Power Company, which, along with supplying the needs of its own rural customers, also supplies electric power to many rural electric cooperatives in Alabama.

Next—well-constructed and well-maintained lines. Then an organization, placed at suitable locations, ready to "shoot trouble" when trouble comes, as it occasionally does.

We have such an organization. As a result most of our rural customers enjoy electric service of a quality comparable to that in thickly populated urban centers.

As improvements in the art of distributing electricity develop and are proven, they are incorporated in the rural lines we build.

Our rural engineers will be glad to discuss with you the many profitable uses of electricity on the farm.

Auto Quiz No. 7

ANSWERS

1. d. twenty miles an hour. The most common fault in hill climbing is failure to shift to a lower gear soon enough. This is dangerous because it may mean a stalled motor on a dangerous grade. The correct answer of 20 miles an hour given here is approximate, and recommended by good drivers as well as automotive engineers. It may vary slightly with different makes of cars. The main thing is for you to set a fairly definite point for yourself which will keep you out of trouble.

2. d. the same gear you would use to get up the hill. If the hill is steep enough so you would have to go in second or even first gear.

it is wise to get into that same gear when going down. The engine works as a brake and saves wear and tear on your real brakes. Never descend a hill in neutral.

3. False. the "one-drink" driver may be as dangerous on the road as the inebriate because even a slight exhilaration may cause him to take chances. Studies indicate that one or two drinks definitely impair one's driving ability.

R. T. J. MARCUS' PROMINENT CLANTON PHYSICIAN PASSES

After Long Illness. Once County Health Officer. Past President Medical Association

Thomas Jefferson Marcus, prominent physician here for the past 35 years is dead. Dr. Marcus died at Central Alabama Hospital Tuesday after a long illness. He was 69 years old.

He was born July 28, 1871, he helped his father on the farm and had little chance for school education during his childhood. After reaching manhood he learned as a carpenter and studied at the University of Alabama until he had progressed enough to hold a position as bookkeeper. It was while he was employed in this capacity with Mr. J. Y. Propst at Jasmine, Ala. that he decided to study medicine. He entered medical school in 1901 and completed two more years. He started practicing and would have completed his schooling and received his diploma in 1904. He has since been in Clanton and has been serving his fellowman as the best of his ability.

Dr. Marcus was a Mason, a member of the Presbyterian church and had every office in the Chilton County Medical Association.

He is survived by his widow, four children, Claude, Marvin, Raymond and Marcus and one adopted daughter, and two nephews, Terry and Joe.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at four o'clock from the home of Mrs. C. F. Graves officiating. Burial will be in the home of Mrs. C. F. Graves.

DICK HAYES AUTO MOVED BY 16-YEAR OLD HITCH-HIKER

Alabama's Able Highway Patrol Nabs Youth Within 25 Minutes After Tip

Alabama's competent Highway Patrol nabbed another feather in its cap, so Dick Hayes is concerned, last night about noon when a youthful hitch hiker got in a green Chevrolet parked in front of the Hayes Hotel Company and drove south of Montgomery. Mr. Hayes shortly afterward notified the highway patrol that the car was missing.

The youth listed as Paul Glasscock, 16, Alabama, and now in the Chilton County jail here, was arrested about 25 minutes after the broadcast went out and reached the outskirts of Montgomery.

The youth, when cornered jumped out of the car and the patrolmen engaged a bare-and-hound chase for about 100 yards before catching him. The car was damaged.

CHIL-CO DAY AT FARM AND HOME WEEK

Begins At Auburn Aug. 5th And Ends Aug. 8th

Wednesday, August 7, has been designated as "Chilton County Day" at the annual Farm and Home Week which begins in Auburn August 5 and ends August 8. According to Pat H. Smith, County Agent, many farmers from this county are planning to attend the Farm and Home Week program on that day.

"We are anxious for as many farmers to go to Auburn on that day as possible and hope that all farmers who have cars will get up a load of neighbors and friends, and by sharing the expenses make the trip as cheap as possible," urges Mr. Smith.

School buses will not be used to carry farmers to Auburn this year as they have in the past due to the fact that they are not available.

The program for Wednesday, Aug. 7, is probably the most interesting program of the whole week. The program for that day is listed below:

- Sectional Meetings:
- Section 1. Landscaping—Mr. Homer Fisher, Landscape Specialist, Chairman
 - Section 2. Dairying—Mr. F. W. Burns, Animal Husbandman, Chairman
 - Section 3. Livestock—Dr. R. S. Suggs, Animal Husbandman, Chairman
 - Section 4. Poultry—Mr. John E. Ivey, Poultryman, Chairman
 - Section 5. Forestry and Horticulture—Mr. Rufus Page, Extension Forester, Chairman
 - Horticulture—Mr. Lyle Brown, Specialist in Horticulture, Chairman
 - Section 6. Pasture and Crops—Mr. J. C. Lowery, Agronomist, Chairman

SHERIFFS OFFICE HAS BIGGEST WEEK IN PAST SEVERAL MONTHS

Twenty-Three Jailed For Offenses Ranging From Grand Larceny to Illicit Distilling

Sheriff W. G. Culp and his deputies report the busiest week in several months, just ended, offenses including burglary, robbery, grand larceny, illicit distilling, etc. There have been a total of 25 arrests made since last week.

On Wednesday of last week officers went up in the northwestern part of the county, beyond Mars Hill, near the home of Ed Leach. A complete distilling outfit together with two gallons of whiskey were destroyed. The still, a 60-gallon drum outfit, had been in operation the day before. No arrests were made.

On Monday morning a negro man, about 21, named Amos Reed, went in to the home of Row Crowson, three miles north of Clanton. There was no one in the house, but Mr. Crowson was watching the house and saw Reed enter. Mr. Crowson fired an old shotgun, but missed, whereupon the negro turned on him, got Crowson down and was beating him. Mr. Jimmie Jones, who lives near by, came to Crowson's rescue by pulling the negro off Crowson, whereupon the negro fled. He was arrested near old Strasburg at Jim Blow's place, charged with burglary, on Monday night. Also the charge of burglary and grand larceny was placed against him after he confessed to going into the house of Mr. Jimmie Jones on Friday of last week. Reed is in jail in Clanton.

On last Friday night, from about 10 to 12 o'clock a robbery occurred in the

AIRPLANE FALLS AT JEMISON

Sunday morning an airplane flown by Warren Wilkerson and H. C. Wing, both of Memphis, Tenn., crashed near Jemison. The two pilots, after noticing that their engine was not running just right, had turned and tried to make the Clanton Airfield when the accident occurred. Employees of the Mid-South Airways Corporation, they had come to Montgomery and bought the plane Saturday afternoon and had flown it only for about 30 minutes. According to Charles Wade of this city, who is an experienced mechanic and pilot, the aviators failed to switch the fuel tank button when the left tank ran out of gas, causing the failure of the motor.

Although the plane was completely demolished in the crash the two men were only slightly injured and left Monday for Memphis, Tenn.

MISS ARLEGE AND MR. WILLIS WED

An afternoon ceremony marked the marriage of Miss Paula Margaret Arledge of Thorsby and William Arthur Willis, of Clanton, which was solemnized at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Baptist church in Thorsby.

The church was beautifully decorated in Southern smilax, ferns and floor baskets of white Gladioli and tuberose. Cathedral tapers burning in - branded candlebra were prominently placed among the greenery.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. O. A. Davis of Clanton, assisted by Rev. M. I. McLeod of Thorsby.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Erle Ellis and Mrs. Percy Pitts. Mrs. Ellis sang, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Because" accompanied by Mrs. Pitts. Mrs. Ellis played the traditional wedding marches and during the ceremony she played Liebestraum. The bride given in marriage by her father, Robert Arledge, wore a gown of white mouseline de soie fashioned with full skirt, sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves.

The bride veil of illusion was finger-tip in length, and was attached to a coronet of orange blossoms.

The bridal bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Lloyd Arledge of Birmingham served her sister-in-law as matron of honor. Her gown was petal pink chiffon, trimmed with bands of lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium. W. A. Willis served his son as best man.

The ushers were Lloyd Arledge of Birmingham, brother of the bride, and George Parr, of Clanton. For traveling Mrs. Willis wore a black and white sheer ensemble. Her corsage was of roses and valley lilies. Upon their return from ma show wedding trip they will reside in Clanton.

60 CHILTON ENROLLEES DURING JULY

C. C. C. Enrollment Offers Definite Educational Advantages

During the month of July a total of 60 white boys from Chilton County were enrolled in CCC camps. Thirty of these enrollees were assigned to Camps in the Northwest, and 30 to Southern Camps.

Each of these boys receives for his services while in camp $8.00 per month in cash, plus food, clothing, medical care and opportunities for some vocational training. In addition to the employment and educational opportunities which the boy receives, each boy makes a monthly allotment of $20.00 to his family. This means that $1,320.00 per month is being put into circulation in Chilton County for the next six months, if each boy remains for the full duration of his enrollment.

Regulations governing eligibility for CCC enrollment have been changed so that any unemployed boy between the ages of 17 and 24 is eligible for enrollment regardless of the economic status of his family. Preference is still given however, to boys from low income families, other things being equal.

Since CCC enrollment offers definite educational advantages to the enrollee, the Department of Public Welfare, which is the designated local selecting agency, is making every effort to select boys for enrollment who have the ability and the desire for self-government.

It is our aim to send forward for enrollment boys of good character who are willing to take full advantage of the opportunities which CCC enrollment has to offer.

The following is a quotation from a letter recently received from a Chilton County boy who is now in Camp at Salina, Utah:

"I sure appreciate what you have done for me. I would never get to have saw the West if it hadn't been for you. I have been in the CCC for seventeen months now and I sure like it—wish I could stay seventeen months longer—I want to stay in camp as long as possible. Its the best life I have lived since I have grown up enough to realize what life is. You can't imagine how good it is to be where you can learn something. I have been driving a CCC truck for one year and two days and drove 82,000 miles. I have been a mechanic for about two and one-half months and I really like it. One of the boys, who enrolled the day I did is now assistant leader."

I give you this as an illustration of what CCC enrollment can mean to our boys.

Before selecting any boy, the Department discusses the entire program with the applicant and his parents so that they may understand thoroughly the obligations to which the applicant is pledged when selected for enrollment. As a result of this policy Chilton County has had a very small percentage of boys dishonorably discharged from the service and it is our hope that in the future our slate may be absolutely clean and free of this "black marks." The CCC is not a "Reformatory" and boys who are trouble-makers are definitely not wanted for the service.

Enrollments are held quarterly each January, April, July and October; and the Department is always glad to receive applications from boys who are sincere in their wish to improve their own opportunities and assist their families through CCC enrollment.

Soil Building In Pastures Important

Soil building in pasture management is just as important as it is in row cropping, says E. L. Mayton, associate agronomist, Alabama Experiment Station. Soil fertility, he adds, can be increased and maintained by fertilizing pastures with phosphate and lime.

When the pasture legume plants die, they return to the soil the nitrogen taken from the air and stored in them. He gave an example. "Black medic, fertilized with phosphate and grown on lime soil in the Black Belt, produces a heavy growth. After a while, if present in sufficient quantities, white clover will take the medic's place. Being a winter legume, the clover will die out in hot summer months, and summer grasses will flourish. Their growth and stimulation will be largely due to the nitrogen given to the soil by the dead white clover."

Pecan Web Worms May Be Destroyed

That thickly-woven mass of webs that you see clustered around twigs and in branch crotches of pecan trees is not the work of spiders, but of the destructive fall webworm, the larvae of which are inside the web.

Closer observation will show the defoliation of the immediate vicinity. Every year there is a prevalence of the webworm but this season there seems to be a large increase in the number of worms.

In some areas in Alabama, whole trees have been engulfed with the web and the limbs have been stripped of their leaves.

"The next generation of webworms will almost destroy pecan foliage and that of other trees, if this keeps up," says J. M. Robinson, head of the Department of Entomology at Auburn.

"Farmers should get to work and destroy them immediately," he continued. "The best methods are to remove the webs and burn them, or to burn the webs on the tree with a torch, taking care not to injure the twigs with the hot flame."

Careful Handling Of Cotton Advised

Experiments show that wet-ginned cotton will lose in value from two to five dollars per bale. Farmers can prevent this loss by a more careful management of cotton picking and pre-ginning treatment, says J. B. Wilson, Extension agricultural engineer.

Cotton should not be picked right after a heavy rain, unless it is going to be dried afterward before ginning. Cotton picked in the early morning should be placed on a tarpaulin and dried.

"During 1939 approximately 66 gins in Alabama were equipped with driers, but even these have limitations. A drier will not benefit extremely wet cotton."

During 1939, 372,000 bales or about 47 per cent of Alabama's cotton, was taken to the gins damp or wet. This cut the value of many bales because all of the cotton could not be dried at the gin, according to Mr. Wilson.

COTTON BALE COVERS

The U.S.D.A. announces approval of allotments to four cotton mills for the manufacture, sale, and delivery of 855,000 cotton "patenters" or bale covers, under a program designed to encourage the use of American grown cotton for this purpose.

United States farm exports to Latin America increased from 38 million dollars in 1932 to approximately 53 million dollars in both 1937 and 1938.

The United States farm mortgage debt, in the fall of 1939, was the smallest in 20 years.

Way "Build-up" Helps Will Interest Women

The cause of a woman's periodic suffering from headache, irritability, cramp-like pain, may be functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, a condition that is often helped by CARDUI.

Principal way CARDUI helps is by stimulating appetite and the flow of gastric juices. Thus it may aid digestion; help build up a woman's strength, energy and nerve-force; so increase physical resistance to periodic discomfort.

It also helps reduce periodic distress for many who take it a few days before and during "the time." Your confidence in CARDUI is invited by its 50 years of popularity.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

LOANS TO FOREIGN LANDS
WASHINGTON.—Poor Mr. Hoover once set out to help our foreign trade to dispose of our surplus products by means of the backward and forward "Loans to foreign lands." Loans to bankrupts have a way of turning sour. These did, and what a panning Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 gave the Great Engineer for that suggestion.

Mr. Hoover was only proposing a policy of private loans—no money of risk-takers for profit. His project was relatively piker's chickenfeed. Mr. Roosevelt now wants to take $500,000,000 out of the treasury to lend to Latin-American countries to enable their governments to buy up and hold the surplus of agricultural products. This is a price-pegging plan such as Mr. Wallace has practiced in American farm products. It has never worked in the history of the world although it has frequently been tried—notably in Brazil's coffee, East Indian rubber, Canadian grain and American wheat, corn and cotton.

It doesn't work because it is the presence (rather than the mere ownership) of unmanageable surplus and the certainty of oncoming crops that overhangs the market and depresses price. That was the basic fault with Mr. Wallace's "Joseph" or "ever-normal granary" day dream. Joseph could successfully buy and store the surplus of Egypt for seven fat years and then sell it at hold-up prices during the lean years until he owned all of Egypt. He could do it because he had a dream-book and a direct wire to the Pearly Gates. Henry apparently has a dream-book but no direct wire, although the President says we are to underwrite the South American surplus only for one year. How does he know?

In the romantic days, when spices were the only practical food preservative and therefore invaluable, the Dutch controlled much of the East Indian trade. They had a rougher remedy for market glut than we have today. It too much anise, cinnamon, pepper, nutmeg, cloves or what-not was congesting on the wharves, they simply sank the surplus in the sea. Mr. Wallace has tried variations of that also. That is why he killed the little gas and can't be allowed to run the cotton, paid farmers for not producing and recently and more intelligently, through the food-stamp plan, sold farm surplus to the poor at a great discount in price and all the rest of us footed the grocery bill. O. K. for our own people. This column is for a direct federal subsidy to a "parity price" to our farmers for all their products that can be consumed at home and also for the food-stamp or any similar plan to subsidize consumption of our food products. To all low-income groups—not merely to help consume our farm surplus but to relieve us of the insufferable charge of permitting Americans to starve or be undernourished in the midst of rotting overabundance.

But it is absolutely opposed to pouring five hundred or any other number of millions of public money down any Latin-American rat holes to subsidize our own competition and possibly to find their way into Hitler's coffers or certainly, in no small degree, into the pockets of various satellites of the assorted dictatorships of the banana republics.

Sure, we need Pan American solidarity and friendship, but we can't buy it. The only thing that will make it on any worthwhile basis, is cold-blooded community of interest. If that isn't there, any amount of billions is just money thrown away.

Mr. Roosevelt has neither right nor reason in calling this a "loan," intimating that one year's operation will do the trick, or limiting his request to half a billion.

It is well known in Washington that this first step is part of a two-billion dollar program to make Uncle Sam the international broker for all the products of the Western world.

That, too, is grotesque fantasy. Its cost would eventually take us out of the multiplication tables and into the field of logarithms.

The essence of all New Deal planning, statesmanship, diplomacy and solution of all public problems can be expressed in a single phrase "give us billions of dollars."

As statesmanship, that is about as realistic as Santa Claus and Aladdin's lamp.

LOUIS JOHNSON
I returned to Washington after the conventions to find a rumor that the new Tory Republican secretary of war had asked his vigorous assistant, Lquis Johnson, to get the hell out of there.

Politics marches on—ruthlessly, respecting nothing, sparing nothing. I have not always seen eye to eye with Mr. Johnson. At first I thought he was politicalizing and New Dealizing the army. My criticism was well-informed but it proved premature.

That job differs from any other sub-cabinet position. It is charged by statute with industrial mobilization of the whole nation in an emergency. My observation was that Mr. Johnson did not fully appreciate this vast problem in the beginning. He certainly does now. His work here is not paralleled elsewhere in government.

Sardis News

Sunday School attendance has been very good the past few Sundays. Come on folks and let's push it forward. The health of the community is very good at present.

Remember Sunday is our regular preaching day. There will be preaching and prayer service Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night.

The baptizing will be Sunday morning at 9:00 o'clock down in front of Bro. Tommie Deason's house. You can park your cars and trucks at his house and it is just a little way to where they will baptize. All candidates for baptism remember the time and place.

Sunday School and preaching service will be at the regular time. Everyone come out and hear Bro. Weaver at each service, I am sure you will enjoy each message. Our subject in B. Y. P. U. Sunday night is "What Is Divine Righteousness?" This subject is of great practical value. It directs our thinking to the foundation of Christian living. We are studying to show ourselves to God, to the world and to each other as church members who need not be ashamed, working in life according to the will of God as He has revealed it to us.

We are expecting a great service with the Lord in these meetings. Come and be with us.

E. L. OWEN.

Eastview

The people of Eastview were greatly blessed in the revival which was brought to a close last Friday night. We had a fine attendance. The three young people who were taken into the church by Rev. Luther Ballou were baptized in the creek below the church in an impressive service early last Sunday morning.

Tremendous Traffic Increases Predicted

Tremendous traffic increases over U. S. Highway 31 through Birmingham, Clanton and Montgomery—especially during the Fall and Winter when tourist travel to Florida is heavy—are predicted by Stuart C. Hawley, Touring Service Director of one of the Nation's largest oil companies.

Mr. Hawley—who maintains a New York Office but spends much of his time driving over the highways of all the States, studying traffic movements and changes—made his forecast regarding the Birmingham-Clanton-Montgomery route to Florida during a recent visit to the State Highway Department, when he called on Highway Director Chris J. Sherlock.

The visitor stated, however, that the traffic increases along this, one of Alabama's main motor thoroughfares, cannot be expected until after the re-located section of U. S. 31 just south of Birmingham is opened to travelers. Travel agencies, said Mr. Hawley, are inclined at present to route tourists and other travelers around the tortuous, hair-pin-curved route over Shades mountain, a few miles South of Birmingham.

Archer's Chapel

Two hundred friends of Archer's Chapel gathered there last Sunday morning. What a real homecoming! The finest kind of spiritual edification.

Rev. Jodie Ellison was the speaker of the morning, and Rev. Luther Ballou in the afternoon. Three preachers were also on the platform and took an active part in the service. Rev. T. W. Davis who directed morning services; Rev. Elkany La and Rev. West Partridge. It was a day that our people will never forget. A generous dinner was served on church grounds.

"All Men Should Be Conscripted— for THIS"

THAT'S what a customer told one of our representatives a few days ago, when he happened to visit her home to inquire about her electric service.

"That would be fine," he agreed, "because then electric washing machines would sell like hot cakes. Every conscript to the washboard and tub would begin immediately to save his nickels for the small down payment on an electric washing machine."

"How about your husband? Would you conscript him too?"

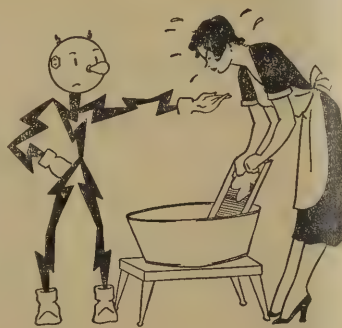

"You bet," agreed the tired woman.

"Let's conscript him," said the representative, who was acquainted with the husband.

Imagine her surprise, one evening a few days later, to observe her husband get out the scrub-board and tub, place some laundry, hot water and soap in it, and begin washing the clothes. (He made an awful mess!)

He held out about ten minutes. Then he said—well, we can't tell you what he said in an advertisement, but you can guess. He concluded his %c@/# remarks with:

"You and that electrical fellow win—go down to the store tomorrow and get yourself the kind of an electric washing machine you want!"

WE HAD company for dinner to night. It was a Mr. Smith, one of Brittlebrain's customers from Chicago. He was a big, crabby looking fellow with a derby hat, and a face like the missing piece of a jigsaw puzzle. Brittlebrain expected a big order from this visit and he knew just what he was going to say at the supper table. But he never got a chance. Clara's Uncle Sedgewick did all the talking. Can you imagine that old billy got trying to tell us that he once tracked a black polar bear (the only one ever heard of, and therefore worth a fortune). Well, he tracked that bear for seven years and when he finally caught up with him the bear had turned gray from old age. That was too much for me so I went in the parlor and chewed the top end of the guy's derby. By the time dinner was over, Mr. Smith was kind of fed up on uncle's hot air. And finding his hat on the parlor floor without a top was no tonic either. He finally left without leaving an order, but he left Brittlebrain that he thought the most must have crept through a crack in uncle's skull.

Mark Remarks:

Press Gets Four Aces

When the Alabama Press Association at its mid-winter meeting, dealing from the personnel deck, drew Hunter Golsen for President; Jimmie Faulkner for Vice-President; R. C. Bryan for Secretary; and Doyle L. Buckles for Field Manager, it had four aces face up.

We don't believe the Association has ever had a more conscientious or energetic bunch of officials. The manner in which the Press Tour was handled entitles them to the unanimous praise of the entire contingent which enjoyed that glorious trip.

Beautiful Scenery Of North Alabama

This writer was unable to start with the Press Tour party from Montgomery and enjoy with them the beautiful scenery and many interesting attractions of the northern half of the State, but from newspaper accounts we gather that the paper boys and girls were literally "carried away" with the wonders of Alabama's Wonderland.

Selma — Symbol Of Southern Hospitality

When the Alabama Press caravan reached Selma, it found real Southern hospitality in the entertainment at luncheon provided by Mrs. F. T. Railroad and her able staff of assistants. The Selma Times-Journal and the Selma Chamber of Commerce... President Ed Pettus and Secretary Hunt Frazier of the Chamber of Commerce, Congressman Sam Hobbs, Mayor Lucien Burns and others were untiring in making this one of the most pleasant pauses of the press gang. Unless our memory is at fault, it was at the annual Alabama Press Association meeting at Selma in 1886 or 1887 that John Craft, who we believe at that time was editor of the Mobile Register, delivered an address urging the state editors to become good roads conscientious. And we are today enjoying the fruits of the seed sown there.

Fairhope On The Eastern Shore

Over the John Craft (Father of Good Roads in Alabama) Highway at a sixty-miles-an-hour clip went the cavalcade to Mobile, and on across the bay to Fairhope—practical demonstration of Henry George's theory of a true democracy—the single tax theory; and we found ourselves more than once wondering if maybe Henry George was not seeing a long way ahead of his time, the only salvation for the democracies of the world.

Entertainment here consisted of a sumptuous fish-fry with all the trimmings, including the refreshing amber liquid that only the German and Greek "colonies" of Baldwin and their friends are permitted to enjoy.

Dreamland—Where Man Knows How To Live And Love And Work

So back across the bay to Bellingerhills—"Charm Spot of the Deep South." Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bellingerhills the party was escorted through as entrancing maze of flowering and foliage beauty as is seldom man's opportunity to enjoy—it is beyond description by pen, brush or camera. One can only appreciate it by seeing it.

From there to the State Docks, where for a short time we were placed in "cold storage" awaiting a feast fit only for the gods, prepared from products taken from the docks quick freezing plant.

Again we thought of John Craft, who as Mobile Editor and State Senator, worked to the end of his long and useful life in the interest of good roads—and through such influences he and others made possible such an Alabama Press Tour.

We thought of the brothers LeMoynes, Bienville and Iberville, and how if now living, they would have enjoyed in extreme ecstasy, the trip through the Gardens—and their own beloved Mobile as it is today.

of grandeur, natural beauty, true hospitality and informal fellowship and sociability, than during its 1940 "See Alabama First" blitz tour.

Mack Wyatt and son of The Montevallo Times who have been spending a few days in Baldwin where Mack is trying to catch up on his fishing, joined the party at the Colonial Inn at Fairhope Thursday night.

No. Neither has any one else. There's no such animal as a Willie Democrat.

Ho, hum! Luncheons, fishfries, barbecues, Bellinghills, boat rides, car-bass-fiddlers, shrimp gumbo, camp stew, cocktails and mosquitos. Ho, hum! I gotta go to work.

It has been suggested that Alabama's new code be called the Welch Code, in honor of Representative W. S. Welch who perhaps did more work on the new code than any other individual. We second the nomination.

Rule Of The People Vs. Rule Of Money

This campaign is a fight to the finish between the few big rich and the millions in moderate circumstances and the very poor. The plutocrats are fighting for their very existence. So is the other crowd. Franklin D. Roosevelt represents the many; Wendell L. Willkie represents the few big rich. If the man in moderate circumstances and the poor man fail to take advantage of this opportunity to throw off the made-to-order yoke of economic serfdom, which we have been wearing for nearly three quarters of a century, we should not complain at any fate which may await us.

The Poor Man's Opportunity

Any poor man, farmer small merchant or business man, regardless of his past political affiliations, who votes for Wendell L. Willkie, believing he is the true friend of any one of these, should start at once reading up on the difference between plutocracy and democracy.

New Cotton Product

What may prove to be an important new use for cotton is seen in a plywood recently developed by a Seattle building materials manufacturer, according to a recent statement by the National Cotton Council.

The new board, used in interior construction, is manufactured in panels long enough to cover the entire wall of a room, requiring only four panels to completely cover the room. The manufacturer states that laboratory tests have proved the new board to be four to thirty times as strong as other boards now being marketed. Impact resistance is much greater than that of fibre and plaster boards, the laboratory reports state.

Advantageous characteristics given the product by its cotton fabric covering as listed by the manufacturer include fire resistance, low heat conductivity, rot and vermin resistance and water resistance.

The cotton covering allows immediate painting or preparing of walls as quickly as they are put in place without the customary delay caused by plastering. In addition the covering assures the absence of wall cracks and checking.

The Seattle product is said by the Council to be in line with experiments conducted by the Department of Agriculture in the use of cotton fabric covered wall board. Test houses built by the department thus far have proved satisfactory, it was said.—The Florence Herald.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

On the border between France and Germany there were fortifications that has her forts to the north, while Russia's borders bristle with guns and forts. Look at the border between the United States and Canada. Not a fort anywhere. Not even a patrolman guarding one against the other. Why the difference? Between our country and Canada there is no ill will. One is not jealous of the other. In fact we love the people of Canada and they love us, and we have no need for patrolmen. We hear much talk about peace, but there can be no peace until men and nations get above suspicion and hatred. Love in action is the only thing that will ever bring an end to war. As individuals, as nations, we be brethren and why should we fight each other.

The Attican Highwayman Procrustes, it will be remembered, had an iron bed constructed that fitted him perfectly. So pleased was he with his bed that he made its dimensions the test of all men's ability to measure up to the fullness of manhood. If a man was too long for his bed he would cut him off, and if he was too wide he would trim his body to fit. Should a man be too short he would put him on a stretcher and by violence he would pull him out to fit his bed. It is said that some times highwayman would pull men in two in his stretching process. This man was brutish because he thought himself to be the perfect man. What about you my friend? Do you build for yourself an ideal and then measure all other men by your measuring rod? I fear that the most of us are rather exacting when we measure other men by our own bed.

In the State of Mississippi they passed a law years ago known as the "Mortmain" statute. This law prohibited any one from making a will or a special gift to churches or institutions. Recently an amendment was submitted asking the repeal of that law and it passed with a majority that ran up to ten to one. The reason for this majority was simple. The church people of the State united their strength at the ballot box and the law was repealed with an overwhelming majority. Whether it be Maine or Mississippi the church people in any state have the balance of power when they go to the ballot box. Do you know why we have open saloons, Honkey Tonks, gambling dens, horse and dog racing, road houses under poor regulation? It comes back to the lack of unity of church members. We hold the balance of power and if we would stand together and fight together for the same end, we could have any reformation that we need. Divided we are defeated. United we win.

I saw a man wearing a jewel that he treasured much. With pride he related to me how he came into possession of that jewel. He had traveled long and hard and had won the distinction of being a thirty second degree Mason. Merit had been his motto and by hard travel he had gone to the height in Masonry. As a member of the church may I not ask of you—What degree have you attained as a Christian? Many are nothing more than a mere apprentice. Many have attained the third degree. They be few and far between who have sacrificed and traveled to the height of a thirty second degree Christian. As for me I had a thousand times rather be a thirty second degree Christian than to be a thirty second degree Mason.

Being a Christian is more than saying prayers, going to church, donating to the poor. You can do all of these things and yet be many miles from the kingdom. When a Crabapple root has grafted into its trunk the twig from the delicious Winesap apple tree, then there is produced the fruit that is sweet and fine. The vital union is established between the sour and the sweet and first class fruit is produced. For us to be Christians we must have Christ grafted into us. We give of our nature to produce the Christy deeds and in Him and through Him we become like unto Him. Unless you are producing the Christian fruit you have no claim to the Christian life. Being a Christian is like Christ.

If there is no so-called royalty left in the earth after this war is over—then it will not have been fought in vain. The whole world will be in better shape to begin the establishment of universal democracy.—The Chilton County News.

What's the good of Royalty anyway? How is it that because a child is born of certain parents, he or she is thereby capable of ruling over other people who were born just as Royalty was, except of different parents? Nerds—Alexander City Outlook.

In Whom Do We Place Our Trust

Because men are putting their trust in manpower instead of Godpower, wars are brought on, declared the Rev. Harold J. Dudley in a message to his congregation at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday.

This time of stress is a sign to Christian people to turn back to God, and "take heed lest they fall," he said—a time for nations to repent or be chastised.

Drawing one of the many truths in the Old Testament as a parallel to the situation today, when men and nations are forgetting God and putting their faith in men, the Rev. Mr. Dudley related the story of Asa, the good king of Judah.

"For 36 years Asa had given his people peace, strength and victory," he said. "He had put aside all idolatry and had been attentive to God. When he was besieged by 1,000,000 Ethiopians, he turned to Jehovah, and God delivered him. Then came a time of strain and stress. The northern kingdom of Israel had Asa blockaded. It was then that Asa changed. He turned to Ben-Hadad, king of wicked Syria, ally of the king of Israel, buying him with gold and silver, and causing the siege to be lifted, but at the same time thwarting his opportunity of checking Syria. For this Hanani, the prophet, rebuked Asa for his foolishness and declared that henceforth he should have war.

"Asa had put his trust in manpower. He had failed to rely on God in the time of stress. That principle applies today. Men are putting their trust in men, and forgetting God and the Sabbath. This is why men bring war on themselves."—Birmingham News.

Letters To The Editor

Editor Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

In a recent letter written by Mr. T. J. Arledge, published in the Union Banner, he made the statement that I was a party to the taking of the Ballot Box in 1938 and the buying of votes in the election of 1939-40.

Now, so far as my being a party to the taking of the Ballot Box to which Mr. Arledge refers, he is absolutely right and I admit my part in it. But, Mr. Arledge is badly mistaken when he says that I was in any way connected with, or have ever been connected with the buying of votes in any election. Chilton County or any other County. I want to brand this statement as false and defy any man to show that any part of this statement is true, and here request that Mr. Arledge retract the statement made in his letter of last week.

I am not going to write a lengthy letter in regard to this subject or take up any more of your space than necessary but I do want all to know that this is an untrue statement and I take this means of letting the people of Chilton County know that it is.

SOUTH GETS FARM AID OF $9,000,000

Division of $9,000,000 among four deep South States, to aid farm families to purchase the land they till, was announced yesterday by the Montgomery regional office of the Farm Security Administration.

Julian Brown, assistant regional director, said Alabama would receive $3,227,648, Florida $3,233,134, Georgia $3,329,751 and South Carolina $2,129,797.

More than 85,000 families already have filed applications to participate in the program for fiscal 1940-41.

"The program for the new fiscal period will be administered as in the past with very few changes," Brown said. "Because of the comparatively small number of loans we were able to make, application periods in the past were open for brief intervals only. To make certain this year that all families have the opportunity to tender their applications, no application limitations are planned."—Montgomery Advertiser.

ALABAMA GIRL

Miss Irene Caldwell, a Scottsboro, Alabama girl, has been assigned to duty as stewardess on Uncle Sam's newest and largest merchantman, America. The new ship's first service will be in the West Indies.

Sticking To Party

There are many anti-Roosevelt, anti-third term Democrats in Alabama who feel just like jumping the traces and supporting Republican standard bearer Willkie, but we assume they are more vocal than numerous.

We were not happy over all the carry-ons at Chicago ourselves, but we can't figure out how we could help the Democratic South by jumping on a Republican band-wagon. So far as our recollection goes back we can't recall any real help that has come to the South from the Republican party—Troy Messenger.

THE FAMILY

"But John, there's no precedent for a third term."

"My dear, there was no precedent for Washington's first term."

Process of Creating "Spontaneous" Political Enthusiasm is Revealed

Those innocents who unthinkingly swallowed the stories about the "spontaneous demand" for the nomination of Willkie by the Republican national convention and how the delegates were forced to nominate him because of the "overwhelming tide" of popular opinion must be rather shame-faced now that the origin of the "spontaneity" is being made clear. Excepting to people who like to be made suckers of it is who chagrined to learn that they have fallen for a frame-up or a planned hoax, especially by a designing group of exploiters.

That the Willkie boom was not the impromptu affair it was represented by ballyhoo to be and that the campaign was a matter of only a few weeks is disproved by many pieces of evidence. For example a dispatch from Philadelphia to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, a sturdy Republican organ, has this to say: "Obviously, Willkie's nomination brings into national political importance Edgar M. Queney, 42-year-old head of the giant Monsanto Chemical Company. Queney's position in the Willkie picture is most interesting. On good authority in several quarters it can be said that in May 1939, 13 months ago, Queney first began mentioning Willkie as a man who fitted the pattern of the type of candidate the GOP needed to re-establish its position and as a man who could take good care of himself in a good old-fashioned slugfest with the party in power."

So, not three or four weeks ago, but thirteen months ago, the head of this great and wealthy corporation was already at work among his associates creating the "spontaneous" uprising which was to spring up a year hence as the insistent "voice of the people." And is anyone credulous enough to suppose that if this profitable corporation was engaged in this work that other huge enterprises were not enlisted in the same enterprise? Being a chemical company, perhaps Monsanto has a special formula for making "spontaneity."

More testimony on this account is given by the St. Louis Star-Times which quotes an L. G. Walker as denying there was any common source of the telegrams, letters, post cards and telephone calls which deluged the delegates to the convention. But in explaining what was done Mr. Walker gives the game away. The Star-Times says: "He tells how some of the telegrams actually were sent. A Willkie for President Club, he says, 'got under way' in his 'small eastern town' three weeks ago. And sure enough 'volunteer workers' got out printed postcards and obtained signatures. Supporters then were 'urged to report to headquarters' and 'sign and pay for telegrams.'"

The editor of the Lincoln, Nebraska, Star, telegraphing his paper from the convention about the avalanche of propaganda that ascended on the delegates, wrote: "They may be the genuine, sincere outpouring of an American constituency representative of all businesses and classes. But that does not explain the similarity in phraseology of some of the telegrams, and it does not clear up the avalanche of printed postcards which required only signatures. . . . For example there was a telegram to the chairman of the Nebraska delegation from a widely known Lincoln business man, which read: 'Election next November will be nothing but a formality if you fellows don't nominate Willkie.' It may be his language but it did not sound like there is another from the same coin man which read: 'Do what can for Willkie.' That sounds like a man whose name was signed. It was another from a Lincoln business firm—signed by the firm's name—stead of its head. . . . Chairman H. Brown of the Nebraska delegation headed the issue of flooding the nation with telegrams for Willkie. . . . squarely out in the open by the first of those received at the caucus of the delegates. He had been pressed there had been radio appeals, send in letters and likewise it was newspaper advertisements had been prepared and appeared in some of these. There was general condemnation from the delegates at the caucus. It was significant that the only instance in the early ballots where vote of an entire state delegation cast for Willkie was that of Connecticut. . . . where the Republican party and power interest are synonymous. In the old days it was J. Henry H. Back who represented the power as Republican national committee now it is Samuel F. Pryor. The Pryor, Connecticut. . . . Sunday. . . . speaking of the defeat of Tall Dewey, said: 'They failed to see that the Pryors of the 1940 convention were backed by the power which is source of political power, the power money.'

The Herald said further: "According to one of the workers in the Willkie camp, every single delegate was indexed with his background and financial pedigree. Some key leaders of the delegation were almost everywhere almost every delegation could be traced who was open to reason. . . . reason that Willkie was the best bet or the reason that speaks louder words."

The Chicago Tribune, a violent anti-Roosevelt newspaper, printed a story which read: "How the old-fashioned chain letter was to promote candidacy of Wendell L. Willkie in pre-convention campaign was related by Chicago business men who were Willkie. Thousands of such letters were received and transmitted by Chicago business men in the last few days. . . . Recipients of the letters were urged to wire their state delegates chairman to support Willkie. The commended message form suggested in the letters was: 'I want Willkie. Bankers, lawyers, brokers and doctors were among those who participated in the chain letter promotion. Seldom a political movement provoked so much enthusiasm in the financial district did the Willkie candidacy.'

Several members of the Ladies Guild met last Wednesday in the dining hall of the Institute and spent the day canning. Those present were: Mesdames Goddard, Bosworth and Campbell and Rev. Gonzales. These weekly canning days are greatly appreciated by the Institute.

Miss Bertha Littleton of Birmingham, spent the week end here.

THORSBY INSTITUTE

The Ladies Guild held an evening meeting last week which was in the form of an Ice Cream Supper. The social event was well attended and was a success from every standpoint. The evening session was planned in order to permit the men who are interested in the work of the Guild to have an opportunity to support its activities. It must be said in the men's favor that they responded well and their patronage was very much appreciated.

An impromptu program of songs was provided by members of the Junorettes Choral Club, and Ruby Rabon. Mr. Lloyd Howard added much to the pleasure of the evening by his delightful accordion music.

Demonstration Club Work Means More Than Attendance

By Mattie Jo Barber, Home Demonstration Agent.

Home Demonstration Club work means more to club members than just attendance at meetings where they learn improved methods of home making. The bigness of their program is embodied in their Home Demonstration Club Creed which is the creed of every club member.

In order that you may know and appreciate the bigness of their program we quote below their creed:

"As a Home Demonstration Club Member:

I believe in the open country and the rural life in the country.
I believe that through working together in a group we can enlarge our vision and enrich the lives of all rural people;

I believe that the greatest force which molds character comes from the home and I pledge myself to create a home which is normally wholesome, spiritually inspiring, mentally stimulating, and physically healthful and convenient.

I believe in my own work, as homemaker, and accept the responsibilities it offers to me helpful to others and to create a more contented family and community life, so that in the end farm life will be most satisfying;

I believe in God as the ruling factor in all life, a God who inspires inviolate strength, endurance, tolerance and faith for our careers as mothers, homemakers and community leaders."

Conscription Bill Highlights Given

WASHINGTON.—The major provisions of the compulsory military training bill as drafted by the Senate Military committee.

Men between 18 and 64 years would be registered for a "system of selective compulsory military training and service." The War Department estimates there are 42,000,000 men of these ages. Actual military training in the army navy and marine corps would be limited to men between 21 and 45 years, with older and younger men serving in "home defense" units.

Drafted men would be given 12 months training and would receive base pay for the army and navy, starting at $21 a month.

Authority to decide upon the age groups to be registered and the numbers to be called would rest with the president.

Penalty for evading registration or training could be five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

The legislation would make it an "unfair labor practice for an employer to fail to rehire the conscripts at the expiration of their training periods." "Conscription objects" would be assigned noncombatant training or other work.

Conscripts would be selected by lot after local boards had classified registrants. Deferred status would be given to married men with dependents; those in industries essential to national defense, and men in official government positions.

All men now in the army, navy and other armed forces and diplomatic and consular representatives of foreign nations would be exempt from registration.

After a year's training, conscripts would be assigned to reserve units for additional annual training for 10 years or until they reached 45. They could avoid annual peacetime training by serving out two more years in the army or national guard.

Although the legislation does not limit the numbers to be called, War Department officials said that not more than 400,000 men between 21 and 31 years would be called in the first group, about Oct. 1.

SELMA WILL BUY AIRDROME LAND

Step Is Taken To Assure $4,000,000 Construction In Pursuit School

SELMA.—Actual building of the army's new pursuit school here, with an expected $4,000,000 construction in airport and housing facilities, was brought a long step nearer realization today as the Selma City Council authorized borrowing of $140,000 to finance acquisition of the airdrome site.

Mayor L. P. Burns called the council meeting to endeavor him to obtain the money from Selma banks for immediate payments to landowners from whom the city has purchased the lands needed to the government for the air school.

Construction of the airdrome is expected to amount to approximately $2,300,000, while housing and other facilities off the air field, according to local estimates, will raise the building total to $4,000,000. The airdrome is scheduled for completion shortly after the first of next year.

"The borrowing of this money will obviate the delay of 90 days necessary for holding a bond election," Burns said. "The Selma city authorities are now drawing the deeds and escrow agreements between the city and the property holders and these agreements and the proper amount of money will be placed in the hands of the probate judge and he will make payment to the owners of the land at the proper time."

Councilman Frank Skinner presented the resolution granting the request to borrow the money and it was adopted unanimously. The construction of the proposed 83 buildings will commence within the next few days, officials said. This will be WPA projects and under the direction of Maj. George Dederick, quartermaster corps. The airdrome will be under the command of Col. B. V. Dixon who will arrive in Selma the first of August.

Graduating Exercises

Graduation exercises will be held at the Jacksonville State Teachers College August 9, according to Dr. C. W. Daugette, president. The program will take the form of a patriotic pageant, the highlight of which will be the presentation of the graduates to the "Uncle Sam" by "Alabama," for service.

Two-year diplomas will be awarded Cuba Littleton Conway, Clanton; S. E. Maddox and Melba Patton, Jemison.

TO RECEIVE BIDS

A short legal notice carried in this issue of The Outlook asks for bids from the Commissioner's Court to haul top soil from Alexander City to the Coosa county line in the highway which is soon to be paved to the Coosa line leading towards Rockford. Good news.—Alexander City Outlook.

MRS. WELCH GETS PEN

Montgomery, Ala.—Gov. Dixon will present to the widow of Representatives W. S. Welch the pen with which the Chief Executive signed the bill formally adopting Alabama's new Code of Laws. Representative Welch, who died two weeks ago, was Chairman of the joint Senate-House committee that drafted the Code.

As a further token of the esteem in which the Governor and the Code Committee held the able, conscientious, hard-working Bessemer legislator, the new Code will be known as the "Welch Code," Gov. Dixon has announced.

Discovery of Aluminum

The elementary nature of aluminum was recognized by the English scientist, Sir Humphry Davy, but was isolated until 1825, when Wohler at Göttingen succeeded in decomposing aluminum chloride. In France, Deville in 1845 obtained it by electrolysis. The manufacture of aluminum on a large scale was due to the discovery of C. M. Hall in 1888 that the oxide could be electrolyzed in solution in molten cryolite.

Natives of Arctic Circle

Learn Jitterbug Dances

Up under the northern lights of the Eastern Arctic, in the vicinity of Churchill, medicine men of Eskimo tribes are in a rage, and waiting for a return to old traditions. The ancient ceremonial dances are giving way to the antics of the modern jitterbug.

The annual excursion dance this year at the Hudson bay port saw scores of swarthy Eskimos eagerly learning the latest terpsichorean products of civilization, while the oldsters gloomed in the background. Very unseemly, they said. No dignity at all.

The highlight of the social season, the dance was held in the railway freight sheds. From all directions came all kinds of people. Cree and Chippewayan Indians, Eskimos, trappers, Hudson bay men and their wives, railroad workers and sailors from the ships waiting to take out the grain, all came.

So hot was the pace that the local orchestra was forced to work in two shifts. Between dances incidental music was furnished by the dogs outside the building.

Attending were 90 American tourists, some from as far south as Texas and southern California.

HEART DISEASE IS PUBLIC HEALTH PROBLEM NO. 1

Typhoid fever, smallpox, diphtheria and even tuberculosis, a few decades ago the leading killers of the time have been displaced by heart disease which ranks as the nation's No. 1 killer, says Dr. S. D. Sturkie, County Health officer. In 1930, for example, reports of the Alabama State Health Department show that twice as many deaths were attributed to heart disease than to any other specific cause. Heart disease he goes on to say, seems to be on the increase as is shown by the fact that the 1938 death rate from heart disease in Alabama exceeded the 1937 rate by 3 per cent, the 1928 rate by 22 per cent, and the 1918 rate by 164 per cent.

Eighty per cent of heart disease, the Health officer advises us, is due to degenerative diseases within the body such as arteriosclerosis commonly called "hardening of the arteries." This disease affecting the heart itself may interfere with the heart's blood supply causing angina pectoris which is characterized by attacks of sudden but short lasting pain in the chest following exertion. In some instances, blockage of the vessels results in coronary thrombosis which is more serious and causes prolonged pain, shock, which may end in sudden death.

The patient afflicted with either condition, according to the Health Officer, is not necessarily doomed to an early death. Care and absolute adherence to the orders of a competent physician can frequently prolong the individual's life.

The annual periodic health examination was recommended by the Health Officer as our most potent weapon against heart disease. The disease processes already described may be discovered early by the competent family physician. He may have to refer his patient to a specialist for an electrocardiograph and X-ray which are the latest most scientific devices used in the diagnosis of heart disease, but to him alone will go the credit for starting the individual on the road to readjustment of habit which may materially lengthen his life.

COMER HELPS EMPLOYEES GET HOMES

A combination of industry and agriculture is being given a real test at the big Avondale Cotton Mill at Sylacauga and six other points.

Low-interest loans by the management have made possible the purchase of small farm plots and the building of homes by 175 mill families.

In a pinch, the farms, ranging in size from 6 to 100 acres, could produce virtually all of the food their owners need. They now produce most of it.

The small farm plan at the mill, one of the Comer chain, is as devoid of red tape as a field of potatoes. Any employee may apply, and if the title to the land is clear and the worker's record is good, the money is available almost immediately.

The interest rate is 4 per cent, with deductions made from the semimonthly pay checks. In emergency cases, deductions are suspended until conditions improve. Payments on the average loan of about $750 to $1,000, are $15 per month. Not a single home has been foreclosed since the plan was started on an experimental basis eight years ago. In that time, 144 families have completed payment.

No government money is involved. No banker has anything to do with the plan and the Comer interests do not even have a separate corporation for handling of the loans.

Mrs. Charley Skipper and her husband decided they wanted to "move to the country" four years ago. They bought 6.6 acres of land with their savings and applied for a loan.

It was granted within a few days, since the Skippers have been Avondale employees for more than 20 years, and a neat six-room home was completed July 4, 1936.

They have two hogs, a horse, a milk cow and chickens. Most of their vegetables come from their garden. Mrs. Skipper cans vegetables for winter use and the hogs are killed for meat.

Payments on the home are $15 monthly. The loan will be paid in full before the end of next year.

"We wanted a place for our children, and a place where we could raise plenty to eat, even if the mill shuts down," Mrs. Skipper said. "We have worked hard to make our home and we wouldn't move back to the mill village for anything."

"It is no trouble to get to the mill and back, because we arrange with a neighbor to share costs."

The Skippers and their five children live three miles from the mill. The four children still in school use the county school bus.

Social-minded Donald Comer, head of the Avondale chain, instituted the loan at his mills in Sylacauga, Pell City, Alexander City, Sycamore, Stevenson and Lafayette, with some few loans also in Birmingham, where distances from the mill and scarcity of suitable farm land make the program more difficult of operation.

A visit to the mill workers' homes in the Sylacauga area reveals their advantages over average rural homes. Most of them have electric ranges, electric refrigerators and washing machines, and telephones.

Water is more of a problem but automatic pumps have removed most of the drudgery.

Mill executives believe the farm program will create a "cushion" for workers during slack periods, besides improving their standards of living.

It also stabilizes the labor supply, since few workers will leave their own places even in times of depression.

After only 100 years of intense cultivation, farm land in the United States which has been destroyed, seriously damaged or threatened with destruction totals an area nearly equal to all the land from which crops are normally harvested.

Built originally as a hospital for tubercular convicts, the new State building between Kilby prison and the Montgomery Airport, on the Wetumpka highway, has been leased to the Army Air Corps for use as a barracks for student pilots.

In 1937, two out of every five farmers in the United States were tenants.

200 COMMUNITIES WILL DEDICATE THE SOUTH'S NEW PLAYGROUND

The seven states of the Tennessee Valley will unite on Labor Day week-end to dedicate the chain of lakes that are being impounded above the TVA power dams. The complete series will embrace ten lakes on the main channel of the river. These stretch for 650 miles from Paducah east to Knoxville. Navigation of the full length of the series is made possible by locks and a constant 9-foot channel which connects this inland waterway with the Mississippi and the sea. Dedicated as the "Great Lakes of the South" this sheltered waterway will form a new national park and playground that will bring increasing thousands of vacationists to the area. The ceremonies will be held on Chickamauga lake at Chattanooga. The three-day program will include a water carnival with a naval fleet parade, championship speed boat races, an air show with land and sea planes in war maneuvers and with nine flights through a sweeping bow of anti-aircraft beams and a ground barrage of fireworks. There will be a horse show, two spectacular balls and, perhaps, America's first preparedness parade — impressive columns of totally mechanized army units that will dramatize America's answer to the need for an armored fighting force. The program opens with the all-south "Cotton Ball" on August 30, followed by three full days of spectacular events.

WPA INDEXING IMPORTANT DOCUMENTS

Complete Indexing of County Records Badly Needed

Montgomery, Ala. Indexing of important county documents, started already in two counties and included in a plan for the entire state is a new project in the program of the Professional and Service Division of the Work Projects Administration.

Announcement of the opening of this activity, with a unit in Selma and another in Barbour County already in operation, was made today by Miss Mary Weber, Director of the Professional and Service Division of WPA. Harvey E. Jones is State Director of Research and Records Projects, Work Projects Administration.

The need for complete indexing of county records has long been recognized by county officials but so vast an undertaking has been postponed for lack of facilities, and with the exception of a few WPA projects that have in some sections of the State indexed birth and death records and other instruments nothing has been done to ward simplifying the search for dates, names and other information by installing an index system. This the difficulty of locating important data required as much time and tedious search as was necessary a decade or more ago. Referring to the birth, death, marriage, property and other code indexes made in a few counties by WPA projects, Mr. Jones stated that this earlier work will aid in the more comprehensive program of the new statewide Project for Indexing County Records and that there will be no duplication. Wherever a county has undertaken the indexing of any of the five types of records in the activity, this project will begin where the earlier one left off. Building on the system already initiated and bringing all the systems up to date.

"Most of the counties have maintained the same system of record keeping that was begun when Alabama was a territory, before 1819," Jones said. "As an example, today there are 3,000 volumes of Real Property Records (deeds and mortgages) in Jefferson County. Each volume contains approximately 300 instruments so it can be readily seen that with virtually no system of indexing these records are of little value as far as reference is concerned. A master alphabetical index, as proposed by the Indexing Project, will vastly improve the use of these records and will facilitate reference to any one of the 900,000 odd instruments."

County officials have expressed their approval of plans for operating the project. Judge Walter F. Jones of the Montgomery County Circuit Court illustrated the present difficulty of referring to a needed fact when he told of a search through five volumes for the date of a client's marriage, a fact needed in proving her eligibility to a pension. With a cross index, the search would have been a matter of minutes. In some counties the records are in a deplorable condition, and the county commissioners and other officials are anxious that an indexing system be set up that will not only make information readily accessible but will establish uniform county indexing methods throughout the state.

James Heustess, Secretary of the State Association of County Commissioners, said that this work is vitally important and that he believes all probate judges will cooperate.

The State Planning Commission is sponsor of the project and the Boards of County Commissioners are to be Co-sponsors. Actual cost to the counties will be negligible, cards for indexing and later the ledger to which transfers from the card index will be made, constitute practically the only expense involved. Labor will be furnished by the WPA. The employees will transfer the information desired from original county books to index cards. These will be sorted alphabetically in direct and reverse system. The facts will then be entered in the ledger, and a key index will be established.

The importance of maintaining records and statistics and making them available is becoming more emphasized in all parts of the country. Writing recently in the Harvard Review, Robert C. Binkley of Western Reserve University, urged the need of preserving various types of local records and statistics. He said, "It is paradox that in the United States where Self Government is very highly developed local statistics and records are very poorly kept. The 'annuaire statistique des villes' is a publication in which are brought together facts about urban communities of the whole world. The cities are listed alphabetically—Buenos Aires, Calcutta and Cleveland, and opposite them in columns, page after page, are figures that give the measure of urban life. And in column after column—on marriages and divorces for instance—there are blank spaces that follow the names of American cities whereas the names of other cities of the world are filled in."

When the National Resources Board surveyed our knowledge about ourselves it found that our municipal statistics are today worse kept and less published than they were in 1880. Binkley says in his review that the low level of urban government in the United States is perhaps the cause and effect of this lack of interest in comprehensive and localized information. "But there are other reasons," he adds. "If a citizen of Cleveland, Ohio picks up one or another of the widely used statistical handbooks, such as the World Almanac, he can find how many goats there are in Egypt but not how many automobiles there are in Cleveland. It is much easier, in the reference rooms of the Cleveland Public Library, to discover who was the Emperor of China in 1840 than to find out who was the Mayor of Cleveland in 1840."

The indexing project will have nothing to do with the collection of statistics as such but the master indexes planned for this undertaking will make it possible to bring such collections into a small space and to make them easily accessible to the public. The compilation of indexes for the five subjects selected, real property, estates, marriages, births and deaths and the minutes of the county commissioners will provide a foundation for work that may be undertaken over a period of many years and that officials believe will be valuable in providing historical data as well as information needed for transfers of real estate and other legal papers.

In Selma, work has been started with twelve WPA employees indexing the records of the probate judge's office. Within a few weeks it is intended that several hundred persons will be busy in other counties installing the index systems. To make a useful survey of existing records and transfer the data to cards it is expected that from 500 to 1000 persons will be employed. These will not necessarily be working at the same time. When compilations are finished the work in a county will be closed and installation of the system begun in another county. The value of statistical projects to Alabama has become more and more evident with the growth of these activities. The Historical Records Survey, one of the earliest to record and summarize facts important to the historical background of the State, has made the public more conscious of the value of archives and more careful of the preservation of public records.

HOGGING OFF PEANUTS HELPS IMPROVE SOIL

Auburn, Ala. Hogging-off peanuts is one of the best soil building aids which Alabama farmers have, says Dr. J. W. Tidmore, Alabama Experiment Station agronomist.

He says that where peanuts are hogged-off, the fertility is being maintained and even increased, whereas those acres on which the peanuts are harvested are showing lower yields.

"In southeast Alabama," he continues, "experiments have been successfully carried out to illustrate the principles of hogging-off peanuts."

"On areas where peanuts have been harvested, the yield has been an average of 1532 pounds per acre, with a decrease each year following. The hogged-off areas have been yielding 1,873 pounds per acre."

"In a two-year rotation of corn and harvested peanuts, the corn yield was 16 bushels. Where the peanuts were hogged-off, the corn yield was exactly doubled, and the peanuts produced 600 pounds of hogs. Similar results have been shown with cotton."

"The main consideration of the farmer while hogging-off peanuts," concludes Dr. Tidmore, "is that while he is increasing his yields, he is also building up his land."

Gains in efficiency, reduction in weight, use of rubber tires, and more power to the gallon of fuel are the outstanding features of tractor improvement in the last 20 years.

Hog production is now declining, the peak of the production cycle having been reached in 1939.

The 1940 pig crop, however, is greater than that of any year since 1933.

NATIONAL GUARD TO BE LOCATED AT DEMOPOLIS

Montgomery, Ala.—Demopolis will be the headquarters site of a new National Guard unit—a Service Company for the 106th Quartermaster Regiment—with a complement of 2 officers and 36 enlisted men, according to an authorization received last week by State Adj. Gen. Ben M. Smith.

Gov. Dixon had only a few days previously, signed into effect a law which provided that new guard units could be financed out of surplus Military Department funds. A new armory will, therefore, be built in Demopolis soon.

Just before Adj. Gen. Smith was authorized to begin organization of the Demopolis unit, the Governor had made a special plea to employers over the State to pay to workers who are guard members, full salaries to all such employees who are attending military camps. Many business firms have already pledged themselves to cooperation with the plan.

Harvesting Kudzu Hay

Making hay while the sun shines is no problem for the farmers with kudzu to mow for hay, according to County Agent, Pat H. Smith and James H. Wood Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in CCC ramp area near Clanton, Alabama.

The reason for this is that kudzu can be mowed any time the sun shines, from early summer until late fall. Other hay crops must be mowed at a certain stage of growth. If it happens to be rainy weather then, sometimes the crop is lost.

Kudzu is usually cut once a year, but if it produces a heavy stand it can be mowed twice. Farmers who expect to make two cuttings, usually make the first one in July.

If kudzu is mowed now, it is advisable not to mow again until late fall just before frost. Too frequent mowing exhausts the starchy material stored in the roots and lowers the vitality of the plants, the specialists say.

A simple attachment which can be fastened to the cutter bar of the mowing machine will make it easier to mow kudzu, but it can be successfully harvested without this attachment.

The hay can be raked with an ordinary dump rake, although some farmers prefer to use a fork. Raking will break some of the vines and may result in some injury to the stand, but in a thick stand, growth is not materially injured by raking.

GOVERNORS CONFERENCE HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Meeting of the Southern Governor's Conference, which was to have been held during the Annual Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo at Mobile, July 28-30, has been postponed on account of the illness of Gov. Cone of Florida. Gov. Frank M. Dixon has announced.

Awards and contracts for the National Defense Program to Alabama firms or for Alabama projects by the Army totaled $380,693.70 for the period June 13 through July 12.

HOME GUARD IS PROPOSED FOR ALABAMA

American Legion Commanders Would Become Ranking Officers

Montgomery, Ala.—Plans for an Alabama "Home Guard" to take the place of the National Guard in case the latter is called out of the State, have been submitted to the War Department by Gov. Frank M. Dixon.

Nucleus of the new organization, would be volunteers from the Alabama Department of the American Legion, according to the plans, which were drawn by State Adj. Gen. Ben M. Smith.

The President now has power to send any National Guard unit to any point in the United States or its possessions, Gov. Dixon pointed out after he had submitted the plans to the War Department. The Home Guard would be subject to the call of the Governor, and would serve as a policing organization after departure of the National Guard. Every Governor in the nation will be called upon to form such an emergency policing unit, Adj. Gen. Smith said.

Immediately after approval by the War Department, the Alabama plan could go into effect. Under this system the State Commander of the American Legion would be Colonel of the Home Guard; the state Vice-Commander at Large of the Legion would be a Lieutenant-Colonel; each District Commander a Major. Companies would be organized with the local Legion Post as their base, and the Companies would elect their own officers. Membership in the organization would not be restricted to Legionnaires. All physically fit men between the ages of 18 and 60 could enlist. There are 10,501 members of the Legion in Alabama. Adj. Smith expects to organize the unit with approximately 3,000—the present strength of the Alabama National Guard. The War Department would, under the Alabama plan, supply the Home Guard with equipment. Members would receive no pay except during such time as they were actually on active duty.

The Adjutant-General also announced that the War Department had suggested to him the need for raising the present number of National Guard officers by 28, setting the total officers' list figure at 274. At the same time Gen. Smith reported to the Governor that "splendid response" had been received from his recent request that all Alabama employers permit Guardsmen—employees to attend the summer maneuvers, August 4-24, without fear of jeopardizing their jobs or losing their pay.

Approximately 70 per cent of the firms and industrial organizations that have been contacted regarding this request have signified their willingness to comply with the Governor's wishes, the Adjutant-General reported. Guard commanders over the State are canvassing employers in their respective districts to ask that they pay Guardsmen their regular salaries while they are attending maneuvers.

CLANTON KIWANIS CLUB PASSES 3 IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS

Unanimous Vote On Subjects Vital To Clanton Welfare Passed At Last Regular Meeting

When an opportunity for Clanton and Chilton County presents itself Clanton Kiwanis can be depended upon to go to action at once and help push it along for all it is worth.

When the same token when any proposition is detrimental, or seemingly detrimental, to Clanton and Chilton County, Clanton Kiwanis can be depended upon to rise up in its might to contest such proposal every inch of the way.

Two very important, if not vital propositions, in which Clanton and Chilton County are interested are being discussed and elsewhere. The first is the possibility of a training school for aviation at Clanton. This would mean a great deal in this section, and Clanton Kiwanis club in the following resolution passed at its last meeting, and which is now being pushed for its passage, is to increase the landing space at Clanton Field:

SOLUTIONS OF THE CLANTON KIWANIS CLUB TO THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Whereas: It has been brought to the attention of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton that there is a possibility of Clanton and Chilton County being able to have a unit of a training school for aviators sometime in the near future,

Whereas: It has been pointed out by aviation engineers that some additional land is needed to enlarge the landing space on Gragg Field, and

Whereas: The County Commissioners Clanton County at this time hold an acre on ten acres of land adjacent Gragg Field,

Therefore: Be it resolved that the Clanton Kiwanis Club hereby endorses the purchase of these ten acres of land to be added to the land already owned by the County at Gragg Field.

Be it further Resolved: That a copy of this resolution be placed in the hands of the Probate Judge of Chilton County, Chairman of the County Commissioners and a copy placed in the files of the Kiwanis Club.

Passed by the Kiwanis Club at its regular meeting August 1, 1940, by a unanimous vote.

T. H. WALKER, Acting President.

There is a real threat to tourists traveling through Clanton and Chilton County in the State Highway Department's proposal to route tourists coming South out of Birmingham via the Florida Short Route to Sylacauga, and to Goodwater and to Montgomery. The Hon. Chris Sherlock also proposed to route traffic out of Birmingham via Bessemer, Blocton, Centerville, Marion instead of via Clanton, Milledgeville and Selma. A resolution on this subject by Kiwanis follows:

SOLUTIONS FROM THE KIWANIS CLUB OF CLANTON

ALABAMA, TO THE HON CHAS SHERLOCK, STATE HIGHWAY DIRECTOR, AND THE ALABAMA AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION

Whereas: It has been called to the attention of the Clanton Kiwanis Club that traffic between Birmingham, Alabama and Montgomery, Alabama is being routed over the highway known as Florida Short Route by way of Montgomery and Rockford, Alabama, because of the impression that U. S. Highway No. 31 is not in first class condition and repairs being made at this time and

Whereas: The traveling public is being inconvenienced by being routed on a longer route and the business along Highway No. 31 are being deprived of some business that is rightfully theirs,

Therefore: Be it resolved by the Clanton Kiwanis Club that it respectfully requests the Hon. Chris J. Sherlock, State Highway Director, and the Alabama Automobile Association, to route the traveling public at once the Clanton Kiwanis Club's suggestion that U. S. Highway No. 31 be in excellent condition for travel in the fact that some repair work is being done along this highway, and

Be it further Resolved: That the Clanton Kiwanis Club request that the Hon. Chris J. Sherlock be requested to remove from Highway No. 31 the detour from Birmingham to Montgomery by way of Sylacauga and Rockford of over Highway No. 31.

Be it further resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be mailed to the Hon. Chris J. Sherlock and the Secretary of the Alabama Automobile Association and a copy placed in the files of the Kiwanis Club.

Health Officer Tenders Resignation

Dr. S. D. Sturkie, Chilton County Health Officer since November 1937, has tendered his resignation to be effective August 15th. It was learned from a report released by the Health Department this week, Dr. Sturkie will go to Charlottesville, Virginia, to take a position as epidemiologist for a syphilis study being conducted by the State Health Department of Virginia and the University of Virginia. Regarding the matter of his resignation, the Health Officer made the following statement:

"It is with the greatest reluctance that I leave Chilton County and Alabama, because I have thoroughly enjoyed my work here during the past two and a half years. The sole motive for my leaving is that I am being given an opportunity to obtain experience in a special line of public health work. I wish to publicly express my appreciation to the doctors of the County and to the County officials and the people of the County who have given me most excellent cooperation and shown me many courtesies."

Prominent Thorsby Resident Passes

He is survived by his widow and three daughters, Mrs. Delene Wyatt, Thorsby, Ala., Mr. O. M. Miller Clanton, and Mrs. H. H. Hayes, Birmingham. Active pallbearers were: Maurice Hayes, Wyatt Roberts, Fred Sims, Chufford King, Earl Marcus and R. R. Franklin. Honorary pallbearers were: Archie Robinson, Judge J. Lee Smith, L. H. Reynolds, W. G. Culp, E. P. Littlejohn, E. W. Miller, J. P. Clements, S. M. Pate, Charles Peterson, Monroe Smith, G. F. Harper, E. N. Bentley, Dewey Rockett, J. O. Littlejohn, and T. J. Littlejohn.

Passed by a unanimous vote of the club August 1, 1940.

T. H. WALKER, Acting President

RESOLUTIONS FROM THE KIWANIS CLUB OF CLANTON

ALABAMA, TO THE HON. JOHN BANKHEAD AND HON. LISTER HILL, UNITED STATES SENATORS FROM ALABAMA, AND HON. PETE JARMAN, MEMBER UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FROM ALABAMA:

Whereas: There is before the United States Congress at this time a resolution to bring back from England the original Wright Airplane which made the first famous flight at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, and

Whereas: This plane is now in danger of being destroyed and thereby being lost to posterity,

Therefore: Be it resolved by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton that this Club endorse this resolution that is now before Congress, and instruct our above named Senators and Representative to lend whatever support is necessary to return this plane to the United States. Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to each of the above named gentlemen and a copy placed on file in the records of the Clanton Kiwanis Club.

Passed by a unanimous vote of the Club at its regular meeting August 1, 1940.

T. H. WALKER, Acting President.

Alabama Gas Taxes Should Be Used For Highway Financing

Pointing out that State gasoline taxes and motor vehicle registration fees are special levies based upon the use of the highways, motor fuel tax administrators at the Southeast Regional Meeting of the North American Gasoline Tax Conference at Atlanta, Georgia, adopted a resolution urging that all such automotive taxes be dedicated exclusively for highway financing. Several speakers denounced the diversion of automotive tax funds to non-highway purposes.

Dr. Joe Edgar's Office Closed

Dr. Joe Edgar will be out of his office from noon Saturday August 11 until Monday August 19th. He and Mrs. Edgar with friends, are vacationing in Miami, Fla.

Clanton Gets New Feed Store

Grady Taylor has opened a new feed store in Clanton. The building formerly occupied by J. L. Ruffin, next door to Clyde Mims Grocery, has been redecorated and transformed into a modern and up-to-the-minute Feed Store. Groceries will also be carried and the business will carry the name: Jim Dandy Feed Store. Mr. Taylor extends a cordial invitation to all of his friends to come and see him in his new business.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Lowe and daughters, Bernice, Edna Ruth and Evelyn and niece Juanita Miller are spending the week in Daytona Beach and Lakeland, Fla.

Three Local Business Men in Accident

P. A. Taylor, Bill Williams and Leon Kemp while enroute home from Selma last week, were in collision with another car causing considerable damage to Mr. Williams' car. Reports to the writer were that Mr. Williams when confronted with a car driving into the highway and one coming down toward him had no alternative but to try and drive between the two machines. This caused him to lose control of the car which ran off the road and turned over several times. Most seriously hurt was Mr. Kemp who had one rib broken and three torn loose, however all are able to be up and about again.

CANE CREEK

The revival meeting at this place will begin next Sunday August 11th, with Rev. Ben Dukes doing the preaching. We invite everyone who can to come and be with us and take part in the services.

Chilton County 4-H Will Go To Camp Horne Aug. 19-21

The Chilton County 4-H Club camp will be held Aug. 19-21 at Camp Horne in Tuscaloosa County. Accompanied by C. L. Breedlove, assistant county agent, will be Mattis Jo Barber, home demonstration agent. This will be a joint camp of both boys and girls, and it is expected that a good number of 4-H Club members will attend.

The group will be accompanied by the county agent, home demonstration agent, assistant county agent, Miss Willie Nell Owens, Clanton, Ala. Rt. 3, Mr. Marion Smith, Thorsby, and other grown persons. It will be the duty of these persons to supervise and chaperone the campers.

A trained nurse or other trained person will be with the group to assist anyone who becomes sick. There will also be a person trained in life-saving who will be in charge of the group while they are swimming.

The camp program has been planned so that everyone will get the greatest out of the trip. The program includes recreational activities such as swimming, softball, horsehoes and quiet games. There will also be nature and forestry studies for the boys and handicraft studies for the girls. Plans have also been made to visit points of interest in and near Tuscaloosa.

CHILTON CO. WILL HAVE NO FAIR THIS YEAR

Will Instead Have Educational Live Stock Show

Due to the World conditions and to the conditions of the farmers here at home the officers of the Chilton County Fair Association voted in a meeting Monday to have no County Fair this year. That is, to have no fair in the old sense of the word. Carnivals and Street Fairs and exhibits. Instead this year plans are going forward to give the people of the county a real educational Live Stock Show. This, according to the Secretary-Treasurer, Cohen Stapp, was voted in the meeting held Monday by the executive body, and arrangements to this end have been started.

The exact dates have not been set and will be announced later. Watch for further details of Chilton County Educational Live Stock Show in the News.

PREACHING AT SHILOH

There will be preaching the second Saturday night in August at Shiloh church. Rev. Lenard Hand and Rev. Floyd Smith will do and preaching. There will also be a splendid quartet to furnish the music.

A Message From The Legionnaires

To All World War Veterans: At a recent meeting of the American Legion officers were elected for the new year and it was agreed at this meeting that a call meeting would be held on Friday of this week at 7:30 P. M., August 9, 1940, at the Courthouse at Clanton.

We earnestly urge that all World War Veterans eligible to membership in the American Legion attend this important meeting on Friday of this week.

Never, since Armistice on November 11, 1918, has it been more necessary for World War Veterans to maintain a patriotic organization than today owing to the war situation in the world today. As has been suggested the American Legion will be called upon to form the Home Guard in case of an emergency. We sincerely solicit your presence Friday night.

Respectfully,
C. E. STURKIE, Commander,
Percy M. Pitts, Adjutant.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

Be it hereby resolved: That the Chilton County Medical Society collectively and individually has been deeply saddened by the passing of its esteemed and beloved member and chairman of the County Board of Health, Thomas Jefferson Marcus.

That the Society wishes to convey to his loved ones its deepest and fullest sympathy for them in their hour of bereavement.

That the Society erewh pays tribute to the deceased for his long and meritorious services to the community and his fine spirit of fellowship with the members of his profession.

That the name of Thomas Jefferson Marcus will occupy until time alone has erased his memory, a place of esteem and respect in the annals of the medical profession of Chilton County.

Adopted by the Chilton County Medical Society and spread upon its minutes at the regular meeting held August 6, 1940.

Signed:
V. J. GRAGG, President,
S. D. STURKIE, Secretary.

Two residents of Chilton County, Mrs. Reid Mullins of Clanton and Mrs. C. N. Parnell of Maplesville, are serving as Consultants to the Vocational Service of Alabama College.

Chilton County's new all-steel School buses have started arriving and will be ready for the safe transportation of her thousands of school children when the bells ring for opening day on the first Monday in September.

Six of the original order of 46, placed some months ago by the School Board, have already arrived. Twenty more are expected to drive in today, and the final twenty will arrive within two weeks.

Superintendent of Education, Rascoe Maddox and Mr. Tom Searcy, with 21 drivers and a mechanic went to Richmond, Ind., home of the Wayne All-Steel Bodies plant and drove the first fleet back.

Mothers and fathers of the county will feel much safer throughout the winter knowing that their most valuable possession, their child, will be housed from the wind and the rain as well as more completely protected in case of accident in these fine buses.

Isabella Students Touring Ala., Georgia and Florida

Fifteen members of the Isabella F. F. A. and their advisor Mr. J. H. Camp left Clanton Monday morning, Aug. 5, for a week's tour of Alabama, Florida, and Georgia.

These boys left in cars driven by Harry Fox, Howard Oden, Jim Sutes, and J. H. Camp. The first stop is expected to be Auburn where they will look over the Alabama Experiment Station and its surrounding territory. Points likely to be of interest to the boys are the Poultry farm, home orchard plots, soil conservation plots and the forestry experiments.

After leaving Auburn the boys will drive to Columbus, Ga., where they will visit Fort Benning. The next stop will be Hartford, Alabama, where they will spend the night with Mr. G. W. Holmes, former teacher of Vocational Agriculture at Isabella High School.

Tuesday morning Aug. 6, the members of the party were expecting to go to Pensacola, Florida and from there on into Fairhope where they will pitch camp until Aug. 10.

Boys and drivers making the trip are as follows: Carrol Coburn, Jack Turner, Odie LeCroy, Joe James Wells, Lloyd Jones, Mack LeCroy, James Abbott, Roy Davis, Quinton Cummings, Clinton Klinger, Earl Klinger, Gordon Conway, John Will Owens, William Oden, Bartley Giles, Harry Fox, Jim Sutes, H. R. Oden and J. H. Camp.

There will be a meeting of the Isabella Cooperative Association Tuesday night August 13. All members please be present. We have some very important business to take up with you.

Visitors are welcome.
J. H. CAMP.

WPA Spent More Than 35 Million Last Year

In a report covering expenditures of the Work Projects Administration in Alabama during the past fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, it was shown that a total of $35,079,857.17 was expended through the operation of WPA projects covering all phases of the program in this state during this twelve month period.

The report, issued by Colonel W. G. Henderson, WPA administrator for Alabama also pointed out the low cost of administering the program in Alabama. Of the above total amount of expenditures $25,255,151.93, or 72 per cent, were Federal funds and $9,824,705.20, or 28 per cent, were sponsors contributions.

Compared with the 1938-39 fiscal year it was disclosed that the sponsors contributions showed an increase during 1939-40 of almost five per cent, although the total expenditure during that year ($13,383,300) amounted to $35,400,018.77.

An interesting point was brought out by Colonel Henderson in showing how these expenditures of Federal funds were divided into wages, materials and administrative costs. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940 there was an average of 44,583 persons employed monthly on WPA projects in Alabama. During these twelve months WPA paid in project employee wages $22,084,778.86.

Basing these figures on a monthly average, each project employee was paid $41.28; materials, supplies and equipment cost for each employee, $5.66 and only $1.70 went into administrative costs.

To Direct Revival Services At Thorsby Baptist Church Beginning Next Week

REV. E. U. CALVERT

MR. HERMAN STEPHENS

The regular summer revival at Thorsby Baptist Church will begin next Monday, August 11, and continue on through the following week. Services will be held twice daily—at 10:30 and 7:30.

The preaching will be done by Rev. E. U. Calvert, of Boaz, Ala., and the singing will be under the direction of Mr. Herman Stephens, also of Boaz. Everyone has a cordial invitation to attend the services.—M. I. McLeod, pastor.

Mobile & Ohio RR Sold At Auction

Properties of the bankrupt Mobile & Ohio Railroad today were sold at public auction for $13,411,915, with all but $15 worth of it going to the road's bondholders' reorganization committee.

In turn, the committee will convey the property to the smaller Gulf, Mobile and Northern Railroad, and the two will be merged into a strong 2,007-mile main trunk line to be known as the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio.

The sale was conducted by Jack Meredith, special master appointed by the Federal Court, and practically all of the bidding was done by E. D. Scruggs, New York financial expert, representing the bondholders' committee. The sale is subject to approval of the U. S. District Court.

Scruggs bought in all properties with the exception of certain contracts existing between the Mobile & Ohio and the Gulf Terminal Company, operators of the Mobile Union Station and properties of the Mobile & Bay Shore Railroad, a freight line running between Mobile and the Alabama coast. Nicholas Stallworth, attorney for the First National Bank of Mobile, trustee under the Bay Shore mortgages, bought the interests in the Bay Shore line in three sections at $5 each.

After the hearing Aug. 22 before Federal Judge Robert T. Ervin, the first large railroad consolidation since 1934 should be quickly completed, putting I. B. Tigrett, of Jackson, Tenn., at the head of the new Gulf, Mobile & Ohio, which will start business with a $31,670,000 funded debt and annual charges of $1,399,920, about one-half the two roads' present fixed charges.

There will be an additional $6,025,800 of five per cent bonds paying interest only if earned, and dividends on the 305,750 shares of $5 preferred stock are also on a similar basis. Holders of 609,847 shares of common stock will be paid dividends only after earnings exceed payments on the preferred issues.

Southern Railway has owned 94 per cent of M. & O.'s common, and the merger wipes this out. In addition, Southern will get 93 cents on the dollar for $7,839,000 worth of M. & O. bonds. In May, G. M. & N. borrowed $7,500,000 from RFC to pay off the Southern, and will borrow another $2,000,000 to pay additional expenses of the merger.

Last year G. M. & N. had a $427,388 net profit and M. & O. lost $440,924.

TRUCK LINE OKEHED

Application of the Gulf Transport Company, a subsidiary of the G. M. & N. Railroad, to operate a truck freight service paralleling the parent rail line between Montgomery and Tuscaloosa was granted today by the Alabama Public Service Commission.

The commission described the proposition as "unique," in that a rail company proposes to operate a motor transport system along the route of its rail service.

"It appears from our analysis of the records," the commission said, "that the existing service of the M. & O. (soon to be merged with the G. M. & N. into a new line, G. M. & O.) between Montgomery and Tuscaloosa is not adequate, and does not meet the present-day demand for transportation in the territory involved," the commission added.

Five Lawyers On Board of Education

Of the nine non-ex officio members of the State Board of Education five are lawyers, according to the July issue of the Education Bulletin, published by the Alabama Education Association. The lawyer members are C. M. A. Rogers, Mobile; N. D. Denson, Opelika; Joe Starnes, Guntersville; L. H. Ellis, Columbiana; and A. H. Carmichael, Tusculumbia. Other members include W. D. Barton, Montgomery, business man; Harry Ayers, publisher, Anniston; Mr. W. A. Gresham, Russellville, home-maker; Donald Comer, Birmingham, industrialist; State Superintendent Albert H. Collins, ex officio secretary and Governor Frank M. Dixon, ex officio chairman.

Thousands of Dollars For Chilton Farmers Who Improve Soil

By Pat H. Smith, County Agent

It is now time to begin making plans for planting the winter cover crops of Austrian Winter Peas, vetch and oats. By growing a cover crop, much of our most valuable soil will be saved from washing away this winter and legumes will help to fertilize another crop next year. Oats will furnish some grazing this winter and will be a good supplement for a short corn crop next spring.

There are certain features of the AAA program this year that will enable almost every Chilton County farmer to plant and fertilize a few acres of winter legumes. Every farmer who has signed a worksheet this year has an allowance of a certain sum of money that he can get only by doing certain soil building practices. The purpose of this allowance is to help farmers do certain things to build up the soil on their farms. The amount of the allowance depends upon the size farm and the cotton and peanut allotments. This money may be earned at a rate of $1.50 per acre by planting Austrian peas or vetch, provided that not less than 30 pounds of peas or 20 pounds of vetch are seeded per acre and are fertilized. An additional $1.50 per acre may be earned by fertilizing peas or vetch with either 300 pounds of 16 percent superphosphate, 240 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate or 500 pounds of basic slag.

The Grant-of-Aid features of this year's program will allow one to receive peas at a cost of $4.85 per 100 pounds and 20 percent superphosphate at a cost of $14.60 per ton to fertilize the peas. By making an application for this Grant-of-Aid the peas and phosphate may be obtained through the Agricultural Conservation Association. Fertilizing and planting the peas will earn a part of the soil building allowance. This money earned will be used to pay for the materials. Applications for Grant-of-Aid may be made at the AAA office in Clanton through Aug.

10. By calling by this office, one may learn the amount of his soil building allowance and how many acres of legumes are needed to earn all of his allowance.

Last year Chilton County farmers failed to qualify for $20,000 of the $63,000 allowance. By doing the same amount of soil building practice works this year, Chilton County farmers will lose $37,000. All work must be completed by November 30 in order to qualify under this year's program; therefore, most farmers must double up on the work from now until the end of the program if they are to get the full benefits. If the Grant-of-Aid features will help you qualify for this money, be sure to make an application by August 10.

Which Is Cheaper?

THIS-- being frequently dead-tired with possible poor health as a result

THIS-- with no fatigue, more time for rest or pleasure, and buoyant good health?

THE human body can stand punishment, but after a while the constant physical wear and tear takes toll, and frequently a healthy person becomes a semi-invalid.

Take the matter of washing clothes in the old-fashioned way, for instance. Any man who ever tried it finds it gets him "down" in a hurry, and he begins thinking at once of how quickly he can get an electric washing machine. The trouble (for many women) is that so few men try it!

Women—no matter how robust—who do their laundry by the old scrub board and washtub method are gradually wearing themselves out, all for less than a nickel a week for electricity. Other savings that result from using an electric washing machine more than offset this small amount.

PREACHING AT COURTHOUSE

I would like to announce that on Sunday afternoon, August 11, at 2:30 o'clock, there will be religious services at the court house in Clanton. There will be lots of good quartet and choir singing from the new books, sponsored by Prof. Audie Brown. This will be followed by a good old time prayer service and preaching. These services will be held every Second Sunday afternoon in each month and is being made possible by a few members of the Second Baptist church of Clanton.

GENERAL
JOHNSON Says:

GULF STREAM ATTACK

WASHINGTON.—This column is as crazy as at least nine out of ten of the world shaking schemes that come in my mail daily. But one out of a thousand does have a little merit. For example, once a gent wrote me that ordinary chicken wire could stop a tank. I thought that was goofy, but my college mate, General Weston, now chief of ordnance, wrote me that the letter presented a real idea.

Well, this is my brainstorm. So many people pull them on me, I ought to be entitled to at least one. Ever since I was a kid I have been told that the Gulf Stream is a sort of hot water radiator system that is held away from most of our eastern coast by a cold wall of Arctic water. It is out there just the same, from 40 to 200 miles to seaward. You can actually see it and know it from the encircling warmth when you enter it.

It veers across the Atlantic ocean and is partly responsible for the mild, warm climate of the south coast of England and also of Spain, France, Ireland and Scotland. If it could be deflected out our own and the Canadian coasts it might give them the climate of the Riviera and put most of Mr. Hitler's conquests on ice.

The Gulf Stream itself is not very great, but it carries a lot of tropical water with it—at least on the surface. It goes through a narrow passage between the Bahamas and Florida. Could any kind of engineering works there divert its flow?

Exactly what makes the Gulf Stream act the way it does is not quite certain—the rotation of the earth—the configuration of the ocean floor—prevailing winds and a lot of other unknown quantities are in the equation.

The engineering of hydrodynamics, water in motion, is largely empirical, which means that it is governed by no predictable mathematical formula. The way water flows through a faucet or what happens when you stick a dyke out into an ocean current has to be determined by experiment. No hydraulic engineer is wise enough to say with absolute assurance either that the Gulf Stream could, or could not, be diverted in along the Atlantic coast and away from Mr. Hitler's Europe. The only dependable way to find out is to make a miniature model of the Atlantic ocean and play with the water in it. As a practical matter, that is impossible.

But there have been many well-informed speculations on this possibility. Nobody ever wanted or dared to go very far with them because, in spite of our winter and rough weather, we were getting along well enough, and it was unthinkable to meditate on turning South Europe into a Labrador by a few clever engineering works off the Florida coast.

It may not be so unthinkable tomorrow if our interventionists are correct. Mr. Hitler may soon have converted his cradle of our civilization into an abomination and threaten us with a similar fate. He may have seized the British navy and enough French, British, Dutch, Danish, Swedish, Norwegian and Belgian building capacity to make it hopeless for us to compete. Since he hesitates at no methods of destruction, however devastating, why should we?

If this particular method is, by any chance, remotely available, it would never have to be used. Even Herr Hitler could not risk the glaciation of half a continent.

As I re-read what I have written, it seems too grotesque to submit, and yet I have heard competent engineers toying with this Jules Verne's fantasy. It certainly is not impossible. In today's frantic search for weapons that may be used against us, I wonder what a commission of expert hydraulic engineers would say of this one or our defense. Maybe they would just say: "Page Orson Welles!"

SELECTIVE DRAFT

To beat dictators, democracies have got to show the power to see as clearly and efficiently and be as willing to serve and sacrifice any of their potential enemies.

A case in point is the new selective service bill. Fully 80 per cent of our people are ardently in favor of "adequate defense." There is a difference of opinion about just what that means, but most people know that it means a very large navy, a great increase in our army, large reserves of trained men and mountains of new equipment.

I have heard few people who were unwilling to accept the judgment of our military and naval experts as to type, numbers and quantities needed.

Thus far, therefore, democracy is working as well as any government. But, when it goes to conscriptive methods for raising that army, the welkin rings with every sort of confusion of counsel that defeats democracy or drives it to dictatorship.

There are several provisions of the service bill that I think I can prove wrong in principle, but in the main the bill is necessary and sufficient. Failure to enact it promptly may lead to something much worse.

One objection is that we can not rely on volunteering to get more than a million men.

We Begin To Doubt

At this late hour we are beginning to doubt the qualifications of enlisted men in the army.

The Associated Press revealed Saturday night that one of the attributes that bars a man from army service is "extremely ugliness of the face."

We doubt the ability of army examiners to define "extreme ugliness" and we know that if they knew too close to the line they are bound to miss some mighty good soldiers.

As a wise man named Bouvier once wrote: "The beauty seen, is partly in him who sees it." That also probably applies to ugliness, extreme or otherwise.—Tuscaloosa News.

Aw, 'em that's talk. When they start enlisting 'em they will send out a "press release" reading something like this: "All males who think they have faces resembling Clark Gable or Robert Taylor will report immediately to the nearest recruiting officer." Then watch the stampede.

Can't Defeat Nazi Evil By Using Nazi Methods

Solicitor General Francis Biddle, who has the direction of the activities of the Department of Justice respecting spies, saboteurs and so-called "fifth columnists," gave assurance to the country in a radio address that the rights of the people to freedom of speech, worship and assembly would not be infringed. "We shall not defeat the Nazi evil by emulating its methods," he said.

"The individual citizen, of course," said Mr. Biddle, "feels powerless to combat this subversive evil, and the fear of fifth-column activities has naturally made some sections of our population hysterical."

"One form that this hysteria has taken is the wholesale denunciation of all aliens living in America—a confession of fear and weakness that sees a spy behind every foreign accent. Where individuals have taken the law into their own hands there have been instances of mob violence."

"There is no cause for mass hysteria, no justification for mob violence. The Department of Justice is well equipped to recognize the real danger spots and to deal with them vigorously. With the cooperation of the American people the Justice Department will root out espionage and sabotage wherever it threatens."

"The people must be alert and wary, and above all, cool and sane. Senseless mob violence will make the Government's task infinitely more difficult. It will not be tolerated. We shall not

PUPPY-PUSS went to the barber-shop this afternoon and he took me along. The boss wasn't there; only Sedlitz the assistant. That guy's nuttier than walnut candy and ought to be wearing a strait jacket for a vest. He's so wacky that when he shaves himself he puts lather on the mirror instead of his face. I curled up under the sink while Sedlitz took a few practice strokes with the clippers on his own head. His head looks like a mohair footstool with busted springs. The barber had a stuffed owl standing in the corner and while he was busy cutting the Old Boy's hair I kicked the stuffing out of the owl. When Sedlitz saw his owl sprinkled all over the place he got hotter than a bowl of chili. He shoved the shaving brush in the Old Boy's mouth and chased me home.

Advertising Must Be Honest

Down through the history of the United States, only a few advertising rogues have thrived, and those only for short periods.

There was a time, 100 years ago, when capable physicians were rare in this country. People dosed themselves, both with dreadful concoctions, made from their gardens, and with patent medicines from the store. Then arose a swarm of nostrums for the "cure" of every disease. These nostrums slew their thousands. Many of them existed for no other purpose than, as has been said, "to make ailing women happily drunk at home."

But the advertising of such pain-killers and fool-killers was thrown out by most newspapers and magazines at least 25 years ago, says Nature's Business. As good doctors became more common, the thirst for patent medicine abated. In their wake came some cosmetics who preyed on women's vanity, wily scoundrels who offered perpetual youth in the form of lotions and creams.

But the success of any article sold in packages depends, of course, on repeat orders. Few if any lasting fortunes have been made by lying proprietors of cosmetics. Women buy once. When notice of results, except perhaps a rash or eruption, they do not buy again. Most of the permanently advertised beauty preparations are made of ingredients which any dermatologist will tell you are good for the skin. And reputable department stores and drug stores in recognition of their responsibilities to their customers, will handle no beauty preparation to which women in the mass are allergic at all.

What is true of cosmetics and other packaged goods is also true of everything you see consistently advertised. An advertisement is the worst possible place in which to try to deceive. Deception doesn't work and doesn't pay to try to deceive.—Wetumpka Herald.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

A beautiful "Moral Echo" came to me as I was reading the process of refining gold. The refiner gives test after test to find out if the yellow metal is pure. His last test consists of just this simple plan. He places his face above the molten liquid and then looks down into the bowl and if he can see his face clearly, then the metal is pure enough for his purpose and he is satisfied. It is the Divine mind that is trying to purify us. In His efforts He meets with slow progress, but if God can look down into our hearts and see reflected the life and ideals of Jesus Christ, that is enough for Him. The Divine mind can not be satisfied until all the mud of sin is removed from us and we become like Jesus in our living.

A psychologist was on the stage. He had hypnotic power and he was experimenting with a strong young man. In his normal state this young man could lift seventy five pounds to the height of his reach in one hand. Under the hypnotic spell the psychologist was saying to him, "You can't even lift that sack" and he could not. Then he said to him, "You can lift that hundred pound sack to the height of your reach with one hand" and he did it with ease. The psychologist made up the mind of the young man and he could do only according to his fixed mind. Oh what power is centered in a fixed mind. When we say, "I can't" that task is not likely to be done. When we say, "I can" the impossible seems to be done. Remember to leave the T off and can't and you have, "can".

Near the close of the Master's life two men let their Lord down. It was Peter who cursed and denied every relationship to him. Peter saw his mistake and went out and wept bitterly. He saw his mistake and came back to where he was before his denial. About the same time Judas sold his Lord for seventeen dollars. He too saw his mistake. He came back to the Sanhedrin and scattered his silver on the floor. As he walked out he thought his case to be hopeless and he went and hanged himself. As he left the Pharisees he said to himself, "I have gone too far. I can never come back again. I have betrayed the innocent blood." Peter said to himself, "I can come back" and he did. Judas said, "I can never come back" and he did not. One became a saint and the other a suicide. The attitude that we assume toward our mistakes and faults will determine as to what we are going to be in the years ahead.

When my boy was young in his school life I found out that there were three ways of helping him with his arithmetic. One was to do the sums for him while he did nothing. That method was bad for the boy for he learned nothing. Another way to help him was to do the hard parts of the lesson, leaving him to do the easy part. That was bad for him also. He would howl at every difficulty. The best way to help him was to sit beside him and inspire and direct his thinking, while he did the sum for himself. Soon he was saying that he could do them without my help. That is why I am saying that all this effort to feed able bodied men is wrong. The more they are fed, the more they want to be fed. Better lay aside all this doing the sum for people and teach them how to feed themselves. It is far better to teach a man how to make a loaf of bread than it is to give him one.

People go to church for various reasons. Some to see and some to be seen. Some to get help and some to be helped. Some to gain strength for duties and for temptations and some to find comfort in sorrow. I ran across a lovely little phrase written by Mr. Emerson telling why he went to church. I think that it is worth passing on and here it is. When asked why he went to church he said in reply, "Because I have a little flower in my heart that is called Reverence, that needs to be watered and fed every Sunday." Listen to me folks. That little flower that we call reverence in your heart needs to be watered every Sunday, and if you fail to do this, it is going to wither, dwarf and finally die.

"God Bless America"

"God Bless America." We've heard high school boys sing it with all the fervor of young patriotism. We've heard civic clubs sing it with all enthusiasm for the nation's progress. And we've heard great American soprano thrill large audiences with its divine notes.

But we've never heard "God Bless America" when it stirred us so much as one day this week when we walked past a Negro church in Anniston. From the choir voices clear and powerful blended into a harmonious melody that drifted over the heat and stress of a busy world.

And we thought, "God has, indeed, blessed America that peoples of all races sing so reverently this song of our land."

We thought of Englishman, Frenchman, German, Jew, Italian, Pole, Swede, Russian, Hungarian and all the other members in that vast company of nationalities who are singing the song now. Surely no nation on earth has ever offered greater refuge from tyrannies or given greater opportunities for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. America has used the genius of every race to build a high civilization.

As those Negro voices went out their message we realized wherein rests the genius, the power and security of America; Whether he dwells in lowly tenement quarters or in exclusive residential section, the ordinary American begins in his political thinking with the assumption that a wise Creator has endowed all men with precious, inalienable rights to be guarded diligently by the whole of society.

Because of this way of thinking our nation can go on and advance steadily in social achievement. Growth conflicts will come about, but they will not permanently shackle progress. More just, world brotherhood, a finer democracy are the ideals always before us, though we sometime forget.

"God Bless America!" Our nation's power rests not in economic wealth or military might. We have a great nation because many men have sought to work the will of Providence in our social order.—Anniston Times.

Alabama is one of the eight states in the United States where the feeding of garbage to hogs is declining. The other states are Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Kansas.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

Among the American people today, there are those who are able to comprehend the national defense program and are deeply interested in it; there are those who do not care at all about it and there are those who are interested in it, but do not understand it, and hence, are not able to give it the attention that it must have to be effectively carried out.

The first class is to be greatly admired for its ability; the second class is so infinitesimal that it is unimportant; and the last is to be immensely lamented for its unfortunate condition, and regretfully, that last division is by far the majority of Americans, and it is one that will choose the next President of the United States in the election this Fall.

The last class which does not understand the national defense program does understand, however, that we are preparing to defend our basic freedoms against foreign aggression, and that we will defend them by the usual implements and means of war. What they do not understand is how can a foreign aggressor attack the United States. They hold so conclusively that a foreign nation is so unable to wage a victorious war on us that they take only passive interest in the defense plan. They have not waked up, it seems, to the lesson of the past, and therefore, will be doomed to repeat it. They must become cognizant of how well a foreign nation can wage an effective war on us. If they do not wake up to that fact, then they will eventually find themselves subjugated and enslaved.

Assuming, of course, that Great Britain loses her war with Germany, we would immediately find that the first German move against the security of the United States would be through the channels of trade. Germany does not want war. It would rather take what it wants without military battles. Therefore, the first restrictions that would be imposed upon us would be that we would not be given equal opportunity in trade with the rest of the world. Germany would fix her own standards of exchange. The idea would be that we would be coerced into giving Germany what she wants so that we can export. We have already been warned of this consequence as a German victory by the Reich's Minister of Economic Affairs, Dr. Walther Funk.

Dr. Funk stated that either we shall trade with Germany on Germany's terms after the war, or we shall not trade at all. It might seem that we could get along quite all right without trading with Germany, but since Germany would then control all our markets, an economic depression as never before would seize this country.

But, allowing that we could still hold out against the Nazi regime, what then? If Germany found that she could not cripple us into submission by economic pressure, we could feel sure that we should be invaded for Germany needs the things that this Hemisphere can supply.

Yet, there are those who will say that we can not be invaded. They still are allowing their minds to roam the pages of a history book of hundreds of years ago which probably said that because the ocean is so broad that this Hemisphere is secure. If Germany controlled the seas, which she would after a victory over Great Britain, she would be well able to land a force of millions of men on this side of the Atlantic. Anyone who thinks that she could not, had best remember that in the first World War, the United States landed two million men on the soil of the European continent and without the aid of the improved facilities of this improved mechanical age. If we could land men in Europe, then Germany could land soldiers on this side of the Atlantic. By means of aviation, the force of the invader would be augmented. In 1940, as years past, the ruler of the seas would be the ruler of the world.

Assuming then, that the Germans did control the oceans which they inevitably will if Britain bows, could we still defend ourselves against Germany after the Nazis had landed on these shores? Would we be able to defend them with a powerful army? That is the idea and hope of the American people, since our power to rule the seas would be in decay. And for that reason, conscription is considered necessary by many American legislators. Compulsory training is not to send men to foreign soil, but to defend us against an invader, were that invader capable of landing men in this Hemisphere.
